Citizens Busy on Saturday With Their Planting

Saturday afternoon found the "Greater Production" workers on the land all around the city, particularly in the south end. The C.G.E. men have one hundred and thirty bags of potatoes to put in on Braidwood Ave. between Park and Lock streets. They have let the work to a number of men who are plowing up a long stretch of sod on either side of the street and dropping the potatoes in every third furrow. The Henry Hope land has been well cultivated and planters were observed working at the east end of it on Saturday afternoon. These are two of the more ambitious schemes. Individuals have their lots in various stages of cultivation and planting. Quite a number were putting in potatoes on Saturday, others transplanting onions, cabbage and tomatoes. Business men, mechanics and others were all engaged, in some cases their wives assisting. Thus the movement progresses even at this date, and there is yet time to put in practically all the principal vegetables. It is known that the production movement has drawn a generous response in Peterborough. Many acres of ground have been reclaimed from idleness and put to work on hundreds of bushels of potatoes, and quantities of beans, onions, carrots, parsnips and other vegetables. For those who have been indifferent it may be stated that they have plenty of time yet to put in seed or to transplant, and there is more than sufficient land available.

Nothing else frightens a man so much as his wife's dead silence after he has failed to do the proper thing. It is like a stone wall with barbed wire on top; he can't get around it, nor see through it nor walk over it.

RECONSTRUCTION OF THE CABINET OR COALITION

Ottawa Reports State That Many Cabinet Changes Will Be Made — Half a Dozen Ministers To Go — Delay In Bringing Down the Conscription Measure

OTTAWA, May 28. — Radical Cabinet reconstruction and a further pause for reflection and well-considered counsels before invoking conscription, are the week-end developments in the political crisis at the capital.

Whether Cabinet reconstruction is to drift into coalition, through the exigencies of political uncertainties on both sides and a sense of the wisdom of united effort by both parties to meet the problems arising through the conscription proposal, or whether it is to be undertaken by Sir Robert Borden as a party and Governmental necessity is still problematical.

There is a strong move on for coalition among members on both sides of the House. Whether the practical difficulties in the way of divergent party politics, affiliations, and personal diversity of views will prevent the carrying out of the coalition scheme is uncertain. Sir Robert Borden and Sir Wilfrid Laurier are keeping their own counsels on the subject, although there is reason to believe that there has been an exchange of views between the two leaders.

Looking for Satisfactory Compromise

On the Liberal side there is naturally some reluctance towards now stepping in to save the situation for a moribund Government after nearly three years of war and as partyism has been exploited to the full by the present administration and with a Parliament which has not had a constitutional mandate from the people. As against this, however, there is the sincere desire to do what is considered best for the national interest in securing stability of government and all possible unity of national action towards winning the war, as well also as the realization that there will be a serious split within the party ranks if an election should be forced with conscription as the main issue. Both parties are looking for some form of satisfactory compromise, in order to avoid the political chaos which looms ahead, and which would prove disastrous to the national interest in the present critical war year.

If coalition doesn't materialize, it is certain that there will be a very drastic Cabinet reconstruction forced upon Sir Robert Borden. The party and the country demand it. As far as can be learned, he is handling the situation himself, without taking his own Cabinet colleagues into his confidence.

Some Ministers May Go.

Half a dozen of the Cabinet Ministers are already, it is reported, marked for retirement. The Honorable Frank Cochrane, Minister of Railways, is ready, it is understood, to retire. His health is not good, and he is weary of the stress and worry of Governmental responsibility under especially trying conditions. The Honorable Martin Burrell and the Honorable Dr. Roche will, it is expected, vacate the portfolios of the Departments of Agriculture and the Interior, and probably appropriate positions in the permanent Government service will be found for them. Both of them, in any case, are uncertain of re-election in their own constituencies in the event of a general election. The Honorable T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labour, is also slated for retirement. He may be given a judgeship, but it is said that he is personally rather anxious to retire from public life and resume the quietude of his St. Thomas home. Hon. J. D. Hazen, Minister of Marine and Naval Affairs, is also on the list of the Ministers who, it is said, are to go. A judicial position will meet his requirements. The Hon. Robert Rogers, Minister of Public Works, does not yet see why he should promptly retire from the Government. But the party sees it, and Sir Robert Borden has been plainly told that Mr. Rogers is too heavy a burden to be carried longer. He is likely to be the Minister who will stand most upon the order of his going, and to create the most difficulty for the Prime Minister. It is regarded as inevitable, however, in view of the latest disclosures from Manitoba, that Mr. Rogers must be put into the discard.

Who Will Take Their Places?

The problem of filling the vacancies is still unsolved. No one here can forecast the solution with any degree of certainty. If coalition is effected, the vanacies will, of course, be filled by Liberals. If coalition is not effected, Sir Robert will probably seek to strengthen his party by bringing in men from outside of Parliament. There is not much choice for him in the present representation on the Conservative side of the House.

Delay Over Conscription Bill.

In regard to the Conscription Bill, the Quebec situation and the unexpected flood of protests which have come in from all parts of the country, together with the certainty of a split within the ranks of both parties on the issue, is causing a natural delay in bringing down the bill. Quebec members on both side are against conscription. Sir Robert Borden, it is said, cannot even count on holding two of his Quebec Ministers in line, namely, Hon. Messrs. Sevigny and Blondin.

Sir Wilfrid Keeps His Counsel Yet.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier is similarly in a most difficult and complicated position. He has not yet made known, even to his own followers, what his position will be, but is taking counsel from all with a view to reaching the solution of the problem which, to his mind, will help best for national unity and the most practical and effective means of promoting Canada's war efforts. It is recognized by both sides of the House that even if conscription under the present circumstances were forced through, with parties divided and with sentiment running the way it does, not only in Quebec, but in other centres of population throughout Canada, the enforcement of the measure might be difficult.

There is a further general feeling that the Prime Minister's announcement with regard to conscription was precipitate. His followers in the House were not consulted, and only one day's consideration of the question was given by the Cabinet Council after Sir Robert's return from England. Voluntary enlistment, it is asserted by members on both sides, might well have been given a few weeks' further trial under the promise of conscription if enough men did not come forward to fill the gaps at the front.

Both Sides Want Further Counsels.

A little opportunity for further sane and well-considered counsels, and for working out some compromise which might obviate political chaos and national disruption, would be welcomed by both sides. The Conscription Bill may be introduced this week, but it is probable that there will be no attempt made to put it through for a week or so at least, pending further attempts to reach a satisfactory solution of the most difficult and dangerous problem which has been before Parliament since the war begun.

W. J. McGregor, P.O. Box 836,
Peterborough, Ontario.

Dear Sir,—No doubt before now you have received official notice of the death of your brother, No. 195142 Lance Corp. J. McGregor, who died of wounds received in action on the 11th inst. I was very much surprised to hear of his death as I did not think at the time that his wounds were at all serious.

I always regarded him as one of my most promising N.C.O's, and although I had only known him for a short time, he proved himself to be a most trustworthy and loyal N.C.O.

While I fully appreciate the fact that nothing can compensate for the loss of such a promising young life, I feel there must be some comfort in the fact that he gave his life for such a noble cause.

Please accept for yourself and any other members of your family my sincerest sympathy in your hour of sorrow.

Very sincerely yours,
M. MacLEOD

Turks Give Gen. Townshend the Best of Attention

LONDON. — General Townshend, who was captured at Kut-el-Amara, in the early campaign in Mesopotamia, is lodged in the Villa Hampson at Prinkipo, an island in the Sea of Marmora. He praises the thoughtful attention of the Ottoman authorities for his comfort.

This statement is made by the International Committee of the Red Cross in their latest reports. Delegates of this society have visited many depots, wherein British, French and Indian officers are placed, and they report it must be recognized that the Turkish authorities had made serious attempts to alleviate the hardships of these officers in captivity. The report says:

"In general the best hotels and private houses have been placed at the disposal of the British and French officers. With some exceptions, the officers have not made any complaints as to their lodgings and food. As for the soldiers the question is different. We know that the Turkish soldiers are subjected to the same regime; they are content with very little, endure the greatest privations and are accustomed to the smallest amount of nourishment. The Europeans, especially those coming from Kut, have been so weakened by the marches across the dessert that one can understand their restoration to health would be rendered difficult by an insufficient diet. When as at Afium Karahissar, they have to work, their strength is taxed to an extent which is not in proportion with their power of resistance. This implies no blame on the Turkish authorities but is the result of exceptional circumstances."

At Eski Shehr, 66 Indian Mohammedan officers are lodged in the best private houses in the town. At Brussa which was visited on November 21 and 22, fourteen British officers, including six generals, were at the Hotel Brotte and Hotel Osmanieh.

At Afium Karahissar on November 28, there were 67 officers, 482 British soldiers and 223 Indian soldiers. The quality of the food was satisfactory but the quantity rather too small. The delegates received an assurance from the Turkish high command that the prisoners shall not be obliged to work more than eight hours a day; they receive exactly the same food as the Turkish soldier.

The delegates declare themselves extremely satisfied with the arrangements made by the British authorities for the housing, feeding and clothing of the Turkish prisoners.

Chili is irrigating more than 2,000,000 acres of land and has nearly as many more available for irrigation.

Says That Conscription Is Long Overdue

Should Have Come A Year and A Half Ago, Says Rev. R. G. Peever in an Eloquent Sermon at George Street Methodist Church

Reluctant officers, munition workers, and anti-conscriptionists who heard Rev. Mr. Peever's stirring address last night on Conscription must have had their convenient convictions shaken by the splendid sermon on the question so much before the public at the present moment.

Rev. Mr. Peever chose as his text 2nd Chapter Jeremiah, 31.33: "The Lord blesses the habitation of justice and men of holiness."

The reason of the sermon was, first, Empire Day, the purpose of which, to teach patriotism to the Empire, whose motive is "One Flag, one King, one Empire, and one Navy."

The second reason is the fact that conscription is now forced on the thoughts of the people of Canada for the first time officially by the message brought from England by Premier Borden. At the present time our hearts go out with intense affection to the Empire and Britain. Why? Because she stands to-day the best loved and best hated nation in the world; like the great vessel after a long voyage, battered and storm tossed she still tries to make port in the face of world-storm and opposition, positive, defiant, unconquerable. We see our Empire standing for leadership for the world's liberty, guardian of the world's democracy, and sponsor for freedom of the small nations, guaranteeing with her wealth, sealing with her life blood on foreign soil the honour of her treaties and the sacredness of her conception of her international law. We see her standing for public justice and personal liberty—liberty declared by President Elliott of Harvard to be the greatest ideals of legislation and government within Great Britain as the basis of national righteousness among our people. These ideals have cost us much through the centuries of our unique history, and we find the bonds of our Empire are not our laws, not our treaties. Neither Army nor Navy but the affection and good will of Britain's sons the world over towards the mother land and its just recognition of the ideals for which we suffer and die.

Duty to the Motherland.

Have we no duty towards the Motherland? Have we no obligations in these days to discharge, no affections worth strengthening, no heritage to safeguard and perpetuate to the generations yet to come? In reply, my words cannot be better put than the statement of Sir George Drummond, 1900, before a section of the Imperial Press Conference in Montreal: "It will be a sorry day for all when sentiment of devotion to our sovereign, sense of loyalty to the throne, realization of the pride in the record of our race as seen in the glory of the united Empire, has no influence in our actions." Thank God we have a duty to the Empire and we are assuming great obligations, strengthening bonds of affection to the Empire in more sacred ways than at any previous time. Our efforts in munition manufacture, war loans, gifts to Red Cross and patriotic funds, our 400,000 sons speak of our response, but above everything speak the little Canadian cemeteries in France and Flanders, Gallipoli and Dardanelles of our loyalty to the ideals and liberty of our Empire.

Conscription.

But now has come the time for a deeper and fuller consecration on the part of the Canadian people. I believe for myself that the time is long past due. I preached a year and a half ago on conscription as the necessity and duty of the hour. I did not always believe in it, I saw the trend of circumstances, I measured only in part the tremendous conflict we are now engaged in, and as England changed her mind, so I fell two years ago stood converted to the great question of conscription. Therefore I appreciate very fully the pronouncement of Premier Borden on conscription to the Parliament of Canada, and people of the Dominion, and I deprecate the mass meetings of Quebec in opposition to the same. I deprecate most seriously the fact that the military have to take steps in Montreal to protect returned wounded soldiers from violence and assault on the part of Montreal people, as seen on Saturday night in the press. I deprecate that many still are not seized with the magnitude of the awful war. They bow down still to the golden calf and they still worship at their cross of gold. Contrast if you will the feeling toward the war in England and that of Ontario. Lord Curzon last week invited a dozen friends to a dance in his home, and the next day London was alive with posters calling attention to the same. (Curzon dances whilst England burns. Twentieth century hero), with the result dancing in England stands banned for the remainder of the war. How different in Ontario. 15,000 people aweek ago Saturday attended the Woodbine races to spend their money to satisfy the desire of those who are making huge profits out of direct gambling in this province.

Why Conscription?

First it is absolutely necessary. Persuasive registration, even goading, have failed, the supreme necessity to win the war. Before this fact all objections must stand waived. Second, conscription is the only just, equitable and right method. Democracy stands for the sharing of burdens by the many, not the few. Why some families and communities go free even under the excuse of munition workers or farm labourers, when other families and communities who have no greater responsibility, give of themselves without stint for the defence and right of the home land. It is unfair, it is unjust.

Third, conscription should be comprehensive and not partisan. Grit and Tory should be dropped from our vocabulary at the present time. The whole force of the nation should be mobilized. Not a bushel of grain should be vested for liquor for beverages. Food supplies should be controlled, wealth taxed more highly, war profits given to the government. Canadian officers should be conscripted to the ranks and the whole force of our manhood summoned to the conflict.

Fourth. It should come soon and come now. Messrs. Rowell and Hearst maintained last year that our lines were unsupported and many men who to-day lie in graves on foreign soil, had they been amply supported, would still be living links in the home land. It should come now. Any policy of drift or inaction will be suicidal. The Government of Canada should lead and should lead now for the defence of Canada, and the security of Canada is in France and Flanders. For as that great South African, General Smuts stated in London [illegible]: That the most precious and most spiritual forces of the human races are at stake. Our future is either under the drill sergeant in Prussia or that of free men and women under the flag of the British Empire.

Might Destroy German Crops

Suggestion Made That Standing Grain Be Fired

BIRMINGHAM, England, May 25—A plan to destroy the German crops by setting them on fire by means of fireballs dropped from Entente airplanes is suggested by Lord Calthorpe, a former member of the British Army who has given much thought to the food situation brought about by this war. Lord Calthorpe married a daughter of Ogden Hofman Burrows of Newport, R.I.

Lord Calthorpe's proposal, made known through letters to the newspapers in London and other cities of England, has attracted a great deal of attention. While many methods for bringing Germany to terms by the starvation route have been suggested, no such theory as Lord Calthorpe's had before been broached.

"In the Rhine Valley and districts within reach of our aircraft," he writes, "there are vast tracts of land planted with grain, the fields touching one another, and without fences or hedges. Similar conditions exist near the Russian frontier of Germany and in the plains in Hungary.

"Firegalls dropped from airplanes would, if properly constructed, destroy thousands of acres, as the crops become much drier than in England, and with little risk to the inhabitants, otherwise non-combatants, as cottage and farm buildings among the fields are rare.

"A suitable fireball could soon be devised and manufactured by our experts, but it is imperative, however, that the necessary experiments and plans are made quickly, as the German harvests are earlier than ours. There is therefore no time to be lost."

Lord Calthorpe says that, as it has become a question as to which country starves first, Germany or England, it is important that the Entente Allies lose no time in hastening the destruction of the German crops.

Nicholls Oval Tennis Courts

The Tennis Courts of the George Street Methodist Church Tennis Club, at Nicholls Oval are now in good shape to accommodate players. Mr. Kitney, the Park foreman, has rolled the grounds several times, and they are marked out for use by the members any evening from now on.

The election of officers for the George Street Club will be held in the Church basement on Wednesday evening of this week at 7.30. All those interested in tennis at the Oval are requested to be on hand. A special invitation is extended to students of the Collegiate and Normal School.

BOWLING

Last week's prize for the high score in Five Pins was won by Wm. Heaslip, who rolled a total of 217, which is a record score for Five Pins at the Water Street Alleys.

GOLF.

A system for automatic handicapping will be in operation this week, each man member is expected to record his totals of four separate rounds of nine holes each previous to June 16th. Rules and card rack will be placed in the Club House at once. It is expected that play for the Stratton Trophy will begin the week ending June 30th

WORK FOR COLLEGE BOYS.

Thousands of Them to be Employed in the Building of Wooden Ships.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—Thousands of young men from the colleges who are not subject to draft are to be called upon to serve as apprentices in the yards in which the fleet of wooden ships are to be built to carry supplies to Europe. The task of organising this force to speed up the Shipping Board's building programme has been placed in the hands of the employment service of the Department of Labour, under the leadership of C. T. Clayton.

It was announced to-day that assurances have been received already of 1000 technically trained men from Columbia University, 1,000 from the University of Pennsylvania, and 500 from the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn. Amherst College has offered to co-operate, and Mr. Clayton wrote also to-day to Francis Spencer Edmonds, Chairman of the School Mobilization Committee of Philadelphia, asking that 2,000 young men be organized in that city, through Girard College and other institutions. In several of the schools and colleges night classes are being conducted, in charge of practical ship constructors.

The employment service of the Department of Labour is also organizing labour for the canning industry. In response to appeals from the National Canners' Association, Mr. Clayton has made a survey to ascertain the supply of and demand for canning labour in the Eastern States. To-day he appealed to Mr. Edmond's committee in Philadelphia to supply urgent demands in Pennsylvania. Maryland canners will need 7,000 helpers.

OSSINING, N.Y., May 26. — Dr. Arthur Warren Waite was executed at Sing Sing Prison at 11:10 last night for the murder of his father-in-law, John E. Peck, of Grand Rapids, Mich.. The young dentist walked calmly and with a firm step from his cell to the death chamber, accompanied by the Protestant chaplain of the prison. He faltered as he neared the electric chair, but recovered himself quickly and nodded to the group of witnesses. He went to his death without a word of protest or good-bye to anyone, not even his mother.

Chaplain Peterson declared that Waite, who confessed that he had poisoned his wealthy father-in-law in the expectation that his wife would obtain a large share of the wealthy Mr. Peck's estate, seemed to look upon his approaching doom as a wonderful adventure.

CANADIAN ALLOWANCES TO DEPENDENTS OF RUSSIANS IN ARMY

LONDON, May 25.— Considerably over a hundred Russians serving with the Canadians have separation allowances sent to Russia from the Canadian Office in London. The British consul at Petrograd handles this business for the Canadian office, the amount of separation and assigned pay reaching about seven pounds monthly.

This, for Russian peasant families, is a small windfall and expressions of gratitude are constantly reaching the Canadian office. One woman wrote to Capt. Dowding, who deals with this business that "she kissed him on both cheeks for having added two fields to the patrimony provided with her dowry."

Gen. Prince Yermoloff, attached to the Russian Embassy, gives the Canadian office every assistance.

PIPE ORGAN IMPROVEMENTS

Church No Longer Monopolizes King of Instruments.

Pipe organs have been installed in some of the more important moving picture theatres all over the continent. There is no more interesting musical development. For generations the churches have had almost a complete monopoly or the organ which is regarded by vast numbers of people as the king of instruments. Certainly the improvements in organ building during the past two decades have made the instrument immensely more responsive to the will of the player than it ever was, and thus have greatly increased its power of expression. In the old days when an organ key was pressed, a complicated system of levers, trackers and balances was needed to open the pipe and permit the stored wind to give it voice. The development of electricity has abolished all this hardwood lumber of communication. Nowadays, the pressure on the key completes an electrical circuit which opens the pipe instantaneously, no matter how far it may be from the keyboard. That accounts for the Echo Organ, placed at the rear of the building, perhaps two hundred feet from the player's seat. A small copper wire conveys the impulse at a rate of some 250,000 miles a second—more or less, and thus a great difficulty is solved. Further, the old system of a great bellows weighted with iron and set inside the instrument to provide wind under pressure has been replaced by electric fans which can supply wind at varying pressures for different kinds of pipes. There are pneumatic pistons which in a moment can open various sets of pipes. New stops have been invented, and to-day it is possible to secure from an organ of large size such permutations and combinations of tone color as Bach and the other masters of the organ never dreamed of. Some builders, particularly in the United States, have been inclined towards the extreme development of peculiarities in tone-colour. Our builders have not been neglectful of these "circus stops" as the irreverent call them, but they have been wise enough to recognize that the soul of the organ is its diapasons, those full rich honest tones that have preserved the majesty of the instrument through all its varied vicissitudes. The Canadian diapasons are not surpassed anywhere in the world, though perhaps they are equalled in some of the Cathedral organs of England where the wooden pipes have been seasoning in dry air for two or three hundred years.

CAN EAST AND WEST EVER MEET, MUSICALLY SPEAKING

Mutual Respect, if not Full Understanding, Possible.

Why is the music of the Orient so unintelligible to Occidental ears Why does the very finest performance of a Chinese orchestra sound thin and flat and squeaky to us and arouse our laughter instead of our sympathetic understanding?

Well, for one thing, the Oriental likes to use one melody in a piece over and over again, with a bit of variation and a little flavouring of improvisation, till it becomes highly monotonous and irritating to use. To him the same tune grows more inspiring with each repetition. Who shall say that we are right and he is wrong, or that our taste is the superior?

Indeed, we should hesitate long before we scoff—and then drop the idea altogether—for music, including a regular system of notation, was a highly developed science in India 350 years before the birth of Christ. The Eastern ear can distinguish smaller intervals than can ours. The gift of improvisation is common in that quarter of the globe among men, women and children. Their sense of rhythm, too, is so much stronger than ours that their musicians sway their bodies to the beat of the music, and the listening audience does likewise. Conversely, if they are engaged in tasks with recurrent action, they instinctively become vocal. The boatman pulling his barge, the labourer in the fields, each sings a rhythmic air which the movement of his muscles suggests to him.

In view of all this, it may well be that the Oriental has more of the essence of song in his heart than have we. Experts have even declared his type of music to be of a finer texture than our own and to have much of scientific perfection.

Our Conception of Musical Beauty Different.

But we have no patience with the improvisations of the ordinary man and woman, so popular in the Orient. We cannot comprehend that the power of rhythm should be so compelling. Above all, we are sold to that delight of the East in constant repetition. So, despite all we hear nowadays about the "common language of music," that of the East is still an alien tongue to us.

Rabindranath Tagore touches on this subject in his book "The Man and His Poetry," but wisely refrains from trying to bridge the chasm. On the contrary, he asserts uncompromisingly: "I hold that the provinces of western and eastern music are distinctly separate. They do not lead through the same gates into the same chambers of the heart."

The Object of the Ideal Programme is to Expand the Horison of the People.

It is no sinecure to arrange a programme for the general public. No person finds it an easy thing to decide what numbers shall find a place on such a programme. Which is better to have in mind "uplift" or "what the people want?" "There is in reality no such question, said Mr. Arthur Farwell in his address to the Canadian Club when he once visited Toronto and told of the work of conducting municipal concerts in New York. "It is all a matter of theory," said he. "Uplift" is what someone thinks the people should have, and that is theory. 'What the people want' is what someone thinks they want, and that again is theory. We don't know these things. How do people know whether they want good music until they know what it is?

"Of course there is a response to the music of the hurdy-gurdy. If people hear their familiar street tunes of course they will respond. But that does not mean they will not respond ten times harder to music which is ten times as great, if they hear it under proper conditions. That is true. It is not a question of uplift or what the people want; it is a question of conditions, not theories. And the whole question resolves itself into one of horison—what is needful to expand the horizon of the people. The millions will respond if they see what the world contains, and most of them are as appreciative, when you give them a chance to hear it, as anyone else. Music becomes to them not what they would call before "highbrow," but human, and they feel it."

HUMAN NATURE LIKES A BARGAIN.

Any person who has lived in the country can recall acquaintances who were possessed of the auction sale bug. Such a one attended every sale for miles around. It was his delight to bid on many articles, not that he needed them or even wanted them, but it was a pleasure to bid anyway. Oftentimes there was lurking back of this desire the idea of running across something real valuable for a mere song.

That same trait in human nature drives certain persons to the pawnshop to look for a fiddle. There is a general impression in the public mind that old fiddles are better than new ones. Again there have been many stories go the rounds of a person digging up a genuine old Cremona or a Strad in a pawnshop and securing it for a mere pitance. There are cases on record of famous violins finding their way to the pawnshop, but such are rare. On the other hand, a gentleman who has browsed around considerably in antique stores and pawnshops tells of the proprietor of one of the latter who did a fairly large business in "imitation" old fiddles from some European factory. He said: "It was really comical to see him reach for a slate and pencil which he kept handy for the purpose, and figure up the age of an imitation Strad for an unsophisticated customer. He would deduct the date of the bogus label inside the violin from the year the violin was sold, thus proving the fiddle to be 200 or more years old."

When bargain-hunting gets in the blood it becomes a gamble, but it is human nature to take a chance.

MUSIC IN MONTREAL.

Canada Musical, a French periodical dealing with music in Montreal has just been born. The first issue is well printed and attractive, and its pages are devoted mainly to news of various musicians, professional and amateur. On the cover appears a portrait of Mr. Rodolphe Plamandon the Canadian tenor who has had a successful career in Paris during the past few years. He frequently has been heard at the Galonne Concerts in Paris and during the season just past he was one of the principal tenors at the Paris Opera. Two interesting new choral works are under rehearsal by French societies, Les Chants de Guerre (The Songs of War) by Alexandre Georges is being prepared by the Choir of Saints Louis de France under the direction of Mr. Alexander M. Clerk whose work as a choral director is well known. The Virgin by Massente is to be produced by the choir of Saint Stanislas under the direction of Mr. H. Desjardins. At each concert an orchestra of Montreal instrumentalists will play the accompaniments.

Mr. Fred Pettetier, writing in Le Devoir of Montreal, concerning the Russian Cathedral Choir, expresses the opinion that the boys' voices in this country are seriously damaged by the foolish habit of yelling, not only in play but in school. He considers that loud singing and loud school recitation in concert is perpetually damaging to the tender vocal cords.

OVERCOMING THE ARTISTIC TEMPERAMENT.

By John J. Levbarg, M.D.

Singers rarely or never contract tuberculosis, which is probably due to their proper method of breathing, thereby taking in plenty of oxygen—important and indispensable to good health. At the same time the chief neurotics that visit a physician's office are singers. This neurotic condition, common in singers, is mainly due, so some doctors believe, to extreme sensitiveness. Nervousness occupies a big place in the life of the average singer.

Music is very instrumental in producing a nervous condition. It causes a marked effect on the nervous system through its varied vibrations. It has been proven repeatedly by experimentation that music will cause stimulation, depression, make the weak strong, cowards brave, and aid many maladies of the nervous system.

Temperament is affected by different conditions, as elevation of temperature, change of climate, high altitude, and environment. If singers control this temperament of theirs their singing will be clear; but if they lack power of adaptation sudden nervousness may come in, thereby causing straining, clouding, and muffling of the voice, and improper breathing.

The treatment of this neurosis requires the greatest care. The singer's food, sleep, exercises, and work, should all be systematically regulated. Personal hygiene is very important in such individuals. Their intellectual work especially should be judiciously limited and should alternate frequently with periods of repose. Excitement of all kinds should be avoided.

Cold baths before going to bed and in the morning help to harden the nervous system. Exercises in the gymnasium, tennis, rowing, sailing are all of value in maintaining the general nutrition, and help the nervous system a great deal.

TRAGIC DEATH OF PETERBORO BOY IN BRITISH HOSPITAL

Nurse in Charge Sends to Mrs. Billington, of This City, Particulars Concerning Death of Private William George Billington

Mrs. A. Billington, 492 McDonnel Street, has received the following letter concerning the death of her son, Private William George Billington, who died from wounds. The letter reads as follows:

Ward 1, War Hospital,
May 7th, 1917.

Dear Mrs. Billington,—It is with deepest regret that I write to you this sad news concerning the death of your beloved boy. My first letter to you was so very hopeful, and I am afraid the news of his death will be a very great blow to you.

Poor laddie, he was very ill when he came in, still I had every hope of him getting better and so had the Major. He died very suddenly and peacefully on Saturday, 5th, at 2.15 p.m. He asked the nurse for a drink just about three minutes before he died—and then he simply lay back and passed away.

For the last two or three days before his death he was very ill, and the night before I was in the ward at 2 o'clock in the morning—we had a convoy arriving at that time. The boy wasn't asleep and I begged of him to try and have a sleep, he would be so tired. "Oh, yes, nurse, I'll be as fresh as you like when you come on in the morning," but he looked very ill in the morning, although he was very bright and cheerful. I was very anxious about him, but yet never thought of him dying on that date. The cause of his death was a clot of blood which got detached from some of the abdominal vessels and reached the heart, and so caused heart failure.

The Funeral.

He was such a nice bonnie lad, and the patients were so fond of him and so good to him. The day before was a lovely sunny day, and we had his bed carried out in the sun, which he liked. The funeral is to be on Wednesday from the hospital. It seems so hard that none of his own people will be there—but his wounded comrades will take their place.

I will write again and tell you of his funeral. I have two shrapnel bullets which were removed from his legs when he was operated on. Would you care to have them?

Please accept my deepest sympathy; my heart goes out to you in your great sorrow.

With sincere sympathy, I am, yours faithfully,

A. M. Thompson
(Sister in Charge).

Police Teach Nell Craig To Be Real Detective

"I want to be a detective," said the pretty young woman who entered the Chicago detective bureau. The captain in charge jumped off his chair and called two sergeants.

"See this young lady is made a detective," he ordered.

o she was taken through the cell rooms, shown how the records of criminals were kept, and initiated into the mysteries of the identification bureau. Then she returned to the captain's office.

"How did you like it, Miss Craig?" he asked.

"How did you know my name?" she countered.

"Oh, I'm a detective," he laughed

But it really was Nell Craig—trying to learn something of police methods because she plays the part of a girl detective in "The Breaker." Essanay feature filmed from Arthur Stringer's story in The Saturday Evening Post. Bryant Washburn appears in the masculine lead.

Sons Of England Attend Divine Service at St. James

Lansdowne Lodge, of the Sons of England attended divine service at St. James' Methodist church last night, where they were cordially received and welcomed to the new edifice by the pastor, Rev. Benjamin Greatrix. A large attendance of members of the Society and of the congregation practically filled the church. The music was specially selected for the occasion and was sung with a moving fervour, including the National Anthem at the close, "God Bless our Native Land" and "O God of Bethel by Whose Hand." The anthems by the choir were also appropriate and well rendered, as was also a solo by Mrs. Rehill.

Rev. Mr. Greatrix preached from the text, "He hath not dealt so with any nation," 20th verse, 147th psalm. Incidentally he paid a warm tribute to the Sons of England, from whose membership of 30,000 there had enlisted 8,600 men with Canada's forces. Lansdowne Lodge, with an enrollment of two hundred, had a record of fifty-three men enlisted, three rejected, three had paid the supreme sacrifice and forty-seven of its members were now at the front. "Surely," said Rev. Mr. Greatrix, "an Order that has given twenty-five per cent. of its members is loyal to the core." He also referred to the practical benevolence exemplified by the order of its expenditure of $160,000 in sick benefits and other relief. 'May it have 'God's blessing,'" was the pastor's prayer, "and may success and prosperity remain with it."

Continuing his sermon, Rev. Mr. Greatrix stated that if St. Paul was proud of his citizenship, the members of the Sons of England should be proud of the Empire that is built on securer foundations than that of ancient Rome. Her influence did not emanate from the size of the country nor from the number of inhabitants. It is righteousness that has exalted the nation. Not in a few years did England attain her world-wide influence, but after the long protracted struggle through which she passed. Her history is wet with tears and crimsoned with the blood of her bravest and best. Her path is strewn with abandoned despotisms. It was a long, weary, toilsome climb to the exalted position she holds in the world to-day.

Rev. Mr. Greatrix dwelt upon the principal characteristics of the English, of which he mentioned their love of liberty first. This had resulted from the people's indomitable spirit of freedom. The sacredness of the home and the sanctity of the marriage tie were national characteristics of England. Deep patriotism and fidelity and steadfastness to convictions were other traits. The sturdy independence of the British electorate was also enumerated. Rev. Mr. Greatrix added that in Canada the people are prone to follow mere party names. The country needed to-day a sturdier independence on the part of the electorate. A succession of the turning out of governments would make the public vote a terror to evil-doers in public life. Another characteristic was the righteousness of the people shown in the scorn to take advantage of the weak or of another man's necessity. In the great struggle in which she is engaged to-day, a struggle that is taxing her resources, she stands calm and confident in her rectitude. In conclusion Rev. Mr. Greatrix expressed the prayer that God would grant that the flag would ever wave supreme among the nations.

MOST DESPERATE FIGHT OF WAR

Special to The Examiner:

VIENNA, May 27.— The Austrian official statement describes the fighting on the Julian front as the most desperate since the outbreak of the war.

NEPHEW OF CAPT. J. H. BURNHAM DECORATED

A London despatch announcing Canadian recipients of Italian honours mentions Captain Howard Hampton Burnham, of the Medical, among those who had received the silver medal for military valour. Capt. Burnham is a son of Dr. Burnham, of Toronto, and a nephew of Capt. J. H. Burnham, M.P., of this city. His brother who is in the infantry branch at the front was recently decorated with the Military Medal.

For ease in carrying, a folding drum for orchestra musicians has been invented, which is extended to full size by hinged ribs between the heads.

Protestant Benevolent Federation

On Friday evening last the Protestant Benevolent Federation held their regular monthly meeting in Victoria Hall, which was a most enthusiastic and largely attended meeting.

It was the best meeting in a long time, and if the spirit shown at this gathering is any criterion there will be a capacity attendance at the next meeting on the last Friday in June.

The Refreshment committee deserves great credit for the very excellent manner in which that very important feature of all the Federation meetings was handled.

Many of the old and younger members made short, sensible and witty speeches which brought rounds of applause. After the regular business and while all were enjoying the refreshments, Mr. Percy Naish sang a couple of most appropriate solos, which were heartily applauded, and Master Hughson Johnston, an eight year old elocutionist, rendered a touching piece, showing the most inhuman treatment by Germans of our Canadian prisoners, and in responding to an encore brought down the house with a very humorous piece using names of prominent local men.

The meeting came to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

Tells How Britain Mobilized Industry

Amos, Munitions Expert, Describes the Transformation of the Nation's System—Lesson in it For America

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Great Britain's transformation of her great industrial system for war purposes was described here by Maurice B. Amos, the British munitions expert, who was one of the chief factors in working out the change. Mr. Amos told some of the many things he has been laying before American officials since he came to Washington with the Balfour mission, to give the United States the benefit of England's experience.

"England's industry, which before the war was inchoate and unorganized," he said, "has gradually been diverted from the usual channels to specific war work in four different ways. First, was the regulation under the Defense of the Realm act in the early days of the war, under which speculation in war necessities was absolutely prohibited by requiring a government license. This, of course, restricted and stabilized such dealings and gave the government a semi-control through its influence over dealers. The attempt to do away with middlemen entirely, however, failed absolutely.

"Secondly, the Railroad Executive Committee, which has even a greater control of transportation than your kindred body here, gave priority to war goods with such results that manufacturers desired to be classified as war manufacturers in order to secure immediate transport. Thirdly, the exemption from military service of men engaged in war industries made many manufacturers change from general trade to war work in order to secure labour stability.

Classification of War Work.

"Most important of all, however, in this readjustment was the Priority Committee of the Ministry of Munitions. At first the committee itself had divided manufacturers into three classes of very different degrees of national urgency. We endeavoured to allot all work on the basis of its war importance and to see every contract in such way as to keep the most important work always first. Three classes of work were soon made public, and the aid of every individual in the kingdom was asked. First was Class A, or immediate war work, to have precedence over everything else in securing supplies, labour, and transportation.

The second group, Class B, we described as work looking to the maintenance without extension of the present industrial plant and stocks. Class C we described as other work, especially foreign trade, maintained at first to keep up exchange and preserve our position abroad, but now pretty well abandoned.

"The original man to receive a Class A contract is entitled on his own initiative to mark all orders necessary for making that product as Class A also. Thus, a box manufacturer filling an order for shell boxes, orders nails and wood under A urgency. The nail man, in turn, orders his materials under Class A, and so on all the way back to the original raw materials entering into the finished product.

ALDERMEN BACK FROM TRIP TO THE HARD COAL MINES

Think It Will Be Possible To Buy Direct but Could Get No Price Quotations — May Go Into the Business To Help Citizens Out

MONTREAL, May 28.—The United States Government investigation into the actions of coal dealers and others who have been hoarding supplies, has so changed conditions that it is at present impossible to make any extensive or definite report upon the situation as regards Montreal, according to Ald. Elie, who has just returned with Ald. Hushion from a trip to Philadelphia and New York. The aldermen were sent as delegates to see if it would be possible to buy directly from the mine owners. The conclusion to which they have come, according to Ald. Elie, is that such a plan would be perfectly feasible for the city of Montreal, as far as coal for its own consumption is concerned, and that mine owners would be able and willing to send through limited shipments in case of emergency. At present coal dealers have to account direct to the United States Government for every ton of coal they send out, quoting the price at which they sell it.

It is the small independent miner, not the large combines, says the alderman, who has been boosting prices and making illegitimate profits. That, at any rate, is the information he secured on his trip. A reason for the difficulty citizens have in securing coal just now for an emergency summer and regular winter supply, according to the alderman, who is in the business himself, is that a far greater number of people than usual have been placing orders this month, orders that are generally held until the fall.

The delegation was unable to get any price quotations from mine owners, and could not have placed orders, owing to the existence of the Government inquiry into the conduct of private mines. The aldermen, however, had lengthy interviews with some of the principal coal men in New York and Philadelphia, who promised to mail them full reports as soon as conditions become settled.

As far as establishing a civic coal business in Montreal is concerned, Ald. Elie considers that it would be effective only in the case of such an emergency as occurred this spring, and then only as a utility for the citizens, and not, of course, to the profit of the city. In normal times the aldermen considers that the city could not compete against men who have been in the trade and have established connections for many years.

In the meantime, as things stand now, the Board of Control passed a resolution some time ago, asking the Legislature to give it powers to go into the coal and ice business. This has already been done in Nova Scotia, and Halifax papers are urging that that city now avail itself of the powers.

Controller Villeneuve remarked this morning that there was no reason at all why the enterprise should not be set on foot next year. Ald. Ward is opposed to the idea. He considers that the city should be given power to control the prices of the regular dealers, with whom, experts as they are in their line, he does not believe the city could compete.

DON'T FAIL TO PLANT PLENTY OF CABBAGE

Amount of Space Needed for the Crop Easily Estimated—Guard Against Insects

Since one well-grown cabbage head can be looked to as a sufficient supply of this vegetable for one meal of the average sized family, the number of plants needed to provide for the household needs throughout the year can be easily estimated as can the area needed for production of this quantity if 30 x 18 inches apart for early varieties and 30 x 30 inches for late kinds is allowed for back-yard garden conditions of cultivation.

The cabbage plant is not exacting with regard to soil conditions, provided that there is a good supply of manure. Good drainage is necessary for the successful growing of this crop, however, yet a leachy sub-soil should be avoided.

For early crop the cabbage plants should have been raised in the hot-bed, and persons not provided with that convenience must needs purchase the plants for setting out, and care should be taken to make sure of a really early variety, none being more satisfactory than 'Jersey Wakefield."

Late cabbage plants may be raised from seed in the open ground by sowing thinly in drills, not later than June 1st, so as to be ready for transplanting not later than the middle of July. Varieties recommended for late planting by the vegetable specialties are: Short stem Ball Head, the Savoy cabbages, Chester or Green Globe, and for a red cabbage, Red Rock.

In transplanting, where a small number of plants are to be handled, an old fork or spade handle can be used for making the holes to receive the roots. The grond shoki first be in such condition that it can be easily entered by this dibber, and as easily handled in packing it around the roots. The ground should first be Right packing of the soil around the roots is necessary to avoid drying out, but the soil at the surface should be left loose. Before removing the plants from their original position the soil should be made fairly damp, so that not too many rootlets will be broken off, and the best plan to ensure the immediate "taking hold" of the reset plants is that of first immersing the roots in a muddy mixture of cow manure, soil and water, which can be lightly pressed into a ball around the roots and placed with them in the hole provided in the soil.

As soon as possible after setting out the cabbage plants start to cultivate, using a hoe where space does not allow of the use of a horse cultivator. Keep up this work, destroying all weeds as they appear, and maintaining a mulch of two inches in depth, until the heads interfere with the work.

Start early to combat the insects that attack the cabbage plant. Cutworms, which often give trouble, can be discouraged to a great extent if the young plants when set out are protected by wrapping the stem with a bit of newspaper or tar paper, which must reach from the leaves down to a little below the surface of the ground. Another means and one that effectively destroys the cutworm is that of scattering on the ground around the plants a mixture of one part of Paris green to 100 parts of bran, mixed dry and then slightly dampened with sweetened water, so that the mixture will crumble between the fingers.

The caterpillars, which hatch from the eggs laid by the white cabbage butterfly, are perhaps the worst pest attacking this vegetable, but the plant may be protected from them by dusting with a mixture of four pounds of flour and one pound of Pyrethrum insect powder, or by spraying with two ounces of the powder dissolved in three gallons of lukewarm water. Dangerous poisons such as Paris green, should not be applied to vegetables intended for table use.

The cabbage maggot, which attacks the roots of the plants, can be accounted for by screening the plants with cheese cloth, so as to prevent the fly from depositing her eggs on the leaves. A cheaper method is that of setting a tarred paper disk, 3 inches in diameter, around the stem of the plant and lying flat on the ground. This keeps the maggots from getting down to the roots. A slit from the side of the disk to the centre will allow of introducing the stem of the plant in a satisfactory manner.

Troops Called Out in Peru

Special to The Examiner:

LIMA, Peru, May 27.—Troops have been called out to restore order at the mining smelters where workmen are on strike.

10,000 Policemen in British Army

LONDON.—Ten thousand members of the police in England and Wales have joined the army and navy. This has reduced the actual strength of the force to 26,802, many of whom will soon be taken into the army. Special constables have, to a large extent, made up for the reduced number of regular police, 121,908 having volunteered for police duty. This large number includes constables for special occasions, such as Zeppelin raids, coast bombardments and other emergencies.

RECORD NUMBER FOR A NOMINATION.

M. P. Wright Nominated for Mayor of Haileybury—Two Citizens PRESENT.

HAILEYBURY, May 27. — At 10 o'clock Friday morning Mr. M. P. Wright was nominated for Mayor of Haileybury, and at 11 o'clock, was declared elected, there being no further nominations. Only two citizens besides the Town Clerk were present. One made the motion and the other was the seconder. The candidate himself was not present. This is believed to constitute a record in point of the number present. The population of Haileybury is upward of three thousand.

MEMORIAL SERVICES IN MARK STREET METHODIST CHURCH

Lieut.-Colonel Johnston Took Part in A Memorial Service for Three Former Members of the 93rd Battalion

It was particularly significant that Lieut.-Col. T. J. Johnston, Officer Commanding the 93rd Overseas Battalion, should be present at a memorial service, held last evening in Mark street Methodist church for Private Chester R. Craft, Private J. Howard Rowe and Private John G. Miller. The three soldiers paid the supreme sacrifice in the recent activity on the western front. All three men were former members of the 93rd Battalion, and it is a little less than one year ago since Lieut.-Col. Johnston left Peterborough with as fine a battalion as ever left Canada for overseas. Since their arrival in France the boys of the 93rd Battalion have suffered heavy losses.

"Felt Guilty."

Speaking last evening, Lieut.-Col. Johnston said it was impossible to do credit to the boys who had paid the supreme sacrifice. "I can take no credit for the character of the men who made up the 93rd Battalion," said Col. Johnston. "Credit is due to the parents, the homes and the wives which the boys left behind. I found it hard to leave them behind and I feel guilty at being present here to-night. One word of consolation I may add is that the boys while they were overseas were surrounded by all the comfort that was possible under the circumstances. So far as life goes there is one thing that we leave behind and that is our record. The boys who we honour here to-night had not a single mark against their military record and I have not the slightest doubt that when the roll is called up yonder all three boys will be there."

His Honour Judge Huycke.

His Honour Judge Huycke said it was very appropriate that Lieut.-Col. Johnston should be present to honour the men who laid down their lives for the cause of liberty and justice. "There are more suffering hearts in the world to-day than ever before in the history of the world," said His Honour. In tendering my tribute of sympathy I would add a word of gratitude which should be greater than grief, because the boys have given up their lives to the God who gave them. God grant that they may find a sweeter resting place than the one they left behind. We want you to think that they have not lived or died in vain. They have given their lives for the liberty which the Lord himself gave to His people.

One Great Regret.

"One great regret of it all," said the speaker, "is that the battles must be fought not by those who have lived their lives, but by those who have their lives to live. In this war the British, the French and our other allies have fought just as bravely as the boys of Canada. It is a natural thing that we should hear more of our own. Canada has been fortunate in that when there were great things to do the boys of Canada were there to do them and did do them." His honour made a striking reference to a number of notable battles in which the Canadians took a prominent part, commencing with the battle of Ypres in April, 1915, to the more recent battle of Vimy Ridge.

Rev. R. A. Whattam, pastor of Mark street church, paid a tribute to the boys who had fallen on the field of battle. Rev. Mr. Whattam referred to the Christian spirit in which casualty messages were received in the homes.

Italians Great Victory Continues

Medazza Strong Position

Medazza, with a machine gun for nearly every stone of its ruins, was somewhere above them, but of that nothing was visible, for their barrage walked ahead of them boiling over the fround, and the big guns were smothering the ruined village with high explosives. Flondar was there, too, somewhere, also veiled in death and horror. Then the ground hid them as though they had gone into some ghastly privacy of their own for the grim work they had to do. How they did it, how gloriously and how victoriously, has been told in brief words. They contribute to the official communique. Medezza Terrace is, roughtly, half way to the top of Hermada, and to-day the Austrians, themselves, are burning what remains of the woods on the top of the mountain, making ready to resent that Italian victory, to which they are becoming accustomed.

Many Hungarians Taken.

Yesterday the Italians thrust across the road to Duino and Trieste, and pushed up the hill southeast of Medazza. Prisoners officially enumerated are being increased by small detachment coming in from a dozen sectors of the front where they are being dug in from and three from the blocked dugouts and trench shelters. Many Hungarians are among them.

The Value of a Smoke

Who Will Help the Overseas Club Tobacco Fund To Keep A Steady Supply of Tobacco for the Peterboro Boys Overseas? Many More Cigarettes Are Wanted

Letters received from every section of the fighting line show that the one luxury for which the British Tommy and the Canadian boy crave every minute of every day is a cigarette or a pipe of "baccy."

Amidst the mud of Flanders and the shell holes of France, and all the horrors (unknown to us), of trench life, a smoke is the one thing which does most to cheer him up and make life more endurable.

When wounded, it is the first thing for which he craves, and with a cigarette between his lips he waits without complaint for the stretcher bearers.

In hospital a smoke helps him to forget his pain and relieves to some extent the monotony of his convalescent period.

Commissioned officers, N.C.O.'s and men alike all bear eloquent testimony to the value of a smoke. Sir Edward Ward, of the British War Office, does so too. He appeals to the Overseas Club to extend their work. To extend it!

Very nearly 1 million dollars has been expended by the Overseas Club in tobacco for the various branches of the service; and to our Allies too—but the demand out there in the trenches for more cigarettes and more tobacco is enormous; it is persistent; and it is appealing. With more troops the demand naturally increases.

If you can't make a real subscription you can afford a quarter. Do without some cigars to-night and help to gladden the heart of some friendless soldier.

Subscriptions will be received at any of the Banks in town, or at The Examiner; or may be mailed to the Secretary of the Fund, Mr. H. Dearle.

Go up to The Examiner and get a collecting book and be one of a hundred to collect $10.00 each during June. This will be just half what we need; but we will try and get the rest some other way.

A lot more cigarettes are wanted!

CHICAGO, May 28.—Members of the twenty-eight golf clubs affiliated with the Chicago District Golf Association yesterday were asked for a voluntary contribution of ten cents to the American Red Cross for each eighteen holes played during the season.

Under the plans announced by the Board of Directors of the association, each player will have the ten cents charged against him on his house account, and all sums collected will be remitted by the club treasurers monthly to the Red Cross. The total receipts from the plan are expected to exceed $1,000 weekly.

A Certificate of Merit for Each Boy Worker

Boys Who Are Helping To Solve the Farm Labour Problem Will Hold A Camp Fire on June 9th

Mr. H. W. Kinge 'ey, of Toronto, is in the city in connection with the greater production movement. Mr. Kingerley's interest is that branch of the work which directly effects the boys who are helping to solve the labour problem on the farms. Mr. Kingerley is one of five Y.M.C.A. men who are engaged in looking after this branch of the work. Mr. Kingerley announces that plans are being made to bring the boys together on June 9th when badges will be presented by M . A. Gillespie M.P.P., indicating that the boys are engaged in farm labour. The gathering will take the form of a camp fire and will in all probability be held at Crawford's Grove.

A CERTIFICATE.

Mr. Kingerley is also interested in the Boy Conservation movement which aims at a higher standard of manhood through the proper development of the boy. The soldiers of the soil or the S.O.S., is the appellation that has been given to the boys who are aiding the greater production movement by their labours on the farm. At the close of the season a certificate signed by the Lieutenant-Governor of the Province will be presented to each boy who has completed the season satisfactorily. The certificate will have a value similar to an honourable discharge certificate from the army.

A perfect meal can be made from macaroni and cheese with coarse brown bread and lettuce with French dressing.

Little Was Said About Conscription

Lieut.-Colonel Williams Address at the Armouries Saturday Night Was A Powerful Plea for Volunteers

"CANADA IN KHAKI"

Although he made an eloquent plea for recruits to enlist under the voluntary plan and mentioned that conscription was contemplated, Lieut.-Col. Williams, Chief Recruiting Officer for Canada, had very little to say about compulsory service in his address at the Armouries on Saturday night. It was expected that Colonel Williams might have an important announcement to make regarding the selective draft system, but he did not discuss conscription, his address being a powerful appeal for volunteers.

The occasion was the presentation of the military moving picture "Canada in Khaki," depicting all the various phases of training in No. 3 Military District, the greater part of the pictures being taken in Kingston and at Barriefield Camp. The film was of special interest to Peterborough people inasmuch as a number of Peterborough soldiers, notably the local members of Queen's Field Ambulance, who were shown in their first aid exhibition as demonstrated at the Peterborough Industrial last autumn. Other Peterborough soldiers noticed in the picture were Sergt.-Major Succee and Wireless Instructor Hicks. There were some excellent views of the 74th Battery, the Soldiers' Convalescent Hospital, the Cadets of the Royal Military College, the 154th Battalion, and other units.

Mr. H. Wilmot Young, who explained the pictures, gave a splendid rendition of Service's fine war poem "Jean Dupree."

Lieut.-Col. Williams' address was a powerful one. With bread 98c a loaf in England, and only one loaf allowed each person a week, it hardly could be said that the war was won for the Empire, and he urged upon his hearers to realize the serious natnre of the situation. The Chief Recruiting Officer emphasized the need for equality of sacrifice. The men who had made money out of the war had made it through the suffering of their fellow men. "Its not money—its blood," said the speaker impressively, "and this applies equally to the poor man who may have saved $1,000, to the middle class man, and to the millionaire."

The other permits, principally for garages, were small.

CHARGE IT TO THE KAISER

(Financial America.)

Every time you pay three cents, as you will be doing before long, for postage of a letter that formerly went for two, charge the difference to the Kaiser.

Every time you have a reminder that this war is costing you something, charge it to the Kaiser.

You will have many reminders. There will be increased taxes on incomes, on cigars, on liquors, on gasolene, on a hundred and one different things.

But pay without grudging, without complaint. Pay cheerfully, blithely, graciously, thankfully. You will be paying that you may be free, that your children and your children's children may be free.

You will be paying that democracy shall not wither from the earth.

MR. BALFOUR WELCOMED

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, May 28.—A new feature has been added to the situation at Ottawa. This morning Rt. Hon. A. J. Balfour, head of the British Mission to America, sat at the Government Cabinet Council and conferred with the ministers. There can be little doubt that the opinion of the British statesman was requested on the present crisis.

This afternoon at three o'clock Mr. Balfour was accorded an enthusiastic welcome in the Commons and will address the legislators of both houses.

Special Services Held on Sunday

The special services Saturday and Sunday were taken by the Songsters Brigade, and all who took part did credit to themselves and to the Brigade.

The visible results were eight seeking the Lord.

To-night the Songster Brigade will do one of the best programmes ever put on at the Temple, entitled "All Nations" songs with the different airs peculiar to their country will be sung and the individuals of the Brigade will be dressed to represent the different countries. The offering will be spent altogether for the comforts of the boys at the front.

CONFIRMATION AT ST. PETER'S

At First Mass yesterday, the Feast of Pentecost, the Sacrament of Confirmation was administered to seventy-six candidates by His Lordship Bishop O'Brien at St. Peter's Cathedral. The sermon preached by Bishop O'Brien was principally to the children who had been confirmed, reminding them of the duties they had now taken into themselves.

LUMBER UNITS FOR BRITAIN.

New England Sending Workers and Portable Mills to the Front.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—Prompt response to Great Britain's need for skilled lumbermen and equipment for the British forces in France, was announced yesterday by the American Forestry Association in the statement that ten portable sawmill and logging units had been provided for early delivery to the English authorities. The units will be fully equipped with skilled workmen and the machinery and general outfits necessary to conduct field logging and milling operations.

The plan has been worked out by a committee of New England paper manufacturers, lumbermen, and timber land owners, headed by W. R. Brown, who is a member of the Lumber Committee of the Council of National Defense and a Director of the American Forestry Association. Each of the six New England State governments subscribed $12,000, the cost of a single unit. Private subscription provided four units. Nearly 400 men will be sent. They will serve as civilian employees of the British Government.

MORE RESTRAINT ORDERED.

Britain to Tighten Regulations Governing Conscientious Objectors.

PLYMOUTH, May 26.—Conscientious objectors—men who are opposed to military service—who now are housed in the famous Dartmoor prison near here, have been placed under greater restraint and on a war diet as a result of protests that they were being pampered. The neighbouring villagers said that the objectors were allowed to live in comparative ease and luxury as compared with the lot of the prison warders and the men of the village who are in the army.

The conscientious objectors are now living on the same fare as prescribed by the Food Controller for the civilian population. Formerly they were allowed to go to the storekeepers in the neighbourhood and purchase all they wanted, with the result that supplies were exhausted at the expense of the regular customers.

The objectors are engaged in farming and quarrying and their living conditions at the prison are said to be so much better than that of the convicts that the Government has been induced to conduct an investigation.

WOMAN DRAGGED BY A RUNAWAY HORSE

While leading a horse to Kennedy's blacksmith shop, Charlotte Street, on Saturday afternoon, Mrs. Matchett of Otonabee was dragged about twenty-five yards on the pavement when the animal became frightened at a street car and bolted down George Street. It had been unhitched from the buggy and had almost reached the blacksmith's yard when the street car approached. Mrs. Matchett held firmly to the lines, and the horse slowed up in about twenty-five yards, permitting a man to grab it by the bridle. She escaped with an abrasion of the knuckles on one hand.

Low Spirited and Weak

Most women and many men suffer at times from fits of depression and low spirits from which they are unable to free themselves. They cannot attend to business or household matters satisfactorily and are unable to get any pleasure out of life. Everything is a burden and a tax upon their strength nothing gives them any satisfaction. Then come periods of nervous irritability, headaches and weariness. People who suffer in this way lack vitality because their blood is poor and ill-nourished. It is too weak and watery to absorb the nutriment from food and carry it to the brain, nerves and muscles. It is too poor and too thin to destroy the impurities which clog it in increasing quantities, and a complete breakdown in health is likely to follow. What is needed to enrich the blood and restore health is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These Pills make new, rich, red blood, strengthen the appetite, and thus give tone to the nerves and new energy to every organ in the body. There is no trouble due to poor blood which these pills will not cure if given a fair trial, and it is for this reason that thousands the country over speak in such high terms of this medicine.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Democracy Will Prove the Winner

Hon. A. J. Balfour Makes Notable Speech in the Dominion Parliament — Says "Enthusiastic Self-Sacrifice of the Great Self-Governing Dominions Has Been Wonderful."

OTTAWA, May 28.—Hon. A. J. Balfour made a notable speech this afternoon in replying to the welcome extended to him by the Parliament of Canada.

The visiting statesman said it was with the profoundest emotion that he was meeting Canada's Parliament. He had enjoyed the company of many members in the homeland, and now met them as persons responsible for the Government of this great Dominion. He came, he said, at a crisis of world history. The enthusiastic self-sacrifice of the great self-governing Dominions had been wonderful. The calculation of the German politicians had been that the British Empire was quite unfitted to deal with the storm and stress of war. That was not so bad a miscalculation as some of the obviously idiotic mistakes which Germans have made, for without a knowledge of British spirit, such a presumption might be entertained, since the Empire's magnitude is so great and its parts so widely scattered.

Misjudged the Empire.

These foreign speculators thought the great empire was not held together by any collective force. The outside Dominions could not raise a corporal's guard or a cent of taxation. It had no power that they could understand, but had a moral power as they discovered, a power built on affection and sentiment. Even those who realized the power of the empire could not hope that these so seemingly slender ties could have proved as strong as they were and that the loosely-arranged organizations could come together with one purpose and for one end. It was a miracle and the miracle happened.

Fighting Because They Must.

"It is interesting," he said, "to compare the picture of these British democracies working freely together under their own free institutions each for a common end with what has happened in the central powers of Europe. There we find a group of States working together apparently for a common end. But how different the bond which unites them. If what we hear is true, we have Germany fighting for her own selfish end, encircled with a group, whom she has brought under her control, who love her not, but who fight because they must. All of us who have authentic information, know that Austria is not working with Germany as we are working with France. If Austria has a will of her own she is incapable of carrying it out."

All Pawns in German Game.

"If Austria has a will of her own she is quite incapable of carrying it out," said Mr. Balfour, "and the same thing is true of Bulgaria and Turkey. They are all mere pawns in the German game, moved as Germany desires, and not permitted to have ideals of their own, but all dragged into the great vortex of German ambition. These, if Germany won the war, would be destined to be satellites of the great Prussian Hun.

"That had been the idea of the military party which deliberately chose war for Germany after careful planning. But Germany had been confronted with the spirit of great freedom of races, the spirit of the Allies. More and more it was becoming clearer that the war is one of democracy against Prussianism.

Canada Ready to Co-operate.

Sir Robert Borden was cheered loudly when he rose to reply. The Parliament of Canada, he said, had listened with the most profound interest and appreciation to the words of the Rt. Hon. Mr. Balfour. Perhaps those here could not fully appreciate the events which had brought him to this country. He had given to the United States the message of the Motherland on many occasions. He had now delivered it to Canada.

Sir Robert alluded to the part played by the United States, and declared that in all things pertaining to the war, Canada was ready to coordinate her efforts with that great country.

"Mr. Balfour has spoken of the part played by Canada in the war. There was no hesitation on the part of Canada as to what she should do. Germany answered the question herself (Cheers).

"No one can fail to appreciate the difficulty in a free, self-governing country of concentrating the efforts of a free people on a common cause. But I am supremely confident that in this free portion of the empire, the difficulties will be overcome and common action obtained until the purpose of this effort has been attained." (Cheers).

Sir Robert moved that Mr. Balfour's address go on record in Hansard, as did Viviani's, some weeks ago. He may take back to the Motherland," he said in conclusion, "the message that Canada's firm resolve and determination is to continue in this war until the end."

Freedom True Path to Greatness.

Mr. Balfour said he had indeed no question of Canada's message, today presented, that she is with the Allies to the final end.

"I hope," he said, "that out of this struggle the democracies, whether of the old world or the new, whether of the British Empire or not will come not merely victors in a military sense, but strengthened in a democratic sense and more than ever convinced that freedom is the true path to national greatness." The most elaborate, the most tyrannical system of militarism must give way before the free democracies, Mr. Balfour declared, and concluded, amid great applause, that he would tell the people at home that the spirit which animates their children here is not less ardent nor less animated by a hope of final victory than in any place within the Empire.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier rose to second the motion, and was loudly applauded. He seconded the motion with all the greater pleasure because the words of Mr. Balfour were not for the day only, but set a rule of conduct of Canadians of all time to come to follow. (Cheers).

When a man had risen to the position which Mr. Balfour held to-day in his own country, and that country England, he need not be surprised when he was received with pride and admiration. Great was the name of Balfour undoubtedly, but greater because associated with the name of England, and the mother of freedom. England never was greater than to-day, for she was the champion of freedom and liberty. The cry of Germany to-day was 'God strafe England." (Tremendous applause). "God bless her for what she has done, for what she is doing, and for the cause which she depends on."

"It is the British navy which will win the final victory," said Sir Wilfrid. Her sailors in torpedoed ships had gone down cheering. Victory would not be won by gunshot alone, but by the spirit of such men.

"We Canadians," he concluded, "stand to-day proudest of the British allegiance than we were three years ago."

"He sat down amid prolonged applause. The House adjourned until Tuesday afternoon after three cheers for Mr. Balfour had been given on motion of Dr. Pugsley.

FURTHER DECLINE IN WHEAT PRICES

Manitoba Flour Comes Down $1, and Ontario Flour Down 50c — A General Weakness

Following the general weakness of the wheat market the past few days, flours have steadily declined. Manitoba flour, first patents was yesterday quoted by the Toronto dealers at $13.50 per barrel, a dollar decline since Saturday, and $3 per barrel decline from the high point of $16.50 less than two weeks ago. Ontario flour has declined in similar proportion, yesterday's quotation being $11.25, or 50c less than Saturday, and a dollar less than two or three days ago. The decline in flours has followed a general come down in the wheat markets since trading in the latter was placed under strictest regulations. Yesterday's markets saw a further decline in wheat prices, though not so pronounced as on some recent days.

Manitoba wheat not quoted officially.

American corn—Not quoted.

Ontario oats—No. 2 white, not quoted.

Ontario wheat—No. 2 winter, per car lots, $2.55 to $2.60; No. 3 winter, $2.53 to $2.58, according to freights outside.

Peas—No. 2, nominal.

Barley—Good malting, nominal.

Buckwheat—Nominal.

Rye—No. 2, $2.

Manitoba flour—First patents, in jute bags, $13.50 to $11.35; track, Toronto; second patents, $13; strong bakers, $12.60 to $11.35; track, Toronto; prompt shipment.

Ontario flour—Winter, according to sample $11.25.

Millfeed—Car lots, delivered Montreal; shorts, $45; bran $27; feed flour per bag, $2.90 to $3; middlings, $48.

Hay—Baled, track, Toronto, car lots, No. 2, $12.50 to $13.50; mixed $9 to $11; straw, $7 to $7.50.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Union Stock Yards—Receipts 102 cars with 1,807 cattle, 80 calves, 1,029 hogs, and 102 sheep and lambs.

A rather unexpected short run of cattle for yesterday's market caused a strong demand, and sent prices up from 25c to 30c on all grades of butcher cattle. The offerings included some very choice well finished lots, and these sold strong from $12 to $12.50, one bunch of six extra choice steers topping the market at $13. Good to choice and medium grades were strong. Choice fat cows and butcher bulls, strong.

Calves strong and 50c to $1 higher.

Sheep and lambs steady.

Hogs are quoted 50c lower for this week. There was practically no market yesterday, but prices for to-day's market are quoted by the packers at $16.50 fed and watered.

Austrian Debacle Means Freedom of Teeming Millions

End of Pernicious Dynasty and Chance for Permanent Peace —National Units as Buffer States—An Interesting Letter—Did Not Keep His Word

"A private in the British army," who is a native of Bohemia, has sent the following illuminating article concerning little known factors in the Austrian question, and pointing out the necessity of dismembering the empire.

During the war I have many times read in American-English newspapers about "Austria" as the ally of Germany, about "Austria" making a separate peace, about an "Austrian" nation and an "Austrian" language.

First, let it be understood, that in fact no "Austrian" law book, no "Austrian" constitution says anything about an official title "Austria." The official title of the countries, which are forming the present so-called "Austrian empire" is: "The kingdoms and lands represented in the parliament of Vienna."

And these lands are: The kingdom of Bohemia with its provinces the margravite of Moravia and the duchy of Silesia (the so-called Austrian Silesia); the kingdom of Galicia; Bukowina, the archduchies of Upper and Lower Austria; Salzburg, Styria, Carinthia, Carniola, Gorica and Gradisca, Istria, Tyrol, Dalmatia.

The present Austrian Emperor is therefore not an emperor for these lands; he is the King of Bohemia, Archduke of Upper and Lower Austria and so on.

The late Austrian Emperor who was before 1866 a German Emperor, kept his title even when he lost the war against the Prussian King William I, who in 1871 became the German Emperor. The war of 1866 was only a war for the supremacy over the German states, it was in fact only a slaughter of men for a title as both the German and the "Austrian" Emperors are only titled emperors and not de facto emperors.

In geographical books Austria-Hungary is called the Austro-Hungarian Monarchy and this monarchy is divided by a river, the Leitha and therefore we say officially: Cisleithania (the lands west of the Leitha or the so-called "Austria") and Transleithania (Hungary and Transylvania, Croatia and Slavonia), east of the Leitha.

THE NATIONS OF CISLEITHANIA.

In Bohemia, Morvia and Silesia we have the Bohemians, or as they call themselves, the Tshecks. On the border are Germans. The area about 10,000,000 or four-fifths Tshecks and one-fifth Germans in these lands of the Bohemian crown. Bohemia is an agricultural as well as an industrial state and all minerals, except salt are found there. It is especially rich in coal and radium. Prague, the capital of Bohemia, has the oldest university in Central Europe. Already in the 14th century Prague was the seat of science and education in that section. The University of Prague was founded by the Bohemian King Venceslaus, the son of John of Luxemburg, the blind king who was killed in the battle at Cressy in France, where the English for the first time used gunpowder. It was John of Luxemburg who said: "Our Lord will never allow that a Bohemian king shall run from the battlefield." John of Luxemburg was the first Bohemian king after the last of the old Bohemian dynasty, the Premyslides died in 1306.

His son Wenceslaus was educated in France and was called Charles. Later he became the King of Bohemia and was elected Roman Emperor as Charles IV. He founded the university of Prague to give his Bohemian people a chance to get a higher education. One of the professors and rectors was John Huss, the priest and reformer. He was a scholar of Wickleffff, the English reformer, and he probably went to England at the time when the Bohemian Princess Anne became an English Queen.

Let it be remembered that Charles IV. gave to the Bohemians a university in the fourteenth century and yet to-day, in the twentieth century, the "Austrian" Emperor allowed to close in Vienna one school for 600,000 Bohemians there, one private school, kept up by subscriptions from—workingmen!

The Bohemians have a so-called mixed monarchy, that is, the noblemen and the people have to swear to the King and the King in return has to swear to the Bohemian constitution, that he will at all times obey it, that he will defend the lands of the Bohemian crown (Bohemia, Moravia, Silesia), that he never will sell any part of the crown lands and never will become a traitor to his people and lands.

"The coronation of a Bohemian King is, therefore, not a ceremony, but in fact a contract between the people and the King. The King's son, of course, inherits the crown, but the people have to accept him and he has to swear to its constitution.

DID NOT KEEP WORD.

The late Francis Joseph had promised six times to the Bohemians that he would swear to their constitution and six times did he not keep his word. Under him the Bohemians were worse off than under all his ancestors. He was really a German ruler and the Germans were granted the greatest privileges. But still he kept the title of King of Bohemia and took 60 per cent. of all taxes from Bohemia.

It is surprising, therefore, that the Bohemian regiments and single men deserted the armies of the Central Powers and went over to the Serbians and Russians, that they deserted Francis Joseph I., who sold them and their country to the Germans and became one of the worst traitors to their country?

The Bohemians have been considered as the friends of the Allies since the beginning of the war, as a matter of fact, and are fighting in the French and Russian armies and are also admitted to the British army. In Russia there are 350,000 Bohemian prisoners of war, who are to be formed into an army, which is waiting only for munitions to be sent to the front.

The declaration of independence of the Bohemians was declared just at the time, when the Russians had to retreat from the Carpathians, that is, when the situation for the Allies was not the best. The Bohemians fanted to show that they are with the Allies even in bad times.

GUARANTEE OF PEACE.

The geographical situation of the Bohemian lands is very important and to make Bohemia again free would be the best guaranty of future peace in Europe. Take Bohemia away from the German part of "Austria" take away the southern Slavs, and very little will be left to "Emperor Karl." He does not like the Bohemians and the other Slavs so take them away from him, make them free as they were centuries ago, make them happy, and you will secure the best friends in the world. You also will build a strong barrier against German expansion in the East, as Bohemia lies just in Central Europe, and on the way over which the Germans try to go to the Orient. In the southern part of "Austria" you will secure as friends the Slovenes in Carniola, Carinthia, Dalmatia Istria and Croatia and Slavonia, all Slavs, who could form a southern Slavic state, the "Yugoslavia," and you will have blocked and checked the advance of the Germans to the east forever. Further, you will have broken the backbone of Germany, which "Austria" and Hungary was, and still is, and you will secure—as I said—the best of friends and guarantors for future peace in Europe.

If the Allies want to preserve the old rotten Hapsburg dynasty let Karl I. keep upper and lower Austria, Etyria, Salzburg and the northern part of Tyrol, which provinces would be enough for one young man to live upon as a lord.

I know that there are financial circles in England and France which and invested in Austrian enterprises, like railroads, etc., and which think they would lose money if Austria would be dissolved. But as a matter of fact, the chances of obtaining their money would be better if Austria were broken up.

In destroying "Austria" the Allies would destroy a much hated name—"Austria"—and would check the power of a dynasty, the Hapsburgs. They would not destroy any nation, nor, any property of it. From the ruins of old "Austria" new and happy life would arise for all nations in Europe even for the Germans.

These are very critical moments for the Allies! They should not accept any separate peace from the Austrian emperor that can be offered to the Allies? Indemnity? At present the state debts of the Austro-Hungarian Monarchy are so tremendous that the Allies would have to occupy Austria-Hungary and keep it! But how?

Just consider the imports and exports from and to Germany through Austria, via the port of Trieste, Fiume to the Balkans and the Orient and to Aberica, an Austrian steamers! The import of cereals even from Russia via Hungary direct behind the Russo—German battle line in Poland and on the battle line in Poland and on the shortest routes to the western front.

A separate peace of the Allies with Austria would greatly strengthen Germany and terribly weaken the Allies.

The situation for the peoples in Austria-Hungary is very bad, but the Allies should once for all understand that the Slavs and Roumanians in Austria-Hungary are glad to suffer as long as there is the slightest hope to be freed from the barbaric yoke of the Germans.

The Allies have said this is a war for freedom of all nations, the smallest as well as the largest.

Then let the small nations be free, give them good rulers, but not of German nationality. This war has shown in Bulgaria, what we can expect from a King of German origin.

And it proves that we can expect more good from rulers like Gustav of Sweden, Haakon of Norway, Christian of Denmark, Wilhelmina, of Holland, and Albert of Belgium, who are not of German origin.

Again: Let this be a war for the freedom of the people and do not say: "Peace with Austria," but "Finish Austria," and peace forever after the battle is fought to the end.

AN EXPERT ON COLDS

To treat a cold with weakening physics, alcoholic syrups or drugged pills, may smother the cold but they also reduce the body powers still further and invite more serious sickness.

Scott's Emulsion has always been an expert on colds, because it peculiarly enriches the blood, quickly tones up the forces and strengthens both throat and chest. Try Scott's. Refuse Substitutes.

Too Much Paraffin Danger In Caramels

The chief analysis of the Canadian Government has issued a bulletin on caramels in which he says: In July of last year I drew attention to the alleged extensive employment of paraffin as a stiffener in the form of candy sold as chocolates. Seven samples of the 151 samples therein reported were found to contain paraffin: but the amount was not determined.

Concerning paraffin as a component of a food product I made the following statement:

"The National Confectioners' Association of the United States, issued a Food Law Circular under date May 20, 1913, containing a list of substances prohibited in confectionery, among which appears paraffin.

The food laws of Illinois, Nebraska and Utah, specifically forbid the use of paraffin in candy; and those of many other States are interpreted in such a way as to condemn its use.

It is certain that so-called paraffin or paraffin wax is wholly without food value; is quite indigestible, and is not a normal component of any natural food material. Its melting point, (about 54.5oC.—130.1o Fah.) is so high as to keep it solid at the body temperature, and being quite insoluble in the digestive fluids, it is conceivable that serious results might ensue from its presence in foods consequent upon mechanical disturbances.

Several correspondents have claimed that, while paraffin is occasionally employed by manufacturers of the cheaper grades of so-called chocolates, it is much more largely used in that form of confection known as caramels.

It was considered desirable to ascertain the facts of the case and in consequence a collection of caramels was ordered in October and November of last year.

This report, deals with 110 samples (including several from Montreal) and 30 samples were found to contain no paraffin at all, 12 from two to three per cent, 10 from three to four per cent., 5 from four to five per cent., and one from six to seven per cent. Fifty-one samples contained more than one per cent. The analyst goes on to say:

We have no direct legislation against the use of paraffin in candy. Whether or not the amounts indicated can be regarded as harmful is a matter for very careful consideration, and will be duly investigated.

Since writing the above I have received the following expression of opinion from Dr. A. D. Blackader, Professor of Pharmacology at McGill College, Montreal, and Medical Adviser to this Department.

"It is a subject to which my attention had never been previously drawn and I have taken time to consult my confreres and made enquiries from all whom I thought might give me an opinion. The answer I received from most of my confreres was to the effect that in amount so small as 1 per cent. it was not likely to do any harm, one might even say 2 per cent., but that in larger amounts there was a possible risk in persons or children who consumed large amounts of candy.

In his very recent volume on Pharmacology (1916) Sollman states that pure paraffin is harmless, ill-refined paraffin may give rise to toxic symptoms. Any impurity in the paraffin used for caramels may do harm in several ways. Care therefore must be taken that only pure paraffin employed. If the paraffin is pure, and in amount does not exceed 1 per cent., I do not think its employment can do harm. The only objection to it is that it is of no use as a food, and in candy may be regarded as an adulteration."

To prevent blown out shots in mines an Englishman has invented a flameless, fireproof tamping plug.

RECIPE TO CLEAR A PIMPLY SKIN

Pimples, sores and boils usually result from toxins, poisons and impurities which are generated in the bowels and then absorbed into the blood through the very ducts which should absorb only nourishment to sustain the body.

It is the function of the kidneys to filter impurities from the blood and cast them out in the form of urine, but in many instances the bowels create more toxins and impurities than the kidneys can eliminate, then the blood uses the skin pores as the next best means of getting rid of these impurities which often break out all over the skin in the form of pimples.

The surest way to clear the skin of these eruptions says a noted authority, is to get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of hot water each morning before breakfast for one week. This will prevent the formation of toxins in the bowels. It also stimulates the kidneys to normal activity, thus coaxing them to filter the blood of impurities and clearing the skin of pimples.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent drink which usually makes pimples disappear; cleanses the blood and is excellent for the kidneys as well.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

CHILD'S DRESS.
By Anabel Worthington.

The "almost good" things in your wardrobe from last year, with little planning, may be remodelled for the small girl of the family. Indeed with many women this is a necessary undertaking, and it should not be the least bit objectionable, considering how easy it is with a reliable pattern.

In the illustration No. 8,056 is shown a child's dress that is cut with the body and sleeve sections in one piece and with the widest part of the dress to the front. The low, round neck is made dainty with an upstanding frill of lace or edging, and when elbow sleeves are used they are banded and finished with a frill to match. The pattern also provides for the full length sleeve to be band cuff finished, or piped with contrasting color. A hemstitched hem is always nice for the dress of a small child, but a plain hem for a morning dress is good enough. It will add to the charm of an afternoon frock to have the lower edge finished to match the collar.

The dress pattern No. 8,056 cuts in sizes 6 months, 1, 2 and 5 years.

To make in the medium size requires 1½ yards 44 inch material, 1¾ yards edging.

To obtain the pattern send [illegible] to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

ARTILLERY WIZARD CANADA'S BURSTALL

Held of Greatest Assemblage of Guns on British Front at Vimy

—a Fine Career

Major-General Henry Edward Burstall, C.B., was the big Canadian artilleryman before he became General Officer Commanding the 2nd Division of the Army Corps from this Dominion. In the official history of Canada's part in the great war it will be recorded that General Burstall at Observatory Ridge and Sanctuary Wood commanded one of the greatest assemblages of guns ever concentrated on the British front. And when he gave the order "cease fire" the German infantry attacks had been battered almost out of recognition. Burstall's guns not only saved a bad situation, but they pounded the life out of the Huns and prepared the way for the final, brilliant victory of the brave Canadian troops.

His Pupils Made Good

General Burstall had already made a name for himself at Ypres when the Canadians first proved their supremacy over the Kaiser's beloved Brandenburgers. At Langemarck and St. Julien the Canadian artillery never stopped in the sleepless struggles, and not a Canadian gun was lost in the long, grim battle of retreat when the savage Huns let loose the poisonous gas that dropped the Canadian infantrymen in their tracks. The nature of the position rendered the record then made by the Canadian gunners and the artillery officers wonderful. One battery of four guns found itself in such a situation that it was compelled to turn two of its guns directly about and fire on the enemy in positions almost diametrically opposite.

Native of Canada

General Burstall was born in Quebec on August 26th, 1870, the son of John and Fanny Bett (Forsyth) Burstall. He was educated at Bishop's College School, Lennoxville, and at the Canadian Royal Military College. He passed the Staff College in 1894, served in the Yukon force in 1898-9, and went to South Africa with the 1st Canadian Contingent. He remained in the Transvaal until the end of the war and was mentioned several times in despatches. He commanded the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery from 1907 to 1911, when he was appointed Inspector of Canada's horse, field and heavy artillery, filling that position until the commencement of the present war.

He volunteered for service in France in August, 1914, and went to the front with the rank of Brigadier-General commanding the artillery of the 1st Canadian Division. General Burstall married a daughter of Surgeon-Major J. Denison Mackenzie, Bombay. In times of peace he spends his vacation hunting and fishing in the wilds of Canada.

FEEDING BRITISH GUNS

A London paper writes: These khaki-clad veterans, who toil away at the eight-foot stacks of boxes, wrenching open refractory lids, passing heavy shells from hand to hand, piling up still greater stacks of "empties"—backs and arms aching, faces glistening with perspiration—who are these men? They form a company of a Labour Battalion, men debarred medically unfit for combatant service, men who were, in many cases, in civilian clothes but a few weeks ago. Yet here they are in France, slogging away in a muddy field, working like Titans at their strenuous task.

WOMEN TAXI-DRIVERS

London's Women Drivers Must Take Severe Test

"Every woman who is accepted by us for free training must first pass the Scotland Yard standard of fitness," said the chief instructor at a motor cab company's garage in London. "The instructions we give consists of a knowledge of London course. To qualify for a licence drivers must be able to state the route or routes from any one point in London to another and name all the streets passed through on the journey, and they must know all clubs, theatres, public buildings, hospitals, Mansion and the like. An intelligent woman might be able to pass the Scotland Yard test after two months, but it generally takes longer. The police issue 440 questions, and are capable of inventing as many again."

Took Husband's Pulpit

Determined to do his bit, but unable to secure a place in the United States Army, Rev. S. Robert Mayer-Oakes of the First Church of Hadley, Mass., enlisted in the Canadian Medical Corps and left for Montreal. Mrs. Mayer-Oakes also determined to do her bit and was ordained at a Congregational Council so she might take her husband's place and continue his work. Many divines assisted at the ceremonies.

King John's Buried Treasure

Somewhere in Cambridgeshire, writes a London paper, round about the village of Sutton Bridge, lies buried the treasure lost by King John when overtaken by the tide in crossing the Wash. It was purchased in his day. It is dry land now, and it is quite possible, therefore, that some lucky allotment holder in this district may unearth the ancient royal crown of England.

Britain's Shamefaced Monarchs

Princes of all the nations can perhaps supply most illustrations of monarchs who have been forced to go into retirement. Within 100 years only Louis XVII. completed his reign with his life. Louis XVI., Charles X., and Napoleon III. were all forcibly dethroned; Louis Philippe and Napoleon the Great abdicated, and Louis XVII. never reigned except in name.

The War Office, between August 4, 1914, and December 31, 1916, issued contracts for 200,000 miles of cloth of all sorts.

Rice steamed until done, then mixed with cubes of fresh pine apple and served with chocolate sauce is a novel dessert.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

RED PETE'S LAST RIDE

By C. B. LEWIS

Outlaw, thief, robber and murderer, they had him safe in jail at last. Red Pete, as he was generally called, had rendered himself a terror for years, but the law had finally laid hands on him, and he was tried for his life.

There had been a great deal of romancing over Red Pete. He was a Robin Hood to many men and a chevalier and a hero to most women. There was a general disappointment when he was brought in by a sheriff's posse with his feet lashed together under the saddle and his arms tied behind him. He was a young man of twenty-four, long haired, low browed. The sentiment of chivalry had never been awakened in his breast, and, as for being a hero, he had robbed cripples and shot men from ambush.

WITH SPADE AND IRON BAR SHE WORKED THERE ON FOUR HOURS EACH NIGHT.

"A natural born tough," was the popular verdict at Sunset City, but among the few females who could not rid themselves of the feeling of romance his adventures had called up was the sheriff's daughter, a girl of sixteen. Unfortunately for her, she was motherless.

The widower sheriff, whose only child she was, kept house in a wing of the jail and, owing to the poverty of the county, was allowed only one turnkey. This was old Roberts, who was almost a cripple and a part of whose work was often done by the girl. It fell to her to carry the daily meals to Red Pete, and he at once discovered that he had a friend in her. They did not depend upon the brick walls and iron bars of the old jail to hold such a man as had been run to earth. They chained him to the wall, and they put on an extra guard to pace the corridor all night long.

It was only when she carried his meals to him and opened the wicket of his door that Susie could pass a few words with Red Pete, but he made full use of every opportunity. He praised and admired and asked for sympathy, and long enough before he was put on trial he felt that he could reckon on her aid whenever he asked for it.

It took weeks to get witnesses together, and there were technicalities or law to create further delay, but when the trial came on the prosecution made short work of the terror. The jury returned a verdict of guilty, the judge sentenced him to be hanged by the neck, and he was returned to his cell and his chains to await the day of execution.

The verdict had filled the sheriff's daughter with horror. It seemed to her as if all the world was against one man. That man might have been somewhat wicked, as she would admit, but he had been led astray by evil counsel and was more to be pitied than blamed. Her natural sympathies, fed by the lies and protestations of the man behind the grated door, finally brought her to promise her aid that he might escape a disgraceful death. They were to ride away together. They were to ride far, far away, and he would make her his girl wife and love and cherish her and become an honest man. A mother would have destroyed his plot in a moment, but there was no mother to speak. She listened, sympathized, admired and loved. In helping him out of the hands of the law she was helping him to reform; in going away with him she would encourage him in his new resolves.

The jail was without a cellar. On the west side, where Red Pete was confined, was an old shed used for fuel and storage. Every night for twenty-eight nights the girl rose from her bed when the jail had grown quiet and slipped outdoors and into the shed. With spade and iron bar she worked for three or four hours each night to tunnel under the walls to the prisoner's cell. She found heavy walls, carried far down, and there was a bed of cement as hard as rock and a stone floor to the cell. It was hard, cruel work for a girl, but she was incited by romance and love to persevere against all obstacles. Each night she toiled and labored, and each morning she reported progress and received the commendations of her hero.

There were yet other things to think of. They must have horses, food and money for their flight. She would rob the jail of food, her father of money and one horse, and the other animal would be taken from a nearby stable. With the help of the man everything was figured out, even to the theft of a rifle and revolver.

Townspeople were admitted to see Red Pete, and they found him broken in courage. Ministers were admitted to pray with him, and they found him contrite. It got to be common talk that he had lost his sand and would fail to die game. He had a part to play, and he played it. On the morning of the third day before the execution he knew that he was entering upon his last day in the cell. The tunnel was completed, and his weight resting upon one particular spot would sink a stone in his cell floor and give him liberty. The sheriff's daughter would rob her father that day of money and firearms and food, and when night came the horses would be ready at hand.

Few women could have carried that secret through the long day without betrayal, but the girl gave no sign and aroused no suspicion. At 9 o'clock at night she passed out of the jail, made everything ready and then waited at the mouth of the tunnel. The condemned man above settled himself for sleep, but removed his chains with the file she had passed through the wicket as the guard paced to and fro in the corridor, let the stone sag under his weight and two minutes later was in the old shed beside the trembling girl. Two horses stood near by, and she put money, food and a rifle into his hands. Only then did he speak, and his words were prefaced with a sneering laugh.

"Well, little fool, you have done well," he said. "Didn't you suspect that I was guying you? Do you imagine I would be idiot enough to be burdened with you. Sit down and keep your mouth shut or I will do it for you. I'm off, and if you raise an alarm for an hour I'll choke the life out of you before they hang me."

Each word struck the girl like the blow of a hammer, and she stood there dumb with amazement while Red Pete strapped the rifle to the saddle and mounted.

"Ain't you—you going to take me?" she appealed at last.

"Bosh!" he sneered in reply.

"Do you mean that you don't love me, that I'm to be left behind, that you haven't meant what you said?"

"Don't be a fool!" he hissed at her. "I was working for my life, and I've won the game. Sit down and cry it out, I'm off!"

He turned the horses and started away, leading one so as to have a fresh mount. But he had not gone a hundred feet when the girl raised a revolver she had not given up to him and took careful aim. As the report rang out on the night air Red Pete threw up his hands and lurched from his saddle.

"What is it? What is it?" shouted those who first reached the spot.

"I have just—just killed him because he was going to leave me behind," she said as she looked up through her tears.

WOMEN'S BACKS BEAR THE BURDEN

"Campaigns of thrift," "Speeding up for production," and other present day slogans have influenced the women of Canada quite as much, and indeed in some quarters more, than the men.

How many thousands of women everywhere who always kept a "maid" are now doing their own housework to release another pair of hands for the munition factory. Other thousands of young girls who formerly did not find it necessary to offer their services for hire are doing effective work in the munition factories, stores and elsewhere.

This change of work, or the undertaking of new duties, has found the weak spot in the armour. We hear women say so often now-a-days, "If it weren't for my back I could stand the work fine." The reason for that sore back is the kidneys and nothing else. The remedy is Gin Pills. Just try one box and see how soon the pain in the back is relieved, and tired, swollen joints in the hands and feet are reduced. 98

Constipation is the usual running mate with Kidney and Bladder Trouble—Gin Pills will relieve both in short order. If not we refund your money. Sample free if you write National Drug and Chemical Company of Canada, Limited, Toronto.

LOCOMOTOR ATAXIA.

"My nerves were very bad, and I could not sleep at night, nor could I control my arms or legs," writes Mrs. Robert Gaetard, Maxwell, N.B. "Dr. Chase's Nerve Food cured me of what I believe was the early stage of locomotor ataxia or paralysis. I cannot describe what I suffered but now I am entirely cured.

Consecrated Bells.

Bells were anciently consecrated before they were raised to their places. This applied not only to church bells, but to others. Each was dedicated to some divine personage, saint, or martyr. One of the finest bits of word painting in Shakespeare occurs in the mention of a bell when King John addressing Hubert says:

If the midnight bell

One of the strongest pictures painted by Charles Dickens is that of the miser and usurer, Ralph Nickleby, cursing the iron-tongued midnight bell, after which, in a fit of mingled frenzy, hatred, and despair he hangs himself.

Commenting on Shakespeare's lines, the Book of Days says: "Here, brazen implies not merely that particular mixture of copper and calamine, called brass, but in a broader sense any metal which is compounded with copper."

The people of Cornwall, England, have a belief that a peal of bells cast at a foundry on the continent for a church at Bottreaux, now Boscastle, that went down in a vessel, within sight of the church tower, may yet be heard, that

When the storm of Bottreaux's waves
Is waking in his weedy caves,
Those bells that sullen surges hide
Peal their deep tones beneath the tide:
"Come to thy God in time,"
Thus saith the ocean's chime;
"Storm, whirlwind, billows part,
Come to Thy God at last."

Stood on His Dignity.

United States Senator Hoar in his autobiography relates an anecdote of Anson Burlingame, the famous lawyer of Detroit, who was afterward minister to China. He says:

"Shortly after Burlingame came into active life he made a journey to Europe. The American minister obtained for him a ticket of admission to the house of commons. He was shown to a very comfortable seat in the gallery. In a few minutes an official came to him and said he must leave that seat, that the gallery where he was was reserved for peers. They are very particular about such things there. Burlingame got up to go out, when an old peer who happened to be sitting by him and had heard what was said interposed. 'Let him stay,' he said; 'he is a peer in his own country.' 'I am a sovereign in my own country, sir,' replied Burlingame, 'and shall lose caste if I associate with peers.' And he went out."

Very few people, even accomplished shots, know how a revolver ought to be handled.

Troops are taught in aiming never to look at the weapon at all, but to keep their eyes on the object to be struck. In quick firing, and especially in shooting from horseback, much better results are obtained in this way.

A man throwing a stone does not look at his hand. Neither does a billiard player sight along his cue. The same rules apply to the use of short weapons. Men have been trained to shoot excellently at a mark when their pistol sights were hidden.

Nearly any one can sight a pistol correctly, the inaccuracy of the aim being due to the trembling of the hands before the trigger is pressed. By hiding the sight the temptation to hold too long is removed, and the first aim, generally the most accurate, is preserved. —Pearson's.

Suffered With Heart For Ten Years

Would Nearly Smother

There is nothing that brings with it such fear of impending death as to wake up in the night with that awful sense of smothering. The uncertain and irregular heart action causes the greatest distress of both mind and body.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are the only remedy that can give prompt relief and effect a complete cure in cases of such severity.

They strengthen and invigorate the heart, so that it beats strong and regular, and tone up the nervous system so that the cause of so much anxiety becomes a thing of the past.

Mrs. M. O. McCready, Wapella, Sask., writes: "I am not much of a believer in medicines, but I feel that it is only right for me to let you know what your wonderful remedy has done for me, and in a very short time, too. I had suffered terribly with my heart for nearly ten years, could scarcely do any work, and would nearly smother at times. I had many remedies, some only relieving me for a time. I got a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and felt so much better that I kept on using them, and can truthfully say I feel like a new woman.

"I would advise anyone with heart trouble to use them."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c, or three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Origin of the French Tricolor.

The origin of the French tricolor is usually explained as it is by Carlyle: "Women, too, are sewing cockades—not now of green, which being d'Artois color the Hotel de Ville has had to interfere in it, but of red and blue, our old Paris colors. These, once based on a ground of constitutional white, are the famed tricolor—which (if prophecy err not) will go round the world." Another explanation, however, is that the tricolor combines the blue hood of St. Martin, which was borne on the standard of the ancient kings, the oriflamme (originally the banner of the abbey of St. Denis) and the white flag of the Bourbons. Others make it the shield of the Orleans family.

Havana.

Havana, or San Cristobal de la Habana, as it was originally named, was the last of seven cities founded in Cuba by the island's conqueror, the Adelantado Diego Velasquez, the date being July 25, 1515. Since that was twenty-three years after Columbus' discovery there cannot be many new world cities older than Havana, assuming that most of the other six in Cuba have since disappeared.

INTERNED GERMANS ESCAPE.

Fell Into Hands of British and Are Now in England.

For a short time past there have been rumors of the miscarriage of a grand attempt at escape on the part of a large number of the German interned officers, taken to Spain from the Cameroons, and these have led to German statements issued from Berlin and received in Spain to the effect that the officers in question, who escaped from Vigo, had duly reached a Belgian port in safety, and so had completely established their escape. The number was given as fifty. As a matter of fact, there is the best reason to believe that though 20 German officers have undoubtedly escaped from Vigo, the fact being now officially announced by the Count de Ramonones, they have certainly not reached Germany, but on the contrary are now more prisoners than ever—in England! The facts, as they are stated in Madrid, with every possible degree of authenticity, are that the organizer of this expedition was a certain Lieutenant Koch, who had been interned at Pamplona since last August. He took nineteen others with him into his scheme, and it was intended to attempt the escape immediately. A number of difficult circumstances intervened, however, and again when a start was planned for a later date, a rough sea caused further delay. Admirably organized as was the scheme, it never had any success from the beginning. Koch and his friends, having left Pamplona, made their way to the port of Vigo, and there for the sum of 11,500 pesetas, they purchased an old sailing ship with the name of Virgen-del-Socorro. She was a poor sort of tub, but all that could be afforded or even purchased, for ships are not now salable to aliens in Spain, and perhaps she was good enough for her hazardous enterprise.

It was cleverly arranged that she should be anchored alongside the German steamship Wehrt which has been interned in Vigo since the beginning of the war. It was easy enough for Koch and his party to go aboard the Wehrt and from there make all their arrangements on the Virgen-del-Socorro at their leisure. It is clear also that the German vice-consul at Vigo assisted his compatriots to the best of his ability. At length all was in readiness and in the middle of the night the Virgen-del-Socorro crept carefully out of the harbor and began beating her way along the high seas north. She was flying the Dutch flag in the hope that this would satisfy any English cruisers who happened to discover her in the distance. The plan of the expedition was to sail round the British Isles, drop down into the North Sea, and then gain a Belgian port. From the outset, however, everything went wrong, and no sooner had they got well clear of the Spanish shore than a heavy gale arose, increasing to something near a hurricane. After six days of this, the Virgen-del-Socorro with Captain Koch in command found herself painfully close in to the English coast, being, as a matter of fact, just off the Lizard on the Cornish shore. The state of things was then such that it was clearly impossible to carry out the original intention of sailing round the north of Scotland, and with much pluck but slender hope Koch set the nose of the Virgen-del-Socorro up the English Channel. For a night, when it was dark, the old ship tacked along, but when the sun rose the inevitable English torpedo boat came steaming up at full speed and the tale of adventure was finished. The Virgen-del-Socorro was then off Dungeness and she was led quietly into Ramsgate, while Koch and his men will remain in England until the end of the war with, perhaps, hardly such splendid freedom as they enjoyed at Pamplona.

EMIGRATION OF GIRLS.

Problem Discussed with Imperial Land Settlement Committee.

LONDON, May 25.—Bruce Walker, Canadian representative on the Imperial Land Settlement Committee, was invited to meet the bishops of London diocese to discuss emigration matters. The interview was most satisfactory. A deputation of prominent women representing the British Women's and South African Women's Emigration Societies, the Friendless Girls' Association and the Y. W. C. A. met the commission to discuss the emigration of children between the ages of five and twelve, and the best methods of safeguarding them.

PAIN? NOT A BIT! LIFT YOUR CORNS OR CALLUSES OFF

No humbug! Apply few drops then just lift them away with fingers.

This new drug is an ether compound discovered by a Cincinnati chemist. It is called freezone, and can now be obtained in tiny bottles as here shown at very little cost from any drug store. Just ask for freezone. Apply a drop or two directly upon a tender corn or callus and instantly the soreness disappears. Shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose that you can lift it off, root and all, with the fingers.

Not a twinge of pain, soreness or irritation; not even the slightest smarting, either when applying freezone or afterwards.

This drug doesn't eat up the corn or callus, but shrivels them so they loosen and come right out. It is no humbug! It works like a charm. For a few cents you can get rid of every hard corn, soft corn or corn between the toes, as well as painful calluses on bottom of your feet. It never disappoints and never burns, bites or inflames. Genuine freezone is sold only in these small bottles packed in a little sealed wood case, bearing a yellow wrapper. Beware of imitations.

PROPOSE TRIAL FOR GENERALS

French Deputies Introduce Bill Authorizing Holding of Court Martial.

PARIS, May 25.—Deputies Jean Hennessy and Le Cherpy introduced a bill in the Chamber of Deputies to-day to add to the military code a clause whereby general officers guilty of professional faults due to negligence or incapacity must undergo trial by courtmartial, in the same way as naval officers. Heretofore general officers charged with errors of this kind were removed simply by order of the Commander in Chief, without having an opportunity to clear themselves.

The new bill gives them the right to claim trial by court-martial. It also provides penalties varying from death to dismissal and reprimand, according to the charge.

TO A BABE.

Little innocent babe, thy bright, bonny, blue eyes,
Open wide on our world, in sweet, silent surprise;
Though a stranger you come, without even a name,
To our hearts, and our home, you confiding lay claim.
Could'st thou come, with such trusting smile,
If aught you but knew of earth's sorrow and guile.

But soon dimpling smiles vanish, and tears sadly flow;
Hast thou learned that these twain are close allied below?
Now, this pure gem, immortal, in casket so fair,
For weal or for woe is consigned to our care;
And the straight path of duty, so firm may we tread
That thou follow it, too, by our guiding steps led.

Launched, a frail, helpless barque, on life's troubleous sea,
Heaven grant, with fair winds, all the voyage may be,
Sort, or long, smooth, or rough, still what ever betide
May the heavenly Pilot thy course safely guide
To the blest port above, and thy anchor be cast
Where never is felt sorrow's withering blast.

How To Cut Down The Meat Bill

Purchase Cheaper Cuts and Compensate for Any Toughness and Less Desirable Flavour by More Careful Preparation for the Table

Meat is one of the most expensive items in the food bill of the ordinary family, and for this reason it is important that it be bought and used to the best possible advantage.

American consumers are reminded of this in a statement just issued by specialists of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The methods by which economy will be effected will vary, it is pointed out, with the conditions surrounding each family, with the amount of personal supervision given by the housewife to the preparation of food, with her skill, with market conditions, and with the willingness of the members of the family to eat dishes other than those—often especially expensive, for which they have a special liking.

Many persons, says the statement, eat over-abundantly of meat. In such cases it should be possible, if the incentive is great enough, to reduce expenditure for meat by reducing the amount purchased. Where meat has been purchased by telephone orders to a butcher's boy, personal shopping and careful selection may make a saving possible. Still another possibility for economizing is to purchase cheaper cuts and to compensate for any toughness and less desirable flavour by preparing them more carefully for the table. Finally, economy often may be achieved by utilizing the meat more completely, including the trimmings and bones, and left-overs.

In purchasing the cheaper, and often tougher cuts of meat instead of the choicer cuts, a housewife is losing little, if any, nutriment, provided, of course, the proportion of bone to meat is no greater than in the more costly kinds. She rather is sacrificing only texture of flavour or ease in preparation for the sake of cheapness; and, if she wishes to produce dishes as palatable as those made from expensive meats must expend more care on preparing, flavouring and cooking. If the cheaper steaks are purchased for example, a degree of tenderness may be imparted to them by the well-known method of pounding the meat. The juices and flavours of such steaks will be retained more satisfactorily if flour is sprinkled over them during the beating process and so worked into the fibres of the surface.

Another common method of utilizing the tougher means is to grind them and form them into balls which may be broiled like steak. Cheap cuts of meat also may be cooked slowly with vegetables or dumplings in a casserole or any well walled baking dish which can be covered, the juices thereby being retained.

PILES.
You will find relief in Zam-Buk! It eases the burning, stinging pain, stops bleeding and brings ease. Perseverance, with Zam-Buk, means cure. Why not prove this? All Druggists and Stores—50c box.
Zam-Buk

Whatever the quality of meat bought, undoubtedly there will be in most cases trimmings and scraps, such as fat, bones, gristle, etc. The fat may be tried out by grinding or chopping and heating in a double boiler. The tried out fat then may be boiled in water and allowed to solidify on the surface of the water, when the latter cools, impurities being scraped from the under surface of the cake. Trimming the lean meat, gristle and bone may be boiled slowly and used for soup stock.

Left-over portions of cooked meats from serving dishes may be used in a variety of ways to prepare palatable dishes. In utilizing such materials and in the preparation of other meats, the knowledge of a few general principles of cookery, such as the quantity of flour required to thicken sauce, the time needed for cooking meats of various toughness, the proportion of starchy foods or succulent vegetables to combine with meats, and the like, makes it easy to utilize whatever materials may happen to be on hand without a special recipe for each particular dish. Left-over cooked meats may be used, like small pieces of uncooked meat, with vegetables and other foods in the preparation of casserole dishes, in making stews, hashes, croquettes, etc. Cold sliced meat may be served with hot gravy made from soup stock, milk, meat fat and flour or other ingredients.

An important way in which the amount of money expended for meat may be lessened is by preparing relatively small quantities of meat in such a way as to extend its flavour to other and cheaper foods. In using meat so as to extend its flavour it may be ground and combined with rice, bread crumbs, etc., to form croquettes; made into pies with relatively large quantities of pastry; cooked with dumplings; served in the same dish with gravy and starchy foods, such as spaghetti or rice; ground and used with bread crumbs or other materials as a stuffing of vegetables, such as tomatoes and green peppers; or cut thin and wrapped around a stuffing of bread crumbs, rice, vegetables, etc.

If it is considered desirable, other total yield in the U.S. this season, larger quantities to take the place of the meat formerly eaten. This protein may be furnished by eggs if they are cheap, skim milk, cheese, dried beans, peas, cowpeas and other legumes.

A few typical recipes are given below as examples of the many dishes housewives can prepare with meat as the chief ingredient.

Dishes From Cheaper Cuts of Meat.

Braised Beef or Pot Roast—Brown meat on all surfaces, place in closely covered kettle or other receptacle with small quantity of water and flavouring vegetables such as onion, carrot, etc., and cook till tender. Browning the meat helps to keep in the juices. The slow cooking in water and steam makes for tenderness.

Savory Beef—Cut a pound of top round of beef into two-inch pieces and sprinkle with flour; fry a little piece of salt pork until light brown; add beef and fry for about 35 minutes, stirring occasionally. Cover with water and simmer about two hours (fireless cooker may be used); season with salt and pepper or paprika. Serve with a sauce made as follows: Cook in water 20 minutes a cup of tomatoes, part of a stalk of celery, one-half onion, three whole cloves, three peppercorns and one blade of mace or a very little nutmeg. Run through a sieve, add some of the gravy from the meat, thicken with flour moistened with cold water, and season with salt and paprika. Noodles, boiled rice, hominy or chopped potatoes, carrots and green peppers or other vegetables in season, may be served on the same dish.

Casserole Roast — (A casserole may be improvised by using a heavy earthenware dish covered with a plate.) Brown round or rump of beef in fat from a slice of fried pork. Place in casserole with chopped carrot, turnip, onion, celery, etc., around it. Add two cupsful of water or stock, cover and cook in hot oven for three hours, basting occasionally.

Stew With Dumplings—Make stew from small pieces of meat and vegetables, cooking it on stove or in fireless cooker. Serve with dumplings made as follows: For a stew using one pound of meat mix a little more than one-third cup of flour with one teaspoonful of baking powder and a pinch of salt, work in a rounding teaspoonful of butter and mix with enough milk to form a medium stiff dough. Cut into small pieces and cook in a buttered steamer over a kettle of boiling water or remove enough gravy from the stew to expose the meat and vegetables and place the pieces of dough on these solid materials to cook.

Meat Pie—Meat pies are made most satisfactorily by first cooking the meat and vegetables as for a stew. Line a pan, earthenware dish, or casserole with biscuit dough rolled fairly thin, put in the meat, vegetables and gravy, cover with dough and bake in a hot oven.

Meat Turnovers—Place any chopped cooked meat available on circles of biscuit dough about the size of a saucer. Fold the dough over the meat, crimp the edges and bake in a hot oven. Vegetables may be combined with the meat filling as desired and the whole may be served with gravy.

Veal or Beef Birds—Cut very thin meat into roughly rectangular pieces of a sufficient size for individual servings. Place on each a stuffing of bread crumbs, seasoned with chopped onions and other flavouring vegetables and herbs. Fold or roll up the meat and skewer in place with tooth picks. Brown the rolls in fat, remove and make gravy from the fat, flour and stock if available. Place the rolls in the gravy and cook slowly until tender in a covered baking dish, a steamer or a fireless cooker.

THE NEW HELOTS.

(An imaginary scene in a slave market.)

Slavery! It's slavery for you, O Flemish men. . . . . .
So, let your master-drivers bring you from the prison-pen.

And are they able-bodied all—necks fitted to the yoke?
None overfed or soft—a fatal thing in slave-bred folk!

And are they trained to silent ways?
A pest on tongues that wag!
It vexes one to hear the rant about "a trampled flag!"
(Oh, hush, that muttering priest — such malediction calls he down!
One would not think that he would dare the master-driver's frown)

* * *

It's slavery for Flemish men * *
Yet not for sale are they:
But those who took and made them slaves have use for them, you say?
They're crowding them in trucks and cars — they're sending them away,
To labor for the master-man—to fight for him some day?

Slavery! It's slavery for Flemish boys and men. * *
An ancient tale there was (how History repeats again!)
So, likewise, they of Sparta did—enslaved a conquered folk;

Drinking Tea Upset Nerves

Mr. Burroughes Compares Canadian Customs With Those in Old Land and Tells How Nerves Were Set Right.

Orillia, Ont., May 29.—"How to be well and strong?" is the question many are asking at this time of year and in this letter you will find the answer.

It tells something of the blood-forming, nerve-invigorating influence of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, the great restorative which is causing so much talk here just now.

Nature's way of curing disease is by building up the vitality of the body, and this is exactly what Dr. Chase's Nerve Food does. The blood is made rich and red, and it nourishes the exhausted nerves back to health and vigor.

The experience of Mr. Burroughs as described in this letter is similar to that of hundreds of others in this community who have recently put this well-known food cure to the test.

Mr. George Burroughs, 23 Peter street, Orillia, Ont., writes: "A few years ago, after coming out to this country from England, the change of customs seemed to have some effect on me. In the old country the habit of drinking strong tea was prevalent, and after arriving here I suffered very much from nervousness. If I put my arm down on the table it would shake very noticeably, and while performing my work I would easily tire, and want to sit down and rest. A friend recommended Dr. Chase's Nerve Food so I secured some and took a treatment. It built me up and made me strong and healthy. I have not had a trace of the nervousness since. I have used Dr. Chase's Ointment also, and find that it heals the skin very quickly. In fact I find all of Dr. Chase's medicines good."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, a full treatment of 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

THE LAST WORDS OF FUNSTON

Or "How Delightful it Is!"
By Henry Polk Lowenstein.

How delightful it is to do one's duty well;
How delightful it is in the House of God to dwell.

With a heart full of hope, to swim to the Other side.

How delightful it is, at Country's call,
To put on the armour and fight for all.

How delightful it is, in foreign land,
To uphold the flag and for Justice stand.

How delightful it is to slip out of the sod,
And on the wings of music to fly to God.

Listening to the orchestra playing a beautiful waltz in the hotel where he was stopping at San Antonio, Texas, General Funston, speaking to a little girl near by, said "How delightful it is!" and then expired, these being his last words.

WHEN BLOOD IS POISON

The blood must be filtered, otherwise you are poisoned. If the kidneys fail the liver is overworked, and becomes torpid. By using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills you get both these filtering organs working right, and also ensure healthful action of the bowels. For this reason these pills are an ideal family medicine. They cure biliousness, constipation, chronic indigestion and kidney disease.

Italians Are Turning the Southern Wing of Foe's Line

Capture at Duino by General Cadorna's Men Who Are Now Exerting a Tremendous Leverage on the Hermanda Plateau. Violent Artillery Fire on Champagne Front Presages a Renewal of the French Offensive. Artillery Fighting and Raids on the British Front.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

Special to The Examiner:

ROME, May 29.—The southern wing of the Austrian line was being slowly turned to-day under the tremendous leverage of General Cadorna's full force of arms, exerted westward on the Hermanda Plateau north of Duino. The capture of Duino was momentarily expected. With this point in Italian possession, the way will be open along the coast itself for the advance on Trieste. The guns from British monitors in the gulf will be of great assistance. The Italian advance was concentrated on this salient today and fighting was continuing with great violence.

LONDON, Eng., May 29.—Activity on the British front to-day was confined to mutual artillerying and scattered raiding, according to Field Marshal Haig's report.

Southwest of Lens and west of Messines, the British Commander-in-Chief reported driving off of hostile raiders. In Ploegsteert Wood he said British forces carried out successful raids. In the neighbourhood of Bullecourt and on both banks of the Scarpe, the enemy's artillery was active at night.

PARIS, May 29.—The resumption of a violent artillery fire along a great part of the Champagne front, forecasting possibly a renewal of French offensive operations in that sector, was announced in to-day's official statement. The Germans heavily shelled French positions in the Hurtebise region and launched two heavy attacks, but these were beaten off, with the French retaining their hold on all positions.

Around Verdun, the War Office said, a small post north of Vacherauville has been carried. Yesterday seven enemy aeroplanes were brought down and destroyed, and twelve others were disabled and forced to alight.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Another startling plot was revealed before the House Interstate Commerce Commission to-day. Secretary of State Lansing disclosed the fact that "Germans or German officials" attempted, shortly before this nation's war declaration, to involve the United States in differences with England and France through organisation of a big steamship company that was deliberately to violate the foreign trading with the enemy act.

ROME, May 29.—Italian troops continuing the brilliant drive in the Piava sector, have forced the Austrian forces into a small valley east of Gorizia, to-day's official statement announced. "We captured 100 prisoners," the statement continued, "bringing the total captured in the Julian offensive since May 14 to 23,681, including 604 officers."

LONDON, Eng., May 29.—Berlin official statement to-day betrays some anxiety regarding Russian and Roumanian activities on the Eastern front. It says: "The Eastern front—In several sectors of the front fighting activity has increased during the past few days. Russo-Roumanian attacks are expected.

Macedonian Front—Firing activity has been revived in the bend of the Cerna. On the western bank of the Vardar a Bulgarian outpost repulsed several British companies.

LONDON, May 29.—The converted cruiser Hilary has been submarined in the North Sea. Four of those on board were killed.

LONDON, May 29.—The hospital ship Dover Castle was sunk by a submarine in the Mediterranean Sunday, the Admiralty announced to-day. Six persons perished.

Conscription Bill at End of Week

OTTAWA, Ont., May 29.—This was another day of guesswork concerning the proposed selective draft bill, which it was expected would be brought down to the Commons by Sir Robert Borden. It was stated this morning, however, that this momentous legislation will not be presented till about the end of the week. Sir Robert and his Cabinet, with the Military and Civil Department heads, have been working on the bill night and day for nearly a week. Not one thing definite about the measure has been announced except that the minimum age will be twenty years. It is well known here that the bill is subjected to daily revision. The matter of Cabinet reconstruction, it is believed, will go over until the conscription measure is introduced and debated in the House, as much will depend upon what happens in Parliament.

BASEBALL SEASON OPENS IN FRANCE

LONDON, May 29. — Correspondents of the Associated and United Press to-day both cable long stories of the "opening of the baseball season" on the battlefield. They describe an excellent game between picked teams of the Second and Third Canadian Brigades, resulting in a victory of the Second Brigade with score of seven to two. These two brigades are apparently in rest camps just now, and the cables says that the league has been fully organized, and every brigade will have its team, and play off, in its period of relief from actual front trench work. General Horne and General Byng were interested spectators at the opening game, cables said.

Union Prayer Service

The regular monthly union prayer service arranged by the Ministerial Association for all the Christian people of Peterborough will be held in the Murray Street Baptist Church on Wednesday, May 30, at 8 o'clock. Every person will be made welcome at this service. Patriotism and Religion both call us to worship: common needs and dangers and sorrows constrain us to unity. It is hoped that there will be a large gathering representative of every walk and creed of our city life at this meeting on Wednesday evening next.

Vote for the Bridges By-law on Thursday

The By-law does not give anything to the Company. It provides for public works that will be of general public benefit, while at the same time facilitating the business of the Company.

The high level bridge will do away with the danger to the public of the railway crossings on Hunter Street, a danger that will increase as the City grows and as the business increases. It will provide a way for the extension of the Street Railway into the East Ward, which is required and has been demanded for some time. It will enable barges, when the Trent Canal is opened, to be taken above the bridge to the mills for which the river has been dredged by the Government. It will be a great convenience to the public in crossing the river to and from the City, and will give an impetus to the development of the City on the east side of the river.

KILLED IN ACTION:

Pte. Lawrence J. Murtagh, late 39th Battalion, 100 Gladstone avenue, Peterborough.

PTE. LAWRENCE J. MURTAGH.

Another Peterborough member of the 39th Battalion, has met death in France, in the person of Pte. Lawrence J. Murtagh, who is officially reported killed in action. Pte. Murtagh enlisted with the 57th Regiment quota in the then-called third contingent, joining the local detachment of the 39th Battalion on February 13, 1915. He was nineteen years of age at the time and resided at 100 Gladstone avenue, boarding at 100 Gladstone avenue, boarding at the home of Sergt. W. R. Field, now overseas. Pte. Murtagh's next of kin resides in England.

PTE H. W. FALLOWFIELD.

In the general casualty list, published last night the name of Pte. H. W. Fallowfield appears in the missing list, and in one Toronto paper his address is given as Peterborough. Another Toronto daily, however, names Pembroke as his home, and the latter is undoubtedly correct, as so far as is known there is no Peterborough soldier by the name of Farrowfield overseas.

Mrs. J. Jenkinson has received the following letter from the information bureau of the Canadian Red Cross Society in London.

I beg to inform you that Pte J. H. Jenkinson, 195534, 1st Canadians, who is now at Military Hospital, Leaf Square, Pendleton, Manchester, England has been seen by our Red Cross visitor who reports that he is suffering from a gun shot wound in his left leg. He is going on well and you may rest assured he is receiving every attention.

Any small comforts he may require will be sent him from here and we shall be pleased to let you hear of his progress from time to time.

Yours truly,
CONSTANCE SCOTT.

A member of the Examiner staff has received an interesting letter from a former member of the old 93rd band, now in England with the 235th. Writing on May 15th, he says:

"Well we are back in England again, after having a fairly good voyage. We arrived at midnight, Sunday the 13th and disembarked next morning at 10 o'clock, arriving at old Otterpool Camp at 9.30 o'clock in the evening. We are in the same old camp as we were in the 93rd. We expect to leave for Sandling in a couple of weeks time, where we will amalgamate with the 3rd Reserve Battalion. There are quite a few Peterborough boys here. Lawrence Soden was on the fence yelling for all he was worth at us. Claire Stuart is here and Cecil Derry and several others that we have not yet seen."

The writer mentions that six of the old 93rd band refused an opportunity to play in the band of the 235th, remarking that after the abuse they received in certain quarters in Peterborough they decided that they were through with bands. The six are: P. Wolko, Victor Ballin, Herb. Payton, Tom Smith, Harry Boyler and E. Keale. They are occupying the same tent and can handle the rifle now nearly as well as they could their band instruments.

Mrs. T. W. Robinson, Weller street has received a letter from her son, Pte. Walter M. Robinson, who was wounded recently. He writes he is in the Edmonton Military Hospital, London and doing nicely. No cause to worry.

The 57th Regiment is arranging a recruit class to be held two nights a week at the Armouries, to which all men who are anxious to learn the rudiments of drill may have an opportunity. These men will not be examined or attested but will merely be given a chance to learn drill to be ready for emergencies. The following order was issued to-day:

Orders having been received to rehabilitate the units of the active militia, a class for recruits for the 57th Regiment "Peterborough Rangers" will be held at the Armouries at 8 p.m. on Thursday, May 31st, 1917, and at the same place and hour, until further notice, on each subsequent Tuesday and Thursday. Civilian clothing will be worn.

B. H. MEYERS, Capt.
Acting Adjutant.

Mr. Jas. Middleton has received the following letter from Gunner Ted Soulsby, former member of the Peterborough Fire Department, who was wounded recently:

Ward J1.
Base Hospital,
Leicester, May 16, 1917.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Middleton,—Just a line to let you know my new address. I've had it several days now. I was wounded in the chest on May 3rd and travelled round till I landed here on May 12th. I have an operation staring me in the face yet. I was Exrayed yesterday and they found where the piece of shell is at, and it's got to come out.

Well, I hope you are all well. I'm "Jake" at present.

Yours very sincerely,
TED SOULSBY.

The Kingston Standard says: On Saturday night Kingston said goodbye to the R.C.H.A. for the summer. The popular battery left with their horses and guns for Petawawa, where they will camp for the summer. Last night the 73nd, 73rd, 74th, 75th Batteries and the Ammunition Column entrained for Petawawa. There was a large crowd at the station to bid them farewell, and the Mayor, in a short speech, cheered the boys on their way to camp. The Depot Batteries were about 200 strong, and the "C" Battery had about 100 leaving. Their absence will make the city rather deserted until camp opens.

Italians Ready for The Final Assault

Smash Their Way Across the Timavo River, Capturing the Village of San Giovanni and Taking Nine 6 inch Guns from Austrians.

ON SLOPES OF HERMANDA

LONDON, May 28.—On the Carso plateau, just above the head of the Gulf of Trieste, the Italians have smashed their way across the Timavo river and captured the village of San Giovanni, a scant two miles northwest of Duino, a fashionable watering resort on the railroad skirting the Gulf of Trieste. Nine six-inch guns fell into the hands of the Italians when they captured the village, and they soon will be used against the Austrians, as their condition is described as excellent.

To the north, in the vicinity of Jamiano, the Italians have captured fortified Austrian trenches, and along the Julian front have made further gains and consolidated positions previously taken. The Austrian War Office asserts that Sunday's attacks by the Italians near Jamiano were repulsed, and that near Castagnlavizza attempts at an advance by the Italians failed. It asserts also that the Italian casualties have been very heavy, the ground before the Austrian positions being covered with Italian dead. More than 13,000 unwounded Italians have been captured up to Sunday, says the statement. 7,000 of them having been made prisoner on the Carso plateau.

Telegraphing from Italian headquarters under date of Sunday, the Times correspondent writes:

Our allies are on the slopes of Monte Hermanda beyond Medeazza. Before reaching the final rampart of Hermanda there is a dip of ground that separates the lower ridges from the final ascent. On the right and centre the Italian line faces that dip. The line where the Italians are now firmly established was obviously chosen because it is the best jumping-off place for the final assault. How soon the assault will come cannot be foretold. An advance of over two miles all along the line between the Carso and the sea obviously implies a pause. Many guns which hitherto have supported the infantry splendidly in hammering the Austrian lines, are now too far back for effective fire upon the new front position of the enemy, but preparation has already well begun. Yesterday these were light batteries speaking from where four days ago these were Austrian guns.

Yesterday saw what must be a rare sight in this slow horror of trench bombs and giant howitzers, namely field guns going into action under the enemy's direct fire. At the moment it seemed impossible, but when the truth dawned it was hard not to cheer. Out came one after another at discreet intervals from the wood, at a walk, not, gallop, hell-for-leather down the road where the troglodyte men had faced one another at 60 yards' distance for many weary months. Clatter, clatter,

Late Leafing of Maple Trees Shows A Backward Spring

One of the truest indications as to whether a season is backward or not, is the condition of the leafing process on the maples at certain dates, and the date of the completion of that process. This year the maples are slow in leafing, and as yet are not in full leaf. Usually the maples are in full leaf a few days previous to the "24th"; in some years they have been fully dressed by May 10, as in 1888; May 14, 1897, or May 12, as in 1901. One of the latest dates for the maples leafing was in 1907, when they were not in full leaf until June 4th, and the elms had not much more than begun to assume their summer garb.—W. P.

KERENSKY'S NEW ORDERS WILL BE A SUPREME TEST

Russia's Minister of War Attempts To Restore Discipline in the Army by Providing for the Punishment of Offenders and Deserters.

A PLEA FOR TEMPERANCE

(By William G. Shephard, United Press Correspondent.)

PETROGRAD, May 29.—The Lloyd George of Russia, Minister of War Kerensky, began to-day the supreme test of his own career and of New Russia's. His new orders to the army, restoring discipline by authorization for punishment of offenders, including penal servitude for deserters, became effective in the orders of the day. A popular idol throughout all Russia, Kerens is staking all on his ability to incite Russia's army into fighting. If the new Provisional Government is strong enough to back him up, his supporters believe he will succeed in cementing Russia into a cohesive, united force. In the meantime signs multiply that the peasants, whose initial insistence on the division of the land for a time threatened the internal safety of the government, are realizing more and more the necessity for unity of action.

The decision not to press for publication of the "secret treaties" is in strong support of the Government, which has maintained that such action should not be taken without consultation with Russia's allies, although it favoured in general the publication of all future compacts by the new regime. Kerensky is still at the front, exhorting the troops to fight. A new order issued by him was published here to-day. It pleads for total abstinence from liquor in the army. "Unless soldiers abstain from consumption of stores of liquor which they discover, new Russia will be submerged into a pool of alcohol, to the accompaniment of incendiarism and other outrages," Kerensky declared. "I demand that the use of alcohol by soldiers and officers be prevented."

ROTHSCHILD IS DEAD

One of Foremost Figures in British Racing Passes Away

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, May 29. — Leopold de Rothschild, one of the foremost figures in British racing, long a breeder of fine horses and a patron of the turf, died to-day. He was a Derby winner in 1904. He had been ill many weeks and was more than 70 years old. He was a son of the founder of the British branch of the renowned Rothschild, banking kings.

THE ROOT OF THE EVIL.

... seems to be a tendency, ...ally in the Conservative press, to ...plify the seriousness of the situa... in Quebec, and this is part of ... work of Ontario disloyalists, ...gh professedly and professionally ...-loyal. The Welland Telegraph ...lishes a letter from Captain Co..., chaplain of the 176th, by the ... prominent Orangeman. On the ...e to Halifax, the troop train had ...y an hour at Riviere du Loup, ...e colonel, to limber up the legs ...he troops, gave them a "march ...ough the streets. The let... of the chaplain states that the ... of the band brought crowds ... the streets, but the troops ...ched through them with never a ..., and this reception was magni... into an exhibition of disloyalty. It may have been due to disloyalty, but the same charge could be brought against the people of Peterborough, who are noted for their silent admiration and restraint in cheering, even when our boys are entraining for the front.

It is this violence of denunciation, and the uncharitableness of judgment of many Ontario people, which have with the government encouragement of Nationalism, provoked these conditions, which are, however, greatly overdrawn.

The Montreal Gazette, a sane, steady-going Conservative journal, says the importance of hostile Quebec demonstrations are overestimated. "The leaders," it says, "in the demonstrations, and especially in the violent appeals, are not men of recognized weight * * * in its extreme form the agitation will soon exhaust itself." It is probably a flurry that will soon pass; it has, except in its provoking causes, little political significance. Some of the most violent anti-conscription agitators are Conservative, and have gone against the government.

The greatest evil in our national life is the mutual jealousies and antagonisms, and incitation to antagonism, engendered, encouraged, and practised by extremists of both Ontario and Quebec. Both are untiring and both have an enlarged influence for evil, by reason of the government; and it is a strange paradox of our national experience that both factions are prepared to play their nominally opposite roles in the interest of the party strength of the government now in power at Ottawa. These factions have no principles but to extract political profit from their activities. The operation of these two influences, and the cooperation of the government are at the bottom of the disturbances that are now shaking the country and threatening political complications, dangerous, not only to Canadian national unity, but Canada's effectiveness in prosecuting her share of the war.

The City of Chatham's Civic Purchasing Board is selling, at cost, 45c butter for 37c and $4.75 potatoes at $3.65 a bag. Couldn't the Board give our government authorities the secret?

HONEST MR. ROGERS.

Mr. Justice Galt of Winnipeg must have been prejudiced by the evidence adduced at the Manitoba stealing scandal investigation—by the evidence presented and the manner of its presentation. After hearing all the evidence and carefully considering it, he was unkind enough to report that Hon. Robert Rogers was guilty of fraudulent conspiracy to get election money funds, and to remark that he could not believe Mr. Rogers' sworn evidence. Now we get the truth from Mr. Rogers. He flatly denies what the judge held was proved by the evidence—it is "an unadulterated falsehood in every particular." "I have," he says, "no knowledge of Thomas Kelly contributing one dollar to party funds for the assistance of the government." We have heard of an ingenious criminal who said he could bring a thousand witnesses who did not see him commit the crime brought against him. Mr. Kelly didn't contribute "one dollar," but many thousand dollars to Conservative election funds.

Farmers were paid an average of $1.75 per bushel for the wheat from which $14 or $15 a barrel flour was ground—a profit of over 100 per cent. —for the flour manufacturers.

THE LIBERTY LOAN AND OTHER THINGS.

The United States seems to be in earnest in this war, and the "Liberty Loan" has been launched to furnish the sinews of war. It does not seem that it would be necessary to "float" a loan in a country where there is so much wealth; but the object of this special loan appears to be to enlist the popular interest and popular subscriptions to the bonds, which are in denominations as small as $50. The agencies for stimulating purchase should be successful, since the 17,000 banks in the American Bankers' Association are actively employed as agents. The United States is evidently in earnest in this struggle. President Wilson, at the dedication in Washington, of a memorial to the Red Cross nurses engaged in the Civil War, said that though the United States went into the war "looking for no profit," yet "we are in it because we believe that the very principles upon which the American Republic is founded are now at stake, and must be vindicated." This looks, however, as if the United States was in common with the world, going to get mighty big "profit" out of a success in the war, which must come.

Germany and her "pals" were nearly down and out when the mighty weight of the United States was thrown into the scale. Circumstances make it probable that it will be some time before the United States can exercise her physical efforts in a way to be felt. But that country is otherwise exercising the most potent of influences in helping on the common cause.

The financial help and the provisioning help are mighty and must have already a great moral if not material favouring influence. A conservative and reliable journal like the Financial Chronicle of New York, states that during the three weeks or so that have elapsed since President Wilson signed the War Finance Law, the total of credits and loans has reached 670 million dollars — Great Britain, 325 millions; France, 100 millions; Italy, 100 millions; Russia, 100 millions; and Belgium, 45 millions; and "this," as it is described, "temporary financing," will probably reach 1,000 millions. The surprise advance of 100 millions to Russia, in the face of the gloomy reports of conditions, is explained by the probability that the United States government had special information through diplomatic channels, that the situation in Russia was not as black as it was painted in the press reports.

With Uncle Sam in earnest in the way indicated, and in other ways, with one civilized neutral after another dropping into the firing line—in one form or another—it seems more than probable that civilization will triumph over the forces of despotism and darkness.

There never were so many small gardens and garden plots in and around the city as there are waiting to-day for growing weather—all in their way helping win the war.

SCOTLAND, AWAKE!

O for the larger freedom of a national life! Scotsmen! let us shake off the trammels of this accursed trance, this spell which chains us to a retrograde giant who in everything is a century behind us. Standing yourselves, you could, though small, become mighty in thought, in commerce, in science, and letters. You do not recognize that the ruin of your country, of your national characteristics, is at hand—do not realise the horrible and powerful genius of England to automatically Anglicise every country with which she comes into contact. Most Englishmen would be amazed if you alluded to such a thing—and this is the secret of their muddling and of their success—that they do not know, do not realize, the possession of this power. Up then, Scotsmen! and preserve the remnants of your nationhood while yet there is time. Do not believe that England can manage your affairs better than you can yourselves. And above all, resent and resent fiercely, the attempt to seal you with seals Anglican, for if you accept these you accept a lesser, a poorer, civilization than your own.

England is using us just now, using us as she has ever done in her sore need. She knows us and can trust our loyalty. Never have we failed her nor shall we fail her now. At present we are "the hardy Scots," "the brave Highlanders," "the dour fighters." After the war we we will probably be the "unspeakable" Scots again. Shall we?

But we shall fight for it. Scotland was never yet unchivalrous. When the smoke of war has rolled away we shall take what is our own undoubted right—our own government, to be held in our own hands, to be carried on where our reasonable requests will not be shouted down with English laughter. We shall, in short, resume that Scottish Parliament discontinued by English fraud and English guile—which guile, fraud and base betrayal make the rotten and immoral compact they brought about null and void, as bribery and chicanery taunt ever nullify any bargain in which they figure.—Lewis Spence, in The Scottish Review.

Wonderful is the work of St. Dunstan's Hostel for Blinded Soldiers and Sailors, from whatever point viewed.

It is wonderful in inception, wonderful in organization, in the work it accomplishes, in the spirit which originated and which sustains it.

Next to giving his life in his country's cause a man can make no greater sacrifice than to lose his sight. That sense is the gateway of so many joys and so great blessings; its loss shutting out the sunshine, the beauteous tints of budding spring, the fond faces and glad smiles waiting to welcome the hero home; leaving darkness only, helplessness, and black despair.

That darkness none may illuminate, but all that may lessen its terrors, all that may dispel its dull despair, all that may restore heart-health and helpfulness it is the glory and the joy of St. Dunstan's voluntary, victorious workers to give back to our blinded soldier boys.

St. Dunstan's is situated in Regent's Park, Old London, in an immense mansion, the town house of the donor, Mr. Otto Kahn, the well known American financier, whose generosity has been supplemented by other sites in London, Brighton, Bournbrook, Torquay and Edinburgh. Its purpose is to encourage, cheer, teach, recreate to usefulness our war-blinded boys. To this work King and Queen, the wealthiest, the most learned among British specialists, nurses, mechanics, physicians, give gratuitous, devoted, wise attention. So well have they succeeded that it has been called "the happiest home in England," and its re-educated patients and students come forth anew into life with every preparation and every prospect for a useful, active, happy future, their great deprivation minimized, their old spirits of fighting manliness renewed.

Among St. Dunstan's five hundred or more blinded heroes are men from every quarter of the world-wide British Empire, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Tasmania, India, Newfoundland, and our own beloved Canada. They learn such arts as basket-making, typewriting, telephone operating, boot repairing, joinery, poultry farming, market gardening; in all of which it is said they soon equal those who have sight. They learn from blind men like themselves, they carry their arts to the remotest corners of the earth, they are ready in their turn to teach and so spread the beneficent influence of St. Dunstan's wherever blind men call out of their darkness for that inward light and new dexterity that shall bring joy and usefulness back to their life.

Only for one thing does St. Dunstan's need further benevolence, so richly have its British supporters endowed it by their wealth. The implements and mechanical aids, Braille books and such-like necessities with which they are amply provided, when passing out into practical activity, the work-day equipment of the new life, in the provision of these Canadians are offered opportunity to contribute. That, it seems, is our small part in this great, this glorious work. The secretary, St. Dunstan's, Regent's Park, London, England, is the address to which such help may be forwarded.

Britons' Plight Told In Want Ads in the London Press

Aristocrats Up Against it for Money to Live On.

LONDON, May 29.—Personal want ads in London papers show how the war has turned life topsy turvy in England.

Aristocrats who have never worried find themselves up against it for money to live on; idle women ask for jobs driving autos; officers seek means for augmenting their hopelessly insufficient army pay, and Red Cross bodies beckon adventurous neutral youths to come to the war as ambulance drivers.

OFFICER —28, OFFERS DRILL INstruction in school for three months' hospitality.

LADY — YOUNG, HAVING HAD her own home and elderly woman with her some time, owing to money losses would take entire charge of gentleman's house, or any position of trust.

WOULD ANY GENTLEMEN, WHO are strong enough, knowing something of horses, help a gentleman farmer, on active service, who cannot get carters? Comfortable home offered in exchange for service.

MUSICIAN WOULD TAKE GREAT care of baby grand or small upright piano, saving storage; reference supplied.

WANTED — VOLUNTARY MEN drivers to serve six months or more with French Army Motor Ambulance Convoys in France. Apply Director General, Red Cross, London.

TO TRADE —GRAND PIANO AND set of pearl earrings for flour or will take board and room.

And so they go.

bump, went the first gun over the main Italian trench. Another bump and the first line of the Austrian trench was passed. The first gun got safely to its new position before the Austrians were fairly awake to what was happening. The gun team came galloping back. Then the valley was filled with high explosive shells varied by occasional shrapnel. The road was never reached by the great shells, which exploded harmlessly in old trenches and open fields. But as the last gun was preparing to start a six-inch shell came straight into the little wood. When the smoke and dust cleared away the gun team was still standing quiet. Two minutes later the gun was bumping off to join its fellows.

The greater part of the day the enemy was plastering the valley with big shells. He even dropped four 42-centimetre shells on spots which he fondly hoped were full of Italian troops. None of these caused a single casualty, and throughout the day an stream of Italian supports pushed to the front.

The Austrians continue to make desperate efforts to regain the summit of the Vodice crest, known as Hill 652. The importance of this position to both sides is very great.

Prisoners taken during the last few days are less happy over the ultimate result of the war than some of those captured during the first days of the offensive. These last were buoyed up with the hope of separate peace with Russia. Those of yesterday had heard that a new Russian move was expected. They no longer boast that Austria's entire strength is concentrated against Italy.

MADE GIRLS PAY HEAD TAX.

U. S. Immigration Officials Suddenly Enforce New Law at the Falls.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., May 28.—Uncle Sam played a rather mean trick this morning on the Canadian girls who work over the river. At the other end of the bridge, United States immigration officers demanded from each girl the eight dollar head tax Uncle Sam imposes on all who enter under the new law. The girls were taken completely by surprise. Scores from this city work over there. Most of them hadn't eight dollars with them, and had to go the back home. Some stenographers come from as far as St. Catharines to work in the American city.

One good effect of the embargo Canada has placed on men between 18 and 45 leaving the country was shown here over the week end, when the police arrested only two drunks, both of them over 45. Usually there are from a dozen to twenty drunks in the city pen over Sunday. The embargo kept the thirsty ones from going over the river. The embargo is beginning to work smoothly. Men don't try to cross when they know they can't. Yesterday only a few auto parties were held up.

Plans of the New Quaker Oats Plant

The Bridges By-law Is An Issue in Connection With the Reconstruction in Peterboro of the Quaker Oats Company's Plant, the Plans of Which Are Shown on This Page — New Plant Will Be A Large One — A Word About the Bridge By-law.

VOTE ON THURSDAY

These bridges have been talked about for several years, and the question of their erection was brought up definitely for decision in connection with the rebuilding of the Quaker Oats Company's plant.

BRIDGES ARE NECESSARY.

It was necessary for the Company to know what will be done regarding the high level bridge, because their building must be erected to conform to the conditions that will be created by the bridge. The Company was of the opinion that, sooner or later, such a bridge would be erected, and that if they rebuilt their plant as it was before, with their offices on the ground floor, the bridge when built would practically destroy their offices and seriously effect their plant. Yet if they re-erected their buildings to conform to the high level bridge, with their offices in the third storey, and the construction of the bridge was unduly delayed, they would be put to serious inconvenience in the operation of their mills and business. Consequently it became necessary for the Company to know that the bridge would be constructed, and within a reasonable time.

Further, the increasing business of the Company necessitated a re-arrangement of their railway spur lines and further railway accommodation. This would be difficult with a level crossing of the railway lines across Hunter Street, and the high level bridge will provide for these spur lines, and will greatly facilitate the Company in doing its business. The handling of the products of the mills by the railways is of utmost importance, as is shown by the fact that last year the Company paid over $1,000,000.00 for freight charges.

A DANGER AND ANNOYANCE.

The London Street bridge has been petitioned for several times by ratepayers in that section of the City. Since the old Dickson Company wooden bridge became worn out large numbers of citizens have been using the Quaker Oats Company's dam for crossing the river, much to the danger of the people and the annoyance and inconvenience of the Company. The Company desired this danger and annoyance and inconvenience to be done away with by the erection of a bridge.

When the Company took up the question of the rebuilding of their plant they considered where it should be located. A slight difference in freight rates would in a year make a great difference to them, on account of the immense quantity of freight they had to handle. One cent per 100 lbs. would mean to them about $50,000.00 a year, and any greater difference would mean a larger sum. The Trent Canal is not yet open for traffic; if this Canal were completed there would be no question about the Company rebuilding here. The building of these bridges will facilitate the business of the Company and the assurance that they will be built within a reasonable time will enable the Company to erect their buildings to conform to the high level bridge and without any fear that they will be damaged by the erection of such a bridge in the future.

The Company, after taking everything into consideration, decided, after consultation with the City Council, that they would rebuild here if these bridges would be erected within a reasonable time.

A PUBLIC WORK.

As has been stated, the bridge at London Street has been petitioned for repeatedly. By making use of the iron superstructure of the present Hunter Street bridge for the bridge at London Street it can be erected at comparatively small cost. It will save the danger to the people of crossing on the dam, upon which there is a railway track, and will result in the development of that part of the City.

WILL PLAN ACCORDINGLY

If the Quaker Oats Company erected their buildings on plans similar to the old buildings, and later the City decided to construct the high level bridge, the result would be that the property of the Company would be seriously damaged, for which damage the City would be liable. By passing the By-law, and thus giving assurance that the bridge will be constructed, the Company will plan their buildings accordingly, and agree not to claim damages, and the City will not have to pay anything to the Company for land or other damages on either side of the river, as they would have to do but for this agreement. Consequently the City will save a large sum by providing now for the erection of the bridge so that the Company will build with this in view.

The Company is giving a right-of-way on each side of the river for access to the London Street bridge in exchange for Mill Street, which is of no public service and only used for access to the Company's mills, and a few yards of the east ends of Murray and London Streets, which only lead to the unused Mill Street. The rights-of-way are thus secured without expenditure by the City.

The Company is clearing away the remains of the old building in preparation for building the new ones on the assurances given that the bridges will be built. The new plant will be a large one and will give larger employment than the old one, with good prospects for greater development in the future.

Good News Received From the MacMillan Crockerland Expedition

Special to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, May 29. — All the members of the MacMillan-Crockerland expedition are safe, according to a cablegram received in Brooklyn today from the Shetland Islands.

The expedition, headed by Ronald B. MacMillan, sailed from New York on the Steamship Diana, July 3rd, 1913, for the Arctic regions. It suffered the greatest hardships, during which some of the members perished, and others were sent out in search of relief. Several attempts were made to rescue those remaining.

Troops Are Called Out

Race Riots in East St. Louis Are Growing More Serious

Special to The Examiner:

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 29.—The States' Attorney of St. Clair County has asked the States' Executive to rush troops to East St. Louis to be used to quell the race riots there and to protect the citizens and property of the city until order is restored. The message to the Attorney-General stated that the negroes are mobilizing, and his request to the governor urged speed in dispatching troops.

ROUND TRIP CAR WAS ALL DRESSED UP BUT HAD NO PLACE TO GO

One of the surest signs of summer is the open air street car which usually appears before Empire Day and on that holiday provides a pleasant outing for many families. But the "round trip" system has not yet been reopened this year. Everything was in readiness for the 24th. Old "No. 20" had received two coats of paint and a treatment of varnish, and appeared as bright and festive as a May Queen. But when the holiday arrived it remained inactive in the barn, a forlorn figure described in the song title "When you're all Dressed up and have no place to go."

However, the open car will soon reappear for the special benefit of children and mothers and all the other citizens who enjoy its pleasures. This year it can be entered from one side only. The running-board on the other side has been removed, and a wire grating is being placed along that side. This change should be remembered when the service is recommenced.

CARS RENOVATED.

Car No. 13 recently underwent a form of rebirth. It was repainted and varnished and the seats repaired and treated with some kind of paint that provides a very effective surface. "That's a state secret," laughed Mr. W. G. Ferguson, when asked what material was used. No. 16 is now in the hands of the painters and refurbishing will be applied to the entire rolling stock.

Two new cars have been promised for this summer, but as they have not arrived now it is unlikely that they will be delivered this year. The difficulties of manufacture will likely hold up production.

Mr. Ferguson stated that the Company was willing and ready to extend the Charlotte Street line down the boundary if the city would grade the road. This condition has held up the extension for two years, and as soon as the city council performs the necessary preliminary of grading the Company will make the extension for which they have had the material on the ground during the past two years.

Health Association Welcomes Celebration

The Peterborough Health Association, at a meeting yesterday afternoon, endorsed the Dominion Day celebration here in its interests, and offered to take charge of all the booths at the Exhibition Grounds on that occasion. This means that everything is cleared for the holiday event which the Greater Peterborough Association is boosting and which, it is expected, will be a great big success.

C. G. E. Employees Will Not Lose Bonus on Election Day

Notices were posted at the C.G.E. works to-day notifying the men that any time lost on Thursday by those employees who were delayed in voting on the Bridges By-law would not be deducted from shop bonus which is now in effect. This is another of the encouragements that seem apparent around the city, indicating the general desire that as large a vote as possible may be polled in this by-law. The C.G.E. men need not fear any loss of their time premium if they are delayed by visiting polling booths.

Dog Poisoners Again at Work

Dog poisoners are again at work throughout the city with the result that a number of very fine dogs have been hustled off to dogdom. Cats are also meeting a similar fate. One dog and five cats were yesterday consigned to the incinerator as a part of the week end harvest.

LIEUT. ELLIOT GAVE ADDRESS

A vivid and touching description of trench life was given by Lieut. Elliott, M.C., last night at the last meeting of the Kitchener League Club to be held at the Oriental.

Lieut. Elliott said he could not exaggerate the wonderful influence in keeping the boys cheerful that the boxes from the Kitchener League had. It gave them new fighting spirit to know the people at home were backing them. He urged the people to write frequently and to send socks and more socks, candles, tobacco, chocolate and literature, vermin powder also is essential.

A vote of thanks, moved by Mrs. Dicker, seconded by Mrs. Stocker was passed to Lieut. Elliott for his splendid address. A hearty vote of thanks was also given to Mr. and Mrs. Coulson and the Misses Dickson for the great kindness and generosity shown by them to the Kitchener League in giving the hotel to them for all meetings and entertainments. The generosity is thoroughly appreciated.

FLOUR AGAIN DROPS ONE DOLLAR A BARREL

WINNIPEG, May 29.— Winnipeg millers reduced the price of flour $1 a barrel to-day. Best patents are selling at $13.10 a barrel, the lowest figure since wheat prices began to advance several months ago.

On Monday evening Miss Anderson, who has been Superintendent of the Young Women's Christian Association, for a short time, was presented with a number of pieces of an afternoon tea-set in the "Blue Bird" china. The gift was from the girls residing in the house and was brought in by Miss Helen Ross, together with a bouquet of pink and white rosebuds. Miss Amy Bowles read the following address:—

Dear Miss Anderson:—

Your stay among us has not been long, but we, one and all, wish to assure you that had it been measured by years, instead of months, we should still say to you then, on the day of your departure, as we say to you now; our leaving is felt as a personal loss by every girl living in this house. We know that four walls alone cannot make a home, but your kindliness and sympathy have indeed done so. The loving unselfish spirit which prompted you to do yourself, those many, many acts far outside your own duties, and done for our comfort did not pass unnoticed by any one of us. We appreciated them perhaps the more because there was no ostentation in the doing. Knowing as we do that a good, sweet and gracious influence is one of the best and finest things Providence puts into this world, we trust that many another young woman will realize as we do, that yours has been among the good influences in her life. Recalling that the "Blue Bird," is emblematic of happiness, we ask you to accept these bluebirds of ours, and in the giving we are assured that your life, will be full of that lasting happiness, the reward of the sterling integrity of your character.

Signed on behalf of the girls:
Elsie Kirkwood
Ethel Sanderson
Marion Allely
Irene Lake
Alice Hopwood
Katheleen Mills
Olive Mann.

After singing "For she's a jolly good fellow," Miss Anderson who was completely taken by surprise, thanked the girls in a most fitting manner.

THIRTY MEMBERS HAVE JOINED

Miss Mary Kelleher addressed a fair sized audience last night at the Labour Hall when twelve more members were initiated into the Textile Union, making thirty members since Miss Kelleher began her series of addresses.

Miss Kelleher again impressed upon the audience this need of organization which she said like all new movements was slow.

Pte. J. C. Kylie Is Recovering

The following letter has been received by Mrs. M. Kylie, 556 Rogers street, concerning her son, Private J. C. Kylie, who at present is confined in a Military Hospital in England. The letter which is from the Information Bureau of the Red Cross Society, reads as follows:

"Private J. C. Kylie, 19th Canadians has been suffering from a slight shrapnel wound in the face but is so much better that he is going to a convalescent hospital at Ramsgate. Our visitor has seen him and done everything she could for him. Unless something unforseen occurs you will not hear from us again for which we rejoice with you."

Yours truly,

Would Purchase Land Near Waterworks

At a meeting of the Utilities Commission held last evening a letter was received from Mr. R. B. Rogers, offering to purchase land on the east side of the river and between the railway track and the river in the vicinity of the waterworks.

RAIN NEEDED IN THE WEST.

Crops Are Reported to be Making Good Progess.

Moosomin reports wheat is making good progress. Eighty per cent. of the oats is in.

From Paynton to Lashburn wheat is up two or three inches. Rain is required.

Reports are along the same lines from other places.

TWO MEN DROWNED; UPTURNED CANOE FOUND.

HALIBURTON, May 28. —John T. Laking and Lee Lindsay, of Haliburton, are missing since Saturday and presumably drowned. The canoe in which they started up Drag Lake was found capsized yesterday. Both were well known, the former being the son of William Laking, of Hamilton, and the latter a railway mail clerk and a native of Cannington.

Mr. Laking leaves a widow and one child, and Mr. Lindsay a widow and four children. Over fifty men are dragging the lake, but so far without success.

57TH REGIMENT UNIFORMS

Householders and all others having in their possessions any uniforms or other equipment, belonging to the 57th Regiment will return the same to the Armouries, or at once notify the commanding officer when it will be sent for. Failure to return this property is punishable by a fine of Twenty Dollars.

Japan, Alarmed by the Talk Of a Separate Russian Peace Sees Menace to the Far East

Dr. Iyenaga Explains His Country's Fear of Prussian Aggression — China's Integrity To Be Maintained — Tokio Government Is of Great Service to Allies Without Sending Troops, He Says.

"IN A WAY JAPAN FAILED"

The Japanese nation is viewing with gravest concern Russian developments which have led to what is tantamount to an armistice on the Eastern front, Dr. Toyokichi Iyenaga, director of the East and West News Bureau and one of the most widely known Japanese lecturers and publicists in America said. The Japanese people see in a possible separate peace between Russia and the Central Powers a direct blow at the integrity of China and the gravest sort of menace to the peace, civilization and development of the Far East.

Dr. Iyenaga said a separate peace between Russia and the Central Powers would shove the Eastern battle front more than seven thousand miles in the direction of the Pacific Ocean. It would place it, he said, near Chang-Chung, south of Harbin, where Russia now has her strongest military and economic base in the Orient.

"Japan would have to meet it," he said.

Says China Must Remain Open.

Failing to meet the crisis—to repel Prussianism that menaced Mongolia, Manchuria and all China — Japan would be negligent in her duty to herself and to her Allies, he said. "There must never be the menace of the mailed Prussian fist in China," he continued. "China must be open to development by the Chinese with the aid of all nations—all on the same basis of equity. There must be no Prussian domination there. The welfare of Japan and her peace depend upon the maintenance of China's integrity. It was in recognition of this that the treaty which was signed on May 25 and ratified on June 2 was born. Any plan of aggression against China menaces Japan, just as the United States would be menaced were any ruler of the future of Kobenzollern or Hapsburg set up in Mexico or in Cuba.

"China, to offset these possibilities, must be strengthened and upheld. She must be made a factor in the affairs of the Orient. She must be aided to her own reorganization—to a position where she will not be like a huge pastry which Prussianism may slice at will."

CHINA'S DEFENCE NEEDS.

Japan, under existing treaty agreements, must necessarily guard against that, he said, and must be prepared, more strongly than ever before, to combat with all her resources anything that savors of Prussian aggression in the Orient. China's urgent need to-day, he said, is for an effective system of defence—the development of a preparedness programme, which, instead of possessing various groups of armed bands and armies under separate commands and leaders and without regard to unification, should be under the absolute control of a central government.

Dr. Iyenaga declared that Japan regards the new government of Russia with the utmost friendliness and as an ally in the cause for which Japan and all the rest of civilization are fighting. He said the new treaty existing between Japan and Russia is one of amity, but that it does not in any way provide for mutual assistance in the way of troops in the event that either nation is engaged in war. In other words it is not an offensive alliance.

WILL NOT MOVE AGAINST EACH OTHER.

"That treaty provides that Japan will not become a party to any arrangement or political combination directed against Russia," he added. "Russia will not become a party to any arrangement or political combination against Japan." It provides that 'in case the territorial rights or specific interests in the Far East of either of the high contracting parties recognized by the other are menaced Japan and Russia will act in concert on the measures to be taken in view of the support or co-operation necessary for the protection and defence of those rights and interests.'"

The treaty shows the good feeling and understanding which exist between Japan and Russia, he said. He expressed the belief that the new government in Petrograd would exercise to the fullest extent all its resources to uphold it. He said Japan had no fears of the Russia of to-day as long as Russian integrity is maintained. He emphasized his belief that the 'great menace' lies in the danger of Prussian domination through secret intrigues and the many unorganized and dangerous factors in Russia's fight for free government.

"To understand fully the menace to the Far East that would follow Prussian domination of Asiatic Russia—to understand how quickly China would become the seat of another world war—it is necessary only to know some of the history of the secret negotiations of some of the diplomatists of Europe that led to the rapid spread of 'spheres of influence' of the Western Powers in China," he said. "The records of that intrusion are appalling.

ANNEXATION OF HONG-KONG FIRST.

"Subsequent to the annexation of Hong-Kong by Great Britain in 1841, Russia, in 1860, grabbed that vast territory north of the Amur. France and England entered Peking and reduced the summer palace to ashes. France seized Annam in 1874, and eleven years later the tricolour was hoisted in Tonquin.

"Then came the Chino-Japanese war. For years European nations had been trying eagerly to outdo one another for territorial rights in China. "European diplomacy began a stronger game when the war was ended—when China appealed to Germany, Russia and France to interfere to compel the Japanese to abandon the Liao-Tung Peninsula.

"Germany seized Kia-chou in 1897; Russia quickly followed with the seizure of Port Arthur and the domination of that vast stretch of country which extends northward into Siberia. Wei-hai-wei was leased to the British in 1898; Kwan-chow Bay to the French and Kau-lung Peninsula to the British in the next year. Italy, the following year, demanded Sanmun Bay as a naval base and the right to build a railroad line from there to Po-yang-hu-Lake.

JAPAN UNABLE TO GET AID.

"The situation was most alarming. The dismemberment of China was talked of by every diplomatist. Japan, seeing her very existence threatened, was thoroughly alarmed. She appealed to the United States, to England for assistance in halting Russian encroachments and the complete absorption of all Manchuria. Japan got no help. Her able diplomatists were put to work to avert a clash with Russia—to settle without war the great vital questions which this Russian aggression had raised. Again Japan failed. Russia then was dominated by the spirit of aggression not unlike that of Prussianism to-day. The world knows the history of the war which followed.

"It was a war for the 'open door' in China. Had Japan not fought Russia single handed, the essentials of Mr. Hay's circular of September, 1899, would have been destroyed; the 'open-door' policy would have been a 'scrap of paper.'

"This policy was left to Japan to uphold. When the great test came—when China was face to face with the imminent danger of disruption—both the United States and Great Britain failed to back up the doctrine. Japan was compelled alone to fight Russia, staking her very existence as a sovereign State on the outcome of the war.

"In a Way Japan Failed."

"In a way Japan failed in this war. It was that failure which gives birth to the dangers of the Far Eastern situation to-day and made necessary for Japan to increase her armament. After the peace plenipotentiaries returned to their homes from the Portsmouth Conference, Russia had been driven from Korea, but she held vast stretches of territory north and west of Chang-Chung. To-day she is strongly fortified in military and economic ways there as she ever was. A glance at the map of China will show this, with Russia dominating, as her sphere of influence, all of Northern Manchuria, outer Mongolia and Sin-kiang—more than 2,000,000 square miles or three-fourth of Manchuria; more than 1,000,000 square miles in outer Mongolia and more than 500,000 square miles in Sin-kiang—in all a total of 1,621,000 square miles.

"Before the war Germany held Shan-tung, with an area of 65,000 square miles, and she was scheming to extend it."

Dr. Iyenaga said he believed a

Protest by Petition Is Bourassa's Advice

MONTREAL, May 29.— La Presse, which had up to the present taken no stand on the conscription issue, comes out to-day with an editorial in favour of a vote on conscription either by a referendum or a general election.

"Henri Bourassa, the Nationalist chief, says in a signed article in Le Devoir: "No surprise has been expressed apparently at the 'silence' that the Devoir and its editor have conscription law proposed by the Prime Minister. The answer is easy. It must have occurred quite naturally to the mind of our habitual readers. It is not our part to rush head down into adventure in every popular movement. Conscious of our responsibilities, more anxious to enlighten public opinion than to pick up the pennies of easy popularity, we do not think that we have the right to seek and act without reflection, without calculating the effects of our actions and our speech. We left the first word to those who had sworn by their great gods that conscription would never be established in Canada.

"The patriotic league of Canadian Interests takes the initiative in a monster petition against conscription. A solid organization will allow of the gathering in a few days of all the names of those opposed to the adoption of this measure. I venture to beg all those who have confidence in us to stay peacefully at home and to wait until the petition forms are brought to them. This method is infinitely more efficacious than street manifestation. Such meetings are far less expressive of public opinion than a general petition, and they offer all possible opportunity for excesses of language, provocation and rioting.

"There are amongst and around us 'Agents Provateurs,' who are only looking for a chance to put French-Canadians in the worst possible position in the eyes of the rest of the country and the Empire — that of rebels, disloyal to the crown and disobedient to the laws of the country. A servile and subsidized press applies itself without respite to the task of painting us under the worst colours. If among ten thousand demonstrators, who give way to excess of language or acts of violence, the attitude of this infinite minority will be presented everywhere as that of the populace in general."

U. S. Part In The War

Will Soon Have 100,000 Overseas Says Official London Statement

LONDON, May 28. — An official statement issued by the British War Office to-day, with the object of showing America's complete participation in the war and its ability to give immediate powerful aid, refers to the draft bill which will give an army of 2,000,000 men, and says there are prospects of the greatest success for the loan, of which $750,000,000 already has been advanced to the Entente Allies. The statement declares that flotillas of destroyers are co-operating with the Entente allies in the submarine zone, that one army division, a force of marines and nine regiments of engineers have been ordered to France, and that 10,000 doctors and many nurses have been ordered to England, hundreds of these having already arrived.

Total of 100,000.

"Together with the Americans already serving in the British and French armies," the announcement says, "these additional units will shortly give a total of 100,000 Americans in France, equalling five German divisions."

Details are given of the increase in the national guard, and the regular army and the doubling of the navy personnel, the statement then saying: "Forty thousand young Americans of the best type are now assembled in sixteen camps to receive intensive training, with a view to becoming officers in the new army."

Railways and Aviators.

An announcement says the conferences with the Anglo-French commissions have been completed and that comprehensive plans have been made for industrial mobilization, including the construction of thousands of miles of railway. The statement adds: "Arrangements have been made for the construction of 3,500 airplanes and the training of 6,000 aviators this year."

The announcement concludes with a reference to industrial firms offering to do war work and the inventory of the national resources which have been placed at the disposal of the United States and her allies.

Boer Leaders Aid Premier

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, May 29. — Carson and Redmond are both aiding the Premier in connection with the Irish settlement.

C. P. R. Footbridge Is Nearing Completion

The C.P.R. foot bridge is nearing completion. The steel girders which form its supports are all in place, and at the eastern end the planks have been laid, and the guard rail erected. As the bridge materialises its advantages become more apparent. The walk, which the city has yet to lay from George street to the first span, will be continued across the river to the eastern side, where already a suitable and stout approach has been built. When the work is completed, it will undoubtedly provide the required facility for communication between the south end of the city and Ashburnham.

Forester McGill Home From Service in Old Land Woods

Private Thos. McGill, of Winnipeg, who went overseas with a forestry battalion, is visiting his brother, Mr. Benj. McGill at the Customs House. The foresters with whom he enlisted spent part of their time in Scotland, where in one stretch they cut down one hundred and nineteen acres of woods. Beech trees four feet in diameter were common in that forest, and there were many other grand specimens. Pte. McGill himself measured one twelve feet across the diameter of its stump. It was said that the most of this woods was of forty years' growth. After other work in the Old Country, the battalion went to France and was engaged there, even within range of the enemy's big guns. One day seventeen of the men were killed.

TEMPORARY QUARTERS IN ROYAL BANK BLDG.

The J. M. Gemmell & Co., whitewear manufacturers, have leased 3,000 square feet of the top floor of the Royal Bank building, into which they began moving to-day. It is understood that this is only a temporary occupation until the Charlotte street factory, recently damaged by fire, is repaired.

PROHIBITION AND THE PENITENTIARY.

KINGSTON, May 28.—There are 392 convicts at the Penitentiary, the lowest number registered in the last forty years. For many years there have been over 500 in the "pen," and at times the population has reached the 600 mark. It is stated that prohibition is largely responsible for the great falling off.

All the Wards Have Organized for By-law

Centre Ward ratepayers made their arrangements last night for Thursday's vote on the Bridge by-law. This completes the organization of the city and from all accounts the men who volunteered to call upon the individual electors have been faithful to their undertaking. Reports indicate practically no opposition to the by-law, which is likely to be carried by the overwhelming majority expected.

BAN PUBLIC MEETINGS.

KITCHENER, Ont., May 28.—Mayor Gross intimated this afternoon that he would issue an order forbidding the holding of open air public meetings without a permit from the chief of police. This step has been taken to avoid future disturbances similar to that which occurred on Saturday night.

American Battle Fleet Is Off Atlantic Coast Ready To "Do its Bit"

Men on Ships Mobilized in American Waters Are Eager to Get Right Into the Fight — Discipline Is Perfect Among Happy Citizens — Many at Sea for the First Time — Nearly Forty Thousand "Rookies" Absorbed by Battleships During the Last Few Weeks

(By Herbert Corey.)

That is where the battleship fleet is to-day—in sheltered waters. Three thousand miles separate it from the true zone of war, but the conditions imposed by our belligerent state are being strictly observed. Lights go out at 10 o'clock every night. No boat may pass through these waters that is not known to the officers on watch Hydroaeroplanes purr overhead by day and "swatters"—the small craft our British brethren dub torpedo chasers—swarm through the waters by night. Nor are these needless precautions. Germany may not have learned by her Zeppelin experience in England that the Anglo-Saxon blood fights best after it has been well stirred. A torpedo attack is not an impossibility.

"What is our navy doing?" Senator Poindexter asked the other day. "Getting ready for the fighting to come," is the answer.

For the first time since the United States declared war a party of correspondents was permitted to visit the fleet this week. Four of the six had seen something of service abroad and to them the experience was an illuminating one. They were enabled to realise the size of the job on which the navy has entered and to appreciate the magnificent spirit in which that job is being tackled. It should be possible to make something of this plain without violating the entirely proper rules of censorship. Enough has already been published to make clear to the enemy in gross, if not in detail, what the American navy is doing.

NEW MEN BY THE THOUSAND

This is the way the job sizes up:

The navy has been called on to assimilate 36,000 new men. The day that war was declared the enlisted strength of the navy was 61,881 men.

Therefore, two-fifths of to-day's total are men who are new to the sea. Some of them belong to the reserves, it is true, and a few others had seen service. But for the most part they are right from the middle west, where ships only exist in pictures.

At the same time a certain proportion of the officers and skilled men of the navy have been detached to furnish gun crews to protect merchant vessels against submarine attacks. No secret is being revealed here, for the fact has been widely published. It is obvious that this compelled dispersion of the before-the-war personnel has operated as a handicap in the process of intensive training to-day.

Coincidentally, the navy is required to put its ships in preparation for immediate action. It is true that immediate action may not be required. Nevertheless the preparation is a necessary one. No ship cleaning was required. There has been no minute in years past that the American navy has not been fit to go into action at a minute's notice. But when that notice is an extended one there are always things to do in every navy. Even more than is the case with woman, the seaman's work is never done. The work of putting stores on board may be dismissed with a line.

A certain confusion exists in the public mind as to the relative strength of the American navy to-day because of recent publications and because of the widespread appreciation of the fact that Congress has systematically starved this branch of the service. Before the war we believed the American navy to be no worse than third in the world rank. To-day no comparative figures are available, but the average man probably believes that, ship for ship, we are outclassed.

AMERICAN SHIPS SLOWER

"The Blucher was sunk because she was too slow," is a statement one often hears. "Yet the Blucher was faster than any ship in the American Navy."

In opposition to this pessimistic view the statement may be confidently made that the American battleship fleet is the equal, ship for ship, of any fleet in the world to-day. The lesser and older vessels are "clucks" perhaps. So are the lesser and older vessels of any navy to-day. They are quite on a par, vessel for vessel, with any other nation's elder ships. They will be quite as useful. Naval war has already shown that these old ones have their parts to play. As for the dreadnoughts:

They are slower than some British and German ships of the same class, and they carry fourteen-inch guns against some sixteen-inch guns. In spite of the recently expressed criticisms, naval men do not concede that this means they are in the least inferior. Our ships are slower because any war in which we might be engaged would necessarily force a wide radius of action upon us. That means coal and oil carrying capacity. That in turn means a sacrifice of speed. British and German battleships, built for fighting in narrow waters, have been given great speed. On the wide sea excessive pace is not an overwhelming advantage. Seakeeping qualities are more essential than dash in manoeuvring.

The superiority of the sixteen-inch gun to the fourteen-inch gun is not yet demonstrated. The larger gun can hit a heavier blow, it is true, but the smaller one can strike its blow more rapidly. There is no effective difference in range. Either can throw a projectile farther than the enemy can be seen. American naval men believe that the comparatively slight difference in weight of the increased rapidity of fire.

TRAINED MEN AT GUNS

In spite of the enforced detailing of trained gun crews to merchant vessels, the battleship fleet has not suffered. Every gun is manned by top-notch men. In the past a plan has been pursued of duplicating men for each important gun position, and only the duplicates have been sent to the merchantmen. New men are being trained to take their places. Men who had not previously been members of gun crews have been sent to the cargo carriers on their showing of ability. All this means hard and constant work, in place of the before-the-war routine of putting the gun crews through their daily paces. But it does not mean any lessening in battle strength of the big fleet.

The recruits have been assimilated with astonishing rapidity. In part this is due to their high average of intelligence. "They are the real aristocrats of the masses," is the way one high officer described them. There is not an illiterate in the fleet. Perhaps a majority came from occupations that demanded a certain amount of thought. They are mechanics or tradesmen or clerks or belong to the keen and alert farming communities of the west. The pick-and-shovel hands are in a negligible minority. Then, too, they have the enthusiasm of youth. They go at the new job as though it was a game. All day long they work with the guns or at the drill, even when they might be sprawled on the deck in the sunshine during their watch below.

We came to the fleet with the "big train." Mystery had enveloped us. We were to go to a certain place, where a naval tug would meet us. We must not tell any one what we were going for or where we were going. It came as something of a shock when the clerk evinced an intelligent appreciation of our errand when we bought tickets. He was an inquiring and alert clerk and recognized certain of our party as newspaper men.

"Ah," said the ticket clerk, "down to see the fleet, hey?"

Later we found that the knowledge of the whereabouts of the fleet is a secret shared by a countryside. Nevertheless, it is a secret worth keeping. From time to time the fleet moves, and so long as there is no publication of its whereabouts the work of the espion is made the more difficult. That there are spies no one will doubt after the experience of the last few years. Later we found that orders were rarely given for more than twelve hours ahead. Shore leave for more than a day is a thing of the past. Yesterday the fleet steamed out of its shelter and returned at night. To-morrow it might steam away in precisely the same unemotional way and never come back.

The "big train" is the fleet tender that purveys newspapers and mails and chaplains to the vessels, so its captain said, at all events. The three items of cargo were in evidence. The chaplain said his church was the principal one in his town and wanted to know my name and what religion I professed, if any. Later the "big train" began to toss about a bit, on waves that sneaked up through the gray haze, and the chaplain's activities underwent a sea change. He said he wasn't afraid of being sick. He merely didn't like it. The mate told the captain that he proposed to splice a "Mathew Walker" on a certain wire rope that functioned on the rudder.

"Why," said the captain, "don't you use a Rose and a Crown"

There was comfort in these words. I had been listening to the pilot con the tender through the fog, and when he wanted to luff he said "left" and when he wanted to go to starboard he said "right." Always the quartermaster at the wheel repeated the words after him. One remembers the hullaballoo that was raised when port and starboard gave way to left and right in the navy regulations. One would have thought the navy was being ruined. The orlop deck has likewise disappeared—it is now only the "third platform," I believe—but that made no commotion whatever. Likewise Jimmy Legs has unobtrusively become a memory only. Mathew Walker and the Rose and Crown helped to shore up a certain uncertainty. After all, there were some things in the navy that were not new fangled.

We passed into sheltered waters. There were "sub-swatters," buzzing themselves through the water, oily under the lifting mist. Some elder vessels with histories, now only handmaidens of the big fleet, came into sight. A motor cutter appeared from nowhere, with an air of dashing impertinence, and bags of mail were tossed on board. She was being handled by mere boys. Later the flagship's boat came for us, with more boys in charge. Eventually one became accustomed to the youth of the American seaman. The British tar is a thick-bodied person, who enlists for twelve years and then re-enlists. The French bluejacket is addicted to whiskers. It was not until one disregarded the air of competence maturity those youngsters wear that one became quite reconciled to their lack of years. They are up to their jobs.

"There isn't a sailor in the world who thinks as fast as they do," said a gray-haired officer.

OFFICERS ARE SOBER MEN

We took lunch with the admirals. On the other side of the water wine is served as a matter of course when one lunches with admirals. Wine is not served at all—nor any other intoxicating drink—in the American navy nowadays. One also remembers that this change furnished the text for humorous editorial sermons when it was made. Later we took many luncheons and many dinners with officers of other ships and made discreet enquiry as to the naval attitude toward drought. Another surprise was registered. American officers for the most part said they would not have liquor back if they could.

This was a genuine surprise, because wine was a part of naval form and ceremony in the old days. American naval men as a class never abused liquor, but there were certain time-honoured toasts that were always offered just as on sailing days no one ever took a drink. I had anticipated a certain resentment of the sumptuary regulation, but if it exists it was not made known. On the contrary, officers said in a matter-of-fact way that was convincing of their sincerity that if they could restore drink to its former place on the mess table they would not do so. Some mildly regretted the absence of beer and light wines. No one had a good word for hard liquor.

"You will hear lots of shop talk," said an admiral as we left for the battleships on which we were to be quartered during our stay with the fleet.

It was precisely what we wanted to hear. More than any other class of men perhaps, naval officers live "shop." They are at it all the time, perpetually alert, continuously interested, with an inspiring effect of enthusiasm. War means promotion, of course, and all want promotion, but the shop talk we heard was not inspired by any selfish desire for individual gain. The attitude was more what one might find in a convention of football coaches, with the element of rivalry eliminated. High speed efficiency was being applied to the greatest "game" of all.

"I tried that gadgett of yours," said one to another at mess last night. "It's a great scheme. Much obliged for putting me on."

So they passed the "gadgett" around the table. A "gadgett" in naval talk is what a "jigger" is anywhere else. This particular gadgett had to do with the management of men in a gun crew. It is too technical to be described here, but the essence of it is that by putting Seaman Jones in a certain position, and establishing his feet in certain places, and teaching him to pick up the shell or powder bag or whatever it is he handles in a certain way, he can pass it on to Seaman Smith as infinitesimal fraction of a second faster than when the preceding gadgett was in operation. Those fractions gained bring more joy to the turret captain's heart than if a sinner had repented. I was in a three-gun turret one day when two-fifths of a second was clipped off the best previous record for loading a fourteen inch rifle. The whole crew glowed. Even the crews of the guns that did not share the new honour snapped the winners on the back. Again the football simile occurs. It was as though the men of the second eleven were congratulating the big team on a shut-out.

"Number three gun was slow to-day," said the captain of the winning gun.

I nodded. There didn't seem to be much to say. It seemed as though he were unworthily rejoicing over the other man's defeat. But he was not.

"He's as good as we are," said the gun captain. "Only he sprained his wrist yesterday. He's got a rag around it now.

Labour Is Hostile To Conscription

Anti-Conscription Leagues Are Springing Up All Over the Country

OTTAWA, May 28.—While the labour leaders now in Ontario are content to remain in an attitude of "watchful waiting" Win the interests of the organized workers throughout the Dominion, on whose behalf they recorded a strong protest against the selective conscription measure, there is plenty of activity, for scores of messages are coming in from unions in all parts of the country endorsing the stand taken by the executive council of the Trades and Labour Congress of Canada and containing local resolutions of strong protest against the compulsory service bill.

On Friday a big convention of labour men, representing eighty international unions will convene in Ottawa to discuss all war measures which the Government has announced or which they have in view.

Comrade Simpson Reports.

James Simpson, vice-president of the Labour Congress, arrived from Toronto to-day and stated that a meeting of 1,200 persons in the Queen City last night unanimously adopted a resolution against conscription. He said the miners of the north country, Cobalt, Porcupine, Kirkland Lake, and Gowganda have passed resolutions against the measure and forwarded copies to labour headquarters. Anti-conscription leagues are springing up all over the country and meetings of protest are being organized.

Word From Winnipeg.

R. A. Rigg, M. P. P., of Winnipeg, one of the vice-presidents of the Congress, has wired that meetings of protest are being organized in Winnipeg.

There is nothing dearer to a man than a good wife—with the possible exception of her shopping expeditions.

SYNOPSIS

OF A PROPOSED BY-LAW ENTITLED

"A BY-LAW TO AUTHORIZE THE BORROWING OF $280,000 BY THE ISSUE OF DEBENTURES TO CONSTRUCT A HIGH-LEVEL BRIDGE OVER THE OTONABEE RIVER AT HUNTER STREET AND A BRIDGE ACROSS THE OTONABEE RIVER AT OR NEAR LONDON STREET TO AT OR NEAR HAZLETT STREET."

THE purpose of the proposed By-Law is to enable the Council of the City of Peterborough to construct a high-level bridge over the River Otonabee, for vehicular, foot and street railway traffic, on Hunter Street, from at or near the intersection of Sheridan and Hunter Streets, to at or near the intersection of Burnham and Hunter Streets, at the estimated cost of $260,000.00, and also to construct a bridge for vehicular and foot traffic from at or near London Street across the River Otonabee, to at or near Hazlett Street, at an estimated cost of $20,000.

THE amount required and authorized to be raised by the proposed By-Law is the sum of $280,000.00, of which the sum of $260,000.00 is for the purpose of the high-level bridge and the sum of $20,000.00 is for the purpose of the bridge from London Street to Hazlett Street.

THE Debentures to be issued to raise the said sums are to be payable within twenty years from the date of their issue.

THE amount to be raised annually for the payment of the debt created for the purpose of the construction of the high-level bridge is the sum of $23,031.36, of which $14,300.00 is for the interest and $8,731.36 is to form a sinking fund for the payment of the debentures at their maturity, and the amount to be raised annually for the payment of the debt created for the construction of the bridge between London Street and Hazlett Street, is the sum of $1,771.64, of which $1,100.00 is for the interest and $671.64 is to form a sinking fund for the payment of the debentures at their maturity.

NOTICE.

JAP FORCES TO RUSSIA?

Washington Hears They Will Be Sent To Participate in War.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Despatch of Japanese troops in large force, to the Russian front, is "apparently the next move in the world war," it was authoritatively predicted to the United Press to-day.

It was stated that "since little is known of the real status of Russian affairs, one fact stands uppermost that Japanese armies must aid in maintaining the Russian battle lines as the only course to keep the Teutons ultimately out of China."

It was explained that while Japan's soldiers are conscripted for the primary object of defence, public sentiment in the Empire would sanction sending troops to distant foreign service in such a case—the object being "to thwart ultimate invasion of China and the Orient.

More women would be interested in the suffrage movement if it was something that could be decorated with ribbons and hung up over the mantel.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

Many Noted Athletes Killed And Wounded

LONDON, May 29.— The names of several famous British sportsmen appear in the latest casualty list issued, which, however, shows an appreciable falling off among those killed and wounded in action. Capt. F. H. Scott, the famous Oxford cricket and Rugby football "Blue," has been wounded. He played against Cambridge in 1912-13-14, being captain in the latter year, and also appeared in the Kent County teams. At football he represented his University in 1910-11-12-13, in addition to playing for the famous Blackheath Club, and in the English International Trial Games. Lieut. A. L. Wade, killed, is the well known Scottish International Rugby footballer. He was captain of the Dulwich College fifteen, and afterwards played for the London Scottish, and in 1908 was picked for the Scottish team against England in the international game.

Lieut. T. K. Vile, the well known sportsman and Welsh international half-back, has been wounded, while T. Galder, the jockey, is in hospital at Havre recovering from wounds received in action. Lieut. R. H. W. Brigley Richards, killed, was a splendid cross-country runner at Canterbury, and a member of the Oxford University Hare and Hounds, and Thames H. and H. Major A. N. S. Jackson, wounded, is the famous Oxford miler, and winner of the 1,500 metres at the Olympic Games at Stockholm in 1912.

A fine all-round athlete has been killed in Major A. M. Jackson. At football he played back for the Royal Military Academy against Sandhurst in 1911-12, and represented Sandhurst in 1911-12, and represented Woolwich in the hurles at the sports. Played at back in the Royal Engineers Kent Cup team in 1913 and 1914, and for the Army against the Navy in the latter year, and also rowed in the Engineers' eight at Henley Regatta. Lieut. R. E. H. Healey, killed, is the well-known oarsman, and member of the London Rowing Club. He rowed in the club eight in the Grand, at Henley.

Lieut. G. H. Alexander, the famous amateur foils champion in 1913, has also made the big sacrifice. Capt. G. D. Mills, the well known polo player, and member of the team which won the Rhodes Cup at Johannesburg in 1914, has been wounded. Lieut. H. W. Taylor, the South African Rugby footballer and international cricketer, has been awarded the Military Cross for distinguished services in the field. Arthur G. Gray, who has died of wounds, received on the Somme, was formerly professional of the Port Elizabeth Golf Club, and was also open champion of South Africa. Lieut. R. K. Holt, the well-known amateur boxer of Dulwich College, who competed in the Public Schools' welters in 1914, has been wounded.

WELSH DETHRONED BY BENNY LEONARD

World's Champion Knocked Out in Ninth Round at New York.

Youth Was Served

NEW YORK, May 28.—Benny Leonard won the world's lightweight championship by knocking out Freddie Welsh in the ninth round of a ten-round match here to-night.

Welsh's downfall came at the end of a series of rushes by Leonard that drove him from corner to corner. The champion had taken a severe beating during the early rounds and the punishment had begun to tell when the gong for the ninth round sounded.

Leonard, fresh as the moment he had entered the ring, jumped from his corner and met the champion as he was leaving his corner with a shower of lefts and rights to the face and head.

Welsh, vainly trying to ward off the blows, worked his way into Leonard's corner, where Leonard succeeded in reaching him with a smashing right to the jaw. Welsh fell on one knee and hugged the ropes. His strength gone, Welsh strove weakly to strike a fighting pose. As he left the ropes Leonard landed and Welsh hit the floor. He struggled to his feet twice more, but each time he was met by Leonard's rights to the face and head and again he fell to the floor.

The champion took the count of nine before he arose from the last knockdown. He tried to stand, but fell across the ropes.

Carried Welsh to His Corner.

It was only a question of moments when he would have fallen and been counted out. At this point Referee McPartland leaped between the two men and, pushing Leonard away, carried the defeated champion to his corner.

A score of men occupying ringside seats jumped into the ring, and, lifting the new champion to their shoulders, carried him in triumphal procession around the hall.

While the crowd was cheering itself hoarse Welsh sat in a daze in his corner. When he had recovered somewhat and was told by his handlers of his defeat he refused to believe them, and fought fiercely to return to the centre of the ring.

It was Leonard's fight throughout. He took the offensive in the first round and held it until the end. There was never a moment that he was in danger, and although the champion fought valiantly and succeeded in landing many blows, they appeared to have little effect. Welsh seemed to have lost his judgment of distance, for he missed repeatedly.

From the first gong Leonard tore into the champion with ruthless persistency. He rained lefts and rights to the face and head at will. Welsh, at first disconcerted by his opponent's tactics, seemed worried when the round ended. In all of the succeeding rounds Leonard concentrated his efforts on Welsh's body, and succeeded in whipping his right repeatedly to the champion's stomach. It was this blow, persistently used, that wore the champion down.

Freddy Welsh won the world's lightweight championship by receiving the referee's decision after outboxing Willie Ritchie, the American title-holder, in a twenty-round bout in London, July 7, 1914. Previous to to-night's contest, Leonard and Welsh met twice in no-decision ten-round bouts.

Leonard was born in New York City in 1896. His recent knock-out of Ritchie Mitchell, of Milwaukee, caused him to be regarded as a contender for the world's title. Leonard, the new world's champion lightweight, will not "wait for conscription," but will enlist in the United States army after a six-round bout in Philadelphia next Monday night, his manager, Billy Gibson, announced after the fight.

Result of Junior Baseball Game

At a junior baseball game yesterday afternoon on the Queen Mary grounds, the Queen Mary nine defeated the King Edward team by a score of 8 to 3. Batteries:

King Edward—Manley, Moore and Rye.

Queen Mary—Turner, Dorner and Davis.

Ref. Huff umpired the game to the satisfaction of all present.

separate peace by Russia would do much to threaten the integrity of China. He said it would extend the Prussian sphere of influence in a more threatening form over China than was the case when Germany held Kiao Chou, "the last vestige of European aggression in China, begun in 1895."

PEACE OF ASIA WOULD CRUMBLE.

He declared that under such "Prussian influence the peace of Asia would crumble.

"The Japanese believe that unless the military organization of China is built up by the Chinese through friendly counsel, ultimately it will be controlled by some powerful European nation," he said. "This danger was apparent to me prior to the out break of the European war, when German officers in ever increasing numbers were being employed in the Chinese army.

"I cannot declare too emphatically that the solicitude with which Japan regards the development in China is no more than that which the United States has with regard to her neighbours on this continent. Conditions in these republics which would inevitably lead to foreign complications as comparable to a burning house next door.' Japan so regards similar conditions in China.

Japan's duty there is to act as a stabilizing influence. That is what she always has tried to do. It has been a policy that insured the 'open door.'"

"CAN NEVER FORGIVE GERMANY.

Dr. Iyenaga declared that Japan's policy in that regard had been met by hostility and secret intriguing on the part of Germany many times. He reviewed the secret diplomacy of the Berlin government during the Shimonoseki conference, and asserted that "Germany's express purpose was to rob Japan of the best fruits of her victory over China by forcing upon her the retrocession of the Liao-Tung Peninsula." He quoted Count Ito that "Germany we can never forgive!" He characterized the German action in that regard as "a stab in the back." He declared that the form of government which China or Russia may have is something with which Japan is not concerned.

Discussing Japanese participation in the war on European battlefields, Dr. Iyenaga said: "The physical difficulties in sending Japanese troops to Europe are almost insurmountable.

Japan has never refused to send soldiers to Europe, but the consensus has been that Japan's battle against Prussianism could best be carried on in the Pacific," he said. "The situation in China has made it imperative that Japan should at all times be prepared.

"Since the outbreak of the European war Japan has been co-operating with England, her ally, to root out German imperialism in the Far East, in order to place on a safer and more solid foundation the principles for which England, America and Japan have so long contended —to make a lasting peace in the Orient.

CANNOT HIRE JAPAN'S ARMY.

"Japanese soldiers cannot be hired for money. They are enlisted for the defence of their country and they are so trained. If they were used to go to Europe as mercenaries they would never go. If we send our troops there we must have some quid pro quo. I do not know if, in the last resort, the United States may require something of that sort, but we are frank to say that we are not going to send our troops there without some understanding of quid pro quo. We are not going to be hired as mercenaries."

Dr. Iyenaga reviewed the difficulties of transporting forces over the Trans-Siberian Railroad to take an active part in the war. He repeated his assertion that Japan can best serve the cause for which civilization is fighting by acting as an effective barrier against possible Prussian blows aimed at Asia and by continuing her work of sending vast army supplies and guns across the line of the Trans-Siberian road "to aid Russia in battling against the Hun."

"That has been our chief function," he told me. "It was because Japan provided him with immense quantities of guns and supplies that General Brusiloff was able to carry on his great offensive in Galicia. We have turned Japan into an immense arsenal, an dall the way from Vladivostok to Riga we have kept up a steady stream of guns and ammunition for our allies."

RAILROADS FOR WAR SUPPLIES.

Dr. Iyenaga said great stretches of the Trans-Siberian Railroad were double-tracked before the beginning of hostilities. "The railroad system is being used chiefly for the transportation of war supplies for Russia," he added.

Transcended by the unparalleled importance of developments on European battlefields, the news of Japan's part in the war has seemed insignificant. Mr. Iyenaga said. "Viewed in the light of history it has been important," he declared. "The ousting of Germany from Kiao-Chou and them from all the Pacific was not easy. Japan has kept the channel of communications between Europe and the Far East open. Had Japan not done this important units of the allied fleets would have had to be detached from service in European waters and sent into the Pacific. Germany, with her strong base at Kiao-Chou and the hinterland at her command, would have played a formidable role in disturbing the peace of the Far East, to the great detriment of England, France and Russia. It is not unreasonable to say that German propaganda, once so active in stirring up rebolt in India and the Straits Settlements, would have had at least some measure of success to the prejudice of British interests in Asia."

FINANCIAL AID TO ALLIES

Dr. Iyenaga told of how Japan has been able to render some financial aid to the Entente Powers and said that "whatever it is within the power of Japan to do for her allies she will do."

"Japan's foremost ambition to-day is to become a great commercial nation, like the United States and Great Britain," he continued. "China offers a vast market for Japanese goods. There is no covetousness on the part of Japan for Chinese territory but we do want as much of China's trade as we can get. We do not propose to make China a dumping ground for our surplus population. For this we will utilise the territories now under our control—Hokkaido, Corea, Formosa and Southern Manchuria. They are capable of supporting a much larger population than can come from Japanese there for many years."

Dr. Iyenaga told me he believed he expressed his opinion of the thinking men of Japan when he said that a lasting peace cannot be had until Prussianism is crushed.

BASIS FOR DOMINATION OF ASIA.

Germany has declared that she has achieved the object of her war," he said. "With Serbia crushed, Montenegro overrun, Roumania conquered, Turkey and Bulgaria vassals of Germany, and Austro-Hungary bound hand and foot to her heels, the programme Germany formulated when she set Europe aflame is measurably complete," he said. "If peace were concluded on such a basis Germany would hold in her palm all Southwestern Europe and she could easily embark upon the next step of dominating Asia. She would be in an excellent position to strike Egypt, break the barrier between Turkey and Persia and lead her legions to the Valley of the Indus. Then, sooner or later, would come the turn of Japan to receive punishment for her audacity in unsheathing the sword against the greatest military power of Europe. Thus we would see in a more terrible form than before the resurrection of the 'mailed fist' policy in China, which once gave Kiao-Chou and its hinterland to Germany. Nothing then—I doubt even the resources of the United States—could prevent a hegemony over the world secure in the grasp of Germany.

"If German militarism comes out victorious, peace dictated by it cannot but be temporary. If the cause of justice and liberty be fully vindicated, the bitter experiences and untold miseries the war has inflicted upon the world should teach the people that the evil doctrine of 'might over right' must forever be discarded and some method devised to insure the stability of peace and to safeguard the interests of humanity."

BASEBALL

ROYALS' POOR FIELDING GAVE GAME TO BISONS

MONTREAL, May 28.—The Bisons took the final game of the series here to-day by the score of 6 to 3. Poor fielding by the locals behind Duffey was responsible for the final three runs made by Buffalo.

With the bases full in the seventh, Channell popped up an infield fly, but Damrau failed to catch it and threw to the plate too late to get Onslow. Madden then overthrew third trying to catch Engel and the pitcher tallied. Kopp following suit on the play. Damrau got three hits, including a triple and a double which helped to keep Montreal in the game till the blow-up came. Score. R.H.E.

Montreal .. .. 102000000—3 7 5

Batteries—Engel and Onslow; Duffey and Madden.

MAJORS ALL POSTPONED.

CHICAGO, May 28.—Not a major league baseball game was played to-day. Four contests in the National League were called off because of rain, and in the American League rain also prevented the only scheduled game between Philadelphia and New York. It was the first time in several years that the majors faced a similar situation. Most of the clubs will play double-headers to-morrow.

From a box office point of view the first home series of the Leafs has been anything but a profitable one to the Toronto Ball Club. Cold weather, coupled with rain, the loss of one Saturday, the Victoria Day morning, and sundry other afternoons, has made a big dent in the coffers of the local club. The club has, despite this, rounded out one of the best ball teams that ever wore a Toronto uniform, and is ready for the big drive once Old Sol gives the command. The Leafs at present have six postponed games at home, and one away, but some of the other clubs, more especially in the majors, are even worse. Take the Braves, who will be here Thursday to meet the St. Louis Browns. According to Secretary Edwin L. Riley of the Boston Club, who arrived here last night, to look after the exhibition, the Braves have fifteen postponed games this season, with ten of them athome, and to-morrow is their last chance to get in a home game at home this year. It is no wonder the magnates are saying every cloud has a cloudburst.

It would not be surprising if this is the final year for some of the cities in the major leagues. Last season the conditions were bad enough in Brooklyn and Washington, and according to all reports they are even worse this season. Perhaps Washington holds the record for the smallest attendance in the majors, as in one game at home last year they played to only 264 people. First in peace and last in the American League has always applied to Washington, but if they ever lose Walter Johnson they will be out of baseball altogether.

GERMAN SUBS MENACE IRISH.

Threaten to Shell Coast Towns—Result Has Been to Change Irish Viewpoint.

LONDON, May 28.— According to stories printed in the morning papers there has been a complete revulsion of feeling toward the war in the south and southwest of Ireland as a consequence of recent attacks by German submarines on Irish fishing fleets.

A number of fishing boats have been sunk and the victims of one attack off Baltimore say that the Germans told them that they had already sunk the Kinsale and Waterford fleets, and would soon put all Irish fishing boats to the bottom of the sea because they sent fish to England. They also threatened to shell villages on the coast.

"SEND ROOSEVELT!" CLEMENCEAU PLEA TO THE PRESIDENT

His Name Has A Legendary Power in France, Editor Declares — "Enormous Error To Neglect Force

PARIS, May 30.—Georges Clemenceau, formerly Premier, in an open letter to President Wilson, printed in his newspaper, L'Homme Enchaine, appeals to the President to send over Colonel Roosevelt and "his companions." Mr. Clemenceau says:

'In invaded France at the present hour there is a name which represents, by I know not what force of intuition, the beauty of America's intervention—it is that of Roosevelt. You are too much a philosopher not to know that great popular leaders have influenced men of all proportion to their own real value, by the intangible atmosphere of legend which, with or without their assistance, has formed around them.

"Whatever may be the reasons, and without attempting to analyze the phenomenon, I yield to the imperious need to tell you that the name of Roosevelt has in our country at this time a legendary power. It would be an enormous error, in my view, to neglect a force which everything urges us to make use of as soon as possible.

"We have learned that the first American unit has arrived at the front and with what zest generals and privates saluted the noble starred banner. However, you should know, Mr. President, that more than one stout chevronned poilu said to his comrade in an astonished voice: 'But where is Roosevelt? I don't see him.'"

Nine Indictments Follow First Move To Forestall Moves Against Registration

Federal Grand Juries Act Quickly — Special Agents of the Department of Justice Trace Oath-Bound Organization In Virginia Mountains and Capture Alleged Leaders — Steps Are Taken To Cope With Disloyal Activities in Central West

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 30.—The purpose of the government to deal summarily with persons attempting to hinder registration under the Selective Draft law was reflected in the announcement that eleven arrests had already been made and nine indictments returned by federal grand juries against persons participating in that form of propaganda.

Two of the men were members of an organization in the mountain districts of Virginia which was to be equipped with arms to resist registration officers. The other arrests were made in Texas, where a secret society, ostensibly organized for co-operative buying, under strong German influence directed its efforts to the purchase of high powered rifles to intimidate persons subject to registration. Similar undertakings in one or two Central Western cities are under surveillance.

Severe penalties will be imposed not only for attempting to induce others not to register but for failure of any person to register who is subject to the law. Brigadier General E. H. Crowder, Provost Marshal General, called attention in a formal announcement to the fact that the penalty for failure to register is a year's imprisonment. The announcement follows:

"Failure to register on June 5th renders one liable to a year's imprisonment. The fact that one is not entitled to vote does not excuse him from registration.

"White and coloured between the ages of twenty-one and thirty, both inclusive, must register on June 5."

Announcement was made at the Department of Justice that there are to be no half-way measures in dealing with persons who maliciously or otherwise counsel resistance to registration. It is using all the agencies under its direction in the enforcement of the law and enlisting the aid of State and municipal police authorities to that end.

Concerning the arrests that have already been made the Attorney-General Mr. Gregory, said:

"These arrests should be accepted by the country generally as a warning against interfering with the enforcement of the provisions of the new army law; they merely demonstrate what the Department of Justice purposes to do in every case where attempts are made to hinder or discourage registration.

"There have been a few reported instances of threats to interfere with the execution of this law. Wherever they come to the attention of official of the department arrest will be made, and the offenders will be arraigned before United States commissioners for commitment to await indictment by grand juries.

"There are indications that attempts will be made in one or two of the Central Western cities to make registration ineffective. The department is prepared to care for such emergencies. Its agents will be instructed to see that registration officers perform their duties properly and that they are not interfered with in the performance of their duties.

COPY OF THE OATH.

ROANOKE, Va., May 30.—Special Investigators o fthe Department of Justice declare that they have run down a most astonishing plot against the sovereignity of the United States organized with apparent thoroughness among the mountaineers of the border counties of Virginia and Kentucky. As a result, William V. McCoy, related to the family with the Hatfields in the nearby mountains of West Virginia, forms an interesting chapter in the history of this country, and his lieutenant, J. W. Phipps, both of St. Paul, Wise County, Va., are in the Roanoke jail, carefully guarded.

Special officers are busy in the mountain around St. Paul, close on the trail of others declared to be implicated in the alleged plot, which, according to officers who have been engaged in tracing it down, is one of the most startling the Department of Justice has faced for many years, involving disloyalty to the United States, murder and destruction and confiscation of property of promin-

Tell of Two Hundred in Plot.

Mountaineers of the border counties and, it is said, of many other mountain sections of this and nearby States, look upon the recently-passed selective draft act with a great deal of resentment. Officers of the Department of Justice here declare that under the leadership of McCop and Phipps more than two hundred men are banded together determined to resist the draft registration, and that the first effort to draft any of them into army service would be the signal for a violent outbreak against organized authority.

The organization, it is declared, was directed not only against the draft measure, but against the wealthy land owners and revenue agents. The men had signed a solemn oath, patterned closely after that of Quantrell's guerillas, of which Jesse James and Frank James were members in the early eighties. A copy of the oath is in the hands of the officers, alleged to be in McCoy's handwriting, in which they bind themselves to gather under pain of "the separation of my head and my body" to "exterminate our enemies and the big freeholders."

Issue "War Declaration"

A "declaration of war," a copy of which is also in the hands of the agents, had been adopted, which sets forth the determination of the band to wage relentless war against the land owners and the revenue agents, though nothing is said in either document against the selective draft measure.

The first information concerning the plot came through military forces in Southwest Virginia. Colonel E. F. Leedy, of the Second Virginia regiment National Guard, transmitted the information. Persons who said they had been approached by McCoy to join in the plot reported the matter secretly to the military authorities.

The matter reached a climax on Friday night of last week, when a large explosive magazine by the Dupont company at Norton, Va., from which dynamite was furnished for the many mining operations in that section, was entered and more than one thousand pounds of explosives stolen. Officials believe the theft will speedily be traced to persons connected with the plot.

Wheat Markets on Down Grade

Trading Is Very Limited — Cattle Market Quotations

Wheat markets continue on the down grade, both wheat and the coarse grains, corn and oats registering lower prices again yesterday in the speculative markets. Trading is very limited, and price movements now cover a smaller range. Prospects are for a much more favourable crop report on June 8 than was the report for last month. The damp and cooler weather has been very favourable to the plant growth.

CATTLE MARKET.

There was a light run of fresh stuff in yesterday and with practically nothing left over from Monday, it was but a short, active market. Prices were steady, the advance of 25c to 30c made Monday over last week being easily maintained. Several small lots again topped the market at around $13, but a good market average for the choicest beef cattle would be about $12 to $12.25. Fair to medium butcher, steady and in good demand, around $10.75 to $11.25.

Stockers and feeders, steady in a rather quiet market, the enquiry being none too keen.

Calf trade, active and strong up to $14, and anything extra choice to $14.50.

Hogs, steady at 50c decline this week to $16.50, fed and watered.

Blames Irish Here For Dublin Revolt

Father O'Loughran Says It Was by Men Too Far Away to Be Hurt By It—No Partial Home Rule Now

—Ireland will not accept partial home rule now, though she might have done so last year when this was suggested by Asquith and Lloyd George as a temporary solution, in the opinion of the Rev. Father Robert O'Loughran, a well known Irish priest, who is a friend of Redmond and Dillon and has lived for years in England. He has recently toured the greater part of the United States on a lecturing tour.

"Redmond was right to accept any solution at all last year," he said to a reporter yesterday. "All England was strongly stirred by the Irish rebellion; it came at a time when the British were very gloomy over their military reverses, and they felt that the Irish were playing them a very nasty trick, were striking them in the back. Mr. Redmond has told me himself that Asquith and Lloyd George assurred him at the time that the exclusion of the Ulster counties was only temporary, but later Lord Lansdowne's opposition to any sort of home rule forced him to abandon this position.

"For a few months after the rebellion Ireland was revolutionary, almost insane, and this was due chiefly to the madness of the British government in employing measures of great severity during and after the suppression of the rising. Redmond was in great disfavour then but I believe that now, as before the rising, 90 per cent. of sane Irishmen in Ireland, England, and America support him, and the Irish parliamentary party.

"The Dublin rebellion was no such thing as a pro-German move, not even anti-English. It was rather anti-Redmond. Many people, even those not connected with the Sinn Fein movement, felt that the older leaders of the Irish parliamentary party, were out of touch with young Ireland, but that of itself would not have been sufficient to stir up the trouble. The Sinn Feiners have talked so loudly that many in America have thought they were all Ireland, but they were not. Even most of those opposed to Redmon's recruiting policy thought it was not well to oppose him actively, since he may have had reasons for pursuing it which were not known generally. As a matter of fact it is fairly well known now that the Dublin revolt was hatched in America by men who were too far away to be hurt by it.

PLOTTING BY IRISH-AMERICANS.

"In about ten years, when Irishmen are sane again and people write sanely on the Irish question, it will be recognized that the blame for the unfortunate conditions of last year falls partly on the Irish-Americans, who plotted the rebellion, because of their hatred of Redmond, and partly on the severity of the English military commanders. If it had been suppressed in a sane and magnanimous way, there would never have been so much of this republican talk, and the Bishop of Limerick, who before the war was suspected of not even being a Home Ruler, and whose attitude was always that of sitting on the fence, and criticising, would not have been for five minutes the most popular man in Ireland.

"The country was never so prosperous as it was at the time of the revolt. Twenty years ago people went to the fair of Athlone in country carts; to-day 90 per cent. of them drive their own automobiles. The blame for the revolt, aside from the Irish-Americans, lies with a section of young Ireland which held the doctrine that national spirit requires a revolution every twenty years or so; that it needs martyrs. They wanted martyrdom themselves and they thought that in this way they would register a protest against Redmond's policy of rapprochement with England before Home Rule was actually in force.

"But the Irish in America, who hatched this, knew that the present British government might be trusted to use tyrannical measures of repression, and that htye would thus discredit Redmond. And they did for a time but now responsible sentiment is swinging back to the Parliamentary party which has obtained so much in the way of land reform, educational development, and improvement in housing conditions.

"Mrs. Sheehy Skeffington says she has come here to work for the establishment of an Irish republic. But who sent her? It is a dream of her own. Sheehy Skeffington was not regarded as a representative man in Ireland. I have heard her lecture, she tells the story of her husband's execution dispassionately and accurately, and it certainly was one of the most brutal things that ever happened.

"There were a few other cases equally outrageous, but the things I have read in the Gaelic American about the harshness in the treatment of prisoners in England have disgusted me. I was chaplain to Arthur Griffiths, Dr. John Dundon, Sean Kelly and Terence McSweeney while they were in the Reading Gaol; I know that the governor of the gaol, Thomas Brown, who is a Home Ruler, treated them as gentlemen, and allowed them many privileges. I have talked to Irishmen who were confined elsewhere in England and I know that very few exceptions they also met with very courteous treatment.

"Indeed, their stay in English jails was an educative experience for some Irishmen; they had grown up in the unfortunate prejudice based on the theory that modern England was the same as the England of Elizabeth, but they learned after their stay in that country that the masses of Englishmen were not so much opposed to Home Rule as they thought.

TURNING POINT IN OPPOSITION

"The great turning point in Unionist opposition in England came after the rebellion, when every one was saddened by the bloodshed; and Carson's speech in Parliament, when he offered his hand to Redmond, marked a great turning point in his life, and left everyone who heard it hopeful for a settlement.

"I myself know men in Belfast, strongly opposed to Home Rule, who nevertheless see that it is coming and have determined for business reasons not to oppose it, and I think that their views are typical of those of a large section of Ulstermen. The appeal of members of the American Congress ought to have a great deal of effect in England, and perhaps still more important is the fact that now that America is in the war Irish-Americans are rallying splendidly to the American flag and for the first time in their lives Irish affairs are for five minutes in the background of their thoughts."

VEGETABLES FOR WINTER

Useful Suggestions for the Benefit of Those Who Are Taking Part in the Greater Production Campaign.

CANNING METHODS

The following suggestions have been made by Mrs. Potts, secretary of the Hamilton Horticultural Society, for the information of those who are taking part in the greater production campaign:

Corn—The surplus (many find difficult to keep when canned) may be canned with tomatoes, as the acid of the tomato helps to preserve the corn and is good for soup in this way.

Corn cooked on the cob—Cut off with knife and dry in a slow oven. In the winter soak over night before using and then cook slowly. Use as vegetable or make into soup.

Corn cut from the cob—Spread on platters and give a good covering of salt. Let stand over night. In the morning pack into glass jars or in a covered crock, putting a weight on top. When required for use take out what is required, soak over night in water, then cook as fresh vegetable.

Tomatoes, canned — Scald, peel, cut in half, remove the hard core, pack in jars as solid as possible without any extra fluid added, add a teaspoonful of salt to each jar, adjust the rubbers (better new ones to be certain) and perfectly clean jars, carefully sterilized, and put on the covers, place the filled jars in the wash boiler, on a rack of some kind, to prevent breaking the glass, and in cold water. Have enough water to come at least two or three inches above the rack, taking care to have enough to prevent it boiling dry—and give the tomatoes 5 minutes after the boiling point is reached.

Tomatoes—If cut from the vines in good, sound condition, with an inch of the stem left on, cleaned and put in a brine in a crock (1 cup of salt to 2 gallons of water) will keep and be useful for a considerable time.

Tomato plants pulled up by the roots just before the frost injures them, the roots wrapped in coarse cloth and the plants hung up by the roots in a cool frost proof place will provide slicing tomatoes until Christmas, as the green fruits will ripen nicely; or wrap large smooth well-formed green tomatoes in tissue paper, place on shelves in a cool closet, taking care to avoid touching each other, and these will ripen and can be sliced for the table until Christmas.

Green tomatoes can not only be pickled but a fig-like preserve can be made from them—especially the small ones. The ripe ones can not only be used for sauces and catsups but a marmalade (used in England in place of orange marmalade) can be made. The strained juice can be sealed hot and used for soup (cream of tomato soup) in the winter.

Cucumbers — Peel and slice thin, put in a layer of sliced cucumbers and a layer of salt in a glass jar. Repeat until the jar is full and press down as tightly as possible. Seal tightly and when required take out the quantity required for use and soak over night. Pour a little vinegar over them and sprinkle with pepper. They will be just like freshly sliced cucumbers, not having changed color at all.

Cucumbers, if large, need not be discarded as useless as they can be cooked as vegetable marrow, and also the largest and the ripest can be used in this way.

Cucumbers can be preserved like citron and combined with lemon, ginger or raisins will give variety.

Swiss Chard—The green part of the leaf can be canned for greens for winter and the white midrib also canned and used as asparagus as on toast.

The root vegetable, besides being good canned — especially if pulled young, (when thinning is in order or soon after) can be stored in damp sand in the cellar. Some use sifted coal ashes, preferring these, as being non-conductors of heat, the drying and the shrivelling is prevented.

In England a marmalade is made from carrots and oranges, as well as rhubarb and oranges.

Parsnips and salsify can remain in the ground all winter.

Beans—From a few vines of Kentucky Wonder beans 5 or 6 pounds of beans may be harvested from those grown on fences or trellis. When using the dried navies, runner beans, soak over night and remove the tough dark coat, and the kernel will be found to make excellent soup.

Beans—Cut string beans as if preparing for the table, have them perfectly dry (never pick on a wet day) spread out on platters and give a good coating of salt. Let stand over night. In the morning pack in glass jars or in a covered crock, putting a weight on top of the beans. When required for use take out the amount required, soak over night in water, and then boil as fresh beans. They will require a little longer cooking than the fresh beans.

Parsley can be dipped in hot water, dried and put away and found excellent for many uses in the winter, or can be carefully cleaned and packed in glass jars layer for layer with salt, and when required soaked and used and found quite as good as the freshly purchased article, if one can not winter it over by covering with a box in the garden.

The cold water process for canning means the careful selection of the fruit or vegetable, avoiding the least suspicion of decay, washing (sometimes scalding or blanching as required by the vegetable to be canned) then fill thoroughly sterilized jars, by scalding or placing in the oven for half an hour at least, and pack firmly, fill up the jar with cold water, and stir with a fork if there are any air bubbles, screw the lids on loosely, stand the jars in the wash boiler on a rack, add sufficient water, and heat gently to the boiling point; cook as long as the vegetable being treated requires to make tender, allow the jars to cool slightly, then remove them, lift the tops and fill with boiling water, and seal tight. If fruit is done in this way when required for use add sugar several hours before serving. By using this method the natural flavor is preserved and the fruit tastes more like fresh fruit.

Rhubarb for winter use—Have the jars perfectly airtight with new rubber rings. Wash them thoroughly, and sterilize by boiling or baking for half an hour. Cut the rhubarb up as if for stewing and fill the jars as full as possible, then fill to overflowing with cold water which has been previously boiled for half an hour and cooled. Run a fork or spoon down to break up any air spaces. After being sure no air is left in the jar, while the jar is overflowing, seal down tightly and put away in a cool dark place to keep. Handle or move the jars as little as possible.

To can half grown Beets—Wash in boiling water only long enough to loosen the skin, slip these off, and pack the beets (whole or divided) into jars and fill up with a mixture of vinegar and water, four of water to one of vinegar, put on the covers, and give three quarters of an hour in the boiler after the boiling point is reached. Vinegar in this way preserves the coloring of the beet.

To can young turnips or carrots—Peel and boil in water for 15 minutes, pack in jars. Give the carrots at least an hour and the turnips half an hour after the boiling point is reached. Cool a little and treat as before instructed, for the other vegetables.

String beans cut in pieces, packed in jars, fill jars with cold water (previously boiled and cooled), add a little salt and treat like other vegetables, giving one half an hour after the boiling point is reached.

Many fruits can be dried, as for example cherries and apples and the process is quite easy.

WHEN YOU CAN'T SLEEP

YOU SHOULD USE

MILBURN'S HEART and NERVE PILLS

Perhaps too much worry has gotten on your nerves, perhaps you have overworked yourself, or have been excessive in your use of tobacco, but whatever the cause, the nervous system must be built up again before restful sleep can be assured.

Those whose rest is broken into by frightful dreams, nightmares, sinking and smothering sensations, who wake up in the morning as tired as they went to bed can have their old, peaceful, undisturbed, refreshing sleep back again by using Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. John Sloan, Haley Station, Ont., writes: "Over a year ago I was very nervous. I could not sleep at night, and I would faint at the slightest fright. I tried several doctors, but they did me practically no good. I noticed your advertisement, and immediately tried Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and I am proud to say they cured me."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c a box or three for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

APPLES, ORANGES, FIGS AND PRUNES

Are The Four Fruits Used in Making "Fruit-a-tives"

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" is the only medicine in the world that is made from the juices of fresh ripe fruits. Thus, it is manifestly unfair to say, "I won't take Fruit-a-tives because I have tried other remedies and they did me no good". On the other hand, the fact that "Fruit-a-tives" is entirely different from any other preparation in the world, is just why you should give it a fair trial, in any trouble of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys or Skin. "Fruit-a-tives", is composed of the active principle of fruit and the greatest nerve tonic ever discovered. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At all dealers or sent postpaid by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

German Observer Pitched To Awful Death from Clouds

How Officer Enables the Pilot Who Plunges—British Fire Too Much

British Headquarters in France, May 29.—Via London.—A German aviator just shot down within the British lines told with amazing nonchalance how he lost his passenger in midair. The prisoner is a corporal and was piloting a two-seater machine on reconnaissance work. The passenger was a new lieutenant observer whom the pilot was taking up for the first time.

The lieutenant was nervous from the start, and kept giving the pilot contradictory instructions which caused him completely to lose his way. That is how he happened to get over the British lines. The pilot turned his machine eastward as he thought, but believed something must have gone wrong with the compass. He had not flown a great distance when he sighted several British fighting scouts. Now the passenger became fairly frantic, and began beating the pilot on the back, urging him to swing around in the opposite direction. This further confused the pilot, and the first thing he knew one of the British machines had opened fire and shot him through both legs.

The pilot took matters into his own hands then, and in order to escape from the attackers dived almost vertically with the engine full on. He did not flatten out until within 200 feet of the ground, and then, almost faint from his wounds, he let the machine slip, and landed with a crash. A search of the wreckage revealed no trace of the observer.

"I think he must have been thrown out," said the German pilots.

"He was," said one of the pilot's captors who had seen the officer pitch headlong to his death.

OPEN NOSTRILS! END A COLD OR CATARRH

How To Get Relief When Head and Nose are Stuffed Up.

Count fifty! Your cold in head or catarrh disappears. Your clogged nostrils will open, the air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more snuffling, hawking, mucous discharge, dryness or headache; no strangling for breat at night.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist and apply a little of this fragrant antiseptic cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothing and healing the swollen or inflamed mucous membrane, giving you instant relief. Head colds and catarrh yield like magic. Don't stay stuffed-up and miserable. Relief is sure.

WALL PAPER AND ITS EFFECTS ON THE NERVES

Choose Wall Paper that will Rest the Eyes and not Jar on the Nerves.

"Have you ever felt rested after sitting in a certain room for an hour? There must be a reason—a cause before an effect. Study yourself for a cause for nerves, if you insist you have them, and ask yourself these questions: What is your favorite color—the color that fills you with delight? Do you have tints of your favorite color in your room?

"One woman always loved blue in her dress and flowers, yet she had red paper in her rooms. No wonder she had 'nerves', for there are many people who are affected as much by color as there are those affected by sound.

"Who loves the screaming of the noon whistle unless it is the lazy lad who is hungry? So it is with discordant tones in your home. It is a well known fact that on the walls of insane hospitals red is never used. No matter what the style is in paper go and choose the tint that rests you. Have your home made harmonious with light, soft tints, and see how much more cheerful the whole family will be.

"Think of trying to sleep in a room hung with flaming red poppies when there should be soft pale tints without figures, white if possible, where one spends so many hours. 'Nerves' are largely the result of discord and lack of proper harmony, else why a nervous attack when things go wrong?

"Banish ugly things from your home; use only simple furnishings that make your home restful, and when you are uncomfortable in a room begin studying the room. Begin with the paper. Do your eyes follow the pattern or the figure? If so, have it taken off and choose a paper that rests your eyes and thus soothes your nerves. It will pay you many times over, far more than the cost of the paper, even if it be an expensive one, for anything that conserves or restores health is cheap, no matter what it costs."—"Everywoman's World."

Studebaker
Estab'd 1852

Built to Give Lasting Service

The Series 18 Studebakers are the best cars the great Canadian Studebaker factory at Walkerville, Ontario, has ever produced. They have been perfected by four years' experience with the same basic design.

They embody ninety distinct improvements in mechanical construction, convenience and comfort, over the Series 17, which made such a great record throughout the Dominion for Studebaker in 1916.

They are made of carefully selected materials, tested and developed in the great Studebaker laboratories.

Their workmanship is experienced, painstaking and carefully supervised. The inspections are rigid and exacting in the extreme.

Studebakers are probably the most powerful cars on the market in ratio to their weight. In ratio to power they are most economical in the consumption of gasoline.

For these reasons Studebakers stand up on the hardest, hilliest drives in all Canada and under the most racking tests of the road at a minimum cost for up-keep.

Let us prove the quality and economy of Studebakers—let us give you a thorough demonstration.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A BRIDAL TRIP

.....By Henry Lyle

The Nephi stage carried no outside passengers. Inside it accommodated four comfortably and six uncomfortably. Consequently every one interested in any particular trip of the Nephi stage hoped that the number of passengers would be limited to four.

At Millstown, the half way station, the grinning face of the hostler was thrust through the stage window, and the four passengers already inside groaned. They knew the sign.

"Two passengers, gents. Kindly git t'gether," the hostler announced.

The stage door was flung open. A woman was a rarity along the Nephi stage line and a bride unheard of, yet the first passenger to be ceremoniously thrust into their midst was very evidently a bride. Had all other signs failed, which they did not, there were several kernels of rice sticking to the back of her veil. The tall, thin, spindle shanked young man who followed her was just as evidently a bridegroom. Their clothing and manners proclaimed them of the east and brand new.

The bridegroom carried a suit case, which he pushed to one side after settling his bride as comfortably as the middle seat permitted. Then he fitted his knees between the passengers in front of him and looked solicitously at his veiled bride. "Tired, dearie?" he asked.

"Just a little, darling," she answered, touching his shoulder lightly with hers. "Wasn't it just lovely the way we got away from them?" she continued. "I thought once they would really find out where we were going. Wouldn't it have been terrible? But you were such a darling, you"—

There was a suppressed snicker behind them. One of the passengers facing them gulped and crammed his mouth full of tobacco. "Chaw, pardner?" he asked, extending the package to his seat companion, the fat storekeeper of Alkali City.

The man shook his head. "Hear 'bout th' holdup las' week?" he asked, winking hard.

"Oh, darling!" exclaimed the bride. "Why did we come to this awful place? Take me back—can't you, darling?"

One of the men behind him laughed, and the bridegroom flushed deeply and made a reply which was unintelligibly jumbled by the rapid lurching of the stage, which at that moment entered the rougher sections of the road.

The sharp report of a pistol startled the jostled passengers and brought the stage to a stop with a suddenness which jerked the bride into the arms of the storekeeper.

The smoking muzzle of a revolver was thrust through the window, and a voice exclaimed: "Hands up. Step outside, gents!"

No one hesitated. One after the other, with hands well up, the passengers alighted and stood in line along the roadside. The bride came last, and the robber hesitated, astonished, as she stepped down.

"Excuse me, miss," he exclaimed, lifting his hat before he felt about the men's clothes for weapons. "Sorry t' disturb yeou, but business is business.

"Now, Tom," he continued, addressing the driver, "my pardner," motioning to a second robber who stood holding the horses' heads, "will keep yeou covered while I look inter things."

The driver laughed. "I'm afeared yeou'r goin' t' be disappointed this trip, Black John. S' far as I know, there ain't no treasure in this load."

The bride gave a faint cry, staggered and toppled over into the arms of the bridegroom, which, regardless of orders, came down to receive her.

The robber swore. "Keep yeour hands up!" he cried, swinging around and covering the line with his revolver. "Let th' tenderfoot look after th' gal. She's only fainted."

He had pulled several pieces out of the stage when an unusual movement behind him caused him to turn his head. He looked directly into the muzzle of a forty-four, held by the bride.

"I've got you dead to rights, Black John," a low voice whispered. "No noise or I'll let loose."

The bridegroom held a similar weapon at the other robber, who, unconscious of the slight change in affairs, was twitting the driver. "Now, Billy, drop your gun!" the bridegroom called.

The man made an offensive movement. There was a flash, a sharp report, and the shattered revolver dropped from the robber's hand.

"Hands way up, Billy, or it'll be you next time!" the bridegroom commanded as he walked over and relieved the robber of his other gun. "Now, you fellows, Black John and Billy, get up on the leaders blame quick. No parleying!"

"Come," she said. "Get along. My husband says you've got to ride a leader."

After he had mounted she lifted the suit case out of the stage, handed it to the driver and then climbed up on the box beside him.

The driver frowned. "Yeou—yeou ain't goin'"— he began, but the situation was too novel for him, and he subsided into astonished silence as the bride turned her veiled face toward him and suggested that her husband wanted him to drive on. He cracked his whip, and the stage started.

Progress was slow, and the stage was so late in getting to Alkali City that the entire population was lined up in front of the Palace hotel in anticipation of something out of the ordinary. Their expectations were more than realized when the stage drew up before the door.

The bridegroom glanced over the upturned faces. "Is Mr. Green in the crowd?" he asked.

"Give him the case, dearie," called the groom without taking his eyes off the robbers. "Your cash is all O. K., Mr. Green."

"Is the sheriff in the crowd?"

"That's me, stranger," answered a young giant.

"Come around and get Black John and Billy Rice, sheriff. They haven't any guns, but they have got legs, so I'll keep 'em covered till you're ready. All right?"

"Yep!" replied the sheriff.

The bridegroom swung himself to the ground. "Come, dearie," he said tently, holding up his hands.

The bride climbed down from her seat and turned with him to face the crowd.

"Gentlemen," said the groom, removing his hat, "my name's Archie Dunning, and this is my wife. We're on our wedding tour, but I had to let in a little business to please the company. Is there any outfit in this town where we can put up? My wife's tired. She held up Black John."

He laughed heartily, and, taking a large revolver which the bride held, he tossed it in the air and caught it. "Here, sheriff," he cried; "catch. She belongs with that."

The sheriff caught the revolver.

AFTER SIX YEARS OF SUFFERING

Woman Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Columbus, Ohio.—"I had almost given up. I had been sick for six years with female troubles and nervousness. I had a pain in my right side and could not eat anything without hurting my stomach. I could not drink cold water at all nor eat any kind of raw fruit, nor fresh meat nor chicken. From 178 pounds I went to 118 and would get so weak at times that I fell over. I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and ten days later I could eat and it did not hurt my stomach. I have taken the medicine ever since and I feel like a new woman. I now weigh 127 pounds so you can see what it has done for me already. My husband says he knows your medicine has saved my life."—Mrs. J. S. Barlow, 1624 South 4th St., Columbus, Ohio.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound contains just the virtues of roots and herbs needed to restore health and strength to the weakened organs of the body. That is why Mrs. Barlow, a chronic invalid, recovered so completely.

It pays for women suffering from any female ailments to insist upon having Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

pointed it over the heads of the crowd and pulled the trigger. The hammer snapped.

The crowd roared hilariously and rushed into the bar to drink the bride's health, but the sheriff shook his head and laid a detaining hand on the bridegroom's shoulder.

"Archie," he said impressively, "for the best messenger in the state yeou did er blame fool trick. S'posin' Black John hadn't er got caught jis' so, it'd been all day with yeou an' the gal."

"I know it, sheriff, but she made me promise. She's got plenty of sand about some things, but she's skittish about handling a gun unless it's empty." Then he dropped his voice to a whisper. "But that's nothing compared to the chances we took of going crazy acting like jackasses so's those four mummies of passengers would think we were tenderfeet."

Drinking Toast.

The bit of toasted bread that was deemed such an important ingredient in many an old time drink was considered a morsel of honor and fell to the one whose turn came last to sip from the common cup.

In Cromwell's time, so we read, a favorite toast of the cavaliers was to put a crumb of bread in the glass and before they drank to say, "God send this crum-well down."

The very name toast calls up a host of anecdotes that have been the very essence of many a convival scene.

The well known one of the accomplished Judge Story at a dinner in honor of Everett's appointment as ambassador to the court of St. James is especially graceful.

"Genius—sure to be welcomed where Everett goes."

The next response to this was:

"Law, equity and jurisprudence—no efforts can raise them above one Story."

Alphonse Karr, one of the daintiest of writers, once gave a toast at a dinner of physicians by proposing "the health to the sick."

KINDNESS.

When we consider the results it brings I wonder why it is we are not all kinder than we are. How easily it is done! How instantaneously it acts! How infallibly it is remembered!—Drummond.

INDUSTRIAL WORK MAY STOP IN RUSSIA

Crisis Created by Demands of the Workmen Which May Cause Ruin. No Settlement in Sight

PETROGRAD, May 28.—The industrial crisis in Russia is so acute that, according to a recent utterance of the Minister of Finance, M. Shingaroff, only a miracle can save the country from economic ruin. The demands of the workmen were so enormous, he declared, that it seemed impossible to keep the industrial wheels going for any great length of time.

Neither the coalition Cabinet nor the newly-appointed commission to regulate the difficulties between capitalists and labour has yet found a way to settle the industrial crisis.

An investigation of the factory conditions in Petrograd leads to the alarming, but inevitable conclusion, that unless the Government soon finds a means of adjusting the present difficulties, most of the industrial enterprises working for national defence will be compelled to close within a few months.

In many of the factories the demands by the workmen for increased wages are actually greater than the entire profits of the factories under the best conditions of production. The workmen, through their committees are in virtual command of the factories, and all business has to be submitted to them for approval. Wages in a majority of the factories have been increased from 100 to 150 per cent., but there has yet been no offset by an advance in prices of the output.

An iron-clad feature of the difficulties confronting the employers is the fact that, though suffering serious loss, they do not dare to close the establishments, owing to threats of bodily and material vengeance. The power of the workmen's committees so far has superseded the authority of the owners. No man in a factory can be dismissed without the consent of the committees. There is no way of enforcing discipline, said one manufacturer, and idleness is prevalent.

Women street car conductors of all pay-as-you-enter street cars in New York City will probably be a feature of the service as soon as the draft law for men in the army becomes effective.

At least the mercantile house has asked for a list of 200 available women to the mercantile positions as soon as needed.

Germans Breaking Pledge to the Pope

HAVRE, May 29.—The Belgian authorities made public a copy of an order served by the Germans on the city of Mons, as showing bad faith by the Germans in their announcement that deportations had been stopped at the request of Pope Benedict.

The order, which is dated April 15, requires Mons to furnish six hundred men at a German cavalry barracks before noon of the following day, equipped with clothing, shoes and provisions. The city is notified that it must pay 300 marks for every man not furnished.

The Belgian authorities say the indications are that the deportations will be extended to women, as the Germans are taking a census which includes women and young girls, as well as men.

Two Ways To Acquire An Estate

1—By saving, stinting, sacrificing; fighting the world at every turn, battling the blows of business competition; running the risk of fire, theft, embezzlement and misfortune; skimping your family and yourself, may be, and standing only one chance in twenty of reaching Old Age without being dependent upon others for support.

2—By securing a Life Insurance Policy—A Policy which guarantees to pay your Beneficiary at your death, either a definite lump sum or an income every month as long as she lives—an income that is fixed, certain, regular, inalienable, unassailable, untaxable, and which cannot be lost, sold, dissipated, squandered, or mortgaged.

Which is the EASIER and MORE SENSIBLE Way to Acquire an Estate?

Two Ways To Bequeath An Estate

1—By Testamentary Document: Requires an Executor. Must go through legal red tape of Court. Requires Court costs. May require months or years to settle. This kind of Will can be broken or set aside. Property is subject to attachment for debts of the Deceased.

2—By Life Insurance (when the Beneficiary is named); Requires no executor or administrator — you are your own executor, your own administrator. No need of Court proceedings—no expense of Court costs. Does not require time to settle. This is a Will direct which no lawyer can break nor Court set aside. Policy is not subject to attachment for debts of the Deceased.

Rheumatism Entirely Gone

KINCARDINE, Ont., May 30. — A most astonishing cure of rheumatism and eczema has been reported here, and Mrs. Ray is enthusiastic in telling her many friends how the cure was effected.

Rheumatism and eczema frequently go together and in this case caused the most keen distress imaginable. All the swelling and puffiness resulting from many years of rheumatism have disappeared, and there is not a pain or an ache left.

Mr. G. H. Ray, R. R. No. 1, Kincardine, Ont., writes: "Mrs. Ray has been using your Kidney-Liver Pills. She was very bad with rheumatism and eczema, and had had that fearful itch for twenty-seven years. It was simply terrible what she suffered. I persuaded her to try $1 worth of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills; she is now on the last box, and let me tell you she scarcely knows herself, she is so free from both of these diseases. All the swelling and puffiness caused by the rheumatism has gone away, and she has gone down in weight 18 1-2 pounds. She never has an ache nor pain, biliousness nor sick headache all these months. She often says herself 'How glad I am that I know what to do instead of paying know what to do instead of paying doctors so much to make me worse.'"

There is only one way that the poisons in the blood can be cleaned away and the cause of pains and aches removed, and that is by the healthful action of the kidneys, liver and bowels. Because Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills act directly and specifically on these organs and ensure their activity they remove the cause of rheumatism and other dreadfully painful and fatal diseases. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, of Toronto.

300 Canadians in Detroit Rush for Naturalization

DETROIT, May 29.—Three hundred Canadians sought naturalization papers in the county clerk's office here Saturday, but owing to a shortage of blanks only sixty received them. The naturalization department officials attribute the rush of Canadians for citizenship papers to an order from Ottawa that no Canadian men of eligible miltary age will hereafter be allowed to leave their country.

While those taking out citizenship papers here are also liable to draft, their chances of escaping war are better, partly, in view of depletion of ranks of young men in Canada who have already gone to war, and partly because many of those liable for war in the United States may never be called.

There is also a rush in county clerks' offices by citizens who have taken out first papers and suddenly remember their birth records are wrong and that they have actually seen more than 31 years of life. Slight attention, however, is being paid to them unless they present a birth certificate or affidavits from members of their own family.

Little Son Was A Pitiful Sight

With Ringworm Which Turned to Eczema. Just One Mass. Cuticura Completely Healed.

"My little son, three years old, took ringworm on his left arm, and he scratched it so that it turned to eczema. It then spread to his back, chest, arms, legs and head. It was just one mass of corruption and it made my heart ache to see him scratch; he would just tear himself. He was a pitiful sight.

"I read about Cuticura Soap and Ointment. By the time I had used the second box of Cuticura Ointment with the Cuticura Soap he was completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. R. R. Peachey, R. R. 1, Waldemar, Ont., December 30, 1916.

Submarine Solution Is Reached Simply by American Brain

Correspondent Says in Only Little Time Menace Will Be Mastered.

LONDON, May 29.—The Westminster Gazette publishes a message from a correspondent who says the submarine menace is being mastered by a simple method, which the correspondent indicates is the invention of an American.

"It is giving away no secret," the correspondent writes, "to say that the method, which is reputed to be infallible, requires only a little time to come into full effect and wear the German sumbarines out. It is a model of simplicity. The press has been liberal in its announcement of Marconi's device, but while extending encouragement to Marconi it must not be overlooked that the genius who perfected one of the most monumental advances in maritime navigation has devoted his unremitting consideration to the menace, and this resourceful American, too, has worked toward the device along independent lines."

Asserting that the British have better submarines than the Germans, the message continues:

"Only a little time is needed for our pre-eminent inventive brains to outstrip the pirate professors, and by a method which is simplicity itself we already have the life of the U-boat campaign measured."

CANADIAN FLAG DAY IN GLASGOW.

Flags were again on sale in the streets of Glasgow to-day. On this occasion the Canadian troops are to benefit, and the funds raised will be devoted to providing comforts for the men of the contingent who are at the front. The promoters of the effort are the members of the Scottish Auxiliary of the Canadian War Contingent Association of which the president is Mrs. Robertson and the convenor, Mrs. Bowdery. For the purpose of organizing the flag day the city has been divided into 37 districts, and about 2000 collectors were engaged selling the flags, which have a design showing the maple leaf with a crown imposed upon it.

HAD INDIGESTION

COULD KEEP NOTHING ON STOMACH

After a meal you feel that you must get rid of that nasty, bilious, burning sensation; that souring and rising of the food which is so unpleasant and in many cases very painful.

It is not necessary for you to be troubled with indigestion when Burdock Blood Bitters may be so easily obtained. This old and well-known remedy, which is a combination of nature's best roots, herbs, barks and berries will cure indigestion and all stomach troubles.

Mr. Lazare Savoy, Pokemouche, N. B., writes: "About two years ago I was troubled with indigestion that bad I could keep nothing on my stomach. I was sorely disappointed in everything I tried to relieve me. At last a friend advised me to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I took four bottles and can now eat anything that is set in front of me."

That grand old medicine, B.B.B., has been on the market for the past forty years, and we claim, without any fear of contradiction, that it is the best cure for all stomach troubles.

BASEBALL

In an exciting game on Monday between the Queen Alexandra and the South Central baseball teams, the Queen Alexander won by the close score of 3 to 0. Batteries:

For Queen Alexandra — Gilchrist and Jordan.

For South Centrals — Fuller and Pethick.

Last evening on the grounds of the King Edward school, the Salvation Army Scouts defeated the Byersville Scouts by a score of 20—5. The batteries were Byersville: Smith, Rogers. The Temple: Braund, Northcott.

The King George junior baseball team forfeited Tuesday's game to the Queen Alexandra, 9 to 0.

The Druggists Are all Getting Ready for the Question About That Shave On June 3rd

Formerly a bride knew how to keep house. Now she is lucky if she knows how to keep a cook.

Genius is said to be a certain form of madness, but the madness of most people is more or less uncertain.

Just the same, if it hadn't been for woman's curiosity Moses never would have been found in the bulrushes.

It sometimes happens that a woman does a thing the way she wants to—unless her husband expects her to do it that way.

New York Girls Sidestep Helping Spend His $4,000 - in Hamlet

NEW YORK, May 29.— Hezekiah Knowles of Orleans, Ontario county —away up-state—left this city for his home with a most unflattering opinion of the women of the metropolis. For three days he had tried to find in New York City a wife who would return with him to his farm, but when he purchased his railroad ticket he obtained passage for only one person.

"You've got a lot of wimmin folks in this town," he confided to a reporter, "but they're too dad-burned hard to get. I've decided to go home and let 'em alone, and then mebbe some of them that saw my 'ad' in the papers will be sorry when they find out it's too late."

Answers Come All Day.

In between his trips to interview these women Mr. Knowles told of his search for the mate his soul yearned for. He first cast his hat into the hymeneal ring about six months ago, he said, when he decided that solitude was a poor game.

Orleans, with a 1910 census population of 175, soon exhausted her resources as far as the possible companion of his heart and hearth was concerned. Rochester was next approached, but of the fifty who answered his advertisement none suited his taste and temperament.

Gets 500 Answers.

Next he advertised and received 500 answers from women willing to share the $4,000 which he said he had salted away where it would take a rainy day to melt the salt. From the 500 he selected what he deemed the best —a New York City girl. Telephoning her to meet him at the Grand Central, he secured his umbrella and ran for the train.

At the meeting, however, there proved to be a distinct lack of willingness on the part of the young woman to substituting Orleans for New York City as a place of residence. Mr. Knowles next presented himself at an employment agency in Sixth avenue and explained that he wanted to engage a housekeeper who would consider the engagement as preliminary to marriage. Again disappointment.

Advertises for Housekeeper.

Finally he decided to insert an advertisement for a housekeeper.

"I've had a lot of answers and some of 'em were nice wimmin folks," commented Mr. Knowles, "but every time I tell 'em about Orleans they act as if they're sorry they had to spend car fare to come to see me.

"The trouble with these here New York wimmin is that they think there ain't no place in the world but this blamed town. I wouldn't live here if you was to give me the place. Already it's cost me more'n five dollars, not to speak of my railroad fare here and back."

Quakers To Shut Door on Shirkers

Liberal and Orthodox Branches Pledge Services to Government in Any Form Consistent With Creed

NEW YORK, May 30.—Meeting together for the first time since their separation, in 1828, the liberal branch and the orthodox branch of the Society of Friends, better known as Quakers, adopted resolutions reaffirming their unqualified opposition to war, followed this by another resolution pledging their services to the government in any form not obnoxious to their consciences and engaged in a spirited debate over the question of protecting their society from those who would save themselves from draft by joining.

The meeting took place at the meeting house of the orthodox branch at No. 144 East Twentieth street, and followed separate meetings of both branches during the morning, in which there was much discussion of the attitudes to be taken during the war. The essential difference between the two branches is the question of the divinity of Jesus Christ.

The debate arose over a clause introduced in the resolutions, assuring the government of their appreciation of Congress' action in recognizing their religious convictions against war and in response pledging themselves to debar all men of selective draft age from joining the society.

James Wood, clerk of the orthodox body, declared in this regard last night that the government would not exempt from military service those men who joined the society since the declaration of war. The clause debarring men of selective draft age from membership was finally stricken out and the resolution in part adopted as follows:—

"The New York yearly meetings of the Religious Society of Friends place upon record their appreciation of the recognition of religious convictions by the national Congress in exempting them from military service and our further recognition that this action places upon us a serious responsibility to see that no improper use is made of this exemption."

ANNUAL MEETING ON JUNE 15th

The annual meeting of the Board of Agriculture for West Peterborough will be held at the home of the Secretary, Mr. Allan B. Mann, Smith Township, on Friday afternoon, June 15th. A most interesting programme has been arranged, including a judging class of beef and dairy cattle. A number of speakers will give addresses.

PEOPLE ARE URGED TO GROW BEANS

Beans Are Much Cheaper To Produce Than Potatoes and Are Easy To Handle — Prof. McCready Was In The City To-day

Prof. S. D. McCready, Field Secretary of the Ontario Organization of Resources Committee, is in the city to-day in connection with the greater production movement. Professor McCready is on the staff of the Ontario Agricultural College, and is thoroughly qualified to discuss matters pertaining to greater production. One thing that Professor McCready particularly urged and that is a greater production of beans. It costs anywhere from thirty-five to forty dollars to plant an acre of potatoes, whereas the cost of planting one acre of beans is about eight dollars at the present market price of beans. About three pecks of beans will plant an acre, and the estimated yield from that quantity of land is about twenty bushels. The average city lot should produce from four to five bushels. The nutritive properties of beans is much higher than potatoes. In fact an analysis will show that beans are equal to meat in nutritive value.

A Supply of Beans.

Professor McCready states that the Dominion Canners, in Hamilton, are holding a supply of Canadian-grown seed. This seed is being held at the request of the Dominion Government and will be available until June 20th. Beans require less care than potatoes and are immune from bugs. It may be that before the year is out, voluntary rationing may be introduced and it will become necessary for people to abstain from meat one or two days a week. Under such circumstances beans would form an excellent substitute. "Beans can be planted up until the middle of next month," said Professor McCready.

A meeting was held last evening in Warkworth. Professor McCready was present and one of the results of the meeting was the formation of a committee to undertake the greater production movement and help the farmer as much as possible. The main object of the campaign is to assist in greater production and prepare for next year when the movement will be continued on a larger scale than ever. The Warkworth meeting was due to the initiative shown by the Warkworth Council. The Department is anxious to establish a branch in every community in the country.

Li Ching-Hsi Now Premier of China Senate Confirms

Nephew of Li Hung-Chang Succeeds Minister Dismissed by President — Military Governors Are Out Manoeuvred

PEKING, May 30.—The Chinese Senate approved the nomination of Li Ching-hsi as Premier in succession to Tuan Chi-jui, who was dismissed by the President. The vote was 365 to 31.

The Chinese House of Representatives approved the nomination of Li Ching-hsi on Sunday. During the interim of five days after the dismissal of Tuan Chi-jui Dr. Wu Ting-fang, once Chinese Ambassador in Washington, acted as Premier, and was intrusted with the task of forming a new Cabinet.

The crisis was forced by the provincial military Governors, who are opposed to any supervision by Parliament and wanted the President to dissolve that body. The military leaders, headed by Tuan Chi-jui, lost public sympathy through the demonstrations of the mob on the night of May 10, when, after a riotous secret session in which the House of Representatives refused to pass a resolution declaring war on Germany, the Parliament building was surrounded by a large crowd which demanded war and made threats of violence. President Li Yuan-hung on May 23 dismissed Tuan Chi-jui.

Li Ching-hsi, the new Premier, is a nephew of the late Chinese statesman Li Hung-chang. He was Governor of Kwangsi in 1901 and again in 1904-1905. Early this month he was appointed Minister of Finance, to succeed Chen-Chin-tao, who was removed from office.

The change is believed to indicate a clearing of the way for China's entry into the war on the side of the Allies.

Y. M. C. A. Directors and Invited Guests Discuss the Canvass

The Y.M.C.A. Board of Directors met last evening, together with a few invited guests. The question up for consideration was the annual canvass for funds for the support of the local Association.

Among those present were his Worship Mayor J. J. Duffus, Ald. J. C. Smith, Mr. F. J. H. Vanstone, Manager of the Bank of Toronto; Mr. G. H. Logie, Manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia; Mr. F. W. Trebilcock, Rev. R. G. Peever, Rev. R. A. Whattam, Rev. Robt. Pogue, Adjt. J. A. McElhiney and a few others.

President G. A. Gillespie, M.L.A., was in the chair and after proposing a toast to the King, presented the Y.M.C.A. as being a public institution, both a National and Civic asset.

Jos. Wearing, Esq., Chairman of the Y.M.C.A. religious work committee, gave some facts regarding the religious work of the Association especially as it concerned the boys.

H. B. Cowan, chairman of the Physical Department Committee, explained the standard efficiency tests, and showed plainly why the Y.M.C.A. now required the most expert leadership.

The physical director was no longer simply the gymnastic leader, but must also have the qualifications of a physician, that he might analize the needs of the men and boys who come under his care.

Mr. Wm. Richardson represented the Property Committee, and in a statement regarding the wear and tear on the property and equipment, showed that repairs are required only to keep the building and equipment in proper condition. Some 350 members, and, in addition, a large number of soldiers used the Physical Department during the past season, which means that a terrific strain was placed upon all apparatus in this department. Boys are impulsive and, perhaps, a little rough in the use of all equipment, so that the property would soon become useless unless it were to receive constant attention.

Mr. J. J. Turner, Treasurer of the Association, said that $5,000 would be needed in subscription to cover the current needs of the Association to December 31st, next. He also explained a $5,000 deficit that the Association is carrying, and expressed the wish of the Directors, that this amount, together with the sum needed for current expenses, be combined and provided for in a canvass for $10,000.

A general discussion followed, in which the visitors participated freely His Worship Mayor Duffus assured the Association that he believed the citizens of Peterborough were willing and able to provide for the needs of any organization that sought the public welfare and that doubtless all that was required was that the Directors and other friends get together and canvass the citizens.

Mr. Trebilcock and Adjt. McElhiney and others present took the same position, although obstacles in the way of such a canvass were not overlooked.

In the general discussion, the fact was brought out that the moral condition of our boys is not as good as before the war. It is difficult to give a definite reason why, but bad language and bad habits are more in evidence among the boys under 18 years of age than before the war started.

It was thought that perhaps one reason for this condition was that so many fathers are away to the war, leaving the boys at home, without the usual discipline; also that the very war spirit itself had appealed to the animal passion of the average boy, undermining, to a large extent, his moral nature. The conclusion was that Y.M.C.A. work for boys was more needed now than ever before.

The meeting adjourned until Friday night, when the members of the Board and a number of outside friends will meet and select the names of a few prominent supporters of the Association who they will first canvass, with a view of learning whether these close friends of the Association will be willing to double their regular contributions for this year.

The directors elected Mr. Trebilcock and Mr. James Hamilton to fill vacancies on the Board of Directors for the ensuing year.

New Pacing Stallion at Elmhirst Stables

The grandly bred and fast pacing stallion Herman Wenger, 2:08½, was shipped from Buffalo to Lindsay last week, says The Canadian Sportsman. Its owners are Mr. T. Hodson, of Lindsay, and Mr. R. Elmhirst, of Keene, and it is now at the Elmhirst stables in Otonabee. "Herman Wenger" has been secured for use in the stud. He is a son of Ed. Custer 2:10, the handsomest son of Bingen more 2:14¼, and one of the most successful of the young sires of his age. And his dam was Valpa 2:20, dam of Miss Anita Knight (2) 2:28½, Printemps 2:19, Bessie Custer 2:30½, and Peter Valpa (2) 2:26. She is by Dark Knight 2858, by Alcyone 2:27. Sadie, the second dam of Herman Wenger was a daughter of Hambletonian Mambrino 2:21½. Herman Wenger unites through his sire and dam the two best branches of the Wilkes family, that of Baron Wilkes 2:18, his paternal grand sire, and that of Alcyone 2:27, his maternal grand sire, with a foundation backing made up of the strains of blood coming from Stratmore Mambrino Patchen, an additional Wilkes strain through Alcantara—and American "Clay." He is a grand looking horse of extreme speed, game to the core, and in Canada he ought to make the best kind of a cross for well-bred mares of any of the good families. He will be shown at the Little Windsor Hotel on Saturday.

Smart Khaki Togs He Wore Were Millinery, Not Military, Uniform

Grizzled Veteran Grows Enthusiastic as He Views the Martial Appearance of a Messenger for a Fifth Avenue Women's Hat Shop

NEW YORK, May 30. — A young man in a remarkably tight fitting khaki uniform, that included puttees, brass buttons and regulation cap, strode into the St. Regis Hotel yesterday, delivered a note to the clerk at the desk, and, assuming one of those negligent military attitudes, proceeded to wait.

From the elevator there came a venerably, kindly old man, warmly wrapped in a great coat, with a muffler about his neck. His weak eyes caught sight of the youth in uniform. With eager steps he came to him.

"My boy," he said—and he placed a fatherly hand on the young man's shoulder—"I am glad to see you doing this. You're part of a great cause—as great as the cause I fought for in '61. I want to shake your hand."

He clasped the youth's hand. The youth's eyes were rolling widly, he mumbled, turned red, and as the old man with a parting pat of his shoulder, passed on, he grunted:

"Clean batty—what's he talking of?" and then as the clerk handed him a reply to his note he strolled out into the rain.

He was a messenger boy for a Fifth avenue millinery store.

"THE OLD PEABODY PEW" WAS A GREAT SUCCESS

"The Old Peabody Pew," the splendid dramatization of Kate Douglas Wiggin's book of that name and presented last night in the George Street Methodist Church Sunday School by the Epworth League drew, and well it might, one of the largest audiences that ever assembled in the school. A clever and witty play, well presented, quaint and pretty costumes and talented performers sum, in a few words the reason of the marked success of the presentation.

THE STORY

The story of the play centres round the Dorcas Society of a small town the object of which was to keep the standard of cleanliness and neatness of their church above the standard of all others. They met regularly, they gossiped regularly, always in a kindly way and always ending with the discussion of the reason why one, Nancy Wentworth's romance with Justin Peabody, who had disappeared from the village had come to naught. Nancy on her part was uncommunicative, but it is noticed that she alone tends the Peabody pew. A happy ending after years of separation comes when Justin, the prodigal, returns to his native town to find Nancy still waiting for him and in the act of cleaning the pew of Justin's forefathers. A delightful and novel effect was given to the audience, wherein they were made practically part of the play, an audience being necessary to the staging of it.

THE CAST.

The work of the cast cannot be exaggerated, all falling in to their respective parts with the ease of utter detachment of professionals. Miss Jean Buck, the heroine of the play, as Nancy Wentworth, won the hearts of the audience by her sweet and clever delineation of her difficult part, from her first appearance. Mr. T. Shield, portrayed Justin Peabody, the financial failure, but constant lover, very cleverly, the only fault to be found was the brevity of his appearance. The rest of the cast did admirably and their clever handling of the sparkling repartee kept the audience in fits of laughter. Too much praise cannot be given to Mrs. C. C. Parsons, the reader, whose fame as an elocutionist is well known in the city. Those taking part were:

Mrs. Baxter, the Minister's Wife—Miss Gladys Pentland.

Mrs. Burbank, President of Dorcas Society—Miss Stella Bennett.

Mrs. Miller, Wife of Deacon Miller—Miss Flossie Elliott.

Mrs. Sargent—Miss Flossie Westall.

The Widow Bussell—Miss Eva Outram.

Miss Lobelia Brewster, Miss Maria Sharp, maiden ladies, Miss Mabel Dorman, Miss Alice Elson.

Miss Nancy Wentworth, Justin Peabody's Sweetheart—Miss Jean Buck.

Reader—Mrs. C. C. Parsons.

Directors—Mrs. Dr. Harvey and C. S. Thompson.

THE TABLEAUX

Brittania—Mrs. J. Renwick, Miss R. M. McKee.

The Song My Paddle Sings—Miss Muriel Harvey, Miss Maisie Armstrong.

Gipsy Song—Miss E. Worth, Miss K. Fanning.

Sweet and Low—Miss Wilson, Miss A. Elson.

These were cleverly and effectively presented.

Photograph Enlarger Not A Transient Trader, Magistrate Dumble States in Decision

Magistrate Dumble this morning dismissed the charge against Louis Decker of Toronto, agent of a photograph enlarging company, of being a transient trader without a license. Chief Thompson had made it a test case, the hearing of which was recently reported:

Daniel Thompson Plaintiff Against Louis Decker

Charge:

That the defendant on Tuesday the 15th of May, 1917, did unlawfully exercise the calling of a transient trader at the American Hotel, Hunter street, Peterborough, without having a license therefore required by by-law 1773 of the City of Peterborough.

I find by the evidence that the defendant is in the employment of some one living in the City of Toronto and carrying on business in Peterborough as a maker and vendor of enlarged photographs. That his process is to send out a lady who canvasses at the private houses for enlarging and sale of these framed, enlarged photographs. That the lady canvasser is skillful and gets at the homes generally from women photographs of friends, sons and husbands of the women canvassed, which she induces them to bargain for. After having taken the little old photographs from the home they are sent to the headquarters and there they are enlarged. When a batch of the enlarged photographs are ready, a male employee comes down to the town and exhibits the photographs, secures the approval of the people and part payment. Then after a while another employee comes down to deliver the enlarged photographs and the stand frames and gets a writing signed containing the price and the approval and the terms of payment on delivery, but the agent will not deliver until he gets all the money.

The man who exhibited the goods and got the written contract is sued in the police court at Peterborough for having committed a breach of the transient traders' by-law. It will be observed that the agent who made the written contract and got the part payment had no goods with him at the time, framed and ready for delivery. He simply undertook to send the goods at a future day. Now the question before me is, did that man commit a breach of the by-law. Apparently the principal lived entirely out of the city and those who got the original photo and the original contract and the one who brought the goods to be delivered were simply agents of the principal who carried on the business. I have looked into the authorities and I am not of the opinion that the violation of the transient traders by-law was committed by the defendant in this case. He had no premises in Peterborough occupied as a place of business; that, when the enlarged photographs were ready for delivery they were brought to Peterborough and stored in a barn ready to be delivered.

Now there are many cases which have arisen in this Province practically on all fours with this. For instance a merchant sends out a traveller who brings samples of cloth. He shows them to his prospective customer who selects his cloth for a suit. The agent takes his measure and sends it to the head office at Toronto or elsewhere and in due time the suits of clothes come back to the men who bought them. Now there are many instances of this kind cited in the cases. In some of them the order was taken for ladies' garments, but in none of these cases did the prosecutor obtain a conviction either under transient traders act or hawkers or peddlars' act and the very latest cases reviewing them make no distinction between the case of the man taking orders for clothing and the man taking orders for enlarged photographs.

In this case a woman, who got hold of the original photo did part of the work. At the head office the photo was enlarged. Then a second man exhibited the enlarged photo, got the approval and the written contract. Then the head office sends a man who delivers the finished goods and collects the balance of the money.

Why should any one of these three or four persons be singled out as the defendant responsible for the whole transaction? Is it not the proprietor of the business who is really the principal? This is a difficulty to be dealt with, but putting the whole matter in the most favourable light for the prosecution I am satisfied that the defendant in this case was not a hawker or a peddlar and I am satisfied that he was not under the by-law of transient trader, who is defined in the Statute as an occupant for a short time of premises where he does business, who is not a lease holder whose name appears in respect of the property on last year's assessment roll. But a man residing out of the city by means of agents introduces his goods by sample through agents who take orders and who finally collect the price and deliver the goods. I am constrained to dismiss this charge.

In view of all the authorities I think this charge should not have been laid without having been first submitted to the City Solicitor to make sure that the charge would lie.

Canadian Soldiers in East Africa Are in Need of Comforts

The letter following explains itself:

In response to Mrs. Plumptre's appeal, the Peterborough Progressive Club has already sent forward $25 from the funds of the Club, also $2.50 from their friends.

Sir,—In one of your issues in the latter part of March "Flaneur" reported having received a communication from Miss Homer Dixon, of Niagara Falls, enclosing a letter from a Canadian serving in the British forces in East Africa. The writer said that he and his comrades were beyond the reach of the organizations providing comforts for the Canadian contingents overseas, and were indebted to the matron of a British hospital for many kindnesses. He pleaded for some share in the generosity of Canadians to their own kith and kin in the contingents.

As the Canadian War Contingent Association is particularly interested in the work of providing comforts for Canadians in camps and trenches overseas, the executive of the C.W.C.A. in Canada cabled to Mr. J. G. Colmer, C.M.G., secretary of the C.W.C.A. in England, to find out in what way these lonely Canadians could be reached by friends in Canada.

A cable has been received in reply, stating that Mr. Colmer has arranged with the High Commissioner in South Africa to receive money for this purpose to be disbursed by the South Africa Gifts and Comforts Organization for the benefit of the one hundred and fifty Canadians serving under the flag in East Africa. Mr. Colmer reports that the London Committee is prepared to send $500 for his purpose, but our committee feels sure that Canadians on this side will wish to undertake this somewhat belated duty, and that this appeal will have special force in Toronto, to which some of the men belong.

As their needs first came to the notice of the C.W.C.A. through your columns, we feel sure that your readers will be particularly interested in this appeal. The fund has been started by a donation of $5.00 from Miss Homer Dixon, and we should like the rest of the $500 to be subscribed as quickly as possible, as our committee has just expended all its funds available at present in purchasing Canadian tobacco and socks, in response to requests from Mr. Colmer for the troops in France.

Contributions should be sent to 56 Church Street, Toronto, payable to the Treasurer, C.W.C.A.

Yours, etc.,

A. N. PLUMPTRE.

Honorary Secretary.

Toronto, May 5th.

GETTING READY FOR TO-MORROW

Executive of Ashburnham Civic Association Met Last Night.

An important meeting of the Executive of the Ashburnham Civic Association was held last evening for the purpose of organizing to get the vote out on the Bridges By-Law on Thursday. Ashburnham is strong for the By-Law, and a big vote will be polled.

Comforts Forwarded by Progressive Club

This month the Peterborough Progressive Club has forwarded to Miss Plummer, Captain Field Comforts Commission, 148 pairs of socks, and to Moore Barracks Hospital, 48 night shirts, 15 vest pads, 10 many-tailed bandages, 8,200 sponges, 2,170 compresses, and a quantity of absorbent cotton and gauze.

Over-Confidence the Big Enemy of The Allied Cause

NEW YORK, May 30.— Dr. David Jayne Hill, former Ambassador to Germany, in an address to the trustees of the American Defence Society here to-day, warned that Germany is far from defeat and discounted the theory that the Hohenzollerns alone are responsible for that country's Imperialistic ambitions. He asserted that the present war is a struggle of political systems.

"The people of Germany," declared Dr. Hill, "are more loyal to the Empire than the Democratic party is to Wilson to-day. The President has said that we have no hostility toward the German people, but do not the German people support the Imperial German Government to a man? Didn't a wave of general rejoicing go through Germany when the Lusitania went down? How many Germans in Germany can you find who are not Imperialistic? I have never found one.

"This," added Dr. Hill, "is going to be a different world if the Central powers win the war, and it is by no means certain that they will not. Unless we conscript ourselves for this battle and lay our wealth and our lives at the altar of the defence of our institutions, we will find our descendants in the vortex of world-dominating schemes of autocracy."

Prof. Albert Bushnell Hart of Harvard, in an address to members of the Executive Committee of the National Security League, sounded a similar warning. The danger confronting the United States is as great as that of 1776, he said, "and not one-third of the people realize it."

BRUSSELS CITIZENS MUST PAY 20 CENTS FOR A LITRE OF MILK—$1.20 FOR A POUND OF MEAT.

KINGSTON. — A letter has been smuggled out from Brussels, Belgium, by way of Holland, and has reached a Canadian who spent some time in that city. Following is a list of the prices which prevail there:

2 cwt. of flour, $200; 1 pound of rice, 80 cents; 1 piece of soap, 80 cents; 1 pound of soap, $1.80; 1 pound of meat, $1.20; 1 pound of potatoes, 10 cents; 1 litre of milk, 20 cents; 1 box of chocolates, $5; 1 pound of bon bons, $10; boots, $14 to $20 per pair.

The letter also states that Van Deepeereboom. Minister of Railways, who recently died, left his millions to widows and orphans of the war.

SOME FINE GARDENS.

Frederick Avenue Residents Have Made Good Job of Backyard Gardens.

The north side of Frederick avenue has a row of backyard gardens that would do you good to see. The gardens have been well laid out, and although small, there is no doubt but that the maximum of production will be obtained.

Between each lot instead of the proverbial high board fence that shuts out the light and the sun, neat wire fences were put up giving a clear view of a number of gardens that undoubtedly adds to the appearance. It also should have the effect of stimulating friendly rivalry as the neighbour's yard is in full view of the householder on each side of him.

Spring Seeding Is Nearly Over

Peterborough County Farmers Have Laboured Under A Severe Handicap

Spring seeding operations are nearing a close in Peterborough County. So far as can be learned the crop acreage will be about the same as last year. The belated arrival of fine weather and the lack of sufficient help has been a severe handicap to the farmers in this section. As a rule the farmer is an early bird but this season many of them have robbed the night in order to overcome the peak load. If the farmer succeeds in exacting bigger returns from the crop he will have earned it all despite the groans and wails of the man who resides in the city, and complains of his position as a consumer.

Searching for Drowning Victims

HALIBURTON, May 30. — The search in East Bay, an arm of Drag Lake, for the bodies of Lee Lindsay and Jack Lacking is being carried out by a large gang of men. Both saw mills are closed down in order to prosecute the search. The bodies have not been recovered, however. A glove worn by John Laking, Lee Lindsay's cap and a lunch basket were found in East Bay.

Nearly every man in the village is engaged in the search, and cars have been running up to the dam, one and a half miles from the village in search of news. The village is in a state of gloom and sympathy for the families bereaved is general.

Mr. Wm. Laking, father of Mr. John Laking, one of the victims, arrived here Monday evening from Hamilton; also Mr. and Mrs. Wilson of Orillia, parents of Mrs. Lee Lindsay. The search will be continued if the weather permits.

The long rubber boots worn by John Laking will make it almost impossible for the body to rise, even after ten days.

It is said that fully 150 men with 46 boats, are assisting in the search.

POTATOES AT $3.50 PER BAG.

A Company in Calgary Will Ship at This Figure.

If the City Council wanted to obtain a car load of potatoes for distribution a firm in Calgary advertises that it will ship carload lots, freight paid to destination at $3.50 per bag. At this figure, however, a man in business could not handle and sell them at less than $4.50 per bag and stay in business. It looks as if the vacant lot or backyard garden will be the only means of giving a cheap potato this season. Therefore don't neglect the little garden. You have to do something more than put them in and take them out. Give them cultivation and attention when they need it.

AN OLD LANDMARK GONE.

One of the Oldest Billboard Sites in the City is Down.

The billboard in front of the Munro House yards was taken down yesterday by Billposter Stocker. From the first inception of billboards in the city this site has been used for that purpose. Old residents of Ashburnham, who have crossed and recrossed the Hunter Street Bridge thousands of times, have seen many changes in the appearance of Hunter street since their first trip over, and while the tearing down of a billboard is not a notable event, it will be at least quite noticeable. The great big event to Ashburnham will be the replacing of the present Hunter Street Bridge by the proposed new overhead bridge, which will mark a new era in the history of this one-time village, but now quite progresive ward of the city.

It is understood the yard and stables of the Munro House will be used as a garage.

WARM WEATHER COMING.

The weather man gave out welcome news to the city dwellers and farmers alike yesterday. We are due for some fine weather.

In the Western Provinces, for the most part, they are having fine weather, although in southern Alberta it is raining. In the Martime Provinces showers continue to pour down.

Warmer weather will have a very beneficial effect on farming, especially those who are busy with the seeding. In the surrounding townships the grain presents a strong, vigorous appearance, and with the aid of fine weather will grow rapidly.

MAY GIVE A PRIZE.

The Committee on Horticulture and Roots and Vegetables of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition are considering the giving of special prizes for the three best bags of potatoes grown by this year's amateur gardeners on vacant lots or backyard gardens to be shown at the Exhibition.

If only a small percentage of those who are growing potatoes in Peterborough this year would make an entry, the Fair Executive would require a special tent for this exhibit alone.

BREAD DOWN IN TORONTO.

Beginning to-day bread will sell in Toronto at 11c a small loaf and 22c for a large loaf. It is yet 2c a large loaf dearer than it is in Peterborough. Flour is now $13.50 a barrel against a high figure a while ago of $16.50.

Fashion Letter

A Blouse and a Skirt at least.

And likewise—the most—for never have such combinations been so desirable from a fashionable viewpoint—which seldom considers utility. Quite a perfect unity exists to-day. The separate skirt is the most popular member of the summer receiving line—and so of course the blouse must follow.

One may select her skirt from various striped or figured materials in silks or cottons; jersey finds favor, and the pique and white wash gabardines are not far behind.

So when one selects a blouse to choose for simplicity is to choose wisely — tucks or tiny pleats, are generally edged with little tucks, collars are severly plain or decorated with narrow tucks and occasionally a dainty black ribbon. Georgette is a favored material with crepe de chine, handkerchief linens and voiles following.

Murray Street Baptist Church Choir Concert Last Night

A conspicuous feature of the Murray Street Baptist Church choir concert last night were the evidences of the musical versatility of Mr. Asa Huycke. His talent is as unmistakable as it is diversified. He made his first public appearance as a conductor, sang bass in the Olympic quartette, which was heard for the first time, and in the organization of which he has had a prominent part, and finally presented his choral composition to "There is a Land of Pure Delight." Mr. Huycke's musicianly abilities have been generally recognized in this own city, but they have never been so clearly and strikingly manifested as in last night's concert. His friends are well aware of his native talent and varied attainments, his exceptional gifts of harmony, his creative faculty, of which he has given many proofs, and the lofty character of its expression and employment. But the final test of success is the approval of the public. In many instances, it must be admitted, musicians, like the ancient prophets, are unrecognized in their home cities. Their honours, almost invariably, must be won abroad. But last night's greeting to Mr. Huycke indicated that he has won the distinction of discovery by his fellow-citizens, a fact that reflects reciprocal credit. Unquestionably he possesses rare gifts that deserve the splendid acknowledgment they were accorded last night, and which, it is hoped, will find expression in increasing success.

The choir made a fine impression in its several appearances. The singing was clear cut in both tone and tempo. This was shown in some of the piano passages that were very effective. "By Babylon's Wave" was highly satisfying and provided an example of the capabilities of the choir. Mr. Huycke's setting to the choral number "There is a Land of Pure Delight" contained a beautiful melody and harmonies that sounded in duet and quartettes apart from the ensemble. It was in this work that Mr. Huycke's originality and skill in instrumentation was exemplified. It included a duet by Miss D. Rathbone and Mr. W. Evans, solo by Miss F. Scott, duet by Misses Rathbone and Scott; ladies' quartette by Misses Rathbone, Scott, Hartshorn and Mrs. Telford. The Madrigal "You Stole My Love," was pleasingly sung and the novelty entitled "The Cuckoo Clock," was not only realistic and interesting, but was welcomed as unconventional, and as a vraiant to the set form of programmes.

The Olympic Quartette, a new enterprise in the city's music affairs, was warmly welcomed. It is composed of Messrs. Edward and Harold Jones, Thomas Ward and Asa Huycke, experienced singers, who are all favorably known locally. Their initial appearance was entirely successful. In both numbers their voices blended in pleasing harmony with no jarring obtrusions of individual parts. The quartette seems full of promise that may be realized in future hearings.

Other numbers in the programme sustained its interest. Mrs. Pettit gave several readings with a nice appreciation of their themes apart from the effectiveness of her delivery. They included selections by Jean Blewett and Dr. Drummond. Mr. Otto Gliddon disclosed the progress he has made as a clarinet soloist. He received a warm encore.

The aesthetic wands of the Y. W. C. A. girls provided a pleasing variety to the music—in this case it was the music of movement.

To Miss Ida Sanderson, who is organist of Murray Street Church, is due an acknowledgment of her assistance in bringing the choir to its present standard. Her work is of the character that is more effective than apparent. Her musicianly qualities have always been realized but they have been exercised without the least display or affectation, but none the less efficiently. Her piano solos last night were fitting contributions in a delightful programme, presented as follows:

Part I.

Choir—Unfold Ye Portals Everlasting (Redemption)—Gounod.

Choir—(A) Old English Madrigal—You Stole My Love—W. McFarren.

(B) The Cuckoo Clock (Stenmer)

Clarinette Obligato—Mr. Otto Gliddon.

Part II.

Aesthetic Wands—Y. W. C. A. Class, under direction of Miss Littlefield.

Choir—By Babylon's Wave—(Gounod).

Reading — Selected—Mrs. L. J. Pettit.

Choir — There is a Land of Pure Delight—(I. Watts)—Music by Asa Huycke.

Mother Sees Daughter Shot as Spy by Germans, Who Then Kill Her

GENEVA, via PARIS, May 30.—La Suisse Sunday prints details of a case similar to that of Miss Edith Cavell, the English nurse, who was put to death by the Germans in Brussels in October, 1915. The Germans, says the newspaper, recently arrested two women, Mme. Pfeister and her twenty-two year-old daughter, on the Swiss-Alsatian frontier. They were charged with acting as spies.

The women promptly admitted at the trial that they had smuggled letters, without knowing their contents, from Alsatian families to relatives in Switzerland. This was done simply as a friendly act and without political or malicious purpose.

Both women, says La Suisse, were shot at Mulhausen. The mother was forced to witness the shooting of her daughter before going to her death.

The newspaper adds that it has received confirmation of the killing of the women from their relatives.

Experienced Help Wanted

Farmers Have No Time To Experiment, Says Jas. A. Bell

The following letter of local interest appears in last week's issue of the Canadian Countryman:

My opinion in regard to the desirability of sending city workers and high school boys and girls to the farms this summer is that it would not be wise to close the schools, as there are not great gangs of workers needed, and city boys would not feel like going singly to a farm to be shown how to work. The farmer has no time to give lessons in plowing, cultivating, etc. Men who are used to farm work are needed, and if there are any in the city who feel they can do the work and are willing to do it, they would be doing a kindness to make it known.

A farm of 100 acres only requires one man besides the farmer himself, with plenty of machinery and perhaps a little changing of work with neighbours. No more than one is wanted on each 100 acres. The farmer will, for his own sake, produce all he can.

The season of 1916 was very unfavourable and the shortage was largely due to the season—at least in Ontario. Garden stuffs were scarcely ever such a failure before, the potatoes being killed by the heat. If the coming season is a good one, potatoes may be quite plentiful again. The high price of cattle and hogs is due to the high price of grain and the scarcity of mill feed. A farm can only produce a limited amount, no matter how it is worked—the season has much to do with the results.

If a farmer needs many cattle and hogs—as I have been doing on a 200-acre farm—he does not sell any grain unless he has some fall wheat, and before the war, wheat was sometimes used for feed too. I have noticed that wheat is apt to advance in price after it is out of the farmers' hands into the speculators, and perhaps they have something to do with the cry of famine and the advance in price. We have to look to the prairie provinces for wheat. I cannot speak of conditions there, but even there a better season would help greatly for which everyone needs to pray this year. Meanwhile the farmer will be anxious to increase production for his own sake as well as for the public good. As for girls and women from the city going out to farm, unless for fruit picking or house work, they are not needed and could do very little good.

DOG QUARANTINE HAS NOT EXPIRED YET.

Case in Police Court This Morning Should be a Reminder.

A police court case this morning provided a reminder that the dog quarantine has not yet been lifted. A Lansdowne street woman was charged with having allowed her dog to run at large without a muzzle. Judgment was reserved on condition that the dog be tied up or allowed on the street only on a leash and muzzled. This case may serve as a warning to others who need not expect the same leniency.

ASHBURNHAM IS READY.

Final Arrangements For To-morrow's Vote Were Completed Last Night.

The executive of Ashburnham Ratepayers' Association held a final meeting in preparation for the vote on the bridge by-law to-morrow. Details of getting out the vote were given a last consideration, and every arrangement was completed. The East Ward expect to run a great majority, as there is practically no opposition to the by-law.

Old Maid Crop in England Is Getting Small

Officer Says Each Tommy Has Got A Group of Sweethearts

PARIS.—The scarcity of wedding rings has reached such a stage in belligerent countries that if war continues much longer bridal couples will have to adopt the aluminium bands made in the trenches or do away with the regulation ring altogether. Sometimes even now a ring long worn by the bride is used in the ceremony or a ring of the bridegroom, not smaller.

In England the shops no longer sell the plain gold or silver ring because the merchants all have been sold out. The goldsmiths have been doing military service nearly three years and women do not think it worth while to try to learn a trade which the men will take up as soon as they return home. It used to be a rule in European countries that only the plain ring should be used in the marriage ceremony, but in emergency times like these "any old ring" is called in, and people don't appear to attach nearly as much importance to the style of the band about the finger as in olden times. The ceremony is now the thing, and as long as that is performed details have become of quite secondary consideration.

OLD MAIDS? NAY.

"There are no longer any old maids in England," remarked an officer recently. He was an Englishman visiting in Paris. He added that the Tommy past 25 in his regiment who was not married was the exception. "War came along and settled the question for the country," he said. "Girls in our town we had thought would have to be old maids surprised the community by marrying, some of them on a few hours' notice.

"Many were engaged only long enough to get some new sort of a frock—not a wedding gown by any means, for dressmakers and milliners are not doing anything of a business and have not for two years. The great majority of the war brides work in ammunition factories or do their bit in some other way, and if they had had finery they could not have worn it.

NO HAPHAZARD MARRIAGE

"Our soldiers don't marry haphazard, even though they do make up their minds overnight. At least they wish to do some measure of good, and in marrying girls without means they are aiding their country as well. And if they do not return the pension to a soldier's widow helps out.

"Aside from sentiment the men see the practical side of it. A soldier is less lonesome in the trenches if he knows some one is worrying about him and that he has a wife at home who will write often. It does make a bachelor feel forlorn to listen to his comrades chat about their home life!

AT LEAST ONE.

"All the young soldiers have at least one sweetheart on the string, and it is probable she sends him an encouraging word occasionally. Like enough in one of his letters he mentions marriage and then correspondence becomes brisk and the engagement is on.

"During his furlough the wedding takes place. Often the engagement and wedding both materialize in the few days Tommy is at home. The wedding journey is frequently only from the bride's town to the port where the soldier has to embark.

The Real Secret of Rejuvenating the Face

She holds the true secret of facial rejuvenation who has learned how to remove the dead skin particles as fast as they appear. It's a secret anyone may possess. The sallow faded, or discolored surface skin may be gradually absorbed in an entirely safe and rational manner, by the nightly application of ordinary mercolized wax. Within a week or two the underlying skin, youthful and beautiful to behold, has taken the place of the discarded cuticle. So little of the old skin is absorbed each day there's no inconvenience at all, and no one suspects you are putting anything on your face. The mercolized wax, procurable at any drug-store (an ounce is sufficient), is applied like cold cream. In the morning it is erased with soap and water. It's the best thing known for freckles, blackheads, pimples, moth patches liver spots and fine surface wrinkles.

For the deeper wrinkles and crowsfeet an excellent and harmless recipe is: Powdered saxolite, one ounce, dissolved in one-half pint witch hazel. Bathing the face in the solution produces quick and wonderful results. It is fine for sagging cheeks or chin.

At Murray Street Choir Concert in Sunday School Last Night.

Near the conclusion of the concert at Murray Street Sunday School last night, Rev. Mr. Webb escorted Miss Ida Sanderson to the platform, where she was presented with a lovely bouquet of roses by little Miss Eileen Morgan. Mr. Huycke was also called up by Mr. Webb, who stated that in appreciation of his work as conductor, a silver-mounted baton had been purchased, but it was somewhere in the mails. Both the organist and director were warmly greeted by the audience. The piano used at the concert was a Mason and Risch, loaned by Mr. Cunningham, of the Peterborough Music Co.

FOWLER'S PEBLO CLASSES

CAN YOU GUESS RIDDLES?

Some people are very good at guessing—Dr. Fowler never does any of his optical works by guess, he goes by the records shown to him, conclusively by his scientific instruments, which tell him exactly the trouble and what to do to correct it. This is why he guarantees all glasses he fits his patrons with to be absolutely satisfactory.

BUSINESS RIVALRY ENDED IN A ROW.

A. Chernikoff, Russian Second-Hand Dealer, Claimed He was Assaulted

Business rivalry between Abraham Chernikoff, a dealer in second-hand goods, and Morris Abramson, a peddler, had grown so acute recently that it broke out in several encounters, and finally wound up in police court this morning. Chernikoff claimed that the peddler had intercepted business at his store by remaining about the entrance. This aroused the Chernikoff ire, but evidently his remonstrations carried little effect. On May 11th hostilities broke out and again on Monday there was a clash in which Chernikoff alleged that Abramson was the offender. The two men had their automobiles in the Crown building yard, where they interchanged rocks and asperity of language in a foreign tongue that from its vehemence must have been uncomplimentary. This morning the charge was withdrawn and Abramson paid the costs of $2.60.

MEETING POSTPONED BECAUSE OF BY-LAW.

Owing to the vote on the by-law Thursday, the special meeting of the Children's Aid Society will be postponed to the regular monthly meeting on Tuesday, the 12th of June, at 4 o'clock.

The waxed paper drinking cups can be used for gelatine moulds.

All fruit salads should be thoroughly chilled before serving.

Rice steamed until done, then mixed with cubes of fresh pineapple and served with chocolate sauce is a novel dessert.

The water in which asparagus or spinach is cooked should never be thrown away. It makes such good flavoring for soup.

Press butter through an ordinary potato ricer as the first step towards creaming it and you will save time.

FINED $5.65.

Mr. John Doig was Charged with Theft of Fence Rails.

John Doig was fined $5.65 costs in the case in which he was charged with stealing fence rails from the property of Mr. Duignan. When the case was heard a short time ago judgment was reserved, and this morning the Magistrate gave the above decision.

A Battlefield Visit Reveals the Savagery of German Army

(By Stewart Lyon, special war correspondent of Canadian Press, Limited).

Canadian Headquarters in France, via London, May 31.—In company with other press representatives of the overseas Dominions, I have paid a brief visit, on the invitation of the French authorities, to the battle-front of our gallant Allies on that part of the line between St. Quentin, and Chavonne, where the French troops have fought their way up to the summit of the heights north of Alsace in face of almost insurmountable difficulties. Only by climbing the heights and examining the German defences which were perfected during their occupation over two and a half years, can anyone arrive at the truth as to the value of the French achievement in forcing the enemy back. The notion that he went without fighting, as part of Hindenburg's policy in shortening the German line does not stand investigation.

By a direct frontal attack on April 16, the French, advancing from Soupir on the north back of the Aisne, stormed the heights that rise over 400 feet above the river bed. It was a much more difficult task than the carrying of Vimy Ridge, because the heights are far more steep near the top. They bear a startling resemblance to the Hamilton mountain or the Heights of Abraham, with the narrow, winding Aisne, instead of the St. Lawrence River. Because of the brevity and reticence of the French official reports the other Allied peoples are slow to understand that along 29 miles of the Aisne front the French have recovered possession of one of the finest natural defensive positions in Western Europe.

The whole army of France might have been employed without results in attempting to carry these heights by a frontal attack alone.

It was by a combination assault and a threatened envelopment that the Germans were ejected. They went so hurriedly that in the region of Crouy alone they left sixty guns behind, chiefly of large calibre.

Another proof that the enemy gave up an excellent position under pressure is to be seen in the recently constructed lines of trenches.

Back from the summit here on the plateau along where runs the Chemin des Dames, so called because it is only road suitable for women pedestrians, the enemy is making a desperate attempt to hold a line, still formidable but not so strong as that from which he was ejected, great reinforcements have been thrown into the battle, and no small part of the German's reserves have been swallowed up in the conflict.

Apart from the discovery of the remarkable nature of the ground upon which the battle of the Aisne was fought, the most striking feature of our visit was the passage through scores of villages destroyed by the enemy. Some of them are fifteen or twenty miles from the front. Their destruction was of no military advantage, but that was not taken into consideration.

Prince Eitel a Barbarian.

Near Falloucl, where Prince Eitel Friedrich had a lookout on a mound from which St. Quentin, la Fere and Bower Loan Cathedral were all visible, every fruit tree for a long distance around, was cut down. In the evacuated area there must be tens of thousands of fruit trees cut down or girdled so that they will die. The hatred of Prince Eitel for French trees is matched by the Kaiser's dislike for historical monuments and ancient buildings. He is held to be personally responsible for the blowing up of Chateau of Coucy, one of the finest examples extant of a thirteenth century stronghold. The Emperor is said to have to have admired the Chateau of Coucy, and was so entranced with the view from the ramparts that he lingered there several days, yet he is believed to have ordered its destruction. Many tons of high explosives were used on it, and the result is a ruin of a colossal sort. Some of the walls which were destroyed were fourteen feet thick. Throughout the whole region two weeks of the German lust for destruction, working unchecked, did more injury than two and a half years of war.

The front so long held without material change, in the Aisne valley, reveals little sign that war had passed that way. The debris is cleared up, and no material traces are left. The huts have been moved to a new front, and crops are growing where two months ago no man could show his head by daylight and live. Ruined towns along the line of the enemy's retreat will long remain a dreadful evidence of the fury of the Hun in defeat. "Strafe England" was planted on many buildings, but is being removed.

One revolting German decoration is on a huge scale on a wall of a school room at Suzoo. It will be preserved as the picture of a Hun painted by himself. The picture is of two naked prehistoric beings, half man and half devil with small horns and typical demon tails, who are clearly intended to typify the German army and navy, holding up on crossed peacock's feathers a Highlander with wings and a halo. The Calvenistic Scot is dancing over flames, while grotesque manikins, representing all the allied nations, crawl along the stems of the feathers. The whole thing is a gross allegory, intended to convey the idea that the Allies are but as a feather in the bottomless pit compared with the all-powerful Teutons.

When, after looking at the fresco of Susoy, one passes on to Soissons and sees the ruins of the beautiful old cathedral, the cathedral destroyed by German shellfire, it is impossible to repress the idea that the German people have made an ideal of brute force and have destroyed all that is beautiful and of historic interest in the region overrun as an offering to their malign deity. In the wide area of the valleys of Orse and Aisne there is little of value left save the inch of soil in the splendid forests on which prosperity may be rebuilt. Chauny, centre of a glass industry, a place of about 15,000, has not a habitable house left, and the factories were completely wrecked here.

Destruction Wrought Everywhere.

A good omen for the future is a bust of the Republic in plaster, which remains uninjured, high up in an interior wall of the town hall, while the whole outer fabric has been shattered by high explosives.

Noyon escaped because there the people of the surrounding district were herded together while the villages were being destroyed. Many old and feeble folk in these places died as a result of exposure. Noyon has the mark of the Hun in the removal of metal from the fine organ of the ancient cathedral. Biessons itself escaped remarkably. Considering that the enemy has held the line at Lutskirts since the autumn of 1915 the cathderal probably is irreparably damaged. A number of houses north and south of the river were destroyed, and a big distillery devastated, but the residential section is still in a good condition. One of those curious things frequently encountered is the discovery of 100,000 unbroken bottles in a glass factory north of a town held by the Germans. Soissons would have been better pleased if the cathedral had been saved and the bottles smashed.

The Best Medicine for Little Ones

Baby's Own Tablets are the best medicine a mother can give her little ones. They are a gentle laxative — mild but thorough in action—and are guaranteed by a government analyst to be absolutely free from opiates and other injurious drugs. Concerning them Mrs. Auguste, St. Brieux, Sask., writes: "Enclosed find twenty-five cents for another box of Baby's Own Tablets. I find them the very best medicine a mother can give her little ones." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

ACTIVITIES ON FRENCH FRONT

Special to The Examiner:

PARIS, May 30.— Heavy artillery and patrol fighting continued in the Champagne throughout the day.

May 31st
Beatty at Jutland
A Year Ago To-day
led his dashing battle-cruiser squadron against the whole German High Seas Fleet. He not only held them till Jellicoe arrived with his dreadnoughts—he hammered them so hard that they were glad to slink away in the mist to the harbors they have hugged ever since.
Admiral Beatty himself, now Commander-in-chief of the Grand Fleet, is a fitting type of the gallant British tars who guard the freedom of the world. Their sleepless vigil on the Seven Seas has been the dominant factor in changing the Kaiser's dream of world dominion first into a hymn of hate—then into a proposal of peace—and soon now into a plea for mercy.
These are the lean, clean, efficient men who use most regularly and appreciate most thoroughly the Gillette Safety Razor. The Navy certainly believes in clean shaving, and agrees that the Gillette is the only razor that makes it comfortable, or even possible, day by day on a North Sea patrol.
On land as well as on sea the Gillette Safety Razor has made a most emphatic hit with our fighting forces. Yet some of our brave Canadian lads still have to borrow one—or do without?! You could scarcely do a better turn to any one of them, soldier or sailor, than to send him a Gillette Safety Razor and a good supply of blades! Then get one for yourself and you'll see how he will appreciate your gift.

Milk is very good to take out ink spots when they are fresh. It has no effect on dry ink spots.

Was Anaemic
FOR OVER A YEAR

Anaemia, or blood running to water, is caused by the heart becoming deranged, and if the heart becomes weakened it cannot pump the blood as it should. As a result the blood becomes impoverished, and it loses its nourishing qualities. The face becomes pale and thin, and the lips bloodless. There is a weakness, tiredness and loss of weight.

When those suffering from thin or watery blood start taking Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills they can see a change from the outset.

Every dose introduces into the blood those vital elements necessary to make it rich and red. The pale cheeks take on the rosy hue of health, the weight increases, and the whole being thrills with a new life.

Mrs. R. J. Grey, Fredericton, N. B., writes: "When I was a girl working at general house work I overtaxed my strength and became completely run down. For over a year I was very bad with anaemia. A friend told me to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills so I got a box and when it was done I decided to get six more. When I had taken them I gained not only in strength, but in flesh and colour, and best of all was good health."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. a box; three boxes for $1.25 at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

COON FLAT'S FINANCIER

By Frank H. Sweet

"Heered anything 'bout wheat today?" grumbled old Jake as his hired man entered. "Goin' down, of course?"

"No; goin' up," Bill answered promptly. "A man hollered to me from the edge of the hill this mornin' an' said 'twas 70."

"Seventy!" Jake grabbed his crutches and rose totteringly to his feet, but sank back with a snarl of mingled pain and rage. "Seventy cents, an' I've got ninety bushels! Durn the old back! Time I'm over the rheumatics it'll be down to 50, like 'twas last year, an' there'll be a clean loss of $18. Blame it all!"

The face darkened, then grew lighter. Evidently the idea, at first scouted, was being tolerated. That meant the hired man had moved forward.

"I—dunno," doubtfully.

Bill saw his opportunity and rose to it like a man.

"I'll take it down all right," he said confidently. "I've sold wheat to Staunton afore."

"DID YE GIT THE SEVENTY CENTS?" DEMANDED JAKE EAGERLY.

He was thinking of two bushels he had once taken to market for his father, the proceeds of which he had lost on the way home.

Jake snorted. "That's more fallin's than fulgin's in wheat," he snapped, "so I reckon ye'd better go. An', mind, I want ye to git it all in tomorrer."

Bill's head was whirling, but there was Laurel looking at him confidently.

"All right," he said as steadily as he could. "The mules can draw half on the long waggin, an' I'll borry Tom Stuart's mule an' Ike Brown's old hoss an' hitch 'em to Ben Coyner's hay waggin. That'll take the other half. Ike's boy Sam can drive ahind me, so I can keep an eye on to him. Oh, yes; we'll git on fust rate."

Jake nodded approvingly. It was a good plan.

After the wheat was loaded the next morning Bill contrived to draw Laurel into the kitchen for a moment.

"Say, Laurel," he began eagerly, "I—I—say, would ye mind me gittin' a ring to Staunton, a gold ring, for ye an' me?"

"Why, no, I wouldn't mind, Bill," she said simply. "I'll be real glad."

"An'—an' would ye mind speakin' to yer pap 'bout it while I'm gone, Laurel? It might be a good time now I'm a-totin' his wheat."

"N-no; I don't mind."

She watched him from the doorway until the heavy wagons rumbled out of sight; then she went in to her father.

"Pap," she announced abruptly, "Bill's ast me to marry him."

"An' you?"

"I've said yes," composedly.

"Well, mebbe ye know best," he grimaced affably, "but ye know how it is with Bill. Ye'll have to wait till he's sure to keep ye. I don't reckon he's saved enough to buy a runt pig yet."

But Laurel smiled contentedly. People were easily mistaken, she thought. Had Bill not promised her a gold ring out of the plenitude of his riches? So she said softly, "We'll wait till ye say yerse'f that Bill's able to keep me."

Curiously enough, at that very moment Bill was wondering dismally how he would be able to contrive the purchase of a gold ring. Twenty-five cents represented the accumulation of his twenty-five years.

They expected him back by the end of the third day. It was the afternoon of the sixth when he returned. As he dismissed young Sam and attended to his mules there was a look of beatific joy upon his face, which remained there until he opened the cabin door and saw the expectant face of Jake. Then he whitened and staggered to the nearest chair.

"Did ye git the 70 cents?" demanded Jake eagerly.

Bill gasped and tried to collect his thoughts. What was he here for? It was about the wheat, wasn't it? He had almost forgotten that unimportant matter after the gold ring took possession of his mind. He remembered the wheat had been taken to the storeroom of a big flouring mill and that he had told a clerk he would be back later and attend to its sale. Then he had hurried away in search of a job of hauling with the mules and had carted sand two days for $6 and had bought the gold ring. And he had given Sam the 25 cents to pay his fare to a cousin's to get him out of the way for the two days. That was all, only he had forgotten to go back and sell the wheat.

Bill felt that it was a crisis with him, and he drew a long, hard breath.

"Ye see, it's this a-way," he said. "Signs are for risin', an' I ain't sold yet. But I'll go down"— He was about to say "to once," but restrained himself, for that might betray him. He added instead, "But I'll go down in a few days an' see how the risin' is comin' on."

Under ordinary circumstances the invalid would not have controlled his astonishment and wrath, but this was an extraordinary opportunity, and Jake was nothing if not diplomatic, so he forced himself into a semblance of composure.

"Waal, it's yer lookout, Bill," he said significantly. "I ordered ye to sell, an' of course I'll hold ye responsible for all fallin's from the 70 cents."

It was a very miserable Bill who went out to attend to the evening chores. He imagined all sorts of fallings—from a life of toil spent in atoning for the carelessness to the probable loss of Laurel. He stuck it out, however, until the third morning. Then he left the cabin with steady, confident strides, which, however, changed to frantic haste as soon as he was beyond view of Laurel in the doorway.

But the mills of the gods sometimes turn out unaccountable grist. When Bill returned at the end of one short twenty-four hours, his face was again expressive of beatific joy.

Going straight to Jake, he handed him a roll of bills. "The risin' was even better than I 'lowed on," he said nonchalantly. "I sold for a dollar. Ye see, thar was signs of breakin', an' I 'lowed I better not hold on any longer."

Jake gazed at the money; at the strong, handsome figure before him; at Laurel, smiling a few feet away, and bowed his head in surrender.

"I reckon I might 'a' been mistook, Laurel," he said submissively. "Bill will be able to keep ye, sure 'nough."

Environment and Genius.

It appears that a child born where he could first wittingly open his eyes upon a noble square, framed in by palaces whose frescoed and sculptured fronts should face in gardened spaces a lovely fountain with groups of beautiful statuary glimpsed through the leaves and waters, ought to feel the impulse to creative art far more than a child that first looks out on a barn and a henhouse, with a pump in the foreground and a woodshed straggling along in the middle distance and some cattle emerging from the background, or on an empty village street, athwart a dooryard with the Monday's wash hanging out in it. Yet the chances immensely are that the farm born or village born boy will feel the divine insistence which will not visit the soul of the city born child, or if city birth is not wholly alien to the creative will that it shall stir in the spirit of some boy born in a mean house on a back street or over a shop and not in the heart of a boy born in a palace on a noble square. As yet no one can say why this should be, though no one can deny that it is so, and we venture with much modest misgiving a theory which will not perhaps hold halfway, if so far as that.—W. D. Howells in Harper's Magazine.

When Women Were Captured.

In Deuteronomy xx. 14, women are classed as spoils, and in Deuteronomy xxi. 11, 14, are the regulations to be observed in taking to wife a woman captured in war. In the song of praise attributed to Deborah and Barak when exulting over the defeat and death of Sisera we find (Judges v. 30). "Have they not speed? Have they not divided the prey—to every man a damsel or two?"

These are all cases of capture de facto, and they show conclusively that the Israelites captured women and took them to wife. That it was also a common practice among the neighboring nations we infer from I. Samuel xxx. 5, where David's two wives are carried off by a raiding party of Amalekites.

SOME FARM NOTES.

Give the poultry lots of free range in June, open to the run of the kitchen garden.

Keep the weeds down, even before they go to seed; the weeds do damage by choking the crop and using up moisture and plant foods.

Applications of nitrate of soda on truck crops will usually prove beneficial. Scatter about two ounces to the square yard broadcast.

When picking beans for eating green, leave a few for seed; just remember what you had to pay for a small package this spring.

If you must guess at the amount of hay that you are selling from your mow allow 500 cubic feet to the ton if the hay has been stored all winter.

Damping off of young plants may be due to lack of air and sunshine. Thin out the growth in such cases, and stir up the ground between the plants.

About June 1st is a good time to plant beans for threshing crop. Plant small white beans in rows 30 to 36 inches apart; the seed four inches apart in the row.

Thorough ventilation is what is aimed at in the use of open front poultry houses; not an excess of low temperature. If this can be obtained in a moderately warm house, by all means have both.

Kerosene, 2 gals, rainwater, 1 gal.; soap 1-2 gal., is the right spray to use for sucking insects on garden crops. Heat the water and add the soap, stirring until dissolved, then pour into the kerosene and churn the whole until a thick creamy emulsion forms. Dilute this stock solution with nine times its measure of water when ready to apply.

BAD COLD IN THE CHEST

HOW TO KEEP WELL

TO PASS COMFORTABLY THROUGH MENSTRUATION.

RATIONAL METHOD is all that is necessary, excepting in those cases where correction of anatomical defects may exist. Woman's early training teaches that bathing must not be done during the menstrual period. Therefore, at the time she needs it most bathing is done the least. In inquiring into the cause of this very general rule I find that in most instances girls and women have lived under conditions where cold water was the only kind obtainable, with extra trouble, and not much privacy in the home was possible. If anyone they ever heard about had bathed at such times, such practice was held to be the cause of any illness, from dropsy to tuberculosis, which might develop. Therefore modesty and fear were the prevailing first causes of personal uncleanliness at this time. They were the foundations on which the teaching was based.

Conditions of living have improved. Hot water arrangements are almost as general and necessary as cold water arrangements. A special room is now set aside for toilet purposes where the individual occupant can isolate herself. Not only can she have hot water, but she has a bathtub especially adapted for her purposes, and, most important, she can regulate the temperature of the bathroom to suit her needs. Even if it has no special heating apparatus, she can heat it by running the tub full of hot water first and cool the water down after the steam has heated the room. Temperature is the most important element at the menstrual times and the factor which should entirely dissolve any persisting fear. It was the cold water and the probable cold room that prolonged the fear of bathing at this time.

The woman of to-day not only can use a warm bathroom, but she has hot water or water tempered as she wishes it. Many bathrooms have a special tub for her—the Sitz bath—but where this is missing she can get the same effect, though somewhat less conveniently, by using the ordinary tub.

During ten days of every month of a woman's menstrual life there is an increasing activity of the ovaries and the glandular structures of the uterus. A portion of this activity is in preparation for and a portion of it is a part of menstruation. This means increased blood in the structures involved, slower circulation through the parts, their size and weight, accompanied by feelings of tension and heaviness, varying from slight unconsciousness to aches or acute pain, as the case may be.

Behind the uterus lies a plexus of nerves, sometimes called the abdominal brain, which controls sensation and blood supply and connects up with the bladder, rectum, uterus, and appendages, and even the external genitals. Any irritation to one or another of the pelvic organs supplied by this nerve counteracts on the entire group of organs. The uterus itself is in part a gland, its mucous lining being rich in glands. Here are also the terminations of minute blood spaces. It is also in part a muscle, the muscle bands lying in layers. In each layer the muscle bands are distributed in such a manner that the size, shape, and length of the layer can be absolutely changed by the kind of stimulus to which it reacts.

Just before a menstruation the uterus is very irritable, and its muscular fibres act to their physiological limit. At the beginning of menstruation the glands act to a point where the secretions and the blood supply to the lining membrane is exhausted. Then the muscular activity again comes into prominence.

This should be the predominating factor during the intramenstrual period. The activity is as rhythmic as is breathing and should be as painless. Anything which affects its rhythm is disturbing to the other pelvic organs. For this reason any agent which will equalize the circulation or which will produce congestion in the periphery of the body and which will stimulate rhythm is indicated.

Nothing is so efficient as the Sitz bath to accomplish all purposes desired—cleanliness, loss of symptoms, and limitation of time involved. It is best taken when a woman can rest for a short time afterward. The bath should be begun at body temperature—that is, so that she feels practically no difference between the temperature of the body uncovered, the water, and the room. The water should cover the hips, come about to the navel, but never above the waist line. The temperature should then be increased to the point of tolerance from time to time until the skin of the abdomen is deeply reddened. Then the water should be allowed to run out and the cold to run in at the same time until comfortably cool. A general bath at this time—that is, the immersion of the whole body—should not be taken.

FIGHT THE SUBMARINES BY GROWING MORE BEANS

Written for The Farmers by R. H. Abraham, B.S.A.

Beans Are One of the Most Concentrated Foods That We Can Load Our Diminishing Tonnage With — Beans or Bread — Varieties Best Liked.

CULTURAL METHODS FOR BEANS;

To-day we have a great problem to solve in the German submarine. The burning problem is how to dodge it, how to destroy it, in order to keep the British people supplied with food.

One thing is plain, we will have to be more conservant of tonnage. Not only will we have to ship only necessary foods, but we will have to pay more attention to the space occupied in the hold of a ship in proportion to its food value.

This year, with the shortage of labour, a smaller acreage of wheat and spring grain was planned. This could not be helped, it cannot be remedied, as the season is far advanced, but what can still be planted is beans, and beans are one of the most concentrated foods that we can load our diminishing tonnage with.

Beans are an Indian grain. It was the Indian women of Central America who nursed this great grain into being. It was under their patient care and skill that this plant was brought to its present state of perfection.

Beans are legumes; they draw a high percentage of their plant food from the air. They are therefore easy on the land. They are not only easy on the land, but they do for our land the same as clover, store up nitrogen in their roots, and leave a supply there for the succeeding crops. We might say that, in the growing of beans, we are harvesting a crop of atmosphere, and fertilising the land at the same time.

A CONCENTRATED FOOD.

Beans are not excelled by any of our crops used for food. In our foods we have a substance called protein. This protein is built up of nitrogen, and is used by our bodies to form flesh. Protein is the most expensive form of food to produce. In protein beans are richer than meat, or any other grains. Beefsteak contains 17 per cent. Beans are also of greater value than meats for energy producers. It will, therefore be plain that a shipload of beans will contain almost three times the food value of any other grains, and more than an equal weight of meats, and will be much more easily handled in transit.

Beans as a food sprang into prominence during the American Civil war. It was found at that time that a soldier could take a week's provisions to the firing line in the form of pork and beans. At first they were used principally by the lumbermen, frontiersmen, hunters, trappers, and men who performed hard work, but to-day they are served in almost every home; rich men, poor men, alike, relish this splendid dish.

BEANS OR BREAD.

In this year of greater production, we should not consider the cost of food production in money; the standard we should set for ourselves in days of labour. The food that contains the greatest amount of food value and that is produced with the smallest amount of labour should get the preference. Let us compare beans with our most popular food, bread.

In growing wheat, the crop has to be planted in the fall of the year; the ground has to be prepared at the time when it is most difficult to plow and work up. It is planted in the fall, and we take a chance of it not being winter killed or heaved. In the spring it must be harrowed or rolled to break the crust. In cutting we have to use a machine that required many days of labour to construct, and use twine to tie it up, which again took labour to produce. We have to employ a most expensive machine to thrash it.

We sell it to the grain dealer, who in turn sells it to some pit gambler, who gambles with it until the price has gone up many times, then it gets into the hands of the miller, who puts it through a long, expensive process, which requires many more days of labour. From the mill it goes, in the form of flour, to the wholesaler, then to the retailer, and after some farmer buys it the work has just begun. The housewife mixes it, kneeds it, puts it to rise, kneeds it again, lets it rise again, puts it down in loaves, lets it rise again, then puts it in the oven, and after all this, if the fire has not been too hot or too cold, we have something to eat.

CULTURAL METHODS FOR BEANS.

What about beans? For ease of working the ground should be ploughed in the fall of the year. As soon as the spring opens, it should be harrowed or cultivated once each week until the first of June. This sprouts and kills the weeds and makes their eradication, later on, more simple. They are planted with a common grain drill, 28 inches apart in the row, about 1 1-2 in. deep, at the rate of 1-2 to 3-4 of a bushel to the acre. Cultivation should start in 5 or 6 days after planting, and be repeated each week or after each rain, but under no consideration should they be cultivated when the leaves are wet or have dew on, as this encourages the spread of anthracnose, a fungus which sometimes does great damage. They should be hoed to keep down the weeds. Cultivation should cease when the blossoms appear, as they are tender and easily broken off.

The harvesting is done with an inexpensive machine. The cultivator is equipped with a knife which costs about $12. This machine cuts two rows at once, the "rowing" is done with a side delivery hay rake. After they are rowed up they should be turned over two or three times. This can be done with a fork or the side delivery rake. After they are dry they are hauled to the barn or stack. If they are stacked, the top should be well thatched with corn stalks or hay to prevent them from being spoiled with wet. The threshing is done with an old grain mill, fixed over, or a special bean mill, or flailed out.

VARIETIES BEST LIKED.

After thrashing, if you wish to have a mess, all you have to do is to place them in a pot, with a piece of pork, and in a short time you have a dish fit for a king. This is less than half the labour of preparing bread.

There are many different varieties, the Michigan Pea Bean is the earliest and most in favour, although the Yellow Eye (Molasses Eye) seems to resist the anthracnose the best. The above two varieties are almost universally grown. The medium and large white variety is too late for most parts.

Beans will grow on a variety of soils, but are best suited to sandy loam. They will do well on clay loam, if the season is not too wet. They grow best in the counties along the lake; but they are grown and can be grown successfully in almost every county in Ontario.

Anthracnose was very bad in 1914 and 1915, but the 1916 dry season gave it a bad set back. It is not likely to be troublesome for some time to come, as the seed of this year's crop is comparatively clean, better than has been planted for a number of years.

In growing food, one should keep in mind that the need is immediate, that in looking around for a supply of protein food we can not depend on meats. This year the supply is very small. To grow more meat will take time. Beans will supply this protein cheaply and quickly. It will be a great saving in ships. They can be planted as late as June 15th, later than almost any other crop.

Therefore, we can continue our efforts in the production of food, by planting all ground that cannot be planted to earlier crops, to beans.

It is the patriotic duty of every farmer who can grow some of this cheap food to do so this year, if only for his own use.

R. H. ABRAHAM.

When the train stopped at an inland Alabama station the Northern tourist sauntered out on the platform. Beneath a tall pine stood a lean animal with scraggly bristles. The tourist was interested.

"What do you call that?" he queried of a lanky "cracker."

"Well, what is he doing, rubbing against the tree?"

"He's stropping himself mister; jest stropping himself."

LOCAL WEEKLY MARKET REPORT

There is a growing impatience with the lack of information as to the prospects of the cheese market, and the continual silence of the commission appointed to purchase cheese for the British markets. Five weeks have passed without any signs of action. It is understood that most of the make is going into storage with 20c paid on it on an agreement between salesmen and buyers that it will be sold on the first board at the market price after buying is resumed. The high price of the past week has been 23c.

Butter is weaker and it is believed that it may soon drop back to 35c. The Sun says:

"Creamery butter is quoted at lower prices this week at Toronto, as a result of the general uncertainty that has hit the market. Fear of food control and the knowledge that the prices have been unreasonably high, has warned the trade that it must 'go slow,' and much care is being exercised in the buying that is done for storage purposes."

Matthews-Blackwell quote $16 for live hogs, a drop of 40c in the week.

GRAIN PRICES.

Wheat, per bush.	$2.50
Oats, per bush	.80
Rye, per bush	$1.25
Barley, per bush	$1.15
Small peas, per bush.	$2.50
Blue peas, per bush.	$2.00
Buckwheat, per bush.	$1.25

HIDES.

The prices of hides are as follows:

Veal skins	25c to 28c
"Deacons" each	$1 to $1.50
Yearling "runner kip"	15c to 17c
Sheep skins	$1 to $3
Tallow, per lb.	7c to 8c
Washed wool, per lb.	45c to 47c
Unwashed wool, per lb.	35c to 37c

NERVOUS CHILDREN

From early spring until July is the time that St. Vitus' Dance usually develops, and nervous children should be carefully watched during that time for symptoms of the disease. Irritability is one of the first signs noted. The child frets, is quarrelsome and does not sleep well. The jerky movements that characterize the disease comes a little later. The patient becomes pale, languid, and often constipated. The limbs and sometimes the whole body jerks spasmodically, and in severe cases the power of speech is affected. Such a child should not be allowed to study, but should be kept quiet, given a nutritious diet, remain out of doors as much as possible, and above all things given a course of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to build up the blood and strengthen the nerves. Without this treatment St. Vitus' Dance may become chronic, and the patient a life long sufferer. Mrs. W. A. Squires, Cannington, Ont., says: "A few years ago my only daughter was troubled with St. Vitus' Dance. She was so bad she would lose control of her limbs, and her face would become contorted. We had to take her from school and had her under a doctor's care, but it did not help her. After the trouble had gone on for some time we finally decided to give her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and by the time she had taken five boxes she was completely cured, and has had no sign of the trouble since."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville Ont.

Tommy To Hunt World for Girl Who Gave Rose

LONDON, Ont., May 29.—Only a tiny cluster of red cloth flowers, torn impulsively from a woman's hat and tossed to a soldier swinging past her automobile to entrain for overseas, but it passed through the battles of St. Elio and the third Ypres, and after traveling more than 6,000 miles, has been brought safely back to Canada again by the soldier hero who treasured it, through the fire and suffering of battle, the long, weary months of his convalescence in French and English hospitals.

When Private Stanley Snelling, who returned a few days ago to the Central Military hospital at London, Ont., was leaving for France with the Eighteenth Western Ontario battalion a little over two years ago, an unknown woman tossed him the flowers from her hat.

"Bring it back to me," she called.

"I will do that," he promised as his battalion moved to the waiting trains before he had time to speak or further ascertain her name.

Private Snelling has been twice wounded, the last time, so severely with machine gun fire that he was invalided home to Canada. Now he wishes to meet the girl for whom, like the gallant knights of old, he carried the little token.

Announcements published in the local newspapers have failed to find a claimant for the flowers. Perhaps the fair one no longer resides in London. Perhaps two years ago she was only a visitor or tourist here.

But if she is anywhere in America between Florida and the Yukon territory Private Snelling states he is going to find her and return to her the flowers as he promised, as soon as he is able to leave the hospital.

WILD MEETING AT COAST.

Anti-Draft Gathering Broke Up in Disorder.

VANCOUVER, May 30.— Wild and tumultuous was the scene at the anti-conscription meeting at the Cambie street grounds last night; discordant bellowing and picturesque epithets of every description filled the night air and made anything approaching order an impossibility.

After much noise and vain efforts at speech-making a returned soldier forced his way to the front of the platform and asked permission to speak, which was granted. So incessant were the cheers from his comrades and the ladies of the audience that the chairman said that seeing the impossibility of carrying on an orderly meeting he would suggest that some one make the motion to adjourn the meeting until Thursday night, which was eventually done.

The Vancouver Board of Trade yesterday passed a resolution endorsing conscription.

Little Boy Had Eczema

On Face and Hands—Local Doctors Treated Him in Vain—How Cure Was Finally Effected.

Trenton, Ont., May 31.—This letter will interest all mothers of young children, because it tells of the best means obtainable of overcoming the annoying and torturing skin troubles which come to so many children.

Mrs. Waldron had several doctors treating her boy for eczema, but all in vain. Finally she heard about Dr. Chase's Ointment and her letter tells of the wonderful results obtained by the use of this soothing, healing ointment.

Mrs. Samuel Waldron, George street, Trenton, Ont., writes: "About four years ago, my little boy had a rash on his face and hands which the doctor called Eczema. He gave us a wash for it, and some ointment, which we used, but without benefit. I think we tried all the doctors here. Finally we tried Dr. Chase's Ointment, and gave it a good trial. We could see that it was gradually healing. At first it appeared to burn the skin, then this skin would peel up, finally he got rid of it entirely. During the winters of the next two years we noticed a symptom of the disease under the skin. Each time we used more Dr. Chase's Ointment curing it both times. For the last two years he has not had any return symptoms at all, so we think that he is now entirely cured."

CANADA NEEDS HER FARMERS

The Empire is looking to Canada for food, and the farmer is the chief factor in its production. In these days of scarce help every farmer must work his hardest, and every farmer knows from painful experience that it is his back that first feels the strain. Almost every movement, whether with the plow, the fork, the hoe or in the harvest field, tests the muscles of the back and kidneys. A pain in the small of the back is the warning that inflammation, although slight at first, but persistent, has started in the kidneys or surrounding tissue.

Farmers, if you only knew how quickly Gin Pills soothe and heal the overworked and strained kidneys and restore perfect harmony between the kidneys and the bladder, making both work as nature intended them to do and in the process also relieve you of rheumatism, painful urination or other troubles incident to impaired kidneys, you would not delay a moment.

Gin Pills are also a gentle laxative and are wonderful, not only in their effect on the kidneys and bladder, but they keep the bowels in perfect condition.

We want every lame-backed farmer to try Gin Pills. Go to your dealer and buy a box. If you do not get relief, we will refund your money, or a free trial sample will be sent on request to National Drug and Chemical Company of Canada, Limited, Toronto. 96

THE FRENCH REPULSE TERRIFIC ATTACKS BY HUN HORDES

Heavy Assaults at Different Points Throughout the Night Resulted in Heavy Losses for the Enemy. A Portentious "Quiet" on the British Front Where the Germans Are Plainly Puzzled by the Lull in the General Offensive Movement.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

Special to The Examiner:

PARIS, May 31.—(French Official).—In the Champagne enemy attacks north-west of Auberive and Mont Blond were driven back, to-day's statement said. "Attacks were concentrated on our positions at Teton, Casque and Mont Haut at four different times, and with extreme desperation. The attacks began at 2 a.m. and ended at daylight. The enemy waves were broken by our fire, and our bayonets forced a disorderly retreat with heaviest losses to them. The only spot in which the enemy obtained a fractional foothold was in advanced trenches around Mont Haut. We took a few prisoners. Around Verdun there was a violent artillery duel. Lively cannonading was continuing around St. Quentin, Chemin Des Dames, North of Jouy, and towards Cerny and Hutebise."

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, May 31.—Local attacks, raids, mutual bombardments, incessant minor activity continued today all along the front, but there was portentous "quiet" in the strictly military sense. No masses of troops were in action. A small British attack south of the Scarpe, staged this morning, was a failure. The Prussians were too wide awake to make the surprise a success. At 3.30 a.m. the British guns began an active bombardment of the Hindenburg line north-west of Bullecourt, and for some distance along that sector. Half an hour later the enemy retaliated with a similar period of artillery fire against the British positions west of Bullecourt and south-east of Croisilles. In the meantime the British nipped an attempted German raid around Fleurbax and sent the Boches scurrying back across "No Man's Land." The Germans are plainly puzzled by the lull in the general offensive movement. Their lines are excited into irruptions of star shells and volleys of machine gun fire at the slightest movement in the British trenches.

PETROGRAD, May 31.—The Russian called international Socialists' conference will be held at Stockholm between July 15 and 30, according to a decision reached by the Soldiers' and Workmen's Council to-day. Final approval of the date was left to the Dutch International Socialist Bureau the Berne Commission. The above conference is not to be confused with the so-called "International Peace Conference," delegates for which are now arriving in Stockholm, and which has been German inspired and has prospects of being entirely German controlled.

LONDON, May 31.—The resumption of fairly active artillery firing on both sides in a few sectors and the repulse of a trench raid was all that was reported in to-day's statement from Field Marshal Haig.

"South of Armentieres a hostile raiding party was driven off early this morning," he said. "A few prisoners were taken. In the neighbourhood of Bullecourt and to the right of the Scarpe there was considerable artillerying on both sides at night."

LONDON, May 31.—Both Britain and Germany celebrated victories in the battle of Jutland to-day. Here in London there were memorial services, largely attended by officials and navy officers and men. Despatches from Berlin said the observance there was in the form of a great benefit for the relief of the families of submarine crews, held in the Reichstag building, with all the Government officials present.

LONDON, May 31.—G. H. Roberts, of the majority branch, and Ramsay MacDonald, of the minority section, both of the British Socialist party, announced to-day they will shortly leave for Petrograd for a conference with Russian Socialists.

Presumably they will go with the sanction of the Government. They had been refused passports to the Stockholm German called "Peace Conference."

Election May Be The Only Solution

Situation at Ottawa Is As Obscure As Ever — Coalition Which Yesterday Seemed To Be A Probability Does Not Even Seem A Possibility To-day

Special to the Examiner:

OTTAWA, Ont., May 31.—Coalition which yesterday seemed to be a probability, to-day does not seem to be even a possibility. Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Fred Pardee, his Chief Whip, have returned this morning from Montreal, and though neither have spoken officially as to the result of their visit, the impression has got around that the situation is as obscure as ever. The idea is growing on both sides that an election is impending as the only solution for the present difficulties.

Coalition doesn't appear to be popular among the rank and file of either party. Old line Ontario Tories are quite frankly bitterly opposed to taking into the Cabinet of Liberal elements, while many Liberal members appear to be quite as much opposed to the idea at this late date.

There is also a deep conviction that coalition and conscription under the existing conditions cannot go hand in hand.

However, the leaders have as yet said nothing, and it is the leaders who will work out the destiny of the parties and the country.

It is believed that the Government's conscription measure will provide for a wide variety of exemptions, in the matter of employment and number of dependents, and that in its completed state it will go far to dissipate some part of the opposition to it which at present exists. "Essential" will be applied to a wide variety of industries.

Present indications are that the Government will proceed with a reconstruction of the Cabinet, and will take its chances in putting the measure through the Commons and the Senate.

There is little hope now that the Premier's bold announcement of two weeks ago will be crystallized into legislation until next week.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 31.—The Government has temporarily abandoned the idea of a food dictator, and is preparing an Order-in-Council, which provides for a food commission instead. This body would consists of five members, but the personnel has not yet been announced.

Flying Corps Cadet Killed In Accident

Lieut. Vernon Castle, Who Was With Him Had Miraculous Escape from Death

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, May 31.—W. E. Fraser, of Winnipeg, a Canadian aviation cadet, was killed, and Lieut. Vernon Castle, the well known dancer and aviation instructor, had a miraculous escape, at the Royal Flying Corps' training ground, Mohawk Camp, Desoronto, yesterday.

Castle and his pupil were just ascending for a flight when something went wrong with the engine and there was an explosion. The machine smashed into a building and Castle was thrown out on to the roof. The cadet was burned to death in the aeroplane. Castle is not badly hurt.

Application Is Refused

Roland Butcher Must Remain With His Foster Father

Special to The Examiner:

OSGOODE HALL, Toronto, May 31.—Harold Butcher, aged 12, whose parents live in Peterborough, will remain with his foster father, Albert Moody, a farmer, of Minden, Haliburton, the father's application for the boy's custody having been dismissed by the Divisional Court. The boy is satisfied where he is, and the fact that the lad is on a farm weighed with the judges in war time. The parents, however, are at liberty to renew their request some time in the future.

LIEUT. H. S. MATTHEWS

The Toronto Star says: Lieut. Harold Stratton Matthews, missing since June last, is now declared to have fallen in action. For many months after his disappearance hope was held out by his father, Mr. T. F. Matthews, of the Matthews-Blackwell Ltd., that he had been captured, but full inquiries through many sources failed to find any trace of him. From the evidence received from those who were near him at the time, and from brother officers, it is shown that Lieut. Matthews gave up his own life in an attempt to save the lives of those who were forced to retire June 2 when the Germans gained part of the British trenches. Lieut. Matthews was then acting as forward serving officer for his battery and he continued to give firing directions to his men until after the Germans had entered the Canadian trenches.

Lieut. Matthews was 22 years of age. He graduated from the Royal Military College in June, 1914, as head of his class and winner of the Governor-General's medal. When war was declared he volunteered for active service and left Canada with the first contingent. He was gassed at St. Julien but returned to the renches after three weeks' rest. Since then he had been continually with his battery. A younger brother, Lieut. Gordon Matthews is now with a trench mortar battery of the 3rd Division.

PTE. DAVID TEAR.

Pte. David Tear, who enlisted here in October of 1915 with the 93rd Peterborough Battalion, is officially reported wounded to-day. No particulars have been received as to the nature of his injuries. Pte. Tear went overseas as a member of A Company of the 93rd, and was transferred to another Canadian battalion in France.

LANCE CORP. ERIC STUART.

Mr. R. N. Stuart, of 701 Stewart street, has received word that his son, Lance Corporal Eric Stuart, is now in Edinburgh War Hospital, Bangor, Scotland, Ward 10, suffering from a compound fracture of the foot.

The following letter from Lieut. C. R. Widdifield, formerly of the 93rd Battalion, and now in France, has been received by the Examiner:

Somewhere in France,
May 8th, 1917

Since writing you a few days ago I have had the opportunity of speaking with quite a few influential friends, including both English and French. It certainly would astonish you, as well as all other American citizens, to know what effect the entry of United States into this great war means to the nations now engaged. Personally, I always regarded our neighbouring country as a great nation, but never for a minute did I think that the European countries, including Germany, looked to the United States as a world power. However, you would be surprised, not only with wonder, but with esteem, to see how the great nations on this side of the water looked up to the United States and regard her entry into the fight for liberty and justice.

A few days ago the United States was the laughing stock of the whole universe (except Germany), but now her name stands foremost amongst nations, and undoubtedly she has more than redeemed herself in the eyes of the whole world. Everywhere you go, no matter where, every one speaks in honour of the United States, and the old thought that the Munroe doctrine proclaimed America to be outside the pale of Europe, is long since exploded.

Many people are of the opinion that the entry of the United States into the war will link up the old and the new world in a way never before conceived of, attesting a moral purpose, heralding a new era of human progress. How far this may be true I cannot say, but at the same time there is no doubt but that America will be recognized as one of the premium nations of the world, who stands for the positive object of securing an organized peace based upon a League of Nations.

Are Marking Time Still at Ottawa

The Conscription Bill May Not Be Brought Down Until Next Week and It is Stated That It Will Be Much "Milder" in Its Character Than Was Expected.

COALITION GOSSIP

OTTAWA, May 30.—The conscription bill, when it comes before Parliament, which may possibly not be until some time next week, will probably turn out to be much less drastic than has been generally expected. The aim of the Government, it is said, now is to bring in a 'mild' measure, which will minimise, as far as possible, the considerable opposition which exists among Government members and party supporters, inside and outside of the House, both on principle and in regard to its individual effect. It is understood that the drafting and redrafting of the details are in charge of Sir Robert Borden, Hon. Mr. Doherty and Hon. Arthur Meighen.

Well authenticated, rumor has it that the plan the Government are now working on is to specify a large number of exemptions, according to industries, to which conscription will not apply. It is understood that these exempted industries will include agriculture, mining, fishing, transportation, and all other industries which might be included under the somewhat vague term "essential." Business must not be unduly interfered with, and on this assumption it may be found that the conscription measure will apply practically only to the young men who are not engaged at all in any form of productive or necessary work. On this basis it is hoped by the Government that there may be a chance of securing something like unanimity on the measure in the Commons.

NO DEFINITE DEVELOPMENT YET.

Until the fog lifts over the political situation, and the Prime Minister sees some rays of light ahead in regard to Cabinet reconstruction, or coalition, or extension, or election prospects, it is probable that no debate on the bill will be precipitated. So far as could be learned, there were no definite developments in the situation to-day. Coalition talk is still heard on many sides, but there is nothing authoritative yet. Leaders on both sides are non-committal, and there is no reason to believe that any agreements have been reached. A considerable proportion of members on both sides predict that the atmosphere will be cleared only by a general election.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, accompanied by Mr. F. M. Macdonald and Mr. Fred F. Pardee, was in Montreal to-day conferring with friends there, with a view to securing all possible counsels which might be helpful in reaching the wisest solution of the difficult and dangerous problems now confronting Parliament.

SIR WILFRID IN MONTREAL.

Montreal, May 30.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier arrived in Montreal shortly after noon to-day, and was met at the station by Sir Lomer Gouin, Prime Minister of the Province of Quebec and many other Liberal leaders. Sir Wilfrid and Sir Lomer and a number of other representatives of Liberal opinion in the Province of Quebec had a chat during the afternoon.

QUEBEC LIBERALS AGAINST COALITION.

The question has been raised in Liberal circles in the last day or two of Sir Lomer Gouin entering a coalition Government as representative of the Province of Quebec, he, as Prime Minister of the Province of Quebec for the past twelve years—the longest administration of any Prime Minister, since Federation in this Province—being felt to fully represent the Province. No statement of a definite nature as to Sir Lomer's ideas on such a subject are given out but the impression is that he, in common, with Liberals, is opposed to a coalition government at the present time.

The opposition of the Quebec Liberal to anything pertaining to a coalition government is based on the belief that the time for such an arrangement should have come at the beginning of the war, and not when three years of war have passed, with all the acts of administration that have followed since, and of which the Liberals feel that they would have to share the responsibility should they join the Conservatives in a coalition Cabinet.

$1,852,218 IS ESTIMATED LOSS IN THE BIG FIRE

Report of Adjusters for the Insurance Companies in Connection With the Quaker Oats Disaster Has Just Been Completed

THE INSURANCE HEAVY

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, May 31.—The report of the adjusters for the insurance companies of the loss by fire on the Quaker Oats Co. plant at Peterborough on December 11 last is completed. The sound value of the plant before the fire is estimated at $2,228,416. The loss as adjusted is $1,852,218, and the loss to insurance companies $1,117,288. The total insurance carried was $1,208,500. Of the total insurance payable, $661,193 is with unlicensed companies, which is subject to a tax of one per cent., payable to the Provincial Government under the Fire Marshal Act. The adjusters were Geo. R. Branson, of New York and Chas. D. Cory, of Toronto.

Heavy Loss Through Fire

Robert Jenkins' Barns Are Burned — Machinery Destroyed

Special to The Examiner:

LINDSAY, Ont., May 31.— Robert Junkin, of Verluam, a prosperous farmer, met with a serious loss yesterday morning. His fine large barn, 118 by 45, and straw barn 28 by 35, were totally destroyed by fire. The hen house was being fumigated with burning sulphur when it caught fire, presumably from that source. Besides the barn, Mr. Junkin lost a seeder roller, harrows, fanning mill and weigh scales. Mr. Junkin was seriously burned about the hands.

STEAMER ISLINDA A TOTAL LOSS

The Cause of the Fire Is Unknown — Formed Bucket Brigade

The steamer "Islanda" is practically a total loss as a result of a fire which broke out in the foreward cabin early this morning. The vessel, which is the property of the Stoney Lake Navigation Company was tied up at the wharf at Young's Point above the lock. About two-thirty this morning, Mrs. Lovell who lives near the wharf noticed a reflection and looking out of the window, discovered the upper part of the boat in flames. The alarm was given and a bucket brigade formed of about twenty-five men. Despite the efforts of the workers, the boat was practically burned to the water's edge. The whole upper part of the boat was destroyed together with a part of the hull.

The boat had been in commission yesterday and was tied up to the wharf about five o'clock. The "Islanda" will be missed from the Kawartha lakes as it has been in the service for a number of years. The cause of the fire is unknown.

TWO KINDS OF CONSCRIPTION.

Sir Robert Borden perhaps got his idea of "selective" conscription from the Agricultural Department. The Dairy Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, has issued a bulletin demonstrating the advantages and extra profit derived from "selected" cows. Experiment has shown that the draft of milk got from cows impressed into service by the "selective" method abundantly repay the cost of extra rations—extra feed. We are given striking examples of the big milk yields of cows put to do their bit by the "selective" method. Unfortunately, however, the "selective" conscription of our manhood is apt to work reversely to dairying. In dairying they have the best to select from; whereas, in recruiting, the best have gone to the front, and we have only the "culls," so to speak, upon which to practice "selective" conscription. Conscription may be a regrettable necessity, but it is a humiliating thing for Canada, which jumped into the fighting game with four hundred thousand volunteers, any one of them worth two enforced fighters. We might not have had to resort to conscription, selective or otherwise, if the government had taken one-tenth of the official interest in recruiting, that the Dairy Branch takes in getting recruits for the dairy herds of the country.

We have sent the cream of the country to the fighting line; it would take a military De Laval separator to get much cream from the skim-milk manhood left.

A KING IN OVERALLS.

A British monarch may not have brilliant brains, but he has a splendid equivalent, common sense. King George, as a constitutional figurehead, hasn't had much chance to figure largely in the war, but as far as his influence has gone it has been on the right side. He sent his son and heir to the fighting line, and sent himself in the dry line—he led the nation in banishing wines from the family table, proscribed luxurious diet, and prescribed three-course dinners. He ploughed up for production historic Windsor Park, that has never felt the point of the plough since William the Conqueror; and he has selected, and has been assigned, his plot and is hoeing potatoes like the ordinary man and—extraordinary monarch he is. Now he is acting otherwise as if he realised that the country is at war. King George's birthday falls on June 3rd—on a Sunday this year—and its observance has been decreed for the Monday following, and it is also decreed that the observance of his birthday shall be marked by no "dinners, reviews, salutes or other demonstrations." The Duke of Devonshire, our Governor-General, has made proclamation through the Canada Gazette, calling upon us Canadians to "take notice, and govern ourselves accordingly."

We can better realise that we are fighting in this war in the interests of democracy, when we have as constitutional "commander-in-chief, a democratic King like King George, who thinks more of his potato plot than of the pomp and circumstance of birth-day demonstrations, and calls for a quiet birth-day—possibly because of his reluctance to be bothered with changing his overalls for court dress, and laying aside his hoe to swing the sceptre. Long live King George! God save the King!

"Our august and imperial cousin," the late Czar of Russia, is hoeing potatoes, too—but he has to; and he has no sceptre to swing.

THE WICKEDNESS OF WASTE.

Waste at any time, and almost any kind of waste, is wicked; but at this time of our necessity, and food scarcity and food necessity, waste is criminal. We don't realise it in this country, where is a criminally created scarcity, with abundance of food in existence; and there is no danger at present of anybody going hungry. But in Great Britain and in France, and other countries of our allies, there is none too much food. Even our Canadian soldiers are not fed any too well. It, therefore, becomes a double duty to produce and save and—not waste.

We have not yet come, though we may yet come, to the conditions of food scarcity that prevail in the Mother Country, but is made less serious by prompt and complete measures of food regulation and prevention of waste.

Mr. John McCann, Street Railway Superintendent, has received from a friend in England, the following copy of a bulletin—amongst hundreds of others—circulated in England. It is entitled—

"Mr. SLICE O' BREAD.

"I am a Slice of Bread.

"I measure three inches by two-and-a-half, and my thickness is half-an-inch.

"My weight is exactly an ounce.

"I am wasted once a day by 48,000,000 people of Britain.

"I am 'the bit left over,' the slice eaten absent-mindedly when really I wasn't needed; I am the waste crust.

"If you collected me and my companions for a whole week you would find that we amounted to 9,380 tons of good bread—WASTED!

"Two shiploads of Good Bread!

"Almost as much—striking an average—as twenty German Submarines could sink—even if they had good luck.

"When you throw me away or waste me you are adding twenty submarines to the German Navy."

STOP ALL WASTE!"

This is a graphic picture of the wicked effects of waste. We don't—we can't—appreciate the conditions when the saving of a bit of bread amounts to millions. We don't stop to think of the immense amount of food substance we waste every day. It may be a little better now, but before the war it was a safe thing to say that in Peterborough, or any town of Canada, or any county, there was as much food wasted by careless and wasteful cooking and management, as was profitably used for food—dumped into the garbage tins.

If you read the above bulletin you will see the immense possibilities of waste, even small waste brings. We should think of it; we should reflect that if the scraps of food we throw away all over the country could be collected, and utilised, the resulting total would feed thousands of people in the old countries.

We should be more careful—not eat less, but waste less; be careful in the preparation and use of food. We shall then leave more food to be sent abroad to our short-rationed fellow-citizens at "Home," and be effectively doing our bit in winning this war.

A lady's hairpin, except for its associations, doesn't amount to much; but enough of them saved—not wasted—would build a battle ship.

WHAT HOLD HAS ROGERS GOT?

There are rumours of Sir Robert Borden reconstructing his cabinet. Such a measure has been due for a long time. And the first idea that will occur to all decent men is the necessity of reconstructing Hon. Robert Rogers out of the cabinet. There is no partisanship in this demand; it is the demand of the public sense of decency. Nobody, even among the rank and file of his own party, could understand why Sir Robert Borden ever took him into the cabinet. Nobody understands what "hold" Mr. Rogers has upon Sir Robert that permits the "minister of malodorous elections" to blackmail the Premier of Canada into putting a discredited politician into places of special honour—to take him to England, to permit him to lead the House in his, the Premier's, absence. Only on Friday last, Mr. Rogers was set to lead the House—the pro tem. prime minister of Canada; it fell to him to state what the business of the House would be on Monday, and to detail what the attitude of parliament should be towards the reception of Hon. Mr. Balfour—a stainless British statesman, moved like a pawn by a smirched Canadian politician.

The question of Mr. Rogers' fitness for a place in the government is no longer a party question. Canada is at war and in this crisis we need a strong leader and, above all, a clean leader—not a deputy-leader whose political life and record are unclean—it seems that Rogers is the real leader and Sir Robert only an understudy. It isn't Liberal journals that condemn the presence in the government and the place of favour Sir Robert Borden gives him, of "a source of weakness," like Hon. Robert Rogers. The Hamilton Spectator—a Tory of the Tories—can't stand Mr. Rogers. Here is what it says in its issue of Saturday:

"What we cannot comprehend is the reluctance of the premier to unburden himself of the Hon. Robert Rogers, minister of public works, who has been the chief source of weakness in his administration. Mr. Rogers is a thorough paced politician, in the lower sense of the word. He is popularly regarded as representing those influences and practices which, while perhaps pardonable a generation or two ago, the better elements of the two great parties are now trying to slough off and surmount. We should think that in any Cabinet reconstruction, he would be the first man to go. A past-master in the art of carrying elections by nefarious means, he is to-day an anachronism. Ever since he left Winnipeg for Ottawa, the Borden government would have been stronger without him."

Here we have a faithful apologist of all the possibly defensible acts of the government condemning one of its members as "a source of weakness," though his offence, and the offence of the head of the government in retaining him, is strong enough to "smell to heaven." We even have a lesser light in the ranks of the government's journalistic supporters, a local paper, demanding to throw the "Jonah" of the Borden cabinet overboard. These demands for cabinet house-cleaning, voiced by Conservative journals, are in line with the demands of all decent Canadians, and would have been as pat at any time since the government was formed as to-day. There is no partizanship in them; they are an outcrop of revolt against the criminal course of keeping evil elements like the Nationalists and the "Minister of Elections," in a government charged with the responsibility of honourably and effectively doing the business of the country in the greatest crisis if its life—when there is need of strong leadership, of strong elements of statesmanship, and high standards of honour, instead of placing a premium on political crookedness personified, and treason personified. Every decent Canadian is asking why Sir Robert Borden keeps a "source of weakness," and an embodied insult to national honesty and political decency, as his bosom companion and colleague. What hold has the "Hon. Bob" upon "Sir Bob?"

Sir Robert may pet Hon. Bob as he will,
The scent of his record will hang round him still.

TO CONTROL CHEESE PRICES.

British Food Controller to Direct the Retail Trade.

LONDON, May 30.—Baron Devonport, the food controller, beginning to-day, ordered all cheese imported from Canada, Australasia and the U.S. requisitioned, and henceforth will control all dealings in it. Cheese will be put on the market at a price enabling retailers to sell it at sixteen pence per pound.

The food controller has also fixed the retail prices on all beans, peas and pulse, and arranged an automatic reduction in the price of beans, averaging two cents a pound in July, with a similar reduction in August.

Britain's Burden of War Finance Counted in Billions of Dollars

The toal commitments of Great Britain for the period which the budget will embrace will, in all likelihood, be modified by the participation of America, but only in regard to the sums which would once more have been placed at the disposal of the Allies by this country. The expenditure required to support our own efforts will not be reduced, and may even be increased; the principal relief to our finances will spring from the greater ease with which the overseas purchases will be provided for. Taking account, however, of the fact that in the year to March 31 last the total sum advanced to the Dominions and Allies was only a few millions short of 3,000 million dollars, it is permissible to believe that American liberality will have the effect of moderating the Chancellor's demands. In he single vote of credit which has been taken for the present year expenditure was estimated at approximately 30 million dollars per day, to which must be added outgoings of approximately five million dollars per day, to be met from other sources. That would give a total for a complete year of 12,775 millions, calculating the amounts alotted to the Dominions and Allies at the same figure as in 1916-17. To the extent that America assumes this liability the calls on the investor will be reduced. We shall need to borrow less. But the gross amount of the national debt at the end of the year may still be not much short of 30,000 millions, or 25,000 million above the figure of March 31, 1914. That involves an interest charge of approximately 1,225 millions a year; to it must be added the obligations of the nation for pensions and othed allowances. The needs are therefore heavy, and taxation in proportion to our liabilities must be boldly faced. But, as we have suggested, America's action may be trusted to take some of the burden from our shoulders and bring about a corresponding reduction in interest-bearing liabilities. This may enable the Chancellor to increase taxation with a lighter hand, and the income taxpayer should perhaps have a first claim to any indulgence."—Glasgow Herald.

German Orders Re Destruction of French Towns

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES.—Copies of official orders, as well as other documents, relative to the systematic destruction of the towns, farms and orchards of the French territory occupied by the Germans, are now being found in large numbers on the German prisoners taken along the Aisne and in the Champagne.

All the genius for minuteness of detail, organization and thoroughness which has ever been the boast of the German people appears to have been drawn upon to the fullest extent in the preparation and execution of this destruction.

Following are the extracts from these orders:

"The last grand destruction in Grevillers, Beifvillers, Aubin, and Avesnes will begin at X plus 2 o'clock. To cover the incendiating crews, the commanders of each sector will furnish two under officers and twenty men of the Batalions B and twenty men of the Battalion B chers, i.e., sector D for Biefvillers and Grevillers and Sector F for Avesnes. These latter villages will not be burned.

"The destruction of Favreuil, Beugnatre and Fremicourt will begin the second day of the march at X plus 3 o'clock, but, however, not before 5. The destruction of location and wells that may be useful to the rearguard detachment of Scheinitz must not take place till the third day of the march towards 2 o'clock after an understanding with this detachment unless the adversary's operations render necessary an earlier destruction. The fires may be started equally the third day of the march towards 2 o'clock. The medical service for the destruction crews at Beugnatre, Fremicourt and Favreuil will be assured by Scheinitz's detachment."

Somewhat similar orders perfected in every detail, are then given for the destruction of Louveral, Demicourt and Boursies.

CANADA'S CHEESE TRADE.

No Offer Yet Secured From the British Representatives.

OTTAWA, May 31.—Sir Thomas White introduced a bill to allow penny banks to invest their funds in Dominion Government securities and another to amend the bank act to allow banks to loan money to farmers on live stock.

J. A. McMillan, of Glengarry, called attention to the fact that the commission appointed to look after cheese had so far failed to get an offer from the British representatives, and there was no market for the product. In the meantime, United States cheese had been sent to Britain in British ships. Sir Robert Borden said the latter charge was not true. He would ask the Minister of Agriculture to look into the matter. Hon. Chas. Murphy said that, at his request, the Minister was interviewing the British representatives.

ADENOIDS INJURIOUS BUT EASILY REMOVED

"Adenoids are little growths in the passage from the nose to the throat. They resemble small bunches of grapes, and if they develop sufficiently to fill the air passage, the child suffers from a lack of a proper supply of air entering the lungs.

"This condition is very common among children and is one which is generally neglected since the growths come gradually and do not call for the attention of the doctor. But the results are far-reaching and serious.

"In young babies the signs are an inability to nurse properly and noisy mouth breathing; in older children the symptoms are more numerous and include a persistent discharge from the nose and colds in the head, which make it necessary for the child to breathe through the mouth. One of the too frequent results is deafness, at first slight, then as the disease progresses, more pronounced.

"The general health is impaired; the child becomes anæmic, as a result of the insufficient amount of air supplied to the lungs.

"This anæmic condition, coupled with his deafness, makes him appear inattentive, dull and uninteresting. He does badly at school and is considered stupid, and in extreme cases, mentally deficient.

"The remedy is a simple operation by the doctor, which takes about one minutes only, and which requires that the child be kept in bed for a day and in the house for a week.

"The best age at which to remove these growths in young children is about two years, and in older children as soon as their presence is known. The best time is the spring or the early summer so that the throat may regain its normal tone during the warm weather.

"Improvement is noticed almost immediately. The child breathes through the nose, his expression brightens, he becomes alert and attentive, the deafness decreases or disappears entirely, and his general health improves."—Kathleen Elizabeth Steacy in "Everywoman's World."

THE DAY'S WORK OF A CITY MAIL CARRIER

Some Unfamiliar Information About A Familiar Individual — This Article is Taken From "Onward," a Publication Printed in Toronto, but it Applies With Equal Force To Peterboro's Letter Carriers

The familiar figure of your own particular postman comes tramping up the walk, pauses on the porch, shoves your letters through the slit in the door, turns sharply round and walks back again to the street. Two or perhaps three times a day the performance is repeated. With the precision of a clock, the blue-uniformed messenger comes and goes, week in and week out, year in and year out. He is an essential part of your everyday life, and yet do you happen to know his name; do you know where he lives; do you know anything about him except that one commonplace circumstance of his regular visit to your door Quite likely, if your home happens to be in a big city you do not.

Your postman is a part of a wonderful business system, a cog in the wheel of an astoundingly efficient machine. For a moment or two each day he comes into immediate personal touch with you. For the rest, he is swallowed up in the vortex of that complete mechanism, the post office. In a general way one is familiar with the working of the machine. A letter is dropped into a letter-box, is conveyed to a general distributing office, is sorted, handed to a carrier, and presto, is borne to its appointed destination—all seemingly very simple, all uite easily understood. But though the principle is readily grasped, the performance is by no means as simple as all that. There are wheels within wheels.

John Jones, one of His Majesty's trusty letter carriers for the city of Toronto, a man whose name most probably is entirely unknown to nine-tenths of the citizens at whose homes he calls every week-day, is perforce an early riser. John is up, putting on his blue serge uniform, with its bright red collar and its gold buttons, before six in the morning, and while yet people on his route are far away in the land of nod. He breakfasts early, does John, and makes a hasty exist from his house in order to reach the general post office by a quarter to seven. There are no bank hours for him. The city's morning mail, its letters and papers and parcels, which have been rapidly accumulating during the hours of the night, must be got out bright and early in order that the wheels of commerce and industry may be set to turning without undue delay.

As he hastens to the office, let us look at John. When he was first taken on the carrier force, the superintendent made sure of one or two things. John had to show that he was a man of clean character. He had to exhibit a certain degree of neatness in appearance and geniality in manner. He had above all to be sober and industrious. These are characteristics to be noted in our man, as he steps quick along. It is true that he has not the martial stride or the erect build of the soldier. What with carrying a heavy bag over his shoulder and bundles of papers in his arms, he has unfortunately contracted a bit of a slouch. But the uniform is brushed, the shoes have a bright shine on them, and every one of the gold buttons is polished. John is a careful observer of rule 43 in the instruction book.

John and his mates have free and unimpeded access into that mysterious region behind the letter-boxes and the stamp wickets, which is and must be an unknown land to the great public outside. It is apparently a place of innumerable pigeonholes. There are rows and rows of them. They are here and there and everywhere. It would seem almost as if there might be one for every inhabitant in the city. John has a group of them all to himself—perhaps two or three dozen, ranged in rows and rising up from a shelf or table. Above them on a large white card is inscribed his name and the number of his route. On either side extend more pigeon-holes, each group presided over by its particular carrier.

The minute John steps into the office, he signs his name and the hour of his arrival in a big record book. After that he is no longer Citizen John Jones, but Carrier No. 73, and his day's work has officially begun. His first duty is to hurry to the sorting frames and secure the letters destined for delivery on his route. He carries them to his table, and proceeds to sort them as swiftly as possible into his pigeon-holes. However, before he gets fairly started at this early morning task, let us slip away across to the other side of the big office, and see just how that heap of mail matter reached his hands.

One is sometimes regaled with stories of amazing mental dexterity. There are few instances, however, of more skilful work than that done by the letter-sorters in a big city post office. Conceive of a man having thrust into his hands a bundle of mail addressed to all parts of a city of half a million inhabitants, with hundreds of streets and thousands of buildings. Conceive further of this big city being divided into numerous districts, for each of which a pigeonhole is provided. Then watch the amazing rapidity with which the letters are tossed into their proper places. A given street may extend through several districts, and yet the sorter can tell in a flash just where a certain number lies. The whole complex disposition of streets and districts is so clear in his mind that his hand performs its task almost automatically.

Certain of the districts have postal stations of their own to which the mail is despatched for further sorting. In the case of those served by the general post office, however, the letters are passed on to a second sorter, who disposes of them in pigeon-holes, arranged according to the carrier routes. It is from these pigeon-holes that the postmen secure the letters for their respective territories. As there are several sorters at work, each of whom has a complete set of numbered boxes before him, the carrier has to pass along from section to section picking out the letters from all the boxes bearing his number. The whole process is therefore one of gradual division of the general mass of mail matter until it is separated into parts consigned to each of the four hundred or more delivery routes in the city.

John Jones now takes his pile of mail and sets to work to sort it up still further. His pigeon-holes are all marked with the names of different streets or parts of streets within his beat, while some of them, to save time, are reserved for the mail addressed to large business concerns, which always receive many letters each day. He quickly places each letter in its proper place, and, having done so, arranges the letters in each box in the order in which they will be delivered. Then he ties them in bundles and puts them into his bag.

There is next a visit to be paid to the registered letter department to pick out any mail that may be waiting there and an enquiry at the desk where the underpaid letters or papers are sent to, to see if there is anything held in that department for delivery on his route. All this takes time, and the minutes have been slipping away. He cannot leave, however, until the signal is given, for deliveries are all made promptly on time. Until the bell rings he can rest. The moment it sounds forth, he is supposed to make a last trip to the sorters' boxes to secure belated letters, and then proceed on his way.

In a city like Toronto the number of deliveries varies according to the district. In the outskirts a postman makes but two trips a day. In the central business sections he makes six. Between the two the number is graded. John Jones, who covers a residential district, has three: two in the morning and one in the afternoon. Including the two hours allowed for lunch at noon, he is on duty eight hours, during which time he does a good bit of walking. As he makes such an early start in the morning, it follows that he is through his day's work fairly early in the afternoon, and in consequence enjoys a long evening for rest and recreation.

When a postman first joins the staff, he is advanced the sum of one dollar. This is to enable him to pay the charges on mail matter sent with insufficient postage. When such a letter or parcel is handed to him for delivery, he is required to buy stamps of sufficient value to make up the deficiency. Then when he takes it to the person to whom it is addressed, he collects the amount from him, attaches and cancels the special stamps and so makes up his dollar again. In this way no complications arise in conveying the money from the public to the post office. The postman himself becomes responsible to himself for the amount owing.

No special qualifications are required from a letter-carrier in the way of technical knowledge. If he can read and write and exhibit a fair degree of intelligence, that is deemed sufficient. He is usually started out at one of the sub-stations and until he becomes proficient is placed in charge of an experienced man, who gives him needed instruction. Then he gradually works his way up until at last he is qualified to take on one of the heaviest routes in the city. At first he earns two dollars a day. This is raised twenty-five cents at the end of each year, until after four years' service he receives the maximum of three dollars.

To mind his own business is one of the cautions impressed strongly on a postman. He is warned not to offer or convey any information outside of the regular routine of his calling. People often approach letter-carriers and ask them to find out this or that, to tell them the name and business of such and such a person, to furnish them with addresses, and generally to make use of them in a way that is not part of their recognized duty. To all such solicitations, the postman must politely turn a deaf ear. He is to be courteous under all circumstances, but must not become too friendly.

A postman fares well at the hands of the Government in the item of clothes. He gets two suits of clothes a year, one of serge, and one of cloth, for use in the different seasons. He receives a duster coat each summer and an overcoat every second winter. A new summer hat is assigned him annually, while his cloth cap is supposed to last two winters. He receives in addition a fur cap for the coldest weather. Of boots he is entitled to two pair a year. When clothes are discarded, he must return the buttons, monograms and numbers to the office.

There are many little incidental rules and regulations which John Jones and his fellow-postmen have to observe. There is a certain routine to be followed in reporting changes of address and so forth, but these are matters of no general interest. Let it suffice to say that the system is wonderfully exact and that for every possible emergency there is a prescribed remedy which is calculated to facilitate the prompt discharge of the duties devolving on the post office.

In addition to the regular letter-carriers, all large post offices have to employ a number of boys to carry mail forwarded with special delivery stamps. The Toronto post office requires no fewer than twenty-six boys for this purpose. Strangely enough the major part of the special delivery work is done at night, which means that the night staff of carriers is larger than the day staff. As a matter of fact it takes fourteen boys to handle the night mail, while twelve are sufficient by day. The boys go out in turn, and are paid eight cents for each letter they carry. In this way they earn as much as twenty-five or thirty dollars a month, for the number of letters mailed by special delivery is surprisingly large.

AS OUT OF DATE AS HORSE CARS

Good things should be passed along. It is now said that a few drops of a drug called freezone applied directly upon a tender, aching corn relieves the soreness and soon the entire corn, root and all, can be lifted out without pain.

For little cost a quarter of an ounce of freezone can be obtained from any drug store which is claimed to be sufficient to remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet.

This is a drug recently announced from Cincinnati. It is gummy, but dries the moment it is applied and simply shrivels up the corn without inflaming or even irritating the healthy tissue or skin.

Food Grabber in Germany Nicely Fooled

Frau Emma Lederer, a rich and well connected lady who resides in a fashionable street in West Berlin and is the fortunate possessor of extensive landed property, has for some time provided herself from her estate with all the food products that are scarce in Berlin.

A few days ago she ordered three geese to be sent to her, and to guard against possible seizure by the authorities, the contents of the case were prudently declared to be "parsnips," a label bearing the legend "paranips only," appearing in staring black characters on the packing case.

The consignment duly arrived at its destination and in accordance with the description on the label it was found to contain parsnips—real parsnips, and nothing but parsnips.

Frau Lederer, meanwhile, is in this dilemma; she hates to submit tamely to be robbed of her geese, but she dare not take action because she has herself broken the law; and the authorities are in a dilemma, too, because the law makes "procuring" food a criminal offence, and this rich and high-born lady never received the food!

In the United States the present extraction of flour from wheat is about 73 per cent. France it is 81 per cent., while in Italy orders have been given for an extraction of flour from wheat at a perecentage of 85. British millers are now called upon to extract 87 per cent. of flour from the wheat berry instead of 68 to 70 per cent, as formerly.

Parents of scholars attending the Sabbath School of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, are reminded of the fact that during the summer months, commencing with Sunday next, Sabbath School will be held at 10 o'clock in the morning, instead of three in the afternoon.

Visitors to the Village of Warsaw

WARSAW, May 30.— Miss Gladys Pearson of Hall's Bridge, is the guest of Miss Myrtle Wilson.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Scholey and son, and Mr. and Mrs. F. Cridland motored from Peterborough to spend the holiday with Mr. and Mrs. John Tucker. Messrs. Cridland and Scholey were members of the 93rd Battalion.

Miss Hazel Brown is visiting friends in the village this week.

Mr. Geo. Davis, who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Davis, returns to Peterborough on Wednesday.

Mr. A. F. Choate is spending a few days in Toronto.

The memorial service for Pte. William Batten, son of Mr. Albert Batten, who was killed in action on April 9th, will be held in the Methodist church on Sunday, June 3rd, at 2.30 p.m.

Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Warsaw Women's Institute will be held on Thursday, June 14th. A full attendance is requested, as the election of officers will take place.

Those wishing to dispose of waste paper for the Red Cross may leave same at the vacant store owned by Mr. Hendren, which will be open for the purpose. If anyone who cannot do this will leave word with Calder and Douglas, the Warsaw Milling Co., or A. F. Choate, arrangements will be made by the Red Cross to have it collected.

A service was held in St. Marks church on Sunday morning, when the tablet in memory of the late Pte. Percy Cooper was unveiled, Rev. J. J. Robbins officiating.

A splendid concert was given in the town hall on the evening of Victoria Day by the Warsaw choral class. Under Prof. Tremearn, training the class shows marked progress and the solos by his pupils were much appreciated.

Mr. Hilliard Payne, of Peterborough and Master Carman Payne, are visiting their sister, Mrs. D. H. McMillan, Petrolia.

Mr. Llewllyn Douglas of Young's Point, was in the village on Sunday.

Mr. John S. Selkirk spent the holiday at his home here.

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Sinclair and son, of Tilsonburg, arrived in the village on Saturday to visit Mrs. Sinclair's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Selkirk. Mr. Sinclair returned to his duties as Science Master of the Tilsonburg High school on Monday.

A Back Yard War Garden

A "Back yard war garden" will produce a year's vegetables for six persons on a 35 x 50 foot plot, if you go about it in the right way. The Summers family have proved it. That's why they are so busy in the back yard again this spring and so enthusiastic about food conservation. Last year on their 35 x 50 they harvested all the fresh vegetables that John and Mary Summers and their four hearty little sons could eat for the season and all they could put away for the winter. "You can do it, too," said Mrs. Summers, as she enumerates the first year's cost, thus:

Fertilizer	$6.00
Seeds and plants	8.00
200 cans at 2 1-2 cents	6.00
Preserve canner	17.50
Gas	2.00
Water	2.00
Total	$40.50

The outlay on labour was nil, because Mr. Summers and the small sons did the work. The results of that garden were fresh vegetables from June through September and a supply put away for winter as follows:

Fifty cans tomatoes.
Fourteen cans lima beans.
Twenty cans peas.
Thirty-six cans corn.
Thirty-four cans string beans.
One bushel arrots.
One bushel carrots.
Three pecks turnips.
Three peaks salsify.
Seventy celery plants.

"One of the chief gains from out gardening," declared Mrs. Summers, "was the outdoor exercise it afforded John as a necessary change from the confinement of his daily work. If the back yard hadn't been handy John probably wouldn't have taken regular constitutionals with the shovel and the hoe, nor would we have had the very best supply of nourishing vegetables for our little sons. This year our outlay will be less because we won't need to buy the canner.

"By careful use of fertiliser and rotation of crops—these are two main secrets—there is no reason why even the tiniest back yard need not make possible a larger food output during war stress, and turn its owners from the ranks of the millions of consumers to those of the thousands of producers."

Col. Dennistoun's Letter to Senator Re Latter's Son

Writing to Senator Cloran of the condition of his son, Lieut. Edmund P. Cloran, who lost an eye and received many shrapnel wounds at Vimy Ridge, Lieut.-Col. R. M. Dennistoun, formerly of Peterborough, says in part:

"In view of the fact that your son was one of my young officers and that he is now in a London hospital, where I have just seen him, I would like to have the pleasure of letting you know that he is doing well.

"He became a very fine young officer and I am very pleased and proud to have had him under my command. From what I can learn, he has behaved exceedingly well at the front, which, after all, is the real test.

"It is very much to be regretted that he has lost his left eye, but he says he is not in any pain and that his remaining eye is quite sound. He is not able to walk yet as he got a good deal of shrapnel in the legs, but I am very glad to be able to report that this is not considered serious and is not likely to give him any trouble when the wounds are healed. When I saw him he was able to run himself about the ward in a wheel chair and was full of spirit. When I made some joking reference to the pension he had earned, he said at once he only wanted one thing, and that was another appointment to the front so that he can get his Captaincy. This is a very fine spirit, and I thought you would like to hear of it."

"A Greek Slave" at Home

A very delightful aftermath of the "A Greek Slave" performances took place in the Woodmen of the World Hall last night, when the members of the company and a few invited guests held an informal, but most enjoyable, "at home." The only regrettable feature was the absence of Mrs. R. J. Devey who has been ill for the past few days. Mrs. Devey did much of the work in connection with the presentation of "A Greek Slave" and is deservedly popular with the members of the company who were a unit last night in lamenting her absence.

The ladies of the company wore their costumes of the play last evening with the result that the hall presented a very picturesque appearance as the rare-coloured gowns were seen in the mazes of the dance. The evening was very pleasantly spent in dancing, with Mrs. Foster, Mrs. Fenwick and Mr. Cyril Devey at the piano while Mr. Rathbone assisted with his violin. For those who did not wish to trip the light fantastic, card tables were provided.

During the evening a presentation of a beautiful bouquet of flowers was made to Mr. and Mrs. Devey. Mr. Devey accepting the gift on behalf of his wife and himself. In making the presentation the hearty thanks and gratitude of the company to Mr. Devey for the manner in which he had trained and directed the presentation of "A Greek Slave." It was only through the untiring zeal, energy and patience of Mr. Devey that it had been possible to score the great success that had been achieved. The production had made heavy demands upon Mr. Devey's time and the result gained was a great credit to him. Mr. Hutchinson also expressed the thanks of the company. Mrs. Devey for her earnest efforts in assisting with the preparation of the play, to Mrs. Fenwick, Mrs. Taylor and others who had kindly played at rehearsals, to the orchestra of the Grand Opera House for their assistance to the stage crew of the Grand for their many acts of kindness to Mr. Barry for making the science investiture possible, to Mrs. Perks, who had rehearsed the part of Maia for many weeks and had been compelled to drop out and to Mrs. Nicholls who at the last moment almost had to take hold of the role and had carried it through triumphantly.

Mr. Devey who was enthusiastically applauded as he arose to speak, thanked every member of the company for their sincere and loyal support and for their gift which he was sure would be equally as much appreciated by Mrs. Devey. He was glad to be able to announce that the financial results of "A Greek Slave" would surpass the other efforts of the company. The three Daly productions that had been presented had all been given for patriotic purposes and he reminded his hearers that this was the important thing; that their efforts were being utilized to doing something for the boys overseas. While not every member of the company knew what it meant to lose a loved one at the front, there was scarcely anyone in the company who had not a near, and dear, relative with the forces overseas. Some members of the "A Greek Slave" company had taken part in all three of the Daly shown and it had been an exacting task for them. Mr. Devey paid a tribute to the assistance of his wife in staging the "Greek Slave" and regretted that her illness prevented her from being present.

A hearty round of cheers and the singing of "He's a jolly good fellow," followed Mr. Devey's speech.

Dainty refreshments were served at 11.30 o'clock and the gathering dispersed about 12.30 after a most enjoyable evening.

The CRESSMAN Factory Limited

Vote on Bridges By-law Will Be Fairly Large

Organized Effort Being Made To Get Out the Vote —Results Will Be Bulletined at the Examiner Office

All indications point to a large vote being polled in the various polling booths of the city. That the bridges by-law will carry by a substantial majority is a foregone conclusion. Few dissenting votes will be recorded against a by-law that has for its chief object the construction of two very necessary public works, not to say the impetus it will give to the Qqaker Oats Company, who has announced its intention of rebuilding in Peterborough on a larger scale than ever. The polls will close at five o'clock this evening, and the final result should be in hand by six o'clock. The vote at each polling booth will be bulletined at the Examiner Office.

Over a hundred cars are assisting in the work of getting out the vote. All factories are being looked after by a well-organized body of workers. Each car is marked to indicate the particular ward to which it is assigned.

BRITAIN GAINING TRADE GERMANY IS LOSING

United Kingdom Is $600,000,000 Ahead While Germany Is $5,000,000,000 Behind in Trade

During the two years of war, 1915 and 1916, the trade volume of the United Kingdom amounted to £2,866,824,000, or £101,667,090 in excess of that of the two last years of peace, 1912 and 1913. The statement made by the German imperial treasurer, Dr. Helfferich, in the course of the recent debate in the Reichstag, was to the effect that since the war began Germany had lost a foreign trade valued at £1,150,000,000. Dr. Helfferich's specific statement thus confirms in a manner its estimate that Germany's trade loss approximated £1,000,000,000, says the British Export Trade Gazette. The contrast between the British and German figures is striking and significant. On the one hand we are authoritatively told that Germany's commerce has suffered to the extent of £1,150,000,000; on the other hand, Great Britain's commerce has, in spite of the fact that so large a proportion of the manhood of the country are fighting in the cause of the world's freedom; in spite, too, of the ruthless efforts of Germany to destroy British shipping and cripple our trade; in spite of high freights and scarce tonnage, actually increased its trade total to the no meant extent of £101,667,000.

WHAT HAS BEEN ACCOMPLISHED.

Month by month, the British commercial position, judged by the official returns, steadily improves. It is true that, as the late president of the board of trade recently admitted, German submarines have sunk 2,250,000 tons of British shipping; it is true that the high prices of foodstuffs in the United Kingdom, and the orders for the regulation of food consumption suggest more trouble than is really the case; it is true, too, that a great deal of Great Britain's increasing trade is in respect of imports of war materials and raw products for their manufacture and of exports to our allies of similar merchandise; but none of these moderating influences really affect the main fact that whereas Germany has completely lost every fraction of her oversea trade except the small amount that is done by stealth through neutral countries, Great Britain is steadily increasing hers, and, judging by all the indications available, will continue to increase it.

British trade with practically every market in the world, except, of course, enemy countries, is, indeed, rapidly increasing. To allied countries in Europe our exports are more than double what they were two years ago; to neutral countries in Europe they have advanced during the same period by 45 per cent.; to India and other British Asia by 25 per cent. over the amount for 1915; to China and Japan by 44 per cent.; to British Africa by 26 per cent.; to Egypt by 46 per cent.; to foreign Africa by 40 per cent.; to British North America by 37 per cent.; to Argentina by 27 per cent.; to Brazil by 30 per cent.; to the United States by 32 per cent.; and to Australia and New Zealand by 28 per cent.

TRIUMPH IN MARKETS.

We have purposely gone so far into detail because these percentages of Great Britain's increasing trade, based upon the official returns, afford perhaps the most striking revelation of England's commercial supremacy, even in the midst of the greatest war of any time, that could be put forward. They are details, too, that cannot be questioned or controverted, and in so far as they concern Great Britain's shipments to such neutral countries as the Argentine, Brazil, China, and, above all, the United States, they cannot even be charged with being concerned with the transport of munitions of war or military materials of any description.

What is true of these particular markets is also, to a large extent, applicable to British trade with others also, both allied and neutral. The increase of nearly £90,000,000 in the exports of cotton piece-goods from the United Kingdom during the first ten months of last year, as compared with the volume of this trade in the corresponding period of 1915, cannot by any stretch of imagination be associated with the war, particularly as the bulk went to South America, China, India, and Dutch East Indies and the United States. The same applies to the £7,000,000 increase for the same period in woollen and worsted tissues, and to smaller increases in many other classes of manufactured goods.

It is a record of which England may well be proud.

What of the future—of the year upon which we have just entered? The months before us will doubtless be strenuous, and in some quarters they may not be untinged with anxiety; but all indications clearly point to Great Britain's commercial progress in every market open to her enterprise; to the steady realization of closer inter-imperial trade relations; and, above all, to the quiet preparation through her vastly augmented industrial equipment for a full participation in that longed-for period, when the world, freed from the horrors of a war of which no market has not felt the depressing or disturbing effects, will give itself over to a commercial expansion such as has never before been realized. If the British nation can do so much during the war, of what is it not capable when the conflict is at an end? Competition there will be, keen and strenuous, but our manufacturers and merchants will be unfettered to deal with it, not, as now, handicapped in their one-handed contest with their great neutral competitors. The world wants British goods and British industry, enterprise, and perseverance will be fully equal to the task of supplying all that is required when the propitious moment arrives for the United Kingdom to prove how fully competent her resources are to cope with all the demands that will be made upon her industrialists.

DEMONSTRATION OF FIRE APPARATUS ON SATURDAY

Citizens Are Asked To Be Present and See What the Machine Will Do

Citizens generally, and particularly manufacturers, who are interested in the improvement of the fire fighting equipment of the city, should make it a point to attend the demonstration to be given of the capacity of one of the combined hose, chemical and pumping engines, such as is proposed to obtain for the city service.

It is likely that the display will be made at the corner of Aylmer and Brock Streets, where an ample supply of water can be drawn from the creek. The pumping capacity is 750 gallons of water per minute. The carrying service of the machine is ample for all hose and men needs.

Triple Combination.

The machine is on the way to Hull, Quebec, as a part of the equipment of that city, built by the American LaFrance Co., of Elmira, N.Y. The triple combination machine gives large service, but would appear to be essential where the needs of the service will be served by using either a chemical service, a pumping service and, of course, the hose. All are carried on one machine, and, in addition, from five to seven men.

The hour fixed for the demonstration by the Fire, Water and Light Committee of the city is at 1.30 o'clock, in the afternoon. Make it a point to attend. The display will afford the citizens some conception of the efficiency of such a fire piece and what the money of the city will go to pay for. Saturday at 1.30 p.m.

DIVORCES OWEN JOHNSON.

Nevada Decree for Mme. Cobina on Ground of Desertion.

RENO, Nev., May 29. — Owen Johnson's inability to be around children and attend to his writing caused the separation from his wife, who is known in grand opera at Madame Cobina, she told the District Judge here when her action for divorce was called. She received a decree on the ground of desertion.

She said her husband, after being away from home for weeks at a time, told her just after Christmas, 1915, that he must have peace and quiet, could not get it at home, and so intended to leave her. She saw him again in the following April, when he told her that he was going to Europe, and she could do as she liked. They were married in New York February 1, 1912.

AVIATION LEAST DANGEROUS.

Percentage of Loss Lower Than in Medical, Infantry and Artillery.

WASHINGTON, May 29. — The popular impression that the air service is the most dangerous arm of the army is not borne out by information based on war losses in Europe. Captain Aubrey Lippincott, U.S.A., who is in charge of the aviation personnel of the Signal Corps, asserted that the records of our Allies put the air service fourth in the percentage of losses. The heaviest losses have been sustained in the medical corps. The infantry ranks next, while the artillery arm ranks third.

57TH REGIMENT UNIFORMS

Householders and all others having in their possessions any uniforms or other equipment, belonging to the 57th Regiment will return the same to the Armouries, or at once notify the commanding officer when it will be sent for. Failure to return this property is punishable by a fine of Twenty Dollars.

Retail Price of Cheese in England Fixed at 32c Per Lb.

Price to Canadian Producer Will Likely Be Announced in Short Time — Local Board May Not Continue Under the Expected Scheme.

LONDON, May 30.—Baron Devonport, the Food Controller, beginning to-day, ordered all cheese imported from Canada, Australasia and the United States requisitioned and hence will control all dealings in it. Cheese will be put on the market at a price enabling retailers to sell it at sixteen pence per pound.

The Food Controller has also fixed the retail price on all beans, peas, and arranged an automatic reduction in the price of beans, averaging two cents a pound in July, with a similar reduction in August.

This announcement from London will doubtless be followed shortly by definite information regarding the price to be paid Canadian cheese factories. Farmers are awaiting rather anxiously the communication respecting the home prices and apparently the market is approaching a definite basis. Factories on the Peterborough Board have sold their output up to May 15th and to-day have completed another half-month's make. This is the only cheese on their hands and it will be reported at next week's board. Under the prospective scheme resulting from the requisitioning of cheese imported into Britain the Canadian make will probably be handled by the wholesale houses who will receive the cheese directly from the factories. It is expected that the board meetings here will be dispensed with since the element of competition will presumably be eliminated from this summer's business.

WHAT PRICE WILL BE.

New Zealand's recent make of over one million boxes was bought by the British Government at 19 cents f.o.b. the New Zealand ports. With shorter ocean transportation the Canadian cheese should bring at least 20 cents a pound and probably a price exceeding that figure. Factory salesmen and patrons had entertained hopes of a thirty-cent limit when the season opened at twenty-six and twenty-seven cents. But it is conservatively estimated by farmers who desire a reasonable profit that they can secure it at a twenty-cent price. If the price is higher it will be all the more acceptable. Practically all the fodder cheese has been sold and the new stocks are from the grass.

YESTERDAY'S BOARD.

Woodstock, May 30.—Two thousand three hundred and seventy-five boxes of colored cheese were boarded here to-day. The highest bid on the board was 19c, with no sales. On the curb the buyers refused to raise the bid, and not a box of cheese was sold.

Madoc, Ont., May 30.—At to-day's Cheese Board 606 boxes were boarded. No sales. No bids.

Austrians Plight Will Be Serious

Most of the Austrian Soldiers Are Now Fighting on the Italian Front

WASHINGTON, May 30.—Austria will be in a serious plight when the Russian armies move against her, as virtually all of the Austrian soldiers are now fighting on the Italian front, according to a member of the Italian mission. Leibach is the goal of Italy's army he said. When Leibach is captured after operations which will probably take many months, the road to Vienna can easily be opened. Defending the Vienna road will be an impossible task for the Austrians it was explained.

SALE OF SMART MILLINERY

There should be a lively interest in the millinery sale announced by the American Hat Store, 163 Charlotte street. The ladies are referred to the special offerings announced in another column. Unlike other sales, it does not mean the offering of undesirable goods, but a speedy clearance of the very newest creations in fashionable hats. The American Hat Store is noted for its smart millinery and always show a pleasing range of classy and popular shapes.

LIVE STOCK MARKET

Special to The Examiner:

Flour Drops at Winnipeg

WINNIPEG, Man., May 30.—A reduction in flour prices was made after the close of the Tuesday market, and the millers are considering a further drop. All grades dropped forty cents, with the top patents at $12.70 per barrel, or $6.35 per bag. The prices have dropped rapidly during the last two weeks, being $2.30 under those of May 16.

Elders Inducted in Millbrook Church

MILLBROOK, May 31.—Last Sunday morning a very interesting service took place in Grace Presbyterian Church, when the three new elders, Dr. A. Jemison, and Messrs. John D. Hunter and Alexander Kelly, elected by vote of the congregation, were inducted by the Minister, Rev. Dr. Lee. This service was the first of its kind to take place within the walls of Grace Church, the last induction having been held 29 years ago, when Mr. Steele and Mr. Gardiner were inducted in the old church.

Just before the offertory, Dr. Lee asked the elders-elect to come forward. As they knelt in front of him, he inducted them elders for life of Grace Presbyterian Church. Then he gave them the right hand of fellowship, welcoming them into the ministry with him.

The offertory was then taken up after which the choir sang "Stand up, Stand up for Jesus."

The subject of Dr. Lee's sermon, delivered in his usual fine style, was "The Soldier's Orders," his text being taken from I Corinthians 16, 13. "Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong."

The church was well filled, several members of the sister church, St. Enoch, Garden Hill, being present, as well as those of local churches.

POLL TAX DELINQUENTS BEFORE MAGISTRATE NOW

Pay the $5 They Neglected, Plus $2.00 Court Costs.

For non-payment of poll taxes Chief Thompson has the names of a half-dozen men, two of whom paid their five dollars in police court this morning, with an additional $2.00, costs for their elinquency. The others will doubtless get the same dose to-morrow. This action should be a warning to those who have neglected to pay their poll tax.

DOG CASE IN COURT.

Another case of a dog being allowed to run at large was brought before Magistrate Dumble this morning and adjourned until to-morrow. The police are not overlooking their particular duty of watching for dogs running loose and unmuzzled. If the Council intended to put the dog catching act into use, their intentions quickly developed weakness of the knees and spine and a general debilitation that seems to accompany some questions which the Council prefers to sidestep.

Inside Service Gets Increase

Notice of Resolution To Help Civil Servants Meet H. C. L.

OTTAWA, May 10.—Sir Thomas White has given notice of a resolution in the Commons to amend the civil service act so as to provide increases in salaries for certain branches of the inside service. The increases are given in response to the demand for higher remuneration, commensurate in some degree at least with the increase in the cost of living.

The amendments provide for increases in the maximum and minimum salaries of the second and third divisions. In the second division the maximum for sub-division A is increased to $1,100; and in sub-division B to $1,600. In the third division the minimum salary for subdivision A is placed at $1,000, and the maximum at $1,300. In sub-division B the range is from $500 to $1,000. The maximum for messengers, sorters, etc., is increased to $1,000 as compared with $900 at present. A general increase of $100 to any clerk in the third division is authorized if such clerk is reported by the deputy head of the department to be deserving of such increase, and is now in receipt of a salary of less than $1,000. The increases are retroactive to April 1st.

The Finance Minister's measure does not deal with the outside service, but he intimated in the Commons recently that certain increases would be given to members of the outside service when the supplementary estimates were brought down.

PLAN TO COMBAT U-BOATS WITH INVISIBLE SHIPS

NEW HULL COLORS REDUCE VISIBILITY 40 PER CENT.

NEW YORK. — Considerable curiosity was shown recently at a place on the New England coast regarding the movements of peculiarly painted craft. Inquiries developed the fact that the activities were the result of experiments conducted by Lewis Herzog, an artist and member of the New York Yacht Club, who is deeply interested in naval matters.

Mr. Herzog, after several years of expermentation, has developed and tested a method for painting ships' hulls and superstructures in a way which reduces the visibility of vessels at sea by approximatel 30 or 40 per cent. less than the present line of visibility produced under current or past methods of coloring hulls and superstructures.

No detailed description of the method is available. It may be said, however, that the principle involved entirely revolutionizes the usual application of blacks or grays in the painting of vessels. A certain color scheme is utilized, based on purely scientific deductions of the operating values of light and color, applied in certain ways, causing confusion to the eye, and even a condition of luminosity at certain distances.

The method seems to produce inconspicuousness readily and the ships apparently become a part of the atmosphere and seascape. Mr. Herzog, after various experiments, has demonstrated his discovery with one of his craft on the eastern coast with a result that, in this instance, invisibility was obtained at a mile and a half as against invisibility at three and one half miles under the usual boat-painting conditions. The discovery is said to be of great importance to the shipping world for it should diminish losses from submarine attacks.

The adoption of the idea should mean, it is stated, that whereas periscopic observations can sight a vessel at ten miles under the average atmospheric conditions, a vessel and superstructure painted by the method referred to would render the craft invisible at any such distance and so insure its safety.

Mathematically stated, that means 40 to 50 per cent. ratio of increased safety for every vessel coming within the submarine zone.

TORONTO EMBARGO NOT ENTIRELY LIFTED YET

But Cartage Strike is Breaking up in Toronto.

The embargo on Toronto terminals has been partially lifted for goods being exported by merchants of that city, but the railways are not yet accepting shipments for Toronto from outside points. The cartage strike is reported to be petering out. Many of the wholesale merchants are buying motor trucks to provide their own carting accomodation. Some of the employees of the Hendrie and Bheddon companies have also purchased trucks and are going into business on a small scale for themselves.

TUBERCULOSIS CAUSE OF MOST WORKERS' DEATHS

REPORT SHOWS 37.1 AS AVERAGE AGE OF THE 'T.B.' VICTIM.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Tuberculosis causes about 20.5 per cent of the deaths of male industrial workers and about 14.4 per cent. of the deaths of female workers, according to mortality figures made public by the bureau of labour statistics.

The report based upon the 24,269 deaths of male and 102,467 deaths of female industrial policyholders of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, shows the average age of men dying from tuberculosis was 37.1 years, women, 34.1.

Of the total deaths among clerks, bookkeepers, and office assistants, 35 per cent. were from tuberculosis. Among printers, steamfitters, longshoremen, teamsters, chauffeurs, bartenders and machinists, more than 25 per cent. of the deaths are shown by the report to be from tubercular causes.

The figures further show:

Organic diseases of the heart cause the largest number of deaths among farmers and farm laborers.

Accidental violence, responsible for the largest number of deaths among railway trainmen and enginemen, track and yard laborers, and coal miners.

Among women organic diseases of the heart caused the largest number of deaths of housewives and housekeepers.

Of the deaths among textile workers, 35.5 per cent. are caused by tuberculosis.

The highest average age at death is among the farmers and farm laborers, 58.6 years.

The lowest average age at death is among bookkeepers and office assistants, 26.5 years.

Where the industrial workers are exposed to colds, drafts and dampness as among bricklayers, or violent changes of temperature, as among teamsters and chauffeurs, respiratory diseases are prominent.

Suicide is frequent where depressing influences are present as among bakers and cigarmakers.

BILL AIMED AT PACIFISTS.

Imprisonment and Fine for Attempts to Conclude a Peace.

PARIS, May 30.—A bill which has reference to the decision of the French Socialists to take part in the International Socialist convention at Stockholm was introduced in the Chamber of Deputies to-day by Paul Pugliesi-Conti. It provides that "whoever concludes or attempts to conclude any convention or negotiations of political, diplomatic, military, economic or social character, aside from the constituted Governmental authorities, either with subjects of an enemy power or with an assemblage embracing a foreign enemy, shall be punished with five years' imprisonment and a fine of 10,000 to 50,000 francs."

Wild Bill Baker Pitches for Winning Canadian Highlanders

British Army Headquarters in France, May 30.—The Canadian Associated Press representative to-day attended a ball game between an Ontario brigade and a Highland brigade immortalised at Ypres. Among the spectators were fifteen Imperial Generals, including Commander-General Horne, General Byng, Commander of the Canadians, and General Currie.

The weather was ideal for baseball, the teams were fair, and there were many thousands of roaring fans on the scene. The umpire came in for the usual "abuse," and was changed after the third inning. "Wild Bill" Baker, the former St. Thomas Canadian League pitcher, twirled for the winners, and Rosie of Petrolea for the losers. The score was 9 to 3 in favour of the Highland Brigade and several thousand francs changed hands over the result. A Highland band, forty strong, played the retreat after the game.

BASEBALL

At Central Park last evening the valiant Fire Hall nine added another victory to their long list by whitewashing the Lumley nine to the tune of 16 runs to nil. The batteries were as follows:—

Fire Hall—Turner and Whitlow.
Lumley nine—Fuller and Sabins.
George Kelly umpired satisfactorily.

URBAN SHOCKER WINS IN FIFTEEN INNINGS

PHILADELPHIA, May 30. — New York shut out Philadelphia twice today, 6 to 0 in the morning game, and in 15 innings this afternoon 2 to 0. With two men out in the fifteenth inning, the bases were filled on bases on balls to Peckinpaugh and Caldwell, the latter batting for Love, and Walters' single. A base on balls to Magee forced in Peckinpaugh, and Miller's single scored Walters. Scores:

GIANTS TAKE LEAD IN NATIONAL LEAGUE

NEW YORK, May 30. — New York took the National League lead from Philadelphia to-day by defeating that team 2 to 1 in the morning and 5 to 1 in the afternoon. Schupp pitched his sixth straight victory of the season, while the Giants hit Alexander hard, especially in the pinches. A crowd which filled every seat in the Brush Stadium sang the chorus of the "Star-spangled Banner" before the game, led by a Metropolitan Opera soloist. Scores:

WELLAND ACREAGE UNDER CROP LARGE

Thirty to Forty Per Cent. Greater Than Last Year's, it is Reported.

Special to The Examiner.

WELLAND, May 30.—E. K. Hampson, local representative of the Department of Agriculture, reported to a largely attended meeting of the Welland branch of the organization of Resources Committee that as a result of the production campaign carried on during the past two months, the acreage sown in Welland County was from 30 to 40 per cent. greater this year than last. While the Spring season had been backward, seeding had been well done and the outlook was very satisfactory for a good crop with the exception of Fall wheat and clover. D. T. Black, town engineer, who has charge of the school gardens being conducted under the direction of the Council, reported that 61 lots were being cultivated by school children, some of whom were receiving assistance from their parents. These lots were plowed and harrowed and the seed supplied by the Council. Two Welland firms have cultivated large tracts and allotted them in lots to their employes. Two syndicates of local business men have each planted five acres in potatoes on a nearby farm. The address of the evening was given by the Rev. Lawrence Skey, of Toronto.

WITH A TRENCH MORTAR BATTERY

By F. J. H. HEDGES

We were a well-seasoned battery—a jolly little crowd, and quite accustomed to the line and most of Fritz's little ways. Each time we went "up," we felt more confident than ever of doing something useful. Our officers knew every man—not only by name, but where he came from, if he was married, and a hundred and one other little things which must be known before men can really know each other. This is one of the chief reasons why we have been able to more than hold our own through many a heavy fight especially on the Somme front.

One action we were in recalls itself very forcibly, and an account of it is well worth mentioning.

We left billets in —— on ——— 1916, and proceeded to march to our appointed position in the line. It was a terrifically hot day and as we trudged along the dusty road, pushing our hand-carts (containing the worldly belongings of every member of the Battery) and all equipment, we must have presented a somewhat strange spectacle. With tunics off, sleeves rolled up, and shirts open, we marched along with occasional bursts of song, despite the efforts of numberless lorries, etc., which tried to choke us with dust. Falling out for a ten minute rest every hour we gradually shortened the distance and ultimately came within range of the enemy's guns. Our own guns were thickly dotted around us, each barking and pounding away at "Fritz" for all they were worth.

Matters were becoming quite lively by this time and we had one or two near "goes" whilst proceeding along a road which judging by the number of shells coming over, the "Boche" was most anxious to obliterate altogether. We managed to get along the side of a bank without the slightest mishap however, and then began the long and the tedious task of unloading our trucks, and taking up our guns, and just the necessary personal belongings. It is no joke to carry a trench mortar up, and generally speaking it is not often done. But on this occasion we took our complete battery and effects into the line. It was a long and at certain times heavily shelled communication trench, but fortunately the Boche gunners were busily engaged a little to our right; consequently all went well, and we managed to get our gear right up without and casualty.

As soon as it was sufficiently dark we started to dig new emplacements. This at the best of times is not exactly a recreation, but that night was one to be remembered for many a day. Our officers helped as per usual, and for an hour we dug merrily on, shifting the earth pretty quickly with very little labour. Suddenly the Boche opened heavy artillery fire on our part of the line—direct and most intense—inasmuch as we deemed it advisable to suspend our digging for a while. As soon as we stopped he stopped, but as soon as we started again he pounded us worse than ever. This could not be allowed to continue as our battery was badly needed; we therefore stuck to it. There was no grumbling—just silent dogged work and the result was that our guns were in position by dawn. We lost one man killed, and six seriously wounded and two slightly wounded who refused to go back. At an appointed hour after dawn, we proceeded to get our own back as far as possible, and so carried on rapid fire with alternate guns for three minutes. This may not seem long to an inexperienced reader, but believe me, it is quite long enough to do a great deal of damage in and to the enemy's lines. We had good reason to believe that every shot took effect.

That same day in the afternoon, we successfully "wiped out" an enemy machine gun emplacement, which for some days past had been causing trouble, it being able to enfilade our front line for roughly twenty yards.

For two days we continued in the ordinary trench warfare fashion, after which every day, the fighting became fiercer than ever. The infantry were carrying out very "telling" raids practically every night. Our artillery fire was something splendid and 9.2's were continually taking toll of the enemy's garrison and well-built earth works. It was most apparent that the British were going to attack, and soon the time came.

For six hours our artillery pounded the enemy's lines, and we in our humble way, compared with them, strafed the Boche wire, and his front trench, each shot falling well on the mark. Of course there was retaliation, but in a very mild way, and our brave little band only suffered a few minor casualties.

The time came, and we "barraged" for three minutes, then "lifted" with the artillery on to the enemy's supports. The infantry went over, and took that system of line which was their objective, capturing 150 prisoners.

Then came our turn in the fight, for we had orders to take two guns into the newly captured position. It meant going over the top encumbered by heavy guns—or rather parts of such—ammunition, etc., but although we suffered heavily we managed to reach the new trench, and soon started to offer all the support possible. Our little party was considerably lessened in numbers, but in spirits and plucky determination it remained the same.

TO-DAY'S MILITARY NEWS

America (or rather the United States) entered this war with the purpose in view of establishing the relations of the Powers, or in other words, of securing an organized peace based upon "The Hague Convention."

England did the same, as well as many other nations, and our one object is to emerge from the war as a member of a securer international order, founded on a league for peace, and this is the meaning of America's hostility to the Kaiser's ambitions.

I am writing all this on a stump of a tree which has been shot down by a shell, so the writing may not be very readable. So far the life in France has been very fine, and there is always something new to take your mind off recent events, which are not always very appetizing. Every day I meet new Peterborough men who are enjoying life the same as I am.

Truly yours,
C. R. WIDDIFIELD.

A member of the Examiner staff has received the following interesting letter from Pte. Percy D. Windsor, well remembered by hockey fans as one of the stars of the 93rd Intermediate O.H.A. team the winter before last, and now in France:

France, May 5, 1917.

I have not heard from you since I wrote you some time ago. I was thinking you did not get my letter, so I thought I would drop you a few lines to let you know I am still in the ring and getting on O.K., and at the same thing yet, the machine gun. I like it fine.

I guess you have read about the success of the Canadians on Easter Monday. I'll never forget that day. To see the wounded coming down the road all day long; it seemed queer. They were coming down in threes, fours, twos and then a bunch of prisoners, and some of them wounded too. I was standing near the road when I noticed one of our lads coming towards me. I kind of thought he looked familiar to me, so I stood there. He had his arm in a sling and a cigarette in his mouth, and when he got close to me I knew him then. It was Gus. Rose. I often seen him smile, but not like that Easter Monday morning. He had a bullet wound through the hand. I lit his cigarette, and asked him if any of our boys were with him, and he said yes. Butch. Tarbott and a few more; he said they were all right, that they passed him, and they were right on Fritz' heels. I suppose you have heard about Hawkins and Norman Clarke. They were killed, and a lot of the boys were wounded, some seriously.

I forgot to tell you that Tom Reardon (he was in the M.G.S., 93rd Battalion) was wounded. It was feared he would lose an eye, but have heard since then he won't. He was on the gun with myself and Bill Russell.

Just a few lines more. A parcel of socks has just arrived for Austin Tobin from the secretary of the Kitchener League, Miss Mowatt, and as I was writing you a few lines, I was asked by the boys—Bill Russell, Dick Wedlock, and the rest of the boys of the 93rd—to say that the socks were distributed by Pte. Tobin, and the boys were very well pleased. As they gathered around to get them it looked like olden times in Central Park to see us together.

Trusting these few lines will reach you and that you are well. All the boys send their best regards to you also. They are very greatly obliged to Miss Mowatt for the socks.

Percy D. Windsor,
Late 93rd Battalion.

Toronto, May 31.—A letter received to-day from England states that one thousand Canadian officers have been struck off the active service list and are being sent back to Canada as quickly as possible. These officers either declined to revert in rank or were over the age limit.

OTTAWA, May 30.—An answer given in the Commons this afternoon by the Minister of Militia to Hon. Frank Oliver indicates that upwards of seventy thousand of the men enlisted in Canada's expeditionary forces, apart altogether from the wastage of casualties, have, for some reason or other, disappeared from the force. Sir Edward Kemp told Mr. Oliver that up to May 1 last, 312,503 officers and men had sailed for England. On the same date the total number of officers and men enlisted for overseas service who were still on duty in Canada was 25,475. These two totals of men sent overseas and men still remaining in Canada give an aggregate of 337,978. According to the recruiting figures given out by the department at the beginning of the month, the total enlistments, since the outbreak of the war, were approximately 408,000. The difference is thus about seventy thousand.

In reply to a further question by Mr. Oliver as to the total number of officers and men who reached England on overseas service, and who, without getting to the front, were returned to Canada as unfit for service, up to May 1 last, the Minister of Militia made the somewhat surprising statement that there were "no records in the department."

According to the report of Colonel Bruce, of Toronto, in connection with the reorganization of medical services in England, evidence is quoted showing that in some battalions, at least, which got overseas, a further medical examination of the men showed as high as sixteen per cent. unfit for service at the front. If this ratio were applied to the three hundred thousand men who got to England from Canada it would appear that perhaps another fifty thousand of the men enlisted were not really effectives.

On the face of it, the deduction may fairly be drawn that in recruiting Canada's army of over four hundred thousand the country has borne the expense of training, equipping and maintaining an army of more than one hundred thousand who never actually got to the front.

Averaging the cost of each man per day at two dollars, the actual, though perhaps in some part unavoidable, waste figures out to about six million dollars per month.

TRAWLERS HARRY U-BOATS.

Four Submarines Lay in Wait to Sink One "Terror."

LONDON, May 29.—Stories not hitherto published of lively encounters between British trawlers and German submarines in the North Sea were told by Sir Robert Lowry and others at the recent meeting of the Mission to National Seamen.

One trawler, Sir Robert said, became such a terror to U-boats that four of them lay in wait and eventually destroyed her. On one occasion this trawler, armed with two light guns, was attacked by a submarine. One shot went through the deckhouse, another smashed the wheel "but the skipper went on steering with broken spokes." Another shot carried away the cook's galley, but the trawler's gunner hit the submarine, which then had enough of it and went under.

Another unarmed trawler saw a submarine on the North Sea and made a dash for it, with the result that the U-boat quickly submerged.

"It went underneath," said Sir Robert, "because it could not imagine it possible that a trawler would have the courage to attack, if it were not armed."

Sir Robert related how the British learned of the sinking of two submarines by the bodies of the crew floating to the surface, although five or six days later a report was circulated from Germany that the boat had returned to port.

Admiral Sir Edmund Fremantle said that much criticism of the navy was beside the mark. Some things had not yet been discovered and one was how to catch the big submarine. But, he said, he did not hear the scientist abused because he had not discovered the secret of perpetual motion. He added:

"We will hope that the submarine is in a different category and that with the help of our great ally, America, we may perhaps discover an appropriate antidote. We shall succeed, if not in finding an antidote, in finding a palliative."

FRANCE WILL ADOPT A "NATIONAL SHOE."

PARIS, May 30. — All Paris is talking of the "national shoe"—a uniform style of economical footwear intended to cheapen prices and save leather.

The government is considering a project of this kind but it is not so comprehensive as the general public supposes. It is proposed to adopt a uniform style of cheap shoe for the benefit of refugees and people in modest circumstances who are unable to pay 50 francs a pair. Expensive shoes with high tops for women will still be made for those who are able to pay for them.

BOY'S BODY RECOVERED WITH FISH IN HIS GRASP.

WINDSOR. — A string of fish he had caught tightly clasped in his hand, the body of little Tom Fullerton, who with his father was drowned in the Detroit River late on Monday night, was taken from the water at noon to-day at a point about 100 yards further down. The father's body was recovered at midnight. Coroner Labelle, who investigated the circumstances to-day, has decided that an inquest is unnecessary, and father and son will be buried together in Windsor Grove cemetery, on Thursday afternoon.

WEDDING BELLS

ROBINSON—LEMAY.

A quiet but pretty wedding took place last evening at the home of Mrs. Joseph Batten, McDonnel street, aunt of the bride, when Miss Mary Etta Lemay, of this city, was united in marriage to Mr. Gordon Robinson, of Bridgenorth. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. P. Wilson, D. D., pastor of Trinity Methodist church.

Mr. and Mrs. Robinson will reside in Bridgenorth.

STEWART—WHITE.

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ephriam White, "Cedar Grove Farm," Ida, in the Township of Cavan, Durham Co., on May 24th, 1917, when their daughter, Pearl Blanche, was united in marriage to Mr. Percy W. J. Stewart, of Ida, Cavan Township, Durham Co.

At the hour appointed, the bride, leaning on the arm of her father, and neatly attired in a dress of white de chine, beautifully trimmed, and wearing a bridal veil, caught up with orange blossoms, and carrying a large sheaf of white roses, entered the artistically decorated drawing-room to the strains of a very pretty wedding march, played by Mrs. J. Richardson, of Pontypool. The bride being presented by her father for marriage, the ceremony was performed by Rev. W. T. Wickett, of Fraserville, in the presence of about ninety guests.

The flower girl was Miss Helen Kennedy, of Cavan, cousin of the bride, and the ring-bearer was Master Marshall Finney, a nephew. The register was signed by Wm. White and Miss Etta L. Stewart.

The presents were both valuable and useful, attesting to the popularity of the bride, the groom's gift being a substantial check; to the flower girl, a necklace; to the ring-bearer, a pearl-handled knife, and to the pianist a pair of white kid gloves.

After all had done justice to a sumptuous repast, the happy couple left, amid showers of best wishes, for Toronto, London and Buffalo, the bride being attired in a suit of woodland green, with hat to match.

On their return they will reside on the Stewart homestead, "The Maple," Cavan.

OBITUARY

MRS. WILLIAM J. JACKSON

Ellen Edith Bailey, wife of Mr. William J. Jackson, died very suddenly at the family residence, 383 Frederick Avenue, last evening. The news of her demise was a great shock to the residents of the neighborhood, who had seen her around the house earlier in to day. Mrs. Jackson was a daughter of the late John Bailey, of Emily Township, and was an active worker in the affairs of Trinity Methodist. She is survived by her husband and one son, Mr. Frank B. Jackson, of this city. Mrs. W. T. Kerr, of Carberry; Mrs. Stanley Jackson, of Carberry; Mrs. Dundas, of Peterborough are sisters, and Messrs. Wm. Bailey, of Brandon; Robert Bailey, of Regina; Harry Bailey, of Carberry, and Mr. S. J. Bailey, of Emily, are brothers.

The funeral will be held to-morrow at three o'clock from the family residence to the Little Lake cemetery. The funeral services will be held at 2.30, and will be conducted by Rev. J. P. Wilson, D.D.

MORE WOMEN WORKERS THAN MEN IN GERMANY.

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands, May 30. — There are more women than men workers in the German Empire, according to the latest official figures. Sick benefit membership lists show that approximately 4,000,000 women workers are on the lists, or about 11,000 more than men, the latter totals including 700,000 war prisoners who are working for the government. Women applicants for employment continue in excess of the positions open.

CANNERS ARE SUPPLYING BEANS FOR SEED PURPOSES

Beans are the most important food crop for which time for planting still remains, with the possible exception of potatoes. Immense quantities of beans are urgently needed for the army supplies, and they constitute one of the most concentrated and valuable food productions for general consumption. The present food situation demands that the largest possible area be devoted to beans this year.

According to the reports of the Census Branch the area devoted to beans in 1915 was 43,310 acres, and in 1916, 32,500 acres. This shows a decrease of 6 per cent. in the area planted in 1915 compared with 1910, and a decrease of 25 per cent. in 1916 compared with the previous season. Not only was the acreage greatly reduced last year, but owing to unfavorable weather and damage to crop by disease, the yield was reduced to 14 1-3 bushels per acre, giving a total production of beans in Canada of 412,800 bushels, compared with 881,397 bushels grown in 1909. Unfavorable conditions for production also prevailed in the United States last season, with the result that there is at present a very serious shortage of beans, with extremely high prices.

In order to increase the supply of beans for seed, appeal was made to the principal Canadian canning companies asking them to make available to the trade such stock as they might have suitable for seed. The canning companies readily responded, and are now supplying Ontario and Michigan grown small white pea beans at a cost price to the seed trade. It should now be possible for farmers to secure seed beans through the ordinary channels of the seed trade, and although the price is high, it is hoped that a special effort will be made to plant the largest possible area. Next year's supply cannot be predicted with certainty, but it is likely that quotations will continue high. The Dominion Canners are now contracting with farmers for their requirements from this year's crop, at five dollars per bushel. The production of beans this year will be of real national service, and will likely prove one of the most profitable branches of farming.—Martin Burrell, Minister of Agriculture.

MATCH OF MATCHES BACK IN 1829

Lucifer matches came into use about 1834. Friction matches were invented by a Mr. Walker, a chemist, of Stockton-on-Tees, in 1829. The price of a box containing 50 was 25 cents. With each box was supplied a piece of sandpaper, folded double, through which the match had to be drawn to ignite it. Two and a half years after Walker's invention was made public Isaac Holden arrived independently at the same idea of coating wooden splints with sulphur. The exact date of his discovery, he said, was in 1829 In 1842 Mr. Reuben Partridge patented machinery for manufacturing splints. Safety matches were first introduced in 1803. The manufacture in France became a state monopoly as recently as 1890.

Borrowing the idea from the United States, Mr. Lowe, in his Budget in 1871, proposed in the British Parliament a tax of one cent on each box of lucifer matches with the sportive suggestion that the motto for the new label should be "Ex luce lucellum" (Out of light a little gain.) The match-makers of the East-end took fright at the suggestion of the tax. They organized a procession, chiefly of women workers to Westminster Hall. The procession was dispersed by police, but the demonstration was of sufficient weight to induce the House of Commons to become unfriendly to the proposition, and it was withdrawn. For their exertion in the matter a drinking fountain at Bow was inaugurated as a memorial to Bryant and May in 1872.

RIOTS SHOOTING IN ST. LOUIS RIOTS—MILITARY OUT

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., May 30.—East St. Louis to-day was virtually under martial law. Five infantry companies of the Fourth Illinois National Guard regiment and one cavalry troop were patrolling the downtown and negro sections and plants where negroes are employed.

The second night's rioting, which resulted in the shooting of three white men and two negroes, continued for three hours. More than a score of blacks were beaten or struck by rocks and clubs. The races exchanged hundreds of shots in various parts of the city, and the rioting would have assumed dangerous proportions but for the timely arrival of the troops. The situation had gone beyond control of the local police. Lieut. Col. Clayton, commander of the troops, and Mayor Molman announced to-day the situation was under control and that further rioting was not feared.

With saloons, picture shows, theatres and other public gatherings places, closed at six o'clock by order of the mayor, the crowds collected on downtown corners. Because there was no disturbance in this section the police did not disperse the gatherings. The crowd then began moving toward the negro section in small groups, meeting later.

Two white men were shot down when the mob of about 200 formed in the heart of the "black belt." The negroes fired as soon as they saw the mob rushing up the streets in this district. After severely beating several blacks the mob moved on to another section. Shortly after the crowds' departure, a negro shack started to burn. Oil soaked rags found in the building, indicated according to fire officials, that an attempt to fire the section had been made. Five shacks were literally torn apart, the mob breaking windows and furniture. One little frame building was turned upside down by the rioters.

Ten soldiers, members of the First Regiment, Missouri National Guard, were among the scores arrested last night. The Missouri Guardsmen were arrested following complaint that they were creating disturbances.

Most of the whites and negroes arrested are held on charges of carrying concealed weapons. St. Louis and East St. Louis police arrested many persons on either ends of the Eads and Municipal free bridges for having fire arms. They will be given the maximum penalty when arraigned, it was announced by the prosecuting officials to-day.

Of the negroes arrested, one carried eight revolvers of the latest automatic type and a dozen boxes of steel jacket bullets. The order forbidding the sale of fire arms and ammunition in East St. Louis was continued today and St. Louis police ordered the sale across the river stopped.

Wheat Prices Coming Down

Wheat markets again followed the downward trend yesterday. Crop prospects continue to show steady improvement, and at present this has a strong bearish influence, together with a lack of any business on export account. The coarse grains are also weakening. The Western millers are still lowering their flour quotations and Toronto quotations on Manitoba flours were another 50c lower yesterday, making a total since the high point a couple of weeks ago of $3.50 per bbl. Ontario flours came down another 25c, and mill feeds are down another $1 per ton.

American corn — Not quoted.

Ontario oats — No. 2 white, not quoted.

Ontario wheat—No. 2 winter, per car lots, $2.45 to $2.50; No. 3 winter, $2.43 to $2.48, according to freights outside.

Peas—No. 2, nominal.

Barley—Good malting, nominal.

Buckwheat—Nominal.

Rye—No. 2, $1.95.

Manitoba flour — First patents in jute bags, $13; second patents, $12.50; strong bakers, $12.10.

Ontario flour — Winter, according to sample, $10.75 to $10.85; track, Toronto, prompt shipments.

Mill feed — Car lots, delivered, Montreal, shorts, $42: bran, $36; feed flour, per bag, $2.70 to $2.80; middlings, $45.

Hay—Baled, track, Toronto, car lots, No. 2, $12.50 to $13.50; mixed, $9 to $11; straw, $7 to $7.50.

Cattle Markets.

Union Stock Yards — Receipts, 44 cars, with 315 cattle, 150 calves, 1,-862 hogs, and 57 sheep and lambs.

With a rather sudden change in the attitude of the packers yesterday trading came almost at a standstill for a time. There was but a light run of fresh stuff offering, but even at that, no one seemed to be doing any buying. What movement there was was very slow and prices were off from 15c to 25c. A few choice lots of cattle were held over.

Calves held strong.

Hogs steady at $16.40, fed and watered, but prospects said to be lower.

BELGIUM MAKES GREAT EFFORT IN MANUFACTURING

LOST ALL IN RETREAT

Headquarters of the Belgian Artillery Established Behind the Allies' Front Line.—Here, where the Belgian army is making its own cannon, its own rifles, its own shells, its own transport waggons, its own saddles and harness, one can appreciate how other outstanding features of the war have unduly obscured the Belgian military effort since the battles of 1914.

The Belgian army has six divisions of infantry and two divisions of cavalry left to hold a line of approximately eighteen miles, or just about four men to the yard of front; a front where particularly vigilance is required because of the German tactics of constant trial attacks. No part of the Allies' lines is more closely watched and explored by the enemy's patrols. A weak spot anywhere would provoke an immediate offensive.

The Belgian army has had to work incessantly to keep up its breast works and at the same time put up an unremitting defence. The solidity of that defence, it may not be sufficiently remembered, is an important factor in giving to the British and French armies liberty of movement in operating on other parts of the line.

LOST ALL IN RETREAT.

Belgium lost all her manufacturing establishments and all her resources in raw materials in the defeat of the Allies at Charleroi and in the retreat from Antwerp, yet Monsieur De Broqueville, Minister of War, with Belgian ingenuity, skill and perseverance has built up on the hospitable soil of France artillery and munitions establishments that not only enable the Belgian army to reply shot for shot to the Germans on the Yser front, but also contribute to the armament and supplies of the Allied armies.

On the reconstruction of Belgian industry, immediately after the termination of the heroic defence of Belgian soil on the Yser, specialists were sent to the United States to purchase machine tools for the manufacture of everything the army needed and when the machines arrived mechanics released from military service were ready to operate them. Fourteen thousand workmen are to-day employed in those establishments.

ARMY OF 120,000 MEN.

The Belgian army is now in nearly every feature. Of the 120,000 men in the field and 60,000 men who garrisoned the forts, 30,000 fell into the hands of the Germans at Liege, Namur, and in the retreat, 30,000 more took refuge in Holland and were interned for the duration of the war. 14,000 were lost on the Yser in addition to more than 20,000 killed and wounded in the battles of Liege, Haelen and St. Trond.

The re-organization was difficult. Unable to call a session of Parliament to revise recruiting laws to accord with the new situation the Government could only appeal to the patriotism of refugees in England and France. The response was such as to reconstitute an army of six divisions of infantry and two divisions of cavalry, while 14,000 men were detached for the manufacture of munitions in France and 600 sent to Russia for the same purpose. About 20,000 more men were raised by decree calling up all Belgian eligible for service between 18 and 40 years of age.

A regiment of auto cannon recruited among the Belgian refugees and trained in Paris was sent to the Russian front where it played an important part in Brussiloff's offensive in Galicia and Volhynia in the spring of 1916.

GROWTH IS FULLY A FORTNIGHT BEHIND

Seeding is However Practically Done Says the Ontario Department of Agriculture's Weekly Report—Increased Acreage of Beans, Potatoes, Corn, Oats, Barley and Spring Wheat.

Following is the Ontario Department of Agriculture's weekly report of farm conditions, May 28, 917.

It is a summary of the May Crop Bulletin to be issued by the Ontario Department of Agriculture, based upon the latest information received from District Representatives and a large corps of local correspondents.

FIELD CROPS

Growth in field, forest and orchard appears to be fully a fortnight behind. It is many years since cattle were so late in being put on pasture.

Seeding, however, is practically completed, with the exception of planting crops and roots; although considerable corn is already in. There will be an increased acreage of beans, potatoes, corn, oats, barley, and spring wheat should the weather permit.

Fall wheat has been somewhat revived by the rains during the week, but there are too many fields "patched" with other grains to save ploughing up.

Clover is short in growth, but stands fairly thick, and with warm weather the growth will likely be better than as expected earlier in the season.

Alfalfa is increasing in favour, and has done better than clover so far this year.

Fruit trees are only beginning to bloom, but being so backward encouragement is given to hope that the blossoms may escape late frosts. Apples are not showing much bloom, but cherries, plums and pears are promising. Some peach buds were caught late in the winter, but the injury was not severe.

LIVE STOCK.

While healthy, all farm animals are rather thinner in form than is usual at this time of the year. Cattle are largely on the grass, which is rather short yet, and in many cases supplementary feeding is necessary. Butchers' cattle are selling at from 10c to 12c a pound. The milk flow is fully up to the average. Cheese factories along the St. Lawrence are slow in selling at 22 1-2c a pound, and many patrons are temporarily in need of cash.

There are plenty of young colts on hand, but there is not a pressing demand for any class of horses at present.

Hogs are scarce at from $16 to $16.50 per cwt. and too many of them are being turned off light.

The backwardness of pastures caused a heavy draw upon fodder supplies during May. The high price of mill feeds also cut greatly into barn stores. Grains and silage were very scarce during the month; but for the good crop of hay last year the feeding situation in most sections of the Province would have been a most serious one.

LABOUR.

The labour problem has been more or less solved by the employment this spring of town lads, mostly from the high schools. While some may not have proved satisfactory, there was a sufficiency of merit to help out nicely in most cases. There is relieved anxiety as to whether the supply of reliable labour at hoeing time will be sufficient for the need.

RESPECT FOR GRAVES

How British Soldiers Showed Real Regard for Decencies

An English paper tells of a touching incident that occurred in the war-zone in France. A village, occupied by the Germans, fell into the hands of a British regiment in the retirement of the former. The Germans had reverently laid some forty or fifty of their dead comrades to rest in a plot of ground, marking the graves with wooden crosses. When the English arrived the spot had become overgrown with weeds and briars, and in a short time the little cemetery would have disappeared. But the "Tommies" set to work, cleared the place of weeds, marked out the graves with bricks from the ruined houses, and when all was done, erected a wooden cross six feet high, with the inscription, "Forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us." Thus even amidst the horrors of war does the spirit of Christ find a place.

Ex-Boy Scouts Very Willing

"We have had letters from officers at the front saying they can distinguish an ex-Boy Scout by his readiness to do any job he is wanted to do," said Sir R. Baden-Powell in unveiling a roll of honour to Scouts who have joined the Forces.

France Watches Them All

All foreigners over 15 wishing to stay in France more than 15 days must obtain an identification card within 48 hours of arrival, from the office of the prefect in whose area they are to reside.

Dignity for Cyclists

An Army Order places the Army Cyclist Corps on a wider basis, organized in battalions and companies, and an establishment of officers by ranks has been approved.

Work for Disbanded Officers

The problem of finding re-employment for officers when they are disbanded is engaging attention, Mr. Macpherson informed Sir Edward Goulding in the House of Commons.

"TIZ" FOR SORE, TIRED FEET—AH!

"Tiz" is grand for aching, swollen, tender, calloused feet or corns

Ah! what relief. No more tired feet; no more burning feet; no more swollen, aching, tender, sweaty feet. No more soreness in corns, callouses, bunions.

No matter what ails your feet or what under the sun you've tried without getting relief, just use "Tiz." "Tiz" is the only remedy that draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up the feet. "Tiz" cures your foot trouble so you'll never limp or draw up your face in pain. Your shoes won't seem tight and your feet will never, never hurt or get sore and swollen. Think of it, no more foot misery, no more agony from corns, callouses or bunions.

Get a 25-cent box at any drug store or department store and get instant relief. Wear smaller shoes. Just once try "Tiz." Get a whole year's foot comfort for only 25 cents. Think of it.

VANCOUVER SOLDIER WAS VERY RELIGIOUS

Lad who Died Heroically Had High Sense of Duty—Fine Canadian Epic

Private Leslie Domoney, of the Seaforth Highlanders, Vancouver, left for the front in April, 1916, and was killed in action while serving his gun a year later. To comparatively few is it given to express such a high sense of duty as was the case with him. Writing on the train carrying his battalion towards the seat of war, he said: "I have taken Lord Roberts' challenge to our faith as my motto and I leave to you at home this message:

'Living, wounded, dead or missing,
I face the words—one must be true—
In your prayers be very certain
God is with me and with you.'"

Wanted "Front Line Job"

A letter of October, 1916, speaks of most interesting religious services on the battlefield when amid the din and shrieking of shells and the humming of "planes" overhead, soldiers sang with fervor the hymn "All People that on Earth Do Dwell" with as much calmness of spirit as they had formerly done in the churches at home. "It is not because we are brave that we are here," the private wrote, "nor are we here because we would not rather be at home, but we are here because duty has called and we love to do what we believe to be our duty to God and our loved ones, to our homes and to all humanity. They have offered me a job on the telegraph line but I came here to stand with the boys in the front line and not to get a 'safety-first' job."

Died at His Post

A letter from a comrade and another from the army chaplain, provide brief details of Private Domoney's death. He was wounded while serving his gun, by an explosion of a shell that entered through the aperture through which the gun was pointed. His gun companion was killed instantly and Leslie was seriously wounded. "He was wonderfully brave and cheerminded as we bore him to the hospital," states one letter, "and though he was losing strength rapidly he was cheerful and fearless. When within a few hundred yards of the hospital he said 'Well boys, I guess this is the end,' and he smiled and was gone."

ARMY SLANG SPECIMENS

Tommy Has a War Vocabulary "All His Own"

"Tommy" always keeps on stock a goodly assortment of nicknames, and the young recruit quickly acquires the habit. You don't need many days' service before you hear the quartermaster referred to as the "quarter-bloke," and you quickly get to know that "gunfire" is not gunfire at all, but that early morning drink of tea which you get if you are lucky. At the base you hear of people who have the "wind up," or who are "windy," and as likely as not when you come to face your first bombardment you will get the "wind up" yourself. An American equivalent of "wind up" is to have "cold feet."

You never speak of going to bed, for the simple reason that a bed is connected with civilisation, and this war isn't. However, when you lie down for a sleep, you say you are going to have a "kip," or you are going to "get down to it." Your rifle you call your "bundook," a word derived from Hindustani.

For all articles of diet "Tommy" has his own name, generally one of Hindustani origin. Tea is "char," bread is "rooty," whilst butter is "muckin," and very often "Maggie Ann." "Posey" denotes jam, whilst an onion is a "peadge," all of which are words brought from India. If you want plenty of gravy with your dinner, ask for more "gippo," and for cheese ask for "bungy," whilst all puddings are classed as "duff." Have a "dekko" means have a look, whilst your chum is styled your "cheese," your "cheddar," or your "china." There are scores of Hindu words which "Tommy" has appropriated for himself, such as "atch-a," all right; but as this is not intended for a dictionary, we will leave it at that, and cry "Na-poo"—finis.

BLOSSOMS FOR THE DEAD

Southern France Grows "Immortelles" for Dead Soldiers

One of the most prosperous agricultural districts in France, wrote a traveller, was in the near neighborhood of Toulon, the Mediterranean seaport not far from Marseilles, and therefore very distant from the scene of war. But the war is to this district the most important source of its prosperity. For its chief product is those tiny, long-lasting flowers known as "immortelles." They go, in vast quantities, to decorate the graves of French soldiers. In early spring the fields planted with them are densely carpeted with the blossoms—associated in everybody's mind not with life, but with death—which are picked in early morning, before the dew is off the petals, and shipped, via Toulon, to all parts of France.

Silver Scarce in Germany

A correspondent sends the following: Silver is obviously scarce in Germany. The watches on most Hun prisoners are made of tin, and they have little or no money in their possession. They explain that many more would be glad to surrender, only their officers told them that if they were taken prisoners they were certain to be shot.

What Tommy Found

From Roye to Arras every chain of ground is marvellous with defensive works, colossal dug-outs, concrete and iron forts, elongated passages, underground towns. The biggest once contained a floating population of 3,000 men.

WIT IN THE TRENCHES

Spontaneous Humor Ever Present in the "Khaki" Lad

Wit is often shown in the notice boards which our soldiers set up in the trenches, says the London Globe. Thus a frequently shelled trench junction bears the legend, "Don't stand about here—there's a war on." A writer has collected a number of these, one of the best being a spot which had once been used by the Germans as a dump for stores, now labelled, "Fritz's Dump—Under Entirely New Management." A siege battery had the whole side of their mess knocked out—you could drive a gun team into the hole where the door had been. On a bit of remaining wall are the words, "Don't Stand Out There, Knocking—Come Right In."

PRISONERS OF WAR

Solitary Confinement for Feeding Half-Starved Child

For giving a few crackers to a half-starved German child—448 hours in solitary confinement! That is the punishment given a British soldier during the rule of Baron von Tauber, according to British soldiers who escaped from the German prison camp of Ruhleben. The case of the unfortunate soldier who in pity fed a German child from some of the supplies sent him by relatives in England, was the worst, but there were others that were almost as extraordinary.

Here are a few samples: Forty-eight hours for waving a handkerchief from a window. Seventy-two hours for reading an English newspaper. Seventy-two hours for smoking in barracks. Forty-eight hours for laughing aloud. Forty-eight hours for saying of a snooping German, "There goes Sherlock Holmes." Forty-eight hours for dropping paper cover with bread into bread box.

Married Men in U. S. Not Exempt From Draft Call

WASHINGTON, May 29. — Only married men who have persons dependent solely upon them for support will gain any consideraiton in exemption from selective service. However, the Secretary of War, Mr. Baker, said to-day the Department hopes to exempt as many married men as possible.

An official announcement from the War Department to-day set at rest the general belief that every married man would be excluded from the first levy. The announcement means that men whose wives or children have means of support will be liable to military service.

An estimate from the Census Bureau revealed the fact that almost half of the men available for draft under the law are married. Any sweeping exclusion of married men would previously deplete the available material. The announcement prepared by the Provost Marshal-General's office states:

Married Men Must Register.

"The Act establishing the selective draft authorizes the President to exclude or discharge from the draft 'those in a status with respect to persons dependent upon them for support which renders their exclusion or discharge advisable.'

"Only those who dependents must rely solely upon them for support should claim exemption, and, of course, all married between the ages of twenty-one and thirty inclusive, must register, whether or not they propose to claim exemption."

Samuel L. Brown, mythical young American between the ages of twenty-one and thirty, must be very careful how he answers the inquiries put to him on registration day. Uncle Sam will check every question closely. Another War Department announcement to-day contained these registration hints:

"Young Brown will first be asked to give his first, middle and last name, and his age at his last birthday. He must then give the street number, city, county and State in which he lives. He must also be very careful to inform himself specifically as to his citizenship, whether he is a native born, and, if not, whether he or his parents have been naturalized.

TRAGEDY MARKS SAMARA, ONCE BAGDAD'S RIVAL

FIVE CALIPHS CAME TO A VIOLENT END IN OLD CITY.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — "Samara (the scene of a recent success scored by General Maude, in command of British troops in Mesopotamia) was once for a brief period of forty years, a rival of Bagdad," says a war geography bulletin of the National Geographical Society.

"The Samara of to-day is almost swallowed up within the site of the ancient and mighty city of old Samara, or Samarra. It is situated on the left bank of the Tigris, some 65 miles northwest of Bagdad, and is connected with the right bank of the river by a bridge of boats.

"The ruins of the old city stretch along the left bank of the river for a distance of nearly twenty miles, and among the crumbling monuments of its departed glory are the chief mosque, the Malivyeh minaret, and two palaces built by the ninth century caliphs. One of the royal residences was erected by Motawakkil, at a cost of 2,000,000 dinars ($4,500,000) the money being extorted from minor officials of the realm, who had abused their power to amass great wealth.

"Samara is now a town of perhaps 2,500 inhabitants, with a few khans and shops on the opposite bank of the river. In the centre of the town is the pilgrimage church of the Shiites, and there is an interesting old quay faced with burned bricks. Before the outbreak of the war there was a public carriage service in Bagdad, also an occasional pilgrimage steamer.

"The star of Samara came into the ascendant in the year 834, when the caliph Motasim bought some territory in this vicinity. Two years later he transferred his residence here from Bagdad because his bodyguard of Turkish slaves had by their excesses and impiety, aroused the hostility of the people of the capital.

"Fearful of antagonizing the populace and equally afraid to take sides against his hirelings, Motasim moved away, leaving the chief city to be governed by his son. This temporizing measure of the caliph marked the beginning of the downfall of his dynasty, for the Turkish guards gradually gained the ascendancy and the nominal rulers became figure-heads and plaything for the military forces.

"Eight caliphs ruled from Samara between 836 and 876, and of these five suffered violent deaths."

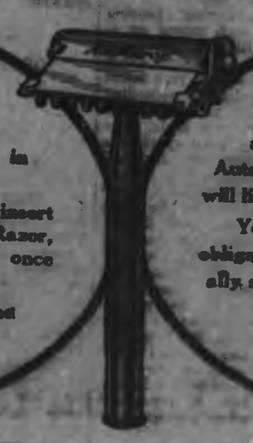
A Difficulty Solved

Webster defines a Razor as "A sharp-edged instrument used for shaving," but failed to specify the method of keeping it sharp.



The invention of the AutoStrop Razor has provided a precise method of keeping its blades in perfect condition for shaving.

To renew the edge you need only insert the strop through the head of the Razor, and the stropping of the blade is at once automatic.

Try it without cost by asking your dealer to lend you an AutoStrop Safety Razor on approval. You will like it so well that you will gladly pay for it.

You may return the Razor without further obligation if its service is not totally and unreservedly satisfactory.

If your dealer cannot supply you, write to us.

In a Canadian camp somewhere in England a second George Washington has been found. He, in company with several others, had been granted four days' leave, and, as usual, wired for extension. But no hackeney excuse was his. In fact, it was so original that it has been framed and now hangs in a prominent spot in the battalion orderly room. It ran as follows: "Nobody dead, nobody ill; still going strong, having a good time, and got plenty of money. Please grant extension." And he got it!

WHEN WATER IS MEASURED BY THE MILLION TONS

Do you know what an "inch of rain" means to farmers? When the Weather Bureau reports that an inch of rain has fallen, it means that on acre of ground water to fill more than 600 barrels of 45 gallons each has fallen. That quantity of water weighs more than 110 tons. If the rainstorm covered 1,000 acres, which would be a very small shower indeed, 113,000 tons of water would fall from the clouds.

Rainstorms frequently cover whole counties, and often two or three, or five inches of water fall in one storm. In that case the weight of water that falls to the earth is simply enormous. A single widespread and heavy storm might result, it has been estimated, in 100,000,000,000 tons of rain.

CANADIAN Y.M.C.A. IN FINE WAR WORK

Tribute Paid by Captain Cameron to Association's Work Among Canadian Troops in Action

Captain (Rev.) W. A. Cameron gave the public an insight into the splendid work carried on by the Canadian Y.M.C.A. at the front. "This association has had a new birth into a strong and virile manhood," declared Capt. Cameron, and he read a cable from General Odlum, a western Canadian officer, which said: "Almost before the last position was consolidated your representative was located on the crest of Vimy Ridge serving hot chocolate and biscuits to all ranks. I recommended this officer for the Military Cross. The Y.M.C.A. has endeared itself to the men at the front in a way that no other institution has."

"When I left France," proceeded Captain Cameron, "we were giving away $500 worth of hot tea and coffee daily, and that amount will have increased to $1,000. At one time $50,000 was spent on baseball goods alone for the boys. Twenty-five tons of maple sugar were sent to them. And in one year we gave them, $30,000 worth of writing paper and envelopes alone. As many as 2,000 letters have been written in one hut in a day. The association is also spending thousands of dollars to concert pianos for the boys in France.

Best Temperance Sermon

"Some of us cannot understand why it is necessary to have wet canteens in the Canadian army. But the Y.M.C.A. is offering strong competition. At the hour the wet canteens open, the best concert money can buy commences across the way under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A. I think you will agree with me that that is the most effective temperance sermon we can preach. And we are gradually getting the institution across the way out of business."

Capt. Cameron said the full story of the war, when it is written, will show that some of the finest Christian work in France has been done in a social way by the Y.M.C.A. "You must remember that we have to take these boys out there as we find them. It is to the whole of that community that we must appeal. The war has had the effect on the life of the soldier of breaking down the barrier of false distinction that used to exist between the sacred and the secular. The barrier has been broken down thanks very largely to the Y.M.C.A. through the elevation of the secular to the level of the sacred.

Lives Kept Unsullied

"It must be as plain as day that this institution has not only rendered a national service in helping to keep up the spirits of the boys on the firing line, but has strengthened the morale of the whole Canadian army. And if the Chaplains and Y.M.C.A. captains are not winning these men for the Kingdom of Christ they have themselves to blame, for never were men more responsive to religious appeal. We tried to lead these Canadian soldiers to make the great decision and found the majority of them had made it years ago. The overwhelming majority of the Canadian boys in France have kept their lives clean and unsullied. You may have received reports that there is drinking going on in France. There is practically no drinking, and I brand reports of drinking as lies and slanders."

RATIONING IN THE PAST

Plantagenets and Stuarts Limited Their Subjects in Food

A London paper writes: In the middle of the fourteenth century the luxury of the table had reached such a height in England that a law was made to prohibit all persons "from having more than two courses and more than two kinds of meat with pottages in each course; except on eighteen holidays in the year, when gluttony and extravagance might be freely indulged." In the middle of the sixteenth century similar limitations in food were made, mainly on account of the high prices prevailing: In Scotland an Act was passed which limited archbishops, bishops, and earls to eight dishes of meat; abbots, priors, and deans to six; barons and freeholders to four; and burgesses and substantial men, whether spiritual or temporal, to three; and decreed that only one kind of meat should be in each dish. Marriage feasts, we are told, and entertainments made for foreigners were exempted from the rigours of this sumptuary law.

FOOLED HUN COLONEL

Just as a flock of birds hide themselves beneath the leaves of some big tree to escape a passing shower, two hundred Germans, including a full-fledged colonel, hid in an underground passage at one extremity of a trench to wait until what they thought was a Canadian raiding party had finished its sortie and had returned to its trenches. But it was no raiding party. It was part of a "big push" in real action, and so without pulling a trigger the two hundred Germans and their colonel were marched out of their hiding place to do service in some internment camp. This interesting and somewhat amusing incident was told by Pte. Norvil Chester, a Vancouver soldier.

GRAND OLD PUTNIK

Serbia's Faithful and Skilful Marshal and Hero

Field Marshal Radomir Putnik, the former Chief of General Staff of the Serbian army and former Minister of War, who died at Nice, Italy, during 1917, was with the Serbian forces when they retreated into Albania. He had been living at Nice, where he had suffered from a serious illness for a considerable time. General Putnik was a national hero. Born in 1847, the son of a poor schoolmaster, he became a professor in the Military Academy of his native country, and his brilliant teaching is still a tradition there. He was also the author of a number of military text books. In 1876 Putnik fought in the war against Turkey with the rank of Captain, in 1885 he was a division commander in the war against the Turks and in the Balkan wars of 1912, 1913, and in the present war has supreme command of the Serbian armies. He was responsible for the successes of the Serbs in the earlier period of the war, and in the later phases, when the Germans, Austrians and Bulgars overwhelmed his forces, he managed to lead a good part of the army to safety, though he was so ill during the greater part of the fighting that he had to be carried on a litter. In his last losing campaign he won even German praise for his skill, at a time when asthma made it almost impossible for him to speak an order.

NEWSPAPERS "LOVE" WAR

Means Big Loss of Profits According to Evidence

This notion that newspapers want war so that they can print exciting news is a disease, says the Philadelphia Ledger. As well accuse men of setting their homes ablaze in order to see the fire-engines work. Here is the cold fact: War costs the newspapers more in real cash than it costs any other important institution. War news costs every live newspaper a great deal more money than it can possibly get back from the sale of papers or in advertising. Some valuable testimony on this very subject was brought out in connection with Joseph Pulitzer's estate. It was shown that one of his newspapers had been earning a profit of about a million dollars a year before the Spanish war. So great were the expenses of that war that in 1898 the profits were actually reduced to zero.

LURE OF THE KHAKI

Picturesque has Ever Appealed to a Woman

The army has a unique fascination for women. When they heard that workers for the land were to be soldiers, every woman wanted to go on the land. When it was found that land work did not lend itself to soldiering, women looked somewhere else for a uniform. That is what it amounts to. And, of course, all that it conveys. The picturesque has ever appealed to woman. She will do the hard thing that touches her imagination, and leave undone the little thing that does not. She will laugh in the open boat on a winter's night after the ship has been submarined, but she will be querulous if there are no curling tongs in the hotel to which she is taken.

More Pay for Veterans

An increase of the subsistence allowance for disabled soldiers in training for new occupations—from 60 cents to $1 a day—was decided on by the Canadian Government at the request of the Military Hospitals Commission.

Phone Romance Ends In Tragedy

Jealous Husband Stays Kneeling Wife, Then Kills Self.

CHICAGO.—Flattery, flowers and candy—and a man's voice on the telephone—were the little attentions that pleased Mrs. Sylvia Castillo, a cabaret singer, but not so her Spanish husband, Juan. He killed her and himself.

The telephone in Mrs. Laura Shotwell's rooming-house at 1154 North LaSalle street kept up its insistent ringing most of Thursday morning. Always it was a man's voice inquiring for Mrs. Castillo.

But Castillo would not permit his wife to go to the telephone. Roomers heard him raging, but Mrs. Castillo did not appear.

It was late in the afternoon when Mrs. Matilda Klensendorf, the housekeeper, found the door of Castillo's room locked. They had not been seen since morning. The police were called and forced open the door. They found the body of Mrs. Castillo, clad in a bloody kimona, hanging across one side of a partly filled trunk, her head and shoulders within the receptacle. There were two bullet wounds in her back. The tray of the trunk was on the floor.

The police believe Mrs. Castillo had prepared to leave her husband after a quarrel and was murdered as she kneeled before the trunk. The tray and clothing bore out the theory that she had made preparations for packing the trunk.

In the next room—the Castillos had a parlor and sleeping room—the body of Castillo lay on the floor. There was a bullet hole through the heart and in the right hand was clutched a revolver, with three empty chambers.

Six letters written in Spanish—the language Castillo and his wife always conversed in, were found in the room. They were addressed to Castillo in care of Amos Silvo of the National Hotel, Wabash avenue and East Van Buren street. Silvo was an uncle of the slain woman and last night told the police he knew of no motive for the murder.

Castillo was a musician, and was of a fiery and jealous temperment, the police were told. When his wife got flowers or candy—when men shot flirtatious glances at her—Castillo raged. He had been heard pacing up and down the floor of their rooms when he had quarrelled with his wife so the other roomers said.

Silvo said Castillo had met his wife in Santa Barbara, Cal., which had been their home. They had theatrical engagements for a time and came to Chicago with the Mission Play at the Strand Theatre, he said. They lost their situations, however, when the show left Chicago, and then Mrs. Castillo became a cabaret singer.

Detectives planned to have the letters translated and were curious as to the identity of the man who had telephoned for Mrs. Castillo.

SHE GAINED 25 POUNDS.

Mrs. George Bradshaw, Harlowe, Ont., writes: "I was troubled for many years with weak watery blood and dropsy. I had nervous headaches, dizziness and sinking spells, and was in fact, a semi-invalid. Doctors told me my heart and kidneys were disease and gave medicine, but by using 10 boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I have been cured of many of my old complaints and gained 25 pounds in weight.

GOES FOR AEROPLANE FLIGHT BUT GETS MARRIED INSTEAD

Cards just sent out announcing that "Mr. and Mrs. Paul Frederick Foster will be at home after May 10 at Villa Victoire, Great Neck, L.I., was the first intimation that the friends of Miss Mary Isabella de la Vincendiere Lowe had been secretly married to Lieutenant Foster of the United States Navy, on September 8, 1916.

A despatch from Topeka, Kan., the home of Lieutenant Foster, last night stated the announcement had been withheld because of Miss Low's theatrical engagements, that she was on the stage under the name of Jane Anderson, being a niece of Mary Anderson.

The bride forgot all about her stage career last night in discussing her romance with a Herald reporter at Villa Victorie, the home of her sister, Mrs. Victorie Hale, wife of Creighton Hale, a "movie" star. She never mentioned it once; nor did she say that she was the Isabella Lowe of "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine" company. She was busy with her arrangements for a reception at Villa Victorie.

The young Mrs. Foster is a daughter of Paul E. Lowe, an author, a granddaughter of E. Louis Lowe, formerly Governor of Maryland, and a great granddaughter of President James K. Polk. Another grandfather, Bradley Lowe, was one of the first graduates of West Point. Back in her ancestry are such distinguished persons as Lady Jane Baltimore and the Stuarts of England. Bu her mother she is descended from the Anderson and Christians of Virginia and Tennessee, but last night she neglected to mention Mary Anderson, referred to in the Kansas despatch.

The bride's brother, Lieutenant R. V. Lowe, is on board the battleship Maine; her husband, Lieutenant Foster, commands a United States submarine, and on the battlefields of France fifty-four of her cousins, she said, had either lost their lives or are still fighting.

Lieutenant Foster won the medal of honour for gallantry in leading a battalion from the battleship Utah in making a landing at Vera Cruz. Two brothers are at Annapolis and another, a Rhodes scholar at Oxford, is with the British army in Egypt.

Lieutenant Foster, Miss Lowe, Mr. and Mrs. Hale and others went to Amityville on September 8 last year, Miss Lowe intending to make a flight in an aeroplane with Lawrence Sperry, she being interested in flying. Disappointed because Mr. Sperry was absent, the party went to an inn near Babylon and at luncheon the naval officer and Miss Lowe were "dared" about marriage. According to the bride last night they "wouldn't take a dare" and proceeded to a clergyman at Babylon and were married.

Newspaper files tell of a Miss Jane Anderson, American actress, who "looped the loop" in a military aeroplane over London, and of Miss Isabella Lowe, who played the leading part created by Miss Charlotte Walker in "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," but when the reporter called on the bride he did not have that information and she overlooked any mentioning of the stage.

GARDEN TOOLS

Even for the smallest garden a few simple tools will be required, and these should be provided in good time. They should not be too big or too heavy for the worker's strength. Many women and boys will this year be engaged in gardening and for them a heavy spade or hoe will be discouraging as they soon exhaust the strength. Provide lighter and smaller tools for those not accustomed to the work. Be careful however not to get them too light as that may mean that they are flimsy and will soon break.

In New York City the children in the poorer sections cultivate their little plots only about five feet by ten, entirely by sticks which the children themselves shape and sharpen. They can be used to loosen the earth, or dig out weeds, or even to make furrows for planting. To undertake gardening in earnest, however, the tools must be adequate for the work in hand.

For turning over the earth either a spade or a fork is used. It is the spade that is most commonly used yet there are advantages to be obtained by the digging fork. Less force is required to thrust it into the ground and it breaks the soil into fine lumps. Sod land or loose sandy land must be handled with the spade.

In planting and cultivating dependence is placed on the rake and the hoe which correspond in a way to the fork and the spade. Hoes of all weights and of varying widths can be bought so there is no reason why any one should work with an unsuitable kind. The best hoes have blade and ferule all in one piece and the ferule is rivetted to the handle. Rakes are also made in different sizes though the length of the teeth should be about an inch and a half in all cases. A narrow rake is best for a small garden, as in close cropping it is necessary to get into small spaces between rows of such plants as radishes. Through the summer there are many times when a rake will do more effective work than a hoe and with a smaller expenditure of energy. If weeds are just showing through the ground a stroke with the rake will expose the roots to the sun and destroy them. Then too for holding moisture in the soil a slight stirring of the surface is as good, or may be even better, than deeper cultivation.

Dealers offer for sale many forms of wheel hoes, some of them with seeder attachment. These are labor savers and will appeal to the people who have large gardens. They are indispensable to the market gardeners, and when a group of people are working plots in the same vicinity the purchase of one for use in common may be advisable. Behind the wheels may be fastened hoe-blades, rakes, cultivator teeth and even little ploughshares for turning the soil. The operator pushes the implement ahead of him while walking between the long straight rows.

For marking out the garden and for planting, one needs a line and stakes and labels. The line may be any piece of strong string of sufficient length. It will be exposed to the weather, so to make it last long dip it first in melted wax. The line may be wound on a stick, kite string fashion. Or you can buy a kind of reel on a stick that is very satisfactory.

Labels may be only short sticks to mark the ends of the planted rows if the garden is small and names are not necessary. In larger gardens, however, the labels should be flat and smooth at the end and dipped in white paint. Then the name of the variety and the date can be written for guidance.

A watering pot is necessary at times. Not that too much reliance should be placed on watering, but for use after planting or for delicate plants. It is always better practice to hold moisture in the soil by cultivation than to supply by hand sprinkling.

In addition to the articles named it is well to have a trowel for transplanting. True, the spade will take its place in digging a hole, but it is heavy and clumsy to use with one hand. Most gardeners use the curved trowel, but the larger sized ones will stand more work.

Small hand weeders and hand forks will be found on sale and as the cost is not great one of these may be added to the home gardener's equipment. Sieves for sprinkling fine earth over small seeds also come in handy.

Finally keep the tools in condition, by cleaning after use. Keep dry and they will not rust; if they do rust, clean off with oil or by rubbing in sand.

RUPTURE APPLIANCE SPECIALIST HERE

New Invention Retains Rupture Without Knife, Danger or Pain.

Old-fashioned galling, slipping trusses and foreign mail order methods are done away with by the wonderful invention of the Canadian specialist who has devoted years to this one study. HAD AWFUL ATTACKS OF HEART TROUBLE

For 5 or 6 Years

Diseases and disorders of the heart and nervous system have become frightfully prevalent of late years.

One can scarcely pick up a paper but he will find recorded instances of sudden deaths through heart failure, or of prominent men and women unable to prosecute their ordinary business or profession on account of a breaking down of the nervous system.

We do not desire to unnecessarily alarm anyone, but to sound a word of warning.

When the heart begins to beat irregularly, palpitates and throbs, has shooting pains through it, it is time to stop and think.

To all sufferers from heart and nerve troubles Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills can give prompt and permanent relief.

Mrs. Frank Arseneau, Newcastle, N. B., writes: "I had awful attacks of heart trouble for the past five or six years, and as I had tried many kinds of medicine without getting any better I decided to give Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills a trial, and to my surprise I found ease from the second dose. I continued taking them until I had used six boxes, and now I feel as well as can be.

"At the present time my sister is using them for nervousness and finds great comfort by their use."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c or three boxes for $1.25 at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

A delightful small plate for afternoon tea has a "well" in which to set the teacup.

Rhubarb is delicious baked with raisins or prunes. The raisins should be cooked first.

Keep the top of the dining table in condition by wiping it over with a cloth and olive oil.

The oyster should never be cooked too long or it will be dry. Cook it just enough to heat through.

Flounder is delicious if boned, skinned and served as the English sole is served, with tartar sauce.

Turpentine will prevent moth eggs from hatching, and the moth will not lay eggs where turpentine is.

It is better to clean the windows on the outside first. This makes it easier to find the spots when cleaning the inside.

Sunday School Lesson Questions

June 3, 1917.

Jesus betrayed and denied: John 18:1-18.

Golden Text: He was despised and rejected of men. Isa. 53:3.

1. Verses 1, 2. Had Jesus and his disciples been in the habit of using this garden for recreation or for meditation?

2. Why, or why not, should it be thought incompatible with the character of Jesus and his disciples, if it were so, that they had been in the habit of playing some restful game in this garden, such as bowling which many of the preachers play to-day?

3. Why is it that a familiar and pleasant garden shaded say by olive trees, especially in the gloaming or later in the moonlight, is such an aid to meditation?

4. Verses 3-5. Why did Judas betray Jesus?

5. What part does money play to-day in unfaithfulness to, or in the betrayal of Jesus?

6. What reason is there to suppose that Judas expected that Jesus would escape from his enemies, and that he (Judas) would be 30 pieces of silver ahead, and no harm done to his master?

7. Verses 3-5. Suppose Jesus had escaped from his enemies, what difference would that have made to the guilt of Judas?

8. Which would you say and why, that the betrayal of Jesus on the part of Judas was a sudden impulse or a settled purpose?

9. Why would you say or not, that Judas was once a good and true man?

10. Verses 3-5. Why would you say or not, that some people take up the practices of religion for its excitement or for pastime, like others take to politics, to games, or to drinking, and with no higher motive?

11. Verses 6-9. Why did these men that came to arrest Jesus, fall to the ground, was it through the power of Jesus, or some other reason?

12. Jesus doubtless had the power, why then did he not slay these men?

13. Verses 10, 11. When, if ever, is it right for a Christian to return evil for evil?

14. Verse 11. What reason, if any, is there to believe that like his master every true Christian has his cup of sorrow to drink?

15. Verses 12-13. On other occasions Jesus slipped away from them, when they wanted to arrest him — why did he not do so on this occasion?

16. Which were bound with fetters more to be dreaded, Judas, the High Priest, the soldiers that made the arrest, or Jesus? Why? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by members of the Club.)

17. Verse 14. Would you say that Caiphas had made up his mind that Jesus should die, and if so was it hate, or religion, or politics, that brought him to that decision? (See John 11:49, 50.)

18. Verses 15-18. Would it or not, and why, have been better for Peter if, like most of the other disciples, he had remained away from the trial of Jesus?

19. Which do you consider acted the most ignoble part, those disciples that fled from Jesus, or Peter?

20. What is your explanation, or excuse or reason, for Peter denying Jesus?

Lesson for Sunday, June 10, 1917: Jesus Crucified. John 19:16-30.

URIC ACID SUFFERING.

Uric acid is an accumulation of poison which finds lodgment in the system when the kidneys fail to remove it from the blood. In the kidneys and bladder it forms stones, in the joints and muscles it causes rheumatism. In any case the pain and suffering is almost beyond human endurance. Uric acid is promptly removed from the system when the kidneys are kept healthy and active by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

SEA PIE.

Chop one and a half ounces of suet, and mix it with four ounces of flour, a pinch of salt and enough water to mix to a firm dough. Cut into neat pieces three-quarters pound of lean beef (shin, for example.) Season it with salt and pepper and sprinkle it with vinegar. Fry a finely chopped onion and when it is browned add one half ounce of flour and let it just brown. Add three-quarters of a pint of stock and bring to the boil, shirring meanwhile. Add the seasoned meat, a spoonful of chopped parsley, and a little grated lemon peel. Simmer and skim. Then place the suet and paste (rolled out and cut to size) over the meat and cook very gently for one and a half hours. Cooked macaroni can be added to the pie, also partly boiled sliced potato. Dumplings or savory balls may also be added, and thus a large dish may be made with very little meat.

SAVED BY CIRCUS HORSE

Performing Horse Did Not Learn Lesson in Vain

A French soldier, Pte. Ambrose Perrichon, owed his life to a German circus horse, which picked him up when he was lying on the field of battle and carried him into the French lines, says a correspondent in The Horseshoers' Journal. Both the soldier's legs were shattered by a German quick-firer. When night came on he heard near him the heavy breathing of a great white horse, which munched the short grass. The animal was riderless, and he whistled to it and began to clap it kindly. The horse whinnied with pleasure. Perrichon was powerless to make the slightest effort on his own behalf. The animal seemed to understand, for it fell on its knees beside him, held its head over his breast, and remained motionless. Then it got up and walked around the soldier. At last it stopped, sniffed the wounded man all over, and then, seizing his leather waistbelt in its teeth, it lifted him from the ground and galloped off. When the horse stopped in the advance French lines at daybreak its human burden was little more than a wreck. But tender care brought him round. Perrichon's sergeant, who knows a lot about horses, says the animal which saved his life was before the war in a German circus, where it performed in the pantomime known as "The Arab and His Faithful Steed."

Petain of Verdun

GENERAL PETAIN, whose succession to General Nivelle as French Commander-in-Chief on the Western Front, was one of the more striking incidents in a career of progress. Petain, a man of coolness and decision, became famous as the author of the phrase, "They shall not pass."

When Ladies Were Fashionable

It was during the Crimean War that beards became fashionable, writes a London paper. The cold in the trenches before Sebastopol was so intense that all the officers and men remained unshaven. The ladies greatly admired the bearded warriors when they came back, so that it became the fashion for every "lion" of that period to grow a beard.

During the war thousands were starving in the Holy Land. In one district alone the deaths from starvation number 80,000. Children were sold in the streets for 50 cents.

If the Kaiser fails to produce peace, German scientists will, doubtless, invent a substitute for it.

FARM GIRLS' FEATS

Beat the Men by Two Hours at Ploughing Contest

At a farm demonstration in Surrey, England, it was proved by practical illustration that women were well able to be of their own in the agricultural field. From two o'clock until late evening, cheery and untiring, the women ploughed, milked, fed calves, harnessed horses, harrowed, hoed corn and dug weeds from the stubble, cleaned swedes, and killed, plucked, and trussed fowls. Some of them took part in every competition and finished smiling and in the mood for more. For the most part it was the younger women who ploughed and milked, while the elders, less picturesquely garbed but desperately in earnest, hoed and weeded.

The ploughing competitors, of whom there were eight, "set" their own ploughs, put their teams of two strange horses in motion, and ploughed a 6-inch furrow clean and straight. Local ancients agreed that it was "wonderful good work for a woman." Each woman ploughed a quarter of an acre, and the average time was one and a half hours. It is considered that eight hours to an acre is their time for a man. The women beat it by two hours to the acre.

NOSE CLOGGED FROM A COLD OR CATARRH

Apply Cream in Nostrils To Open Up Air Passages.

Ah! What relief! Your clogged nostrils open right up, the air passages of your head are clear and you can breathe freely. No more hawking, snuffling, mucous discharge, headache, dryness—no struggling for breath at night, your cold or catarrh is gone.

Don't stay stuffed up! Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream in your nostrils, let it penetrate through every air passage of the head; soothe and heal the swollen, inflamed mucous membrane, giving you instant relief. Ely's Cream Balm is just what every cold and catarrh sufferer has been seeking. It's just splendid.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

FOR LOVE OF SHORTY

By FREDERICK WHITE

Maggie Dolan's first dream of love was inspired by Shorty McGovern.

He had danced with her three times at the ball of the Happy Friends' association and had escorted her home afterward. Unfortunately for her peace of mind, Maggie had not inspired Shorty with anything in particular.

He was good natured, and had danced with her because she did not seem to have many partners.

He walked home with her because they happened to dance the last waits together. Then he forgot all about it, but Maggie did not.

Had she known Shorty's profession—he was a burglar—she would have had nothing to do with him. But she only knew that he was what she considered handsome and that he talked most attractively about books.

She was young, very young, and no man or boy had ever paid her so much attention before.

Being afflicted with an imagination, she gave herself up to dreams in which Shorty was always the predominant figure. On her way to and from the factory she was continually on the lookout for him, and every evening she surprised her mother by putting on her best dress in the hope that he might come to see her. But Shorty never came. He had other business on hand, if not more attractive at least more remunerative, so Maggie looked and waited in vain.

Shorty had just pulled off a good thing, so good that the police were almost as much interested as the victims of the robbery, and that meant trouble.

Shorty realized this and resented it because it interfered with his reading. He always read voraciously—between times—and, with the wherewithal for six months' comfort on hand, he hated to be disturbed. He knew, in that mysterious way by which police news travels to those most interested, that he was under suspicion and, much against his inclinations, he was preparing to leave town until the atmosphere should clear.

In the meanwhile Maggie had become almost desperate. In her primitive way she was very much in love, and to see Shorty again was her one thought, day and night. Her fancy wove a glamour about him that even Shorty himself would have repudiated with scorn had he known.

Then came the arrest, for the powers had been too much for him at last.

Maggie saw it in the papers, and a picture of her hero brought the shock home to her with sickening directness. She was dazed, stunned, hopeless, but still in love. Without saying anything to her mother she visited Shorty in the city prison.

Shorty was very much surprised, but appreciated the attention, although the girl's grief and disappointment in him (she had impulsively told more than she should) annoyed him.

Though more or less callous in regard to the right or wrong of his calling, he would have welcomed respectability if he could have afforded it, but now it was too late, and in his heart he resented this too. The first visit led to others, and in the devotion of the girl Shorty saw a gleam of hope.

He was not entirely selfish in this matter. If he escaped his term in prison, he would do the right thing by her.

He would take her away with him and marry her, but for some reason or other he never told the girl this.

So it was that for pure love of him Maggie agreed to help him establish an alibi, although she knew from his own lips that he was guilty.

With the aid of a lawyer, who asked no embarrassing questions, they concocted the defense. On the day of the trial Maggie went on the stand. Pale of face, but exalted in spirit, she swore that on the night of the robbery Shorty had been with her, in her home, until 1 o'clock.

Fortunately for the success of this story, Maggie's mother could not deny it, for she had spent that night away from home nursing a sick friend.

Broken hearted at the smirching of the good name of Dolan, she asserted her belief that her daughter was bewitched and, shaking her fist at Shorty, threatened vengeance until suppressed by the court.

Her evident animus against the prisoner had no effect, directly opposite from that which she had hoped to produce. It strengthened his alibi materially, and much to the disgust of the police Shorty was acquitted.

When the dwellers of the tenements wish to be alone and undisturbed, they seek the comparative privacy of a park bench. On the evening of his release Shorty met the girl by appointment, and together they threaded their way through the crowded streets to one of the city's breathing spaces.

Shorty, pale and worn and somewhat chastened in spirit by his enforced seclusion, breathed the air of liberty with ever growing delight.

It was good to be his own boss again, and with the realization came another thought—he was some one else's boss too. His hand touched the arm of the girl at his side, and a thrill of conscious power ran through him.

She belonged to him. She had done too much and gone too far to quit now. She must look to him and to no one else in the future.

When he first understood that he was free, his heart had gone out to the girl in a tender pity that sent him a supplicant at her feet.

But now, a few hours later, this was forgotten. Something in his lawless nature crowded out all sense of gratitude and left only the selfish pride of man in his conquest.

They entered the park and sat down upon a bench partly sheltered from passing eyes by a bush.

Maggie's face looked very white in the growing dusk, and her eyes were fixed on the ground.

Shorty shifted about uneasily, and then, in lieu of anything better, he put his arm about her shoulders.

The girl shivered and drew away.

"What's the matter," said Shorty. "You're not afraid of me, are you?"

"No," said the girl; "I'm more afraid of myself."

This was beyond Shorty's comprehension. "You're what?" he asked roughly.

"Oh, Shorty," cried the girl earnestly, "can't you understand that it's all over now and we must not see each other any more?"

"What d'ye mean?" he demanded. "Don't you know I'm going to take you away tomorrow. I got some money left, and," he added magnanimously, "we can get married before we go if you want to."

Maggie laid her head upon the top rail of the bench and began to cry.

"I can't do it. I won't do it," she sobbed. "You must go away—alone."

Shorty did not know what to make of this. What did the girl want if she did not want him? Why had she visited him in the prison, worked for him, lied for him, if she did not want him?

"Aw, come off," he said gently. "What do you want, anyhow?"

"This," said the girl, springing to her feet and dashing the tears from her eyes. "I want you to go away where I will never see you again. What I did, I did because I loved you, and I am glad of it—glad that I lied for you and got you off."

Shorty looked at her in wonder. He could not understand this girl. There was something in her beyond his comprehension.

His confidence in himself was weakening.

"You better come with me, Maggie," he said. "I'll promise to be good to you."

"It isn't that," went on the girl. "I told you I was not afraid of anything but myself. I know what you are—a thief, and I know what I am—a liar, and I know what we both ought to be, and I can't do it. We could never be happy or good and—oh, Shorty! I'll always think of you as you were that night at the dance, before I knew, and—go—go away now or I can't stand it."

Shorty began to realize something of the tumult in the girl's heart.

He felt rather than understood her struggle for her ideal.

He knew that should he take her in his arms even now she would not be able to resist him.

Something of her innate desire for what was good and true stole over him, and to his everlasting credit he did not resist it.

"I guess you're right, Maggie," he said brokenly. "I thought we could have gone away and been happy together, but—I guess you're right."

There was a world of gratitude in her eyes as she raised them to him, and his own eyes grew misty.

"Goodby," he said.

She placed her hand in his, and they stood there for a moment, neither daring to say a word. Then he turned and walked swiftly away.

She saw him for a moment in the glare of the electric light, and then he disappeared in the shadows beyond.

Half an hour later there was a knock at Mrs. Dolan's door. She wiped her eyes and opened it eagerly.

"Mother," said Maggie, "can I come home?"

These Children.

And there was a certain man who, being a merchant with a trade to look after, was a member of the church, in fact an elder therein.

One day he invited his pastor home to dinner, and while they sat in the parlor waiting for the call to table he began to tell of a brother elder's misconduct and grievous sin.

"I only tell you this because you are the pastor, and I think you ought to know it. I never mention it to any one else."

And he repeated this several times during the recital. As it was almost completed in came his little daughter. Catching the subject of the conversation, she broke in with this exclamation:

"My goodness, pa! You're surely not telling that old story again!"—Kansas City Independent.

HELP FOR WORKING WOMEN

Some Have to Keep on Until They Almost Drop. How Mrs. Conley Got Help.

Here is a letter from a woman who had to work, but was too weak and suffered too much to continue. How she regained health:—

Frankfort, Ky.—"I suffered so much with female weakness that I could not do my own work, had to hire it done. I heard so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I tried it. I took three bottles and I found it to be all you claim. Now I feel as well as ever I did and am able to do all my own work again. I recommend it to any woman suffering from female weakness. You may publish my letter if you wish."—Mrs. JAMES CONLEY, 516 St. Clair St., Frankfort, Ky.

No woman suffering from any form of female troubles should lose hope until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from native roots and herbs, has for forty years proved to be a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism.

All women are invited to write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for special advice,—it will be confidential.

Few People Know This

The big dose purges its way through the system fast, but does not cleanse thoroughly.

The small dose (if right) acts gently on the liver, and gives it just the slight help it needs to do its own work, and do it well.

Take one pill regularly, until you know you are all right.

GOING HOME

(By Patrick MacGill.)

"I want to go 'ome,
I want to go 'ome,
I don't want to go to the trenches no more,
Where the bullets and shrapnel do whistle and roar;
I want ter go over the sea,
Where the Allemong can't get at me,
I want to go
I want to go
I want to go 'ome."

Spudhole finished his song, adjusted his equipment braces, lit a cigarette, and leant his elbow on the parapet, and looked at me.

"Sixteen months," he said, emphasing each word.

"Sixteen—'ole—bloomin' months an' this the first leave. I never thought I wanted a trip to Blighty as much as I do now. Sixteen months!" he repeated. "Sixteen—'ole—months!"

"You aren't nicknamed Spudhole for nothing!" I remarked.

"I haven't got a clean sheet. I'll say that!" he answered. "It's as dirty as if it was on the bed of a chimney-sweep. S'pose I couldn't expect leave wiv a reputation like mine. It's not in keepin' wiv regulations. But all the same I do want to go 'ome—Just for a visit."

He sat down on the firestep, leant his back against a sandbag and folded his arms.

OFF TO-NIGHT.

"Seven days' leave!" he muttured. "And off to-night. Blimey 'twon't 'arf be some doin's. Wot'll I do when I get to the old Smoke. Nuffink much I 'spose, for wot wiv one thing and another I'll not be able to do nuffink. Then there's my bird as 'as a barber off Walworth Road and then....But wot's the good o' talkin'. Wot's the time?"

"Twelve o'clock," I said, looking at my watch.

"I leave 'ere at two," said Spudhole. "Then to the rail-'ead, and then Blighty....'Ere is'nt it funny that this 'ere leave is my first for sixteen months!" he asked. "Other blokes...."

"Oh, but your sheet!" I said.

"But wot were my crimes?" said Spudhole. "Not much in any o' 'em. I did pinch the apples on the farm at Maringarbe, but was I the only one?"

"The only one rum!" I remarked.

"And the 'en that came into our billet at Bethune," said Spudhole. "I didn't catch it though I killed it. An' that scrap on the parade ground when I blacked stumpy 'Iggles two eyes for 'im, and us 'aving a month's rest back at ascel. I spent a good part o' that rest in jankers. And then in camp in Blighty 'fore we came out 'ere when I 'ops off ter Lunnon what did I get? Seven days Spudhole. And then...."

"Please don't enumerate them all," I said.

"O' right, matey," Spudhole answered. "But tell me wot is the time now?"

"Ten past twelve," I said.

TIME'S LONG.

"Time's long a passin', this mornin'," said Spudhole. "Yer watch is as slow movin' as a tank. But two o'clock, and Blighty! Hip, hip, hooray!"

He rose to his feet, danced a step or two in the muddy trench, then got up on the firestep, gripped his rifle, slipped it over the parapet and fired at the enemy trench. One, two, three; but a dozen rounds sped over No Man's Land in quick succession.

"I'm biddin' good-bye to the Boche," he said. "I almost love 'im to-day....Hey, Tom, you're lookin glum. Wot's wrong wiv ye?"

He was speaking to old Tom Greer who had just entered the bay. Tom a man of 35, who belonged to our platoon, was indeed looking glum.

"Well, wot's wrong wiv yer, Tom?" Spudhole enquired. "Bad news?"

"The news is not at all good," he said. "I had a letter wiv the last post and little Betty, my only kid, is not well. And she's such a pretty kid, you should see her! and she's been allus delicate, too. Her cheeks are so thin....It'll maybe be decline, for it's in the mother's people. It's so 'ard not being able to see her."

"Why not apply for leave?" I said.

"It's no good," said Tom, I've been only out here for three months, and others...."

He walked away and disappeared round the traverse.

"I'm sorry for ole Tom," said Spudhole when the man had left. "And a kid, too. It's 'ell, that's wot it is."

He lit a cigarette and puffed viciously. His brow contracted until his eyes became mere pin points, and he stared fixedly at me. At last he spoke:

"Why shouldn't I?" he said. "It doesn't matter. Wots the time?" he asked.

"Ten to one."

"I must see the orficer now about goin' away," said Spudhole, and he left me.

Fifteen minutes later he came back swearing violently.

"Wot d'ye fink o' it?" he yelled. "The 'eads, damn 'em! 'ave cancelled my bloomin' pass. Won't allow me ter go 'cos my sheet is so bad. One locum't get no chance 'ere. I'm sick of the damned doin's, sick, blegmin' well sick!"

"Who is goin' instead of you, Spudhole?" I asked.

"Ole Tom, 'cos 'is kid's so queer."

I looked at Spudhole, and a queer lump rose in my throat. I gripped him by the hand and almost felt on the point of tears.

"Brasen it out as you will, Spudhole, I know what you've done," I said, choking a little.

"But my sheet is not clean, matey-'ow," he muttered in a lame voice.

"But your heart's good, Matey," I said.

Tom Green went home that night, and the Platoon Commander saw that Spudhole went a fortnight later.

What the C. O. thinks of Spudhole I do not know. One thing however, I do know, and that is this: When the officer's raised a collection towards Spudhole's expenses on the journey home, the C. O. topped the amount collected with a twenty franc note.

Stenographic Notes Of All Seditious Speeches To Be Made For Federal Officials

United States Attorneys and Marshals Are Instructed to Be Present or to Be Represented at Meetings Called to Oppose Registration on June 5--Four Thousand "Slackers" Flee Across Border into Mexico---"Conscientious Objectors" and Pacifists Told of Their Peril.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Pacifists "conscientious" objectors and others were warned that agents of the Department of Justice would report all speeches and that arrests would follow any attempts, even by words, to discourage draft registration.

Boston and St. Louis reported there was no organized hostility to the draft in those cities. Arrests were said to be near in Chicago, while groups of socialists in Philadelphia declared opposition to registration.

San Antonio reported that four thousand Americans had crossed the border in Mexico since May 1, according to records compiled by El Paso, Laredo, Eagle Pass and Brownsville.

Anti-draft agitation was eliminated from the first three sessions of the first American Conference for Democracy and Terms of Peace, held in Madison Square Garden. Various forms of pro-German propaganda were revived, however.

A further serious warning to persons who might indulge in treasonable utterances at public meetings by urging opposition to registration under the Selective Draft law was sounded by the Department of Justice.

Instructions were sent by telegraph or telephone to agents of the department that they were to be present or represented at all gatherings where agitation of that character is probable. Stenographic reports of addresses are to be submitted to the department and arrests ordered in all instances where the speakers overstep the bounds prescribed by the law.

The announcement made constitutes a warning to pacifists, "conscientious objectors" and others that physical opposition to the enforcement of the registration provisions is not the only basis for prosecution. Those who merely urge others to ignore the provision of the law and advocate resistance are to be held liable as well as those who by force of arms or otherwise stand in the way of its enforcement.

Reports received at the Department of Justice from all parts of the country fail to link together the cases of contemplated resistance into an organized movement. So far the suspicion that German influences are at work to stir up resentment against the Selective Draft law with a view to defeating the purposes of the United States has not been verified.

The department now has under scrutiny printed matter that has been scattered broadcast by certain pacifist or anti-militarist organizations advocating resistance to the Selective Draft law. To prevent the use of the mails for carrying on propaganda of a treasonable character is the purpose of one of the provisions of the so-called espionage bill. It is possible that as soon as the law is enacted the authority to be conferred upon the Postmaster General may be invoked.

Despite the activity of that character in some quarters government officials are not yet convinced that it reflects a general tendency and complete compliance with the registration provision of the law is expected.

The following announcement was issued by the Committee on Public Information:

"The Department of Justice communicated instructions by telegraph or long distance telephone to its officers and agents in communities wherever meetings were likely to be held at which agitation against registration as prescribed in the new army bill might be indulged in. The United States attorneys and marshals were directed to be present or represented at the meetings and to have stenographic reports made of the addresses delivered.

"The reports will be gone over carefully and arrests will be made later in all instances in which the utterances of the speakers are calculated to discourage registration or to influence individuals in attempting to evade the provision of the law.

"The United States attorneys and marshals were also directed to ask close co-operation of the local police authorities in each community.

"From the reports being made daily by agents throughout the country officials of the department are convinced that such threats to resist registration are being made are the result of local and sporadic influences and are not inspired by any organized effort of serious consequence."

PASTOR'S KISSING GAMES STIR INTEREST AT RIVERHEAD

RIVERHEAD, L.I., May 31.—Kissing games played at church socials and in the homes of members of the Calverton Methodist church at Calverton, near this town, figure largely in an action for separation and support begun by Mrs. Ellen Schweimler against William Schweimler, until recently pastor of the church. Justice J. Addison Young reserved decision in the action.

For several months the charges and recriminations which have been flying back and forth between the pastor and his wife have kept the little farming community in a continual stir. Until April Mr. Schweimler, who has been a lay preacher for years and is an expert mason by trade, occupied the pulpit of the Calverton Church. When the Methodist Conference refused to reappoint him at that time forty-three of the forty-five members of the church signed a petition asking to have him returned to his charge, but without success.

The Schweimlers were married in 1902, when Mr. Schweimler was working as a mason. According to his wife's testimony, he began to ill treat her soon after the wedding, while they were living in Brooklyn. She says he left her at various times, that these periods lasted from nine and ten months or more and that she nearly starved during some of his absences.

After they came to Calverton in 1914, to give his wife the benefit of the country air, Mr. Schweimler declared, the ill treatment continued, according to Mrs. Schweimler. She claimed that in February and March, 1914, he left her without medical aid or enough bed clothing while she was ill with rheumatism, and at various times used improper language to her and attacked her, leaving marks on her body. At one time, she said, he threatened her with a shotgun when she remonstrated against his shooting a whippoorwill which annoyed him by singing outside his study window.

Of more interest to Calverton is her objection to his participation in kissing games and her charge that a young woman of the church sat in the pastor's lap. Mr. Schweimler admitted both these facts in court, saying that his wife also had participated in the games and had not objected to his doing so until after they separated, in November, 1915. He said that when the young woman sat in his lap it was in a crowded automobile, where there was no other place for her to sit. His wife made no protest at the time, he averred.

Release of Mad Airman Sought By The French

PARIS.—Sub-lieut. Jean Navarre, the "mad airman" of France, is in a prison here as a result of his latest freakish exploit. And half of France smiling indulgently at its hero's temperamental outburst, is trying to obtain his release.

Navarre is accused of waging a feud with Paris policemen and no less than ten policemen are now or have been in the hospitals as a consequence of the wild revenge wrought by the aviator.

Navarre, who has brought down at least nineteen German airplanes and wears the Legion of Honour and the grand gold medal of the air corps, was wounded about a month ago. His wound incapacited him for service, and he went to Paris, where he always has been lionized. The airman is a daring motor car driver and tries to equal on earth the terrific speed to which he has been accustomed in the air. Almost as soon as he got here the police arrested him for speeding. He was fined a small sum.

Now, Navarre is as temperamental as an opera singer. The air corps commanders have realized this fact, and always let him do much as he pleased. To be arrested by a mere policeman stung him to the quick. So he declared war on the whole police force. He set out in his big, high-powered car to wipe out the law enforcing body of Paris. Whenever he would see a policeman on the street Navarre would run the officer down. In one night he sent five policemen to the hospitals. The next day when he resumed his feud, the police massed and arrested him.

The aviator is charged with attempted manslaughter but it is not likely the charge will be pressed against him. He soon will have recovered sufficiently from his wound to return to the front and his services are needed there.

Navarre has been a picturesque figure in the war. He flashed into notice at Verdun when he brought down airplane after airplane. He took some chances that no airman on either side would have considered. On one occasion he gave battle to five German airplanes, bringing down two and escaping unscathed. He always flew alone and usually acted independent of the rest of the French air squad. When he would perceive a German plane he would dash straight for it, circle about it, diving and dipping, and firing all the while with his machine gun. He would gyrate in the air like a sparrow hawk, and usually would so disconcert the German that the latter either would quit the battle or would lose his head and fall an easy prey to the mad Frenchman.

When he would ascend into the air he would wrap about his neck a silk stocking given him by a French beauty for "good luck." With the superstition of a gambler Navarre believes this talisman protected him from harm.

He is only 23 years old, stocky and striking in appearance He goes hatless day and night, and the spring of his every movement shows the perfect health and unusual vigor of his body. He has a great hooked nose, like the bird of prey that he emulates in the sky; sparkling, keen eyes and brown hair, brushed back from the forehead as though it had been swept by a tornado of air.

About a year ago he challenged Lieut. Immelmann, the famous German aviator, to a combat in the air. At that time Immelmann had a record of 15 allied airplanes, and Navarre had brought down 14 Germans. Immelmann did not accept the challenge and later was killed by a young and unknown English aviator.

On one occasion Navarre displayed a departure from his usual merciless air warfare and after dropping a German aviator descended and personally escorted the foeman to a small town back of the French line, where they sat down to enjoy a bottle of wine together.

A WOMAN'S COMPLEXION.

The complexion of Wall Street's big organization that works from 9 to 5 is slowly changing as men after man drops out to take up unit service. The inroads which have already been made in staffs of the big banking institutions are not serious, but the prospect of losing many more employes in the next few weeks or months is being discussed by employers, and it is the general view that most of the vacancies must be filled by women. One of the largest national banks has lost fifty men to Plattsburg and Madison, has seventy-five more who are in militia organizations and who will soon leave, and has 150 who are liable to conscription. A prominent trust company has lost upward of 100 men, including the senior Vice President, and expects the total to be more than 300 before the end of the year. Plans are being made to fill many departments with girls, who have been found more satisfactory than men in work that is much the same day after day.

Men of Peterboro ---try this new Shaving Experience

Men, will you try it? Your face has all to gain and you've nothing to lose, for Mennen's is not just a Shaving Soap—it is a scientific preparation that took three years' experimenting to produce the right formula.

ARE you game to make this experiment? Try Mennen's Shaving Cream to-day, or to-mortow morning.

Never mind if you do happen to have half a cake or half a stick of shaving soap on hand now. That will keep. You can go back to it later if you want to.

It isn't a case of switching from one fairly good soap to another fairly good soap. Mennen's Shaving Cream will give your an entirely new shaving experience. See if we are not right.

Mennen's is more than simply a soap—it is a practical, scientific cream whose lather softens the beard and leaves the face cool and comfortable. Mennen's doesn't dry on the face nor does it require "rubbing in."

Here is the process: Wet your brush in either hot or cold, hard or soft water, squeeze half an inch of Mennen's Cream into it—it works up instantly into a rich, smooth lather. Then you will find for yourself more convincingly than we can tell how surely Mennen's differs from others. How it makes the quickest, creamiest lather, you ever used. How it works equally well with all kinds of water—hot, cold, hard, soft. How it does not draw on the face. How it never smarts. How it leaves your face feeling smooth and clean and good. How it soothes and makes a lotion afterward unnecessary. How half an inch will lather the biggest face there is. Be sure to read the circular that is wrapped around the tube.

All the talking we can do might not convince you that Mennen's Shaving Cream is better. But we believe one trial will. So will you try it?

On your way home to-night buy a tube of Mennen's Shaving Cream and in the morning make the experiment. By this time to-morrow you will KNOW whether we are right or wrong.

German Surgeon Describes Horrors of Somme Front

A graphic account of the horrors of warfare in Northern France is given by Dr. L. Schmidt, a surgeon and chaplain with one of the Prussian regiments. He is frank in his disclosures and the tremendous losses suffered by the Prussians due to the incessant hammering of the British.

"The dead and dying are everywhere," he writes. "In this terrible war blood is flowing freely all the time. No matter in what part of our extensive front you may be, you will see the horror of the conflict. Yet there are certain spots where the suffering is more acute, the scenes more pathetic, and the tragedy more heart-rendering for the time being. Such is the case on the Somme, where I am on duty just now.

"Though we were distant several days' march from this particular part of the front, we already had some idea of the ferocity of the fighting that had been raging for months. It was communicated to us in the constant rattling of windows wherever we stopped, in the incessant thunder of the artillery and the numerous aeroplanes which flew overhead.

"We did the greater part of our marching at night. It was all like a dream—this marching in long, silent gray columns in the silvery moonlight through towns and villages that soon appeared like spectres in the distance. It was all so weird. When the white, fleecy clouds appeared and hid the face of the moon and the cold, sleety rain cut and beat in our faces, we thought of those at home, comfortably tucked in their beds.

"However, that is a part of war—only a small part of what happens at the front.

"We became aware of this when we marched into a village directly behind the firing line. Here we met troops who had been relieved after several days' hard fighting, and who were now to take much deserved rest and recuperation. What a sight they were. They were covered from head to foot with mud, and their faces were marked with deep, heavy lines that showed the strain and suffering they had undergone. Many had their heads bandaged others their hands and feet. Some were so exhausted that they lagged behind and were barely able to crawl along. What a picture. Infantry and cavalry, munition and supply waggons, light and heavy guns—all came in endless columns.

"We marched slowly to the field hospital, where we were to relieve those who had been so long on duty. This hospital was widely scattered. The wounded were housed in the church, in the village inn, in the barracks and in all kinds of buildings. Our guides led us through the whole village in order to familiarize us with the surroundings. They left us with the cheerful information that an attack by the British was imminent, and that we could expect to see a bombardment momentarily.

"The first day passed quietly enough. However, about ten o'clock at night of the third day that we were in the village the British made a furious attack on our lines. How can I describe it? The term 'drum fire' means nothing to him who has never heard it. For twenty hours this bombardment continued with not even the intermission of a moment. Thousands of guns poured forth fire and destruction. It was very much like a thousand giants wielding huge hammers, all striking at once with might and main on the anvil, and working in frenzied haste. It was as if hell were working feverishly to kill every living thing and not to rest until every creature and every blade of grass had been destroyed.

Italians Take Heavy Toll From Austrians

British Make Several Successful Raids

The Italian Offensive Has Cost Austrians 300,000 Casualties

General Cadorna's Men Are Now Consolidating Their Positions--Fall of Trieste is Expected in a Few Weeks--The Italians Planned to Save the City as Much as Possible --French Repulse Heavy German Attacks While British Gain Ground in Several Successful Raids.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

Special to The Examiner:

ROME, June 1.—Italy's great new offensive has already cost the Austrians 300,000 in killed, wounded and missing, according to conservative estimates to-day.

The Italians are now consolidating, reinforcing their lines with new troops and re-fortifying the positions, but continue to inflict frightful losses on the enemy by repelling counter attacks. Front despatches to-day declared the vast losses and the incessant pounding of Italian and British guns had achieved a telling effect on the enemy. Prisoners told of exhausted regiments and loss of morale. General Cadorna called a halt in his advance to-day to permit the bringing up of new supplies and preparation for further attacks. It was stated that the Italians now hope to take Trieste with the smallest amount of destruction possible to that historic city. The guns of the Allied warships in the Gulf will not be directed on the city if it is possible to avoid it. Trieste's occupation is now considered only a question of weeks. Reports received to-day declared that the continued Italian success had created a vast depression in Bohemia, where there have been numerous food riots and demonstrations against the dual monarchy's grip.

LONDON, June 1.—The sinking of the American four-masted steel bark Dirigo yesterday by a German submarine, and the drowning of Mate John Hay, was announced by the Admiralty to-day. The Dirigo was fired upon without warning by the German U-boat, the attacking vessel using her deck guns. The bark hove to and was boarded by the Germans, who ransacked the Dirigo thoroughly and finally sank her with bombs. The Admiralty also reported attacks, presumably followed by sinkings, on the two American sailing vessels Frances M. and Barbara. The crews are reported safe at Cadiz and Gibraltar, Spain.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, June 1. — British forces reached a third line German trench in a night raid near Lens early this morning. West of Cherisy another raiding party stormed and occupied two enemy posts. At the moment this is despatched they were tenaciously holding this position despite enemy counter attacks.

PARIS, June 1.—Violent German counter attacks by artillery and infantry were repulsed in two sectors of the French front, to-day's official statement declared. In the region of Moulin Laffaux, California Plateau and Chemin des Dames, the enemy artillery kept up a bombardment of the French front lines throughout most of the night. West of Cerny, south of Laiyre, and around the Casque, the War Office said enemy attacks were checked by the French gunfire. South of Cheureux, French raiders took a German post, making several prisoners.

Moulin Laffaux, California Plateau and Cheureux Wood all lie to the south of Laon, and in a section of the Champagne, where the French made some of the greatest gains in the recent offensive. Cerny is in the same section, lying slightly west of Craonne.

PARIS, June 1.—Lieut. Guynemer, France's superman of the air, was officially credited to-day with the destruction of four additional German machines, bringing his total record of destruction to 43 planes. Two of his last four victims were downed simultaneously, according to the official citation.

Georges Guynemer has received every decoration within the gift of the French nation, and with to-day's record, proves himself the master airfighter of the world.

LONDON, Eng., June 1.—British forces inched forward in a number of successful local engagements last night, Field Marshal Haig reported to-day. "We gained ground slightly at night to the west of Cherisy," he said. "Elsewhere a patrol encounter, which resulted in our favour, occurred during the night in the neighbourhood of Gurecourt. Successful raids were carried out north-east of Lens and near Ploegsteert."

United Press despatches from William Philip Simms, describing some of these attacks, declare that the British Lens attack reached the German third line trenches, and that the Cherisy advance was by the storming of two enemy posts.

(By Henry Wood, United Press Staff Correspondent).

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, June 1.—Between April 15 and May 24, the French forces took 31,620 German prisoners, according to headquarters' lists to-day.

Added to the total of enemy troops captured by the British and Italian headquarters, it is estimated to-day that more than 75,000 prisoners have been taken in the three great offensives on the Western front.

The enemy's losses in killed and wounded have been even more staggering. Cases continually come to light where whole units have been wiped out of existence.

One was reported to-day where, following a bombardment on the Aisne front this week, advancing French infantry found six entire German companies crushed lifeless under demolished bombproofs.

This was in the wood south of Chevreux.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—President Wilson to-day issued a proclamation, warning "slackers" that attempts to evade registration on June 5th by fleeing from the country will expose them to prosecution upon return to this country.

LONDON, Eng., June 1.—"The May shipping losses were the lightest so far in the submarine war, due to the fact that the British are destroying more submarines than ever before," Kennedy Jones, Food Director, declared to-day.

"However," he added, "the Germans are meeting this with a similarly increased output of U-boats.

"England has a reserve supply of cereals, sufficient for twelve weeks, but it is uncertain whether this will be maintained until the harvest time. If it falls below a seven weeks' supply local famines will result."

PARIS, June 1.—France insists that there shall be no peace except of her own making. The Government cannot undertake to give the slightest recognition to efforts to arrange a peace on any other terms.

Premier Ribot so declared in the Chamber of Deputies to-day, answering Socialist interpellations as to the Government's attitude on the International "Peace" Conference at Stockholm.

LONDON, June 1.—Stewart Lyon's cable from the Canadian front to-day says the Canadian howitzers continue to shell the German defences in the Lens area night and day, inflicting continual losses and making it impossible for the Germans to arrange adequate defences against further British advances.

HUNS SEND NOTE ASKING THAT THEY BE MADE PRISONERS

Two Officers and Sixty Men Surrendered to Lieut. T. Alvin Morrow of Peterborough, Sending Three Soldiers Over With a Written Surrender

A SPLENDID SOUVENIR

Gentleman 2 Officiers 40 Men
German soldiers beg for pardon and are your prisoners. We have several blessed man, for whom we beg for a medicin. Have the kindness to lead me to one of your officiers.

of the German Army.

The above note, sent home by Lieut. T. Alvin Morrow, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Morrow, 302 Water street, now at the front with the 4th Canadians, is one of the most interesting souvenirs of the war to reach Peterborough. As will be seen from Lieut. Morrow's letter, which is given below, the note was handed to him by a German soldier during a recent engagement, signifying that a party of Huns wished to surrender.

France, May 8, 1917.

My Dear Sister Velma,—Just a few lines to let you know all is well. Have come through another scrap safely and soundly and may say the Canadians certainly have made a name for themselves. We are being patted on the backs from all sources and the French inhabitants here in the village are using us and treating us like little Gods.

We are out for a rest after a month's work in the line. In the rear is a large woods, nearly all in bloom with innumerable flowers, and all around the village is the bright green of the springing crops. It certainly is a relief to get back to places where things are natural. I sent some flowers recently picked in the woods, where there wasn't a leaf on the trees and not likely to be either.

Well, Velma, I fared better for prisoners this time than in the last push, but they are remarkable circumstances, which I will relate.

Three Germans approached (hands up, of course), and presented me with

A LETTER OF APPRECIATION FROM QUAKER OATS CO.

On behalf of the Quaker Oats Co., I wish to express their appreciation of the goodwill and warm interest shown the Quaker Oats Co. in passing the Bridges By-Law by such a handsome majority.

I feel confident that the future will prove the wisdom of the ratepayers' decision, and that the building of the bridges will be a great step toward the development of a Greater Peterborough. I wish also to thank the Examiner, the manufacturers and the citizens generally for their kind co-operation and especially those who gave their personal services towards getting out such a large and almost unanimous vote in favour.

Yours sincerely,
W. H. DENHAM.

MAJOR HARRY SMITH OF PETERBOROUGH IS MENTIONED BY HAIG

Local Officer With Canadian Engineers is Among Those Praised by British Commanding Officer for Good Work--Interesting Letters From Soldiers Overseas --To-day's General Military News.

In the list of Canadians mentioned by Sir Douglas Haig, the British Commander-in-Chief, to-day, appears the name of a well-known Peterborough officer in the person of Major Harry Smith, son of Mr. A. St. A. Smith, of Keene. Major Smith went overseas early in the war as a lieutenant in the Canadian Engineers, and has twice been promoted at the front. Now his good work has been officially praised by Sir Douglas Haig.

April 24, 1917

Dear Mother, Dad and Max:—

I am fine and having things a little easier now, but we did go some: work night and day. We were up the line on advance transport for about five weeks, saw some life there. Went up to within 500 yards of front line with our loads.

Frits sent over lots of shells but we were lucky and missed them they were close enough to be uncomfortable and he sent shells near our park. We used to sit on top of the lorries and watch the shells break.

One night when we were unloading Frits sent over some 'whiz bangs' and I ducked under a front quarter of beef and sunk in the mud to my wrists, but any place to miss the pieces.

Willie Caruthers is gone and I pass the cemetery where he is buried, three or four times a day, and it is a sad sight to see the boys lying on the stretchers with the Union Jack over them, all ready for the grave. It makes a fellow think. I am going to go in as soon as I get a chance and see who are buried there.

The night of the big push, Easter Monday, I will never forget. We were up the line all day and were drawing wounded down and it was some sight. Germans and Canadians side by side. Load after load of wounded came down and we worked all night and then out at ten A.M. next day. But we have to pay the sacrifice to win.

May 13, 1917

Dear Mother:—

Just a line to let you know I am going on just the same. I can hear the guns and see the flash as I sit by the tail board of my truck and write to you, in the twilight of a beautiful evening. Well mother many of our home boys are gone and lay over here. When you look at the illustrated pictures you see the exact thing and believe me it is sad. Was talking to a boy who saw Willie Caruthers get hit in the stomach and torn badly, he died in the hospital the next day. I think Dr. McPherson was with him.

Milf Hardill was over to see me last evening and I saw Palmer Wiley to-day they are fine. Yours with best love to you and Dad and Man.

STANLEY

Mrs. Tobin, Stanley avenue, East City, has received the comforting news that her son, Private Vincent Tobin, has not been so badly wounded as was at first intimated. The wounds are in the knee and foot. It was at first reported that he had been wounded in the eye.

The Utica Globe of recent issue contains an excellent picture of Pte. William George Billington, of Peterborough, who recently died of wounds. Accompanying the picture is the following paragraph:

Pte. Wm. G. Billington, of Peterborough, Ont., is one of the sturdy young Canadian soldiers who, according to recent casualty lists, has given his life for the cause of the allies. He was well known in the Peterborough district and his many friends in that section learned with deep regret the news of his death. He was an enthusiastic Britisher and an excellent soldier, taking a keen interest in his work and being highly esteemed by his superior officers and beloved by his pals at the front, who feel very keenly his death.

SCOUT STARES "GASSED"

The Norwood Register says: Scout W. J. Stares, 3807, who was among the early enlistments from Norwood in the war, was reported in the daily papers of Tuesday, May 22nd, among those suffering from gas poisoning. Scout Stares, according to reports, has been a very useful man at the front, and has been very lucky in dodging shells and missiles. It is hoped that he may recover.

A friend in town has just received a letter from Scout Stares, who is now in Kitchener Hospital at Brighton, England. He states that he was

BRIDGES BY-LAW CARRIED BY A HUGE MAJORITY

Citizens Almost Unanimous in Support of the Measure, turning a Majority of 1534 in its Favour--Only Adverse Votes Recorded.

OFFICIALS ARE PLEASED

Two new and very necessary bridges, in addition to the [illegible] the Quaker Oats Company will re-establish their plant in Peterborough on a much larger scale than before, are the net results of yesterday's vote in connection with the Bridges By-Law. The by-law received the unanimous support of the ratepayers, and when the polls closed at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon the comfortable majority of 1,534 was recorded in favour of the measure. A total of 1,708 votes were polled, the number only 86 were against the by-law. The West Ward [illegible] with the largest vote for and against, while the North Ward came second. In the North Ward, Ald. A. A. McIntyre and Mr. [illegible] were out from seven o'clock in the morning, or two hours before the polls were open, to receive the first vote. The organization as a whole did valuable service in the matter of getting the vote out. Following is the capitulation:

MAYOR DUFFUS PLEASED WITH THE BY-LAW VOTE

"I sent a telegram to Mr. Robert Stuart last night informing him that the Bridges By-law had carried in the proportion of 20 to 1," said Mayor Duffus this morning. "The city as a whole seems highly pleased with yesterday's vote, and I think the citizens have reason to be proud of the manner in which they supported this by-law. The unselfishness shown in the different wards was especially prominent and commendable. The south ward polled a large vote and only eleven ratepayers opposed it. The west and north wards also made a similar showing. Naturally there was a large vote in the east ward and only eight adverse votes. This is surely an indication that the verdict was practically unanimous, because many of those who opposed it doubtless had voted in more than one ward.

"The organization for yesterday's victory," continued the Mayor, "is another evidence of what the citizens can accomplish when they set their minds and hearts to it. I think I may be permitted to say that in a sense this is another accomplishment to the credit of the Greater Peterborough Association. To the Aldermen and citizens who handled the ward organizations, to the automobile owners for the use of their cars, their time and for their general co-operation, for the ladies who seemed without exception to be in favour of the bylaw and who gave their support to it, to City Clerk Armstrong for his tireless efforts and attention to detail, and to all others who helped carry the by-law, we ought to give a vote of thanks, and I take this means of expressing it. The Quaker Oats company will obtain nothing from this by-law other than they will model their new buildings on the expectation of a high-level bridge. It is also true that the citizens have set themselves to a great enterprise in this case and doubtless many felt that, ordinarily, a less extensive and expensive bridge would have sufficed for the actual traffic requirements, but it is in this aspect that the citizens emphatically attested their appreciation of the Quaker Oats Company, and also their desire that the entire plant shall be located in Peterborough. If December 11th, 1916, was a black day in the city chronicles, surely we can write Thursday May 31st, 1917, as one of our red letter days for a greater Peterborough."

GUNNER KEMP IS WOUNDED

Peterborough Boy With Cobourg Heavy Battery Accidentally Shot

Mr. John Kemp, 227 Water street, received an official wire from Ottawa this morning, notifying him that his son, Gunner Jack Kemp, who went overseas with one of the drafts from the Cobourg Heavy Battery, is reported accidentally wounded in the right arm and leg. The message stated that Gunner Kemp was in Moore Barracks Hospital. No particulars have been received as to how he was wounded. He was in training in England when the accident happened.

FRIDAY, JUNE 1, 1917

GRATULATIONS ALL ROUND

[illegible]borough has reason to be [illegible] itself, and to congratulate [illegible]its appreciation of the ed[illegible] material and otherwise, [illegible]come to the city from the [illegible]doption of the bridges by-[illegible]ay. The appreciation [illegible]d in an almost twenty-[illegible]n favour of the by-law. [illegible] assumed a considerable [illegible] responsibility; but [illegible]mation in ample proportion [illegible] the people's vote [illegible]nvestment.

[illegible] cent. of the qualified voted for the by-law [illegible] sense of the advantages [illegible]y will derive directly [illegible] in the form of the [illegible] of all the Company's PINAFORE [illegible]a plants in Peterborough, with [illegible]ence of a magnificent Seven [illegible]rial buildings that in [illegible]rtiful operation will [illegible]ance of well-paid local [illegible] lead to the local distribution [illegible] of a large amount of money [illegible], and in the puchase of [illegible]. The erection of the new [illegible] will represent the addition of [illegible]anent structures costing easily [illegible] times the amount expended on [illegible] bridges, and, besides, the [illegible]ll of the Company when it [illegible] in operation, was enough to [illegible]ual the amount of the cost of the bridges, every nine or ten months; and it is probable that the wages paid, with greatly enlarged buildings and operations, will pay back the amount of the cost of the bridges twice over in a year.

In addition, Peterborough will gain the advantage of a world-wide free advertising in the fact of possession and appreciation of one of the greatest cereal plants in the world, whose products, labelled Peterborough," find their way to every part of the globe.

But what is more important in the interests of our future industrial, and attendant general, development is the fact that Peterborough has gained a good name for keeping faith and meting out fair dealing to industries that will, in addition to our advantages of location and transport, and power supply, make this city attractive to industries seeking location. The advantages of possessing a good name are not altogether sentimental, but sometimes substantial and material, as was demonstrated yesterday. The Examiner has had cause, as well as occasion, to emphasize the splendid attitude towards, and the splendid treatment of, its employees, by the Quaker Oats Company, especially illustrated in connection with its liberality in the case of the recent destruction of its buildings. In spite of the loss of plant and business, employees were given the full month's wages for December, and the families of those who were injured, or fatally injured, were looked after with a consideration and solicitude quite uncalled for by the most rigid observation of the obligation of employers to employees. The good name the Quaker Oats Company has gained, gained the by-law a good many votes, especially among the freehold members of the working people. One man said he had resolved to never vote again for any by-law involving anything like the bonus principle; but seeing the manner in which the Quaker Oats people treated their employees he voted for the by-law yesterday.

The people of Peterborough showed yesterday that they take a pride in the Quaker Oats people, and the card of thanks of Mr. Denham, printed on our first page, shows that the Company appreciates the feeling and attitude of the city towards it. We took a distinctly advance step yesterday in the realization—in laying the foundation—of the aim and ambition of a Greated Pteerborough, to which we had addressed ourselves, under the leadership of Mayor Duffus and the City Council.

Now that Alderman Weir has got the bridges by-law off his mind, let him, please, get the oil on the streets.

HAVE YOU NOTICED?

Have you noticed it is seven months since the Borden government passed an order-in-council for the punishment of those who manipulated the supply or advanced the price of food and living necessities? Yes. Have you noticed that the cases of extravagantly advanced prices, have been unreasonable and exasperating, and hard to meet? Yes. Have you noticed that there have been any prosecutions of the numerous offenders known to have violated the Empire's Act, and "soaked" the consumer? No. Have you noticed that anything at all has come from the government's action as represented by the order-in-council, and the government's inaction in failing to enforce it? No. Have you noticed that the government's action and inaction have done anything to relieve the food supply or food price situation? You certainly have not, and you will not do so either. A government that can't or won't try to handle a little thing like the application of Hun methods to the bedevilment of the people's food supply, is not likely to handle the larger problems dealing with the application of Hun methods to the bedevilment of the world's liberties, and the national interests of Canada and those of the Empire.

The words Liberal and Conservative should for the moment be erased from the national lexicon, and the name of patriot be made to combine in the formation of a government, national in character and aim and possibilities of service.

DEPENDS ON APPLICATION.

The merits of any measure of conscription must be measured by the fairness of its application. The qualifying word "selective," applied to conscription, indicates a danger of the parable of the Scriptures being fulfilled—"one shall be taken and the other left." With the present government at the helm there is danger, judging from past experiences, there is probability, that partiality—arising from partisanship—with which the present government is supersaturated, will work unfairness in selection. Already we have a taste of it. The companion condition and logically associated complement of conscription—restriction of emigration of eligible Canadians from the country, is already being made a medium of lax enforcement and disregard. At the port of Brockville the regulations to prevent Canadians leaving the country are being rigidly enforced, and, it is assumed, at other ports; but the town of Prescott is an exception. Reports from that place indicate that the Hon. J. D. Reid, Minister of Customs, has pull enough at Ottawa to reduce the emigration regulations to a dead letter and many Canadains, though they be fit to fight and come under the selective conscription proposal, are allowed to cross the river without hindrance — the only explanation being that Hon. Mr. Reid feels that by insisting upon the strict enforcement of the regulations he would lose popularity and, what is more important, votes. If favouritism is thus used in the application of the complement of "selective" conscription, what is to prevent similar influences being applied to choosing those who are to feel the weight of a policy of compulsory service? More than ever is demonstrated the impracticability of a government with the partisan application and practice of the Borden government, and its inability to do the right thing by Canada in this time of stress and crisis.

What the country wants is a non-partisan—a national government, whose sole policy is the good of the country; a government in whose councils the only considerations that weigh are those that will help Canada do her level best in all ways in winning this war. There must be no thought of party profit; the only profit to be aimed at is what will come as a reward for helping win this war, by undeviating devotion to national and imperial interests. After the splendid exhibition of voluntary spirit Canada has shown, conscription is a bitter enough pill to swallow even if it is sugar-coated with honest and fair application; otherwise administered it is an outrage.

We used to complain that there was too much display of the United States flag in Canada. Now we cannot have to much, or too highly estimate its meaning.

Quakers To Work Behind Firing Line

500 Will Go to France—Units of Men and Women Will Be Taught Reconstruction Work at Haverford College.

NEW YORK, May 31. — Although they will neither take up arms or make ammunition or participate in any way in the destructive aspects of warfare, the Quakers assembled at the meeting of the Religious Society of Friends, at the Friends Meeting House at Fifteenth Street and Rutherford Place, decided yesterday to organize a unit for 500 Quakers to go abroad and assist their French and English brethren in restoring devastated homes behind the fighting line in France. As the German lines retire, the Quakers intend to reclaim the ruined territory, bit by bit; build great umbers of portable houses; and provide food, shelter, and clothing to the returning refugees.

The committee appointed to organize the American Quaker unit consists of Professor Rufus M. Jones of Haverford College, Dr Leroy Mercer of Swarthmore College, and Vincent D. Nicholson of this city. The men and women who volunteer for this unit will begin training at once at Haverford, where they will be taught how to build houses, restore streets, and make devastated villages fit for habitation. As soon as the unit is ready for its work it will be sent to France under the auspices of the American Red Cross.

The Friends are also sending four young women to Russia to assist a group of English Friends in providing for the needs of Polish refugees who are now overrunning Southern Russia.

The yearly meeting of the Orthodox Friends at 144 East Twentieth Street came to a close yesterday, but the liberal Quakers' yearly meeting at the Rutherford Place house will continue until Thursday. At the final session of the orthodox group the attention of the Friends was called again to the fact while they were exempt from military service they were still liable to call for any other service, including the manufacure of munitions.

"I don't want the impression to go forth," declared L. Hollingsworth Wood, Secretary of the meeting, "that we are scott free. We may be called upon to make munitions or tote shells, to which we would of course be compelled to raise a conscientious objection."

It was agreed at the meeting that the Quakers would have to decline to perform any service in connection with the making or, carrying of munitions. It was also made clear that the Friends had no intention of barring men of military age from their society. If the applicants proved they were not seeking admission merely to avoid military service, and revealed a firm conscientious belief in Quaker principles.

Secretary Wood, advising the Friends on the subject of registration, declared that it was, of course, a matter of individual conscience, but that the most effective and expedient way would be for Friends to state they were members of the Society of Friends, and that they were conscientiously opposed to the bearing of arms.

An epistle was sent to the London Friends, which read as follows:

"We, who are called pacifists, are often taunted with having no patriotism, no fighting blood in us. Let us show the world what patriotism is by striving night and day, through suffering and persecution if need be, but ever cheerfully, as all good fighters must. Let us create about us an atmosphere of steadfast courage and good will. Let us not leave a stone unturned or a life that is not consecrated to His divine will.

A statistical report read at the meeting showed that the membership of the Religious Society of Friends has been increasing steadily during the alst three years, and especially within the last year. The present membership is now 125,000.

ROCHESTER SENDS HUNDREDS TO WAR

University's Ranks So Depleted That Student Activities Have Been Impaired.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 31. — Wholesale enlistments in the United States service have so depleted the ranks of the students of the University of Rochester that athletic contests for the current season have been cancelled and many other activities of the student life broken up.

Laurence B. Packard, assistant professor of history in the university faculty, and three score of the undergraduates and younger alumni have been accepted and are now in service in the training camp for officers at Madison Barracks, Sackett's Harbour. Two hundred other students either have enlisted in the National Guard, the Naval Militia or have joined the Coast Patrol. Many of those have been drilling daily beneath the campus elms, under the orders of Quartermaster Sergeant Futherer, retired, of the Twenty-first United States Infantry.

Troop H of the State cavalry is a National Guard unit that has attracted many of the Rochester boys, as it enjoys the prestige of having served well on the Mexican border. Twenty-nine university students have gone out to service on farms for the summer to assist in planting and harvesting the crops. Dr. Rush Rhees, president of the university, has announced that proper credit will be given to all men who leave college duties either for agricultural or strictly military work.

Apart from the activity among the students, more than two thousand blanks have been sent out to University of Rochester alumni of classes later than 1887, in order to complete a war survey of the graduates. When the information is compiled alumni leaders will know definitely the resources of the graduate body and how they may be best utilized in the mobilization of the nation's strength. After being tabulated the results are to be turned over to the proper authorities for government use.

Will Take Two Years To Put Lens Mines In Order

PARIS. — It will take nearly two years to put the coal fields in the neighborhood of Lens into working condition again after the destruction effected by the Germans there, according to Carlo Devain, head of one of the large coal mining companies of that district.

"The success of the British around Lens is of inestimable value to France. We have been awaiting the return of this district for a long time, and have prepared all our measures so that there shall be no more delay than necessary. The mines of Lens produce 4,000,000 tons of coal and 1,000,000 tons of coke yearly but it is doubtful if this production can be reached again within two years.

"Some of the shafts may be put in working order in a few months, however. The assistance of the United States will be a matter of vital importance to us in this work, for the Americans can furnish us quickly with the powerful machinery necessary which could not be obtained in France for many months.

Dog Twice Taken To Incinerator Costs Owner $4.35 in Court

If there were more citizens of the type of Mr. Wm. Cooney of Albert street, the police force could be dispensed with and still would Magistrate Dumble's mill grind on with greater grist than it is producing under the existing system. Most citizens with a grievance seek the Police Station determined to have "the law," but when they are confronted with the information to which they must certify, they swallow their ire rather than become prosecutors. They realize the deep rooting of little divisive facts and fancies that are often planted in police court.

But Mr. Cooney's forbearance is not so restricted. This morning he appeared in court as complainant against a neighbour whom he alleged had permitted her dog to run unleashed on the street and without a muzzle. The defendant claimed that since the city's by-law went into force the dog had been tied up in the yard, and if it had been seen on the street it was without her knowledge.

Mr. Cooney stated that on Saturday and Monday nights the dog was unleashed and was out running after the street cars.

The defendant denied that the dog was on the street the day mentioned in the information which was emended in court, a fact which she did not appear to fully realize, and which should have explained the discrepancy in the evidence which Magistrate Dumble said largely influenced him in imposing a fine of $1 with $3.35 costs.

It is also claimed by the defendant that the dog had on two occasions been taken to the incinerator to be destroyed but the officials allowed it to escape each time. Granting that there was one or two occasions on which the dog was turned loose by younger members of the family, it is believed that in this case the spirit of the law was carefully observed.

If the by-law was strictly adhered to by all dog owners there would be less of the semblance of straining its spirit for a conviction in this case.

General Iliesco Explains Why Roumania Was Beaten

NEW YORK, May 31.—The primary causes of the swift disaster suffered by Roumania, despite heroic efforts, in her struggle with the combined forces of Germany, Austria, Bulgaria and Turkey, have been related by General Iliesco, Chief of Staff of King Ferdinand's army during the ill-fated campaign.

General Iliesco, in the course of his remarks, shows that the lack of trained men in the ranks and in the command, of light artillery and of aeroplanes was mainly responsible for the defeat of the Roumanian army, and he gives interesting facts in connection with these deficiencies. In emphasising the necessity of thorough preparation for war and of strict discipline in the army General Iliesco says that America has no reason to fear militarism in the realisation of her great war programme, and he mentions France as an example of a trained army in a democratic country.

General Iliesco said:—

"The failure of our campaign was primarily due to the lack of a sufficient number of trained soldiers, trained officers, field guns, machine guns and aeroplanes. Owing to an insufficiency of funds, it was impossible to train each year during peace time all the men reaching military age. Thus the war found Roumania with many untrained men of a military age who, despite their well recognised bravery, were unable to compete with the trained enemy. Only trained, disciplined troops are of any value in modern warfare. And, as above all it is absolutely essential to have a great number of soldiers, careful training of all in time of peace must be had.

"Peace economy permitted Roumania only half the number of officers she really needed. This lack, coupled with a similar lack of non-commissioned officers, was greatly felt. It was found that for hasty substitutes school teachers, foremen and similar minor leaders in various walks of civil life were better than young college and society men, who, in addition to their military ignorances, had had no experience in handling men and who lacked the strength of character to impose their will on the men under them during the terrible stress of battle.

"The only proper method is carefully to build up in peace time a large corps of professional officers, each of whom has started in the lowest grade and each of whom has been first well trained as a private.

"Great enemy superiority in artillery and machine guns prevented the Roumanian infantry from making headway against the enemy infantry, though they were conscious of being individually superior.

"The enemy also had a tremendous superiority in the number of aeroplanes, and this absolutely blinded the Roumanians and contributed more than any one other factor of their defeat. Air supremacy is not only a question of a greater number of machines that the enemy, but also of constant improvement of type.

"In conclusion, I would emphasize the fact that modern warfare demands more discipline than ever. Discipline is the soul of an army. America has no cause to fear militarism through thorough preparation for war. She has France as an excellent model of a trained army in a democracy."

Editor, Examiner.

Dear Sir,—There are a good many people in this city of ours that seem to have nothing else to do than to look round and find fault with or about the man's wife that is fighting for them. Now, these people want to be very careful about whom they slander. You see the soldier's wife stands out alone, as she has no one to protect her from these people, that is what they think. They can say what they like about her; there is no husband at home to go after them. But wait, there is coming a time, and that time is not far off, when there will be a reckoning. Now answer this: Because a woman's husband is doing his duty must that woman ask the next-door people if she can go out? Must she stay at home always? Must she receive no visitor, if he be a man? Are all men classed alike? Are they wolves in sheep's clothing? Is it not possible for a man to visit a woman's house where the man is at the war, without some wrong being done? Should she not be allowed to enjoy herself? Must she go about with a long face because her "man" is fighting? She knows he is doing his duty and she is glad he is a "man," and she should laugh at the world. She misses him often enough. But won't she laugh when the war is over and he is back, and she can point her finger and say: That's the man, my hero, now talk to him; say again what you have said about me. Will those women who have kept their man at home be proud of them? Can they be? No. They cannot be. Every woman breathing likes a fighter. What woman can love a man that won't fight when he is needed. So, instead of putting down the soldier's wife, let's help her through these dark times. Do not let us make her life harder for her, for any day may bring the news of her husband's death. Think before your sharp tongue condemns, what you would be like if you were in her place.

It's the last good-bye, take your place in the line;
Go and do your duty, Jack, and I'll do mine;
And while you are fighting your country's foe I'll be mother and father, too.

This song was sung by Miss F. Ford at the Empire Music Hall, Birmingham, in the year 1900, at the time of the South African war.

$231,125 As Drawback For Quaker Oats Co.

OTTAWA, May 30.—Replying to a question by Mr. Pardee in the Commons this afternoon, the Minister of Customs gave the following figures showing the amounts paid in drawbacks by the Government during the last fiscal year, to the following firms: Cockshutt Plow Co., Brantford, 10,163; International Harvester Company, Hamilton, $29,020; Massey-Harris Company, Toronto, $97,118; Frost & Wood, Smith's Falls, $8,581; Ford Motor Co., Windsor, $371,481; Quaker Oats Company, Peterborough, $231,125. The drawback of duty is given on finished products exported. The figures, of course, have a bearing on the tariff discussion in reference to the Liberal demand for a removal of duty on agricultural machinery and foodstuffs.

In reply to Mr. Kyte, the Minister of Finance said that the business tax levied upon the Ogilvie Milling Company, Limited, for the accounting period of 1915 was $280,886. Returns as to the net earning of the company for the past fiscal year, said Sir Thomas, had not yet been received. The profits of the company for the accounting period ending the 31st of August, 1915, had been $1,122,466; capital stock totalling $5,500,000.

Had Headache For Two Years

A BARRIE MAN TELLS OF PERSISTENT HEADACHES AND INDIGESTION—FINALLY FOUND HIS WAY TO GOOD HEALTH.

BARRIE, Ont., June 1.— For two long years the writer of this letter was subject to severe headaches. The nervous system got run down, digestion failed and there was continued loss of weight.

The use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food changed all this, and now with scores of other Barrie people Mr. Nader is recommending the use of this food cure as the best means of building up the system and curing headaches, indigestion and all the annoying symptoms of a run-down condition.

Mr. John Nader, 38 Penetang St., Barrie, Ont., writes:

"During the last two years I had an attack of indigestion, accompanied by severe headaches. I suffered from loss of appetite, and my system became run down. I also lost considerably in weight. I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and as they helped me I continued using this treatment for some time. My condition is now greatly improved, my headaches are gone and my health is much better. I can cheerfully recommend the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to those suffering from nervousness of any kind."

As a spring tonic and restorative to overcome tired, languid feelings and build up the vitality at this time of year there is nothing to be compared to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50c a box, a full treatment of six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

Two Trucks Have Arrived

Two huge motor-driven trucks have been placed in commission by the Quaker Oats Company. The trucks which are self-dumping, will be used to haul gravel and other materials used in connection with the construction of the new plant. Each of the trucks has a capacity of five tons. Loading machinery will be installed at the gravel pit to load the trucks.

Dear Mary:

There is no necessity now-a-days, of a woman having in her home carpets with holes in them or frazzled, faded old rugs when for so little money and on such easy terms, she can go down to Harry Zacks and buy new ones.

Why, rugs and carpets wear out just like clothes do and they are just as essential. If I had worn out, old things on my floors I'd throw them out and get new ones, wouldn't you Mary? Your Pal—HELEN.

PRUSSIAN SHELLS OF INFERIOR MAKE

LONDON, May 31.—Those who are supplying munitions to the allied armies are convinced that in the long run the fact that Germany is being forced to use wood pulp in place of gun cotton will be one of the very important factors in winning the war. Wood pulp as the base for high explosives is demonstrating its inferiority of cotton, the supply of which is exhausted in Germany.

Demonstrations show that a bullet propelled by gun cotton has much greater velocity and much truer accuracy than a bullet propelled by a wood pulp explosive. In other words, at a sufficiently long range a gun cotton cartridge bullet will reach its mark before one driven by a wood pulp explosive.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

Death of Former Peterboro' Resident

Mr. A. G. Stewart, Originally Settled in Peterboro' Was an Uncle of the Late T. A. S. Hay

The following paragraph, referring to the death of the late A. G. Stewart, who will be remembered by the older residents of the city, and who is an uncle of the late Mr. T. A. S. Hay and Mrs. J. D. Collins, of this city, was taken from the Daily Colonist, of Victoria, B.C. The article reads as follows:

The funeral of Mr. George Alexander Stewart was held on Tuesday afternoon. The late Mr. Stewart, who was 87 years of age, died on Sunday at his residence, Shoal Bay.

He was born on August 26, 1830, the fourth son of the late Hon. Thomas Alexander Stewart, who came to Canada from Belfast, Ireland, and settled on the site of the present city of Peterborough, Ont., named by his wife at the request of Sir Peregrine Maitland, then Governor-General of Canada.

Under Sir Sanford Fleming he took up civil engineering and after being admitted to his profession he assisted in the construction of the first railway built in Canada, being later made the assistant engineer of the Northern Railway from 1853 to 1854. He was a lifelong friend of Sir Sanford Fleming. He practised his profession at Port Hope from then until 1865, and was chief engineer of the Midland Railway from 1868 to 1877. A large wooden pontoon bridge built by Mr. Stewart in 1866—the first bridge of its kind erected in Canada—is still in service.

Mr. Stewart was appointed to make topographical surveys of the Rocky Mountain National Park in 1883, and he was placed in charge of the reservation for eleven years. His work during that time was noteworthy and will long remain a monument to his memory.

He raised and commanded a company of engineers during the "Trent" affair at Port Hope.

A life member of the Royal Society of Civil Engineers, he was the author of an essay on the improvement of the backwaters of Peterborough County.

Mr. Stewart came to Victoria to live about eight years ago, having retired from active business before coming to the Coast.

He married, first, Cecilia M., daughter of Mr. G. E. Ward, of Port Hope, and, secondly, Frances M. McCormack, of Peterborough. The father of nine children, he is survived by six, the three eldest of whom, now living in Eastern Canada, being Mr. Walter F. Stewart, Professor L. B. Stewart, D.T.S., Toronto University, and Mrs. Arthur R. Denison. His widow and three daughters, Mrs. G. H. S. Edwardes, Mrs. D. T. Forbes, and Mrs. W. W. Foster, are living in Victoria.

ANTI-CONSCRIPT AGITATOR MARSIL GOV'T ALMONER

As Defeated Conservative Candidate He Had Control of Patronage in Bagot

OTTAWA. — Tancrede Marsil, the young anti-conscription agitator in Montreal, who has been heading the demonstrations and demanding revolution there, and who was the Conservative candidate in the constituency of Bagot in the general election of 1911, has exercised the Borden government patronage in that riding since his defeat by Mr. J. E. Marcile, the present Liberal member, who had two sons at the front.

The facts were brought to the attention of Parliament when the civil service estimates of the Customs Department were under consideration. Mr. Marcile rose to direct the attention of Hon. Dr. Reid to a case in which he had previously made ineffectual protest, the case of an assistant appraiser named Hector Hamel, in the customs service in Montreal, who was reduced to the rank of preventive officer, with an annual reduction of $300 per annum in his salary, on the recommendation of Mr. Tancrede Marsil, who held the government patronage for the riding. Mr. Marcile desired to know if, in view of recent developments, the government would restore Hamel to his original position and salary.

NO SATISFACTION FROM DR. REID.

Hon. Dr. Reid smiled but had no response. He did not remember the case, but if injustice had been done he would make inquiry.

Hon. George P. Graham, who was leading the Opposition, took up the matter vigorously. He pressed for a declaration from the Minister as to whether the request of Mr. Marcile would be considered, and also desired to know whether the government was still influenced by the recommendations of Mr. Tancrede Marsil, and whether that gentleman still held the government patronage for the riding.

The Minister, however, would not commit himself.

"We know this much, however," observed Hon. Mr. Graham, "that Mr. Tancrede Marsil was the Conservative candidate for the riding in 1911, and has subsequently controlled and operated the government patronage in Bagot."

Technical Education Is Needed

A Thoroughly Equipped Technical Plant Required in Peterborough

The Editor:

Dear Sir,—Now that we have disposed of the Bridge By-law, what are we going to do regarding Technical Education to fit the future ratepayers to fairly compete in the task of earning the money to pay for the bridge, as well as for many other improvements which the city requires.

This city needs, perhaps, more than anything else, a thoroughly equipped technical plant, so that over sixty-five per cent. of our boys and girls shall cease to drift into occupations for which they were never intended, and in which their earning power will always be of an inferior order.

Yours truly,
V. EASTWOOD.

Woman Preaches in Sunday Pulpit

Many Girls in Tears Go Up to the Penitent Beach at Rousing Revival

Fifteen thousand girls and women gathered in the Billy Sunday New York Tabernacle and listened to Miss Frances E. Miller, of the Sunday staff, who preached to women only. Miss Miller, who is an ordained clergyman of the Congregational Church, is the only person to whom Mr. Sunday has given over his tabernacle, in the six weeks he has been trying to reform this city. It was the first sermon for women in the campaign.

Miss Miller conducted a "hitting the trail" service after she had finished her sermon on "Purity." She had preached for more than a hour before she asked "all who would take a definite step of consecration or surrender of their lives to Christ to rise in their seats."

There was a pause, and then slowly girls and women in all parts of the big auditorium stood and the great audience was bowed in prayer.

Asked for "Complete Surrender."

Miss Miller did not make "hitting the trail" quite as easy as does Mr. Sunday. She said over and over again that she wanted no one to come down the sawdust trail for any reason but "an out and out surrender to God." She requested the penitents to take one more step and come to the front.

Gradually they began to go forward. Several girls were in tears. There was none of the light heartedness noticeable in many when Mr. Sunday is doing the hand shaking. As Mrs. William Asher, also of the Sunday staff, led the crowd in singing revival hymns, such as "Jesus is Calling, Calling To-day," Miss Miller passed through Mr. Sunday's low platform and placed her hand on each young woman who presented herself.

Women ushers guided the trail hitters into the front seats, and the secretaries climbed over the benches as the penitents stood in prayer, and took their names, addresses and church preferences. Others distributed to each a small New Testament and a tract by Mr. Sunday, giving advice on how to lead a Christian life.

Miss Miller told those who "hit the trail" that she was doing what Mrs. Sunday would have done in shaking their hands were Mrs. Sunday not in a hospital.

Statistical Statement.

The sixth week of the ten-week Sunday campaign closed with a record of 47,234 trail hitters to date. The largest number in other cities heretofore was 47,903 in a ten weeks' campaign in Boston. An eleven weeks' meeting in Philadelphia brought 52,000 converts, and eight weeks in Detroit brought 27,172. New York promises to produce nearly 100,000 trail hitters before the campaign is ended.

Total collections at the Tabernacle for expenses amount to $49,880, making a total, with that previously subscribed, of $103,944. The expenses will be over $100,000.

Huns Send Note

the note I am enclosing. Before I go farther, take absolutely every care with this note and don't let it get defaced more than it is now, have it framed, for I prize it highly, and to date many eyes have regarded it enviously. It sure is one of the best souvenirs of the war. As you see these 2 officers sent over the note asking to be taken prisoners, and instead of 40 there were over 60 men. You will notice he has a few words mixed with the English. Officier is the French for officer; blessed means wounded, medicin means doctor, etc. I sent over for the bunch and held two of them till all the rest came. I had a conversation with them in French, for they couldn't speak English and I couldn't speak German. One of the two was a school teacher before the war, and the second was a cartoonist and writer for a paper. He also was a crack footballer, having played against the best English teams in pre war days. The whole three were of fine physique, but they told me the German army was no good now, because the men were either two old or too young and that we (English) were good. They decided that rather late in the game, didn't they? Believe me the life is fairly scared out of them. During a comparative lull, when shells were dropping fully 100 yards away the two Fritzs were ducking their heads and crouching down, while our boys were as thick as flies on top and quite unconcerned were taking a little rest, for little it was. They certainly haven't got very much backbone left. Here's hoping the rest follow the example of these 60.

Well, Sis, I hope you'll have the note framed the earliest possible, or keep it away until such time as you can get a frame.

Am feeling fine and enjoying life. Hope you are having as lovely weather as we are here. Write often.

Lovingly,
"ALVIN."

Straw Hat Season Opened May 24th

Sunny days have visited us once more. On our door step the other morning we found parcel upon parcel of straws—sailors, fedora shapes, etc—coarse and fine weaves in fact, a multitude of the sort that win smiles. Manish shapes that give the face a strong forcible expression. Boaters and Sailors at $1.50 to $3.00. Panamas $5.00. Leghornette Fedora Shape $3.00.

June and Light-Weight Grey Suits go hand in hand. That is our way of thinking, we may be wrong, but if we are, the style dictators have designed something unpopular, for greys are undoubtedly in the front line. Prices $15.75 $30.00. Many interesting numbers at the $15.75 figure.

You'll soon go vestless. Then how about the shirt, are you proud of it, or do you button the coat to conceal its unsightlyness? We realized that great demands would be made on our shirt stock—come and see the preparations we have made. Prices from $1.00 to $6.50.

WHAT CANADIAN WOMEN ARE DOING IN ENGLAND

Mrs. (Col.) E. B. Clegg Gives Most Interesting Address to Members of the Three Local Chapters of the Daughters of the Empire

MANY ACTIVITIES

After two years spent with the Canadian women in Folkestone, Mrs. E. B. Clegg gave a most interesting account of their work to the three Chapters I.O.D.E. yesterday afternoon in the green room of the Y.W.C.A.

Mrs. Clegg said it was a pleasure to return and find the society in the flourishing condition it is, and that it would perhaps prove interesting to know something of the other end of their work, namely, where the supplies are distributed.

In 1915 when Mrs. Clegg went over to Folkestone there were few Canadian women. However, with the arrival of the second contingent, hundreds of the men's families came too, and the Women's War Commission was organized, of which there were a hundred members in no time. The difficulty with this society lay in the ever-changing population, for as the men left for the front the women took positions anywhere in England.

Work of the Women.

A committee was organized in Folkestone by Col. Grover for visiting the hospitals, and through this Mrs. Clegg came in touch with several patients from Peterborough. A committee was also organized for the distribution of Canadian literature. The Moore Barracks was turned into a hospital and the Canadian women erected a hut for suspected consumptives. A theatre was also prepared for the men and committees of six were appointed to take men to the theatre, afterwards to tea.

A soldiers' home, run by the society, with bathing facilities, was established. The Red Cross visitors in the hospitals report to London on the conditions in the hospitals. They also see that the men's Christmas is not monotonous, and last Christmas gave 3,000 stockings to the men, each stocking containing chocolate, gum a pair of socks and a book. At Christmas $30 was received from Miss Peck, which was devoted, half to a concert party, the balance put into the stockings.

Folkestone.

Mrs. Clegg described the town as a most picturesque summer resort before the war. One hundred beautiful homes were commandeered by the government later and the occupants given two weeks to get out, and rest camps were established for Imperial soldiers. From the high land it is a wonderful sight to witness the transports, convoyed by a submarine, two destroyers and generally two aeroplanes, start for Calais. It is, she said, remarkable that no transports are sunk considering the number of other ships which were sunk in the channel.

Darkness and Spies.

Fewer accidents are caused by Zeppelins in England than by the remedy against them, namely, darkness. Another feature of the war is the activities of spies, of which Mrs. Clegg told some interesting stories, concluding with a spy story in which she personally was interested. Invited to an English lady's home to dinner she and another lady decided the English lady might bear watching as a spy. The sequel to the story lay in the fact that the English lady was a spy, but in the employ of our own government.

After the address tea was served by the 57th Chapter to the three Chapters which attended.

Guard Shoots Man At Trenton

Employee Refused to Show His Pass

TRENTON, Ont., June 1.—Mr. Louis Lapointe, a Frenchman, and a well-known resident of Trenton, was fatally shot by a munitions guard. While there is at present a diversity of opinion as to what did actually occur it is definitely known that the unfortunate man was shot by a guard on duty at the British Chemical Works, situated in that town. Lapointe is an employee of the works, and, it is stated, that he was going to work in the evening, and was challenged by the guard to produce the necessary passport. This, it is alleged, he refused to do, and was endeavouring to proceed to the works, when the guard shot at him. Lapointe was struck in the eye and about the head with shot, and the wound produced was of such a nature that he failed to recover.

The affair has caused much excitement in the neighbouring town. Lapointe was a middle-aged man with a wife and family. The affair will be investigated by the authorities.

AUTOS COLLIDED.

At Corner of Water and Hunter Streets Yesterday Afternoon.

An automobile collision, at the corner of Hunter and Water streets, at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon enraged the ears of Wm. Baker of Clarina, Stony Lake, and Mr. Frank Whitehouse. The latter was driving east when his automobile was struck by Baker's. The latter sustained a broken steering gear, and Mr. Whitehouse's was slightly dented.

NO DEFINITE ACTION AT OTTAWA YET

Parliamentary Atmosphere is Most Confusing and Prevalent Opinion Changes With Kaleidoscopic Variety and Perplexing Speed

OTTAWA, May 31.—The Parliamentary atmosphere, sensitive to every passing incident and rumour, is most confusing. Prevalent opinion changes with kaleidoscopic variety and perplexing speed. This morning speculation inclined to the view that coalition was "off." This seemed to be based upon the fact that Mr. F. F. Pardee, the Chief Liberal Whip, returned from Montreal to Ottawa with Sir Wilfrid Laurier, instead of proceeding to Toronto, as had been generally anticipated. As a matter of fact however, the only significance attaching to this phase of the situation was due to previously published rumours that Mr. Pardee was to proceed from Montreal to Toronto on a special mission, rumours altogether speculative in character.

While at Montreal Sir Wilfrid and Mr. Pardee, with Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, were in conference with Sir Lomer Gouin, but the conference is believed to have been of a preliminary character, and contingent upon eventualities. It may be taken for granted that Sir Robert Borden in his Tuesday afternoon conference with Sir Wilfrid Laurier made no definite overtures, though he may have informally sought counsel and assistance from the Liberal leader, and intimated later and more definite co-operation. The Premier is believed to have come from Government House to the office of Sir Wilfrid, and subsequently the latter was summoned to Rideau Hall. Whether either his Excellency or Right Hon. A. J. Balfour was informally tendering his good offices in an attempt to solve the situation, while generally believed, is not known, and gossip built upon these premises is purely guesswork.

Powerful Influences Brought.

There seems no doubt, however, that powerful influences have been brought to bear upon the Premier to save the situation by a belated attempt at the formation of a National War Administration, freed from the corroding acid of petty partisanship and patronage. Insistent representations have been made that the existing group of Cabinet Ministers with which the Premier has hitherto attempted to give war government has been weighed in the balance and found wanting. Even from within the Conservative party amazingly caustic and outspoken representations are reported to have been made to Sir Robert Borden upon this score. Confronted with the increasingly serious national problems of the moment, and the disaffection of many elements in all of the Provinces, patriotic pressure for Cabinet reconstruction has undoubtedly had its effect.

To-night, it is understood, Sir Robert was again in consultation with the Governor-General at Rideau Hall.

National Weal First With Laurier.

Although Sir Wilfrid Laurier has given no public indication as to his attitude in the situation, his words in Parliament and his course of conduct demonstrate that national considerations with him are paramount. It is generally believed that, had a general election been sprung upon Canada a little over a year ago, when Hon. Robert Rogers declared people were demanding one in "tones of thunder," Sir Wilfrid would have made his appeal to the electors with the purpose, if undoubtedly, of immediately forming a non-partisan win-the-war Administration. The present contingency accordingly finds him sympathetic with any sincere patriotic endeavour to supplant a regime of lethargic partisanship with one of energetic unity and co-operation.

Opposition to Coalition.

It is useless to deny that any prospective effort on the part of the leaders and their lieutenants to form such a coalition is being met with considerable opposition on the part of individual groups and their followers. In this respect the Premier's troubles are perhaps the greater. Dissentient Liberals largely content themselves with grumbling that any overtures were delayed for three years until the Premier found himself in extremis, and that present-time proposals of coalition are simply attempts at self-preservation. "Let us get to the people" is their plaint, "and we will form a genuine national war-time Government."

Conservative hostility to coalition will be more difficult to deal with. There is the selfishness of members with patronage to distribute, and appointments— Senatorial and otherwise—to secure. There is, further, not a little opposition on the part of present members of the Administration to a coalition which they recognize would end their Cabinet careers. Hon. Robert Rogers, for instance, is known to be vigorously attacking all efforts toward coalition, and there is no disposition to underestimate Mr. Rogers' influence in the party or with the Premier. These elements are demanding party Cabinet reconstruction, if any.

Much Hostility to Conscription.

Behind all is the promised conscription measure. It is useless to deny that it is becoming increasingly evident to members of Parliament on both sides of the House that an immediate enactment of compulsory recruiting is far from popular. Manifestations of strong and sometimes bitter hostility are raining in, not from Quebec alone, but also from all the other Provinces. What may be the outcome upon the framing and the bringing down of the bill itself is not known. It may be very probable that if coalition is to be brought about, the measure may wait that eventuality. There is a generally expressed sentiment, among those who personally favour conscription, that some definite and organized campaign of education should precede efforts to put it into effect. It has been one of the hinted conditions of coalition that the new Government should inaugurate a hearty, wholesouled national campaign, for a last draft of voluntary recruits, coupled with serious educational propaganda as to the war situation, and the necessity of Canada carrying her patriotic participation through to the end, no matter what sacrifices that may entail. Any conscription bill might be provided with conditions under which it came into force only by order in Council when the Government deemed it to be necessary.

Little Progress Is Being Made In Coalition Movement

Sir Wilfrid Laurier However Denies Statement in Le Soleil That He Had Remarked That Coalition Was a Failure

ELECTION PROBABLE

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, June 1.—The capital was startled when it read to-day what purported to be a despatch from Ottawa to Le Soleil, quoting Sir Wilfrid as to the failure of coalition. Sir Wilfrid promptly followed with a denial of the whole story.

Le Soleil is the chief Liberal organ in Quebec, and Sir Lomer Gouin is understood to be interested in it.

The suggestion is therefore made by some that the despatch was framed with a knowledge that Sir Lomer has

It may be stated with some definiteness. It may be stated with some definiteness, however, that coalition is not making much progress.

There is a rumour here to-day that a determined effort is being made to foil Sir Robert Borden's coalition issue by a clique of men who know that coalition would involve their disappearance from the government.

The conscription bill is now ready and the probability of its being given one reading is still strong. This would involve a statement from Sir Robert Borden, but not necessarily any reply from the opposition.

It is hinted that Sir Robert, in presenting the bill, will put forward certain information from the British government, perhaps confidentially so far as publication is concerned, which may take the form of a direct message to the Canadian parliament.

While the English papers in Montreal, both Liberal and Conservative, are still talking of the possibility of conscription under a coalition government, all are in accord to-day that coalition is an impossibility. They all talk of a certainty of a general election and the possibility of the dissolution of parliament within 48 hours.

A LARGE SIGN HAS BEEN ERECTED

Sign Occupies a Prominent Position in the River—Can Be Read By Travellers Passing Through

PETERBOROUGH

The above is the inscription on a huge sign that has been erected on a projection of land a few yards south of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's bridge, crossing the Otonabee River. The sign will have a dual purpose in that it will serve to acquaint travellers on the C. P. R. with the fact that Peterborough is a centre of activity and will have he added effect of emphasizing the city's industrial importance. The sign was erected by the city.

DR. CAMERON IS ELECTED

TORONTO, June 1.—At the convention of the Ontario Medical Association held here to-day, the following officers were elected for the current year: President, Dr. John P. Morton, Hamilton: Vice-Presidents, Dr. G. S. Cameron (Peterborough), Dr. John Ferguson (Toronto); Dr. J. M. Rogers (Ingersoll), and Dr. J. F. Argue, (Ottawa-; General Secretary, Dr. F. Arnold Clarkson (Toronto); Assistant Secretary, Dr. F. C. Harrison (Toronto); Treasurer, Dr. J. H. Elliott (Toronto). Executive: Dr. John Sheahan (St. Catharines), and Dr. N. H. Ball (London.) Representatives to Canadian Medical Association, Dr. H. A. Anderson (Toronto), Dr. T. G. Wallace (Toronto), and Dr. H. T. Hamilton (Toronto).

Among the many interesting papers delivered at yesterday's session was that of Dr. F. J. R. Forester, Stratford, recently returned from overseas. Dr. Forester spent a year with the R. A. M. C., and worked in a hospital close to the seat of war.

CUSTOMS RECEIPTS FOR THE MONTH

The Customs receipts for May, 1917 are almost double those of May, 1916, and appreciably higher than last month:

May, 1917—$92,937.73.
May, 1916—$59,618.21.
April, 1917—$78,507.46.

PARIS, June 1.—The War Office announcement to-day said that from May 17 to May 31 the French had destroyed 31 aeroplanes, and 57 more had been brought down behind the enemy lines.

ROME, June 1.—A massed counter attack thrown in force against newly won Italian positions on Heights 592 and 652 in the Vodice sector was thrown back and completely repulsed, the Italian War Office asserted to-day. Heavy losses were inflicted on the enemy.

In the Northern Carso and around Cerizza considerable fighting activity was reported.

57th Chapter I.O.D.E's Report For Month

The monthly meeting of the 57th Regt. Chapter I.O.D.E. held in the Y.W.C.A. on Thursday afternoon, May 31st was a most successful one.

Convenors of the different committees gave splendid reports of the work accomplished during the past month. Mrs. Sharp reported that the visiting committee had made seventy-one visits.

Report of the Knitting Committee was as follows:—

Peterborough, May 31st, 1917.

To the Regent Members of the 57th Regimental Chapter I.O.D.E. your Knitting Committee reports since last meeting on April 26th eighty-five pairs of socks sent overseas.

17 pairs—Lieut. G. D. Mowat, 21st Battalion Canadians B.E.F. France.
17 pairs—Pte. P. Lemay, 5th C.M.R. 3rd Canadian Division B.E.F. France.
17 pairs—Sergt. B. Targett, C. Co., C.E.F. 4th Labour Battalion, France.
17 pairs—Lieut. B. Marling, 2nd Battalion Canadians B.E.F. France.
17 pairs—Pte. N. H. Tamblin, A. Co., No. 3 Platoon 4th C.M.R. France.

Letters received acknowledging receipt of socks were received from: Corp. F. H. Collins, Lieut. N. B. Hatton, Corp. O. R. Brooks, M. M., Gunner H. P. Neill, Canadian War Contingent Association, Driver S. A. Shook, Gunner Angus Smith, Sergt A. Pullen, Corp. Sadler, John Ridyard.

One hundred and forty pairs of socks have been received and eight spindles of wool have been purchased.

Your Committee wishes to thank the Woman's Teachers Guild for a generous donation of twenty-one pairs of socks.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

(Signed) M. COTTRELL,
Convenor of Knitting Committee

Mrs. Hay visited eight soldiers in Hospital, making fourteen separate visits.

Five new members were welcomed to the Chapter.

The Otonabee and Peter Robinson Chapters, also the Red Cross Executive were guests of the 57th Chapter to hear Mrs. Clegg speak about the war work the Canadian women are doing in England.

As Mrs. Clegg has spent the last two years in England, she is admirably fitted for the task. Needless to say, her address was very much appreciated and she had many interesting things to tell.

Tea was afterwards served and a social half hour enjoyed.

Kingston Has Plenty Of Potatoes But Lost $700 On Transaction

Kingston, May 31.—The City Council, which had 600 bags of seed potatoes on its hands, has sold them to a local dealer. In their potato transaction the city lost $700, but they were forced to take action at a time when potatoes were hard to get. Both the City and County Councils purchased potatoes, and it is claimed that Kingston has more potatoes than any other city in Canada.

A clean and satisfactory method of mending broken china is said to be to melt lump alum and use it while hot.

EX.-MAYOR BRADBURN PLEASED WITH THE VOTE YESTERDAY

Ex-Mayor Bradburn expressed himself as more than pleased with the vote on the by-law. One of the big tax payers of the city, he worked hard to roll up yesterday's vote. "It's a large sum of money," he commented this morning, "but I feel sure we will not have to begin the work until the conditions are favourable. I supported the by-law because the Council had promised the Quaker Oats company the city would build a high-level bridge at Hunter street, and secondly because it was essential for our reputation as a manufacturing city that we should hold the entire plant of the company. The new building will be one of the biggest cereal plants in the world, and when we go after new industries we have a big argument in the very fact that the Quaker Oats company is located here, and that it returned here in spite of the inducements held out by other cities."

WILL BE PAID TWICE A MONTH

Special to The Examiner.

OTTAWA, June 1. — Following strong arguments by Messrs. Best, Lawrence, and Pelletier, representing Railway Employees, the Parliamentary Committee engaged in consolidation of the Railway Act to-day, passed an amendment providing that the wages of employees of Canadian railways be paid at least semi-monthly.

SAMARA, MESOPOTAMIA, ONCE BAGDAD'S RIVAL

WASHINGTON, D. C.—"Samara, the scene of the recent success scored by Gen. Maude, in command of British troops in Mesopotamia, was once, for a brief period of forty years a rival of Bagdad," says a war geography bulletin of the National Geographical Society.

The Samara of to-day is almost swallowed up within the site of the ancient and mighty city of Old Samara, or Samarra. It is situated on the left bank of the Tigris, some sixty-five mi northwest of Bagdad, and is connected with the right bank of the river by a bridge of boats.

$4,500,000 House.

"The ruins of the older city stretch along the left bank for a distance of nearly twenty miles, and among the crumbling monuments of its departed glory are the chief mosque the Malviyeh minaret, and two palaces built by the ninth century caliphs. One of the royal residences was erected by Motawakkil at a cost of 2,000,000 dinars ($4,500,000), the money being extorted from minor officials of the realm, who had abused their power to amass great wealth.

"Samara is now a town of perhaps 2,500 inhabitants, with a few khans and shops on the opposite bank of the river. In the centre of the town is the pilgrimage church of the Shiites and there is an interesting old quay faced with burned bricks. Before the outbreak of the war there was a public carriage service in Bagdad, also an occasional pilgrims' steamer.

"The star of the Samarra came into the ascendant in the year 834, when the caliph Motasim bought some territory in this vicinity. Two years later he transferred his residence here from Bagdad, because his bodyguard of Turkish slaves had, by their excesses and impiety, aroused the hostility of the people of the capital.

City in Son's Care.

"Fearful of antagonizing the populace and equally afraid to take sides against his hirelings, Motasim moved away, leaving the chief city to be governed by his son. This temporizing measure of the caliph marked the beginning of the downfall of his dynasty for the Turkish guards gradually gained the ascendancy and the nominal rulers became figureheads and playthings of he military forces.

"Eight caliphs ruled Samara between 836 and 876, and of these five suffered violent deaths."

STOP ALL U. S. ELIGIBLES FROM LEAVING THE STATES

DETROIT, May 31.—"No American citizen of eligible military age, that is, from twenty-one to thirty-one, will be permitted to leave this country ether with or without passports, until after the completion of registration June 5."

This is the substance of an order received here from Washington late this afternoon, and which will go into effect at midnight to-night. Immigration officers on this side will stop and question each man desiring to cross to Windsor, and if he comes within the requirements of the military authorities he will be obliged to remain on the Michigan side of the line.

TOBACCO TAKES PLACE OF LIQUOR AS INLAND REVENUE PRODUCER.

OTTAWA, May 31. — Tobacco has taken the place of liquor as the great inland revenue producer. During April the excise on tobacco and cigars amounted to about one million dollars, while that on spirits, was about three-quarters of a million. The total inland revenue for the month was $2,043,533, or just a little less than during the same month one year ago.

FIFTY THOUSAND SEE GIANTS BEAT PHILLIES

Decoration Day Breaks Attendance Records at the New York Polo Grounds.

NEW YORK, May 31.—More money was paid by the fans to see the Giants twice subdue the Phillies yesterday than ever was recorded in the books of the New York National League club for morning and afternoon games. Nearly ten thousand persons bought tickets in the morning, while close to thirty-nine thousand handed over their coin in the afternoon. Counting free admissions, more than fifty thousand persons passed through the turnstiles.

Before the second inning of the afternoon combat had been finished the sale of grandstand tickets was stopped, as 28,000 spectators, including 1,000 deadheads, were overcrowding the huge structure. Probably twelve thousand more passed into the wooden stands, the green canvas screens in centre field being raised in order to afford a view of the proceedings. A rough estimate placed the New York club's total receipts for the day at $25,000, the Phillies' share being in the neighbourhood of $12,000. All of which seems to indicate that in spite of the war the national pastime still is very much alive.

MILITARY NEWS

"gassed" on the 8th of May and was unconscious until he found himself in an Australian Hospital at Boulogne. From there he was taken to England on May 15th. He did not feel very well after the trip across the Channel, but is now progressing favorably.

In a letter recently received Pte. H. E. Rorabeck, a Norwood member of the 93rd Battalion says: Speaking of the battle of V my Ridge, we certainly made old "Fritz" beat it. I just came out of the line last night (April 14th). Some of my chums have been killed, but Hendren, King Scriver and Jack Parker are all right. Poor Tommy Parker died of wounds in the trenches. He had his leg and arm blown off by a shell, dying in about twenty minutes Cecil Watson was taking a course and was not in the drive. He came back to us last night. Dave Stark is in the cooking department of the 21st and is well. Fred Kempt is fine. I saw him when we were coming out. I was just going to bed last night when I heard my name called by someone. It was Albert Wellman. He is fine and was over the wall, and came through without a scratch. well. This war is certainly awful; just to see your chums fall on both sides of you while it is your luck to walk on. I am a bomber and had to carry 16 bombs, rifle, rations and ammunition. It was some load to carry. Our officer was the only one that went over in our company to remain with it. The Major was killed and two other officers wounded. I was out to a bombing post one night and it thappened the next night that four others were called to go, and the four of them were blown to pieces.

Writing ten days later from hospital in England he says: "I wrote you after coming out of the scrap. The same day I reported to the Doctor with sore feet and a rash on my shoulders, so the Doctor sent me to the field hospital. After staying there a few nights I was sent by ambulance to a clearing station and from there to the base and later to England to a hospital at Bagthorpe, Notingham. My feet ache just like a toothache all the time and are swolen up. They also burn. It seems to stop at my ankles. Except for this I am O.K. and came through the battle without a mark.

WINDSOR, May 31.—The total enlistments at Windsor during May were approximately 650, of which number 36 per cent. were pronounced physically fit. With each of the other two recruiting centres in Military District No. 1 recruiting in the same ratio as Windsor, approximately 1,550 men would be placed in khaki each month, giving more than 12,000 recruits per month from the eight districts in the Dominion.

The number of Canadian-born enlisting made a corresponding jump, it being estimated more than 50 per cent. of the men accepted were natives of Canada. British-born and United States citizens contributing the remainder in about equal proportion.

OTTAWA, May 31. — In order to stimulate recruiting under the voluntary system the Government has not, since the oubreak of the war, resorted in any very large degree, to the medium of newspaper advertising. A return tabled in the Commons this afternoon shows that up to the end of March last the total amount spent in advertising for recruits was $26,571. Of this amount, $18,568 was spent in Ontario, $3,996 in Quebec, $1,178 in Nova Scotia, $1,235 in New Brunswick, $999 in Prince Edward Island, $322 in Alberta, $244 in British Columbia, $621 in Manitoba, and only $6 in Saskatchewan.

Mrs. M. J. Hayes has received the following letter from the information Bureau of the Canadian Red Cross Society in London, Eng.:

Dear Madam,—I beg to inform you that Pte. M. J. Hayes, No. 195835, 1st Battalion, who is now at King George Hospital, Stamford street, London S. E., has recently been seen by our Red Cross visitor, who reports that he has a gun shot wound in the right leg. He is in bed, but very cheerful, and seems to be getting along quite well. You may rest assured that he is receiving every attention and that anything desired by him is sure to be obtained. We are pleased to render so good a report.

Very truly,
Constance Scott,
Per K. G. H.

OTTAWA, May 31.—A conference between the Federal Government and the Dominion officers and Executive Committee of the Great War Veterans' Association of Canada, has been arranged to take place at Ottawa on June 5th. The conference will deal with all questions affecting returned soldiers, and is regarded as an important one in view of the pending legislation respecting pensions, land settlement and other matters of interest to men who have served at the front. The Great War Veterans' Association, which was formed in Winnipeg in April last, has a membership of 10,000, and an Executive Committee composed of men from all the provinces.

Australia Has A Frog-Farm of 4000 Residents

SYDNEY, N.S.W., May 30.—The only frog-farm in Australia is situated at Balgowish, near Manly, and is conducted by a man named Leon Gebehr. The reptiles are raised not for culinary, but for scientific purposes; they are sold in large numbers to the universities.

A recent visitor to the farm found stocks somewhat depleted, there were or about 4,000 all told; but he was getting much interesting information about the creatures and their habits. The frog-farmer's chief anxiety relates to the weather. The frogs are kept in a huge, grassy place, completely enclosed in fine wire netting, where there is a series of ponds. Inside the enclosure, scattered about, are many shelter boxes, like beehives. At the first breath of the cold southerly wind which comes up so suddenly in this region in hot weather, the frogs rush to the boxes and remain there until the temperature rises. Mr. Gebehr told dolefully how, last April, a sudden slight frost wiped out some hundreds of his charges. It would seem that the Hawkes Bay peach-grower and the Manly frog-farmer have something in common.

VORACIOUS EATERS.

During the summer the frogs eat voraciously. Everything in insect form is food for them. Mr. Gebehr chops up over-ripe fruit, and leaves it in the enclosure. The bait attracts myriads of flies and on them the frogs wax fat. Swarms of ants also come in after the fruit. Few return. The frog-farmer's job during the winter is a sinecure. The fattened frog, for three or four months, retires into obscurity and a state of somnolence.

Visitors to this unique farm are greatly struck by the fact that the frogs know their master. They show no fear of him, some even hop after him. But the advent of a stranger creates prompt alarm and a hurried disappearance. The frogs have a hundred enemies—cats, eels, fowls, snakes, lizards and many kinds of fish and birds.

Stocks are replenished by breeding and by introducing trapped strangers from outside. Mr. Gebehr declares they are good Australian frogs; a certain number of immigrants are received without question, but if the established community thinks the number excessive, there presently arises a fearful hullabaloo, and only active human interference prevents a general massacre.

There is not yet any demand in Australia for frogs for table purposes. The snail finds its way into many dining rooms, however, and a number of men, it is said, are now engaged in raising these succulent creatures for the market.

NO "FOOD DICTATOR," COMMISSION INSTEAD

Government Measure Now Being Drafted Provides For Five Members.

OTTAWA, May 31. —The Government has temporarily abandoned the idea of a food dictator and is preparing an order-in-Council which provides for a food commission instead. This body would consist of five members, but the personnel has not yet been announced. It is likely that the membership would include a business man, a labour representative, a manufacturer, a lawyer and a representative of the farming interests.

Sank American Ship And Robbed the Crew

GERMANS SEARCHED CAPTAIN AND SAILORS OF SCHOONER ROUSS AFTER THEY TOOK TO BOATS.

NEW YORK, June 1. — Captain Frederick L. Foote, of the American schooner Margaret B. Rouss, arrived yesterday at an American port, with seven members of the crew of his vessel, which was torpedoed with no warning on April 27, about forty-five miles off the coast of Monaco, on the Riviera. Captain Foote brought the first news of the sinking of his vessel. He said that the crew of the German submarine behaved like pirates of the olden days and robbed him and his crew of every article they possessed when they were in the lifeboat.

"We left St. Andrew's Bay, Fla., on Feb. 4th for Genoa with a cargo of pitch pine," said Captain Foote. "All went well until just after six o'clock on the evening of April 27th, when the schooner was about 45 miles off Monte Carlo. Suddenly a torpedo struck the vessel on the starboard side amidships with terrific force and tore her planks open, letting the sea pour into the hold. We got the lifeboat launched safely, and had just clambered into it with what articles could easily be saved when a submarine appeared on the surface about half a mile away to starboard. A boat put off from her side with the commander (a junior officer) and four seamen, and pulled over to Margaret Rouss, which did not sink quickly on account of being laden with lumber.

"After ordering me to stand by with the boat, the commander and his party went on board the schooner where they spent two hours rummaging the cabins and the storerooms and filled their craft with all kinds of loot. Not content with that the Germans came alongside our boat, and the sailors searched our clothes, and took away everything we had, including money, tobacco, pipes, and food. They also carried away my sextant, compass, charts and the ship's chronometer. Then they pulled back to the schooner, which was not sinking fast enough to please the commander, and put bombs in her hold, which blew her up.

"After pulling for 45 miles over a calm sea, we landed at the port of Monaco, and climbed up to Monte Carlo, where James Gordon Bennett, and the Prince of Monaco, took care of us and sent us home."

U. S. CONGRESS HAS LONG SIEGE AHEAD WITH BILLS

WASHINGTON, June 1. — According to the best information, the meeting of the Cabinet yesterday afternoon was devoted to the consideration of three features in the war programme of the government. These in the relative order of importance were:

The preparation for the information of the country of a frank and clear statement of the objects accomplished at the recent conference among representatives of the United States, Great Britian and France.

The decision to create a central purchasing board for Great Britain, Russia, France and Italy.

The approval of the plan followed by Great Britain in dealing with the provisioning of neutral countries contiguous to Germany.

Congress is in for a long siege. This was the conclusion reached by the members of both Houses as they took a rest to-day, reviewed the sum total of the war work done up to the present and looked forward to that just ahead.

July 15th is the earliest date ventured as a possible adjournment point. This was suggested by some democratic leaders who believed the war programme would be finished by that time. However, others of the sages believe it will be the middle of August, and a few say that it is possible Congress may sit right on through into the regular session.

There are some big stumbling blocks in the way of an early adjournment. The Senate Finance Committee will be ready to report out the $1,800,000,000 revenue bill—probably raised to $2,200,000,000, to provide for the emergency shipping programme — a week from to-morrow. It will immediately precipitate a vigorous fight on the floor of the Senate.

On the Food Control Bill the Conservatives in Congress are planning the battle of their lives. Many are opposed to most of the powers it is proposed to vest in Herbert C. Hoover, the new Food Administrator, and some of them are opposed to all of these powers.

Oil burning locomotives in Argentina have shown a fuel economy of from 20 to 30 per cent., over coal burners.

ALICE BRADY

in

THE GILDED CAGE

A brilliant, unusual drama in which Miss Brady's wonderful personality is seen to splendid advantage. This great picture has been called "The sweetest story every told," and those who see it will agree that this is an excellent description for it.

"The Gilded Cage" strikes a high note in all particulars. The story interests and entertains. It grips the spectators from the start and holds them enthralled through all the reels. It would be difficult to improve upon this drama in any point.

Social and Personal

Lieut. P. B. Birchard, Montreal spent a few days this week in the city, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Burnham, Weller street.

Mrs. Bliss who has been seriously ill in Florida during the past winter has recovered sufficiently to go to her summer home, "Oak Orchard."

Mrs. George Kinpton, Campbellford is in the city visiting Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Armstrong, George street.

Miss Maud Perry who spent the winter in Florida is in the city visiting her sister Miss N. Perry, Water street.

The bi-weekly tea given by the Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E. has been postponed from Saturday until a date to be announced later when the final tea for the season will be held at the Empress.

The many friends of Mr. T. D. Mulholland, Homewood Avenue, who has been seriously ill will be pleased to learn of his greatly improved condition.

The Peter Robinson Chapter I. O. D. E. will not hold their tea at the Empress to-morrow, but intend having a final blossom tea, the date to be announced later. The proceeds of these teas held during the winter have been devoted to the care of five prisoners of war, and the Chapter hopes the closing tea will be well patronized.

Mrs. A. A. Smith and Mrs. W. H. Waram returned to-day from a motor trip to Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. McWilliams of Charlotte street, have opened their summer cottage at Stony Lake for the season.

The many friends in this city will learn with deepest regret of the death of Mrs. J .M. Bolger, which occurred this morning in Guelph, after an illness of some months' duration.

Dr. G. S. Cameron has returned from Toronto, where he has been in attendance at the conference of the Ontario Medical Association. Dr. Cameron was honoured by being elected vice-president of the Association for the ensuing year.

Splendid Art Exhibit By Pupils Of Public Schools

The exhibition of art work by the pupils of the Public Schools of the city will be continued to-night from 7 until 10 o'clock in the old Collegiate Institute building, on Murray Street, east of Water street. If you have not seen them they are recommended to your inspection, particularly to those citizens who are interested in the progress of the school children. The display is divided into groups representing the work of all the classes from Primer to the Fourth Class, and in each of these there are numerous evidences of present achievement and promise for the future. In the primer group the children were asked to illustrate stories they knew and in their efforts they indicate their favourite legend and also the future work they hope to enter. Hence, one boy drew a picture of a man plowing, and a girl evidently desires to become a teacher. A bed with stocking hanging from the foot recalls a Christmas pleasure, and an exceptionally effective drawing of the game "Ring Around Rosie" is shown. Naturally the work is puerile, but it is also remarkably well executed. And these scenes are from memory and imagination, and in many of the exhibits are the expressions of the children's ideas and the images they retain of things and places they have seen. In the lower classes especially in Book I. there are drawings representing action that are decidedly clear and convincing. Mr. Mowat stated that among these children their efforts are often better than the action work of the more advanced children. It is more unconscious.

Brush work with ink is introduced in the Junior II. class and in this branch the standard remains high. In the Junior III. water colours appear, and in the Senior III. the pencil work is very good, and probably improves in the Junior IV. In the highest class there are pencil drawings of historical events, and here again the children show a fine freedom in their expression. The work of Eddie H. Hall of the Queen Alexandra School, stands out among that of his companions, revealing a gift that should be fostered as much as possible. With the three colours, orange, red and blue, he has done quite a number of scenes that reveal a nice selection of objects and the talent to reproduce them. Perspective has been subtly and effectively worked out in his paintings, and his colour-mixing is also notable.

Mention may be made of the natural form and colour in Master Tom Miller's representation of a maroon trillium, and the fruit drawn by Misses Maud A. and D. Hanna is also deserving of special mention. Included in the display is the wood work turned out by Mr. Hagerman's manual training class, and the sewing done by girls of the upper classes of the Central School, taught by Miss Ferguson. It makes an interesting exhibit and is worthy of a visit.

Yes, Builds You Up in 5 to 10 Days

Iron For the Blood and Phosphorus For the Nerves

Nervous, exhausted, run-down, nervous people will be glad to know that they can be restored back to their youth vigor by the discovery of this new drug called Nuxated Iron.

It is surprising how new and every person needs something to build them up. Now you know as well as any doctor will tell you, the cause of spring time is impure blood. It takes many people to their grave, ruins health, makes you weak, sends you down and finally you are a physical wreck.

This new drug is a combination of iron and phosphorus. The iron acts directly on the blood while the phosphorus enriches and strengthens the nerves. You start to-day and take two or three tablets of Nuxated Iron with each meal and in 5 to 10 days you will be 100 per cent. stronger.

This dope does not act like other iron tonics you have taken, but instead, it does not blacken the teeth, upset the stomach or make you constipated. This new drug is dispensed by one druggist in each city. F. C. Weber dispenses it for Peterborough.

Daring Peace Plot Is Exposed; Bulgar, Catspaw For Prussia, In A Secret Offer To Russia

Maxim Gorky is Approached in an Effort to Use Him in Berlin Scheme—Famous Writer Decides That the Only Answer He Will Give is to Publish the Despatches.

AN ARMISTICE PROPOSED

PETROGRAD, June 2.—Maxim Gorky, noted Russian author, publishes a sensational account of an attempt by D. Rizow, the Bulgarian Minister at Berlin, to inveigle him into clandestine negotiations for a separate peace. In the Novaia Zhizn, of which Gorky is the editor, he prints Rizow's secret despatch, occupying three columns, with concrete peace proposals, and, although he himself is an almost fanatical advocate of peace, he denounces Rizow.

The peace proposal was delivered to Maxim Gorky at Petrograd in duplicate by two German agents, acting individually. Rizow begins by proclaiming that already in January he had approached the Russian Ministers at Stockholm and Christiania with a proposal to conclude "an honourable peace" between Russia and her foes. He received a rebuff. Immediately after the revolution, Rizow renewed his attempt with the Russian Minister at Christiania, who was an old acquaintance, and got, through the Minister, a reply from Professor Paul Milukoff, then the Foreign Minister in the temporary government, that there could be no question of a separate peace.

Notwithstanding his two repulses, Rizow, announcing himself as Russia's real friend, now approaches his acquaintance, Maxim Gorky. He attempts to refute successively the arguments customarily used by the Russians and the Allies against a separate peace. He offers to guarantee that Germany and Austria will not again undertake an offensive against free Russia, and adds that both Powers are willing to evacuate the occupied territory without the expenditure of another drop of Russian blood. He declares that Germany and Austria in no wise menace Russia's new freedom. He accuses England of being the real-militarist state, not Germany, and declares that Russia has no moral obligation to keep her treaty with the Allies, because treaty breaking has been common in the present war.

The provisional government, adds Rizow, must be forced to answer the question:—"Who, after three years' massacre, gave you the right to continue shedding Russian blood?"

Rizow thereupon makes the following concrete proposal:—"Russia to conclude an immediate armistice with her foes, both belligerents retaining their present fronts, and to summon immediately a Russian constituent Assembly with the aim of deciding on peace or war."

This, says Rizow, is the only means to save the Russian revolution from disaster. He invites Gorky to meet him at Stockholm or some other Swedish town, or, if that is impossible, to send a representative, who must be a Russian of authority. He invites Gorky to acknowledge the despatch and appoint a meeting place by telegraph, and suggests that he conceal his identity by signing the telegram with his Christian name, Alexei, or by the name Max.

In his newspaper Maxim Gorky characterizes Rizow's despatch as "base and stupid," and declares that his only reply will be its publication.

Wheat Markets Closed Strong

Prices Were Strong at the Close —Cash Wheat at Lake Points Quoted Lower

Wheat markets were stronger at the close yesterday, the October option at Winnipeg going up 3 3-4c from Fridays close, and the July option at Chicago closing 4c above Friday. The advance seemed to be in sympathy with the strength of the coarser grains, July corn at Chicago going up 6 1-2 cents from Friday's close. The only other apparent reason for any strength in wheat was a bullish report on general crop conditions issued by Snow. While the options were strong cash wheat at lake ports is quoted lower yesteday than Friday. C. W. oats 1-2c higher. Corn is quoted nominally at $1.73, track, Toronto. Flours, steady.

American corn—$1.73, nominal.

Ontario oats — No. 2 white, not quoted.

Ontario wheat—No. 2 winter, per car lots, $2.45 to $2.50; No. 3 winter, $2.43 to $2.48, according to freights outside.

Peas—No. 2, nominal.

Barley—Good malting, nominal.

Buckwheat—Nominal.

Rye—No. 2, $1.95.

Manitoba flour — First patents, in jute bags, $13; second patents, $12.50; strong bakers, $12.10.

Ontario flour—Winter, according to sample, $10.75 to $10.85; track, Toronto, prompt shipments.

Millfeed — Car lots, delivered, Montreal, shorts, $41; bran, $35; feed flour per bag, $2.70 to $2.80; middlings, $45.

Hay—Baled, track, Toronto, car lots, No. 2, $13 to $14; mixed $9 to $11.50; straw $9.

Soldiers Seize Eight At Anti-Draft Meeting Held In New York

Armed Men, Officials and Police Dominate Throng of Foreigners and Women—Ben Reitman Eludes Police After Distributing Circulars Opposing Registration Next Tuesday—Students of Columbia University Are Among First Taken in Round-up.

BIG DEMONSTRATION FAILS

NEW YORK, June 2.—Amounting to virtually to the establishment of martial law in New York city, soldiers of the Sixty-ninth regiment, National Guard, invaded Madison Square Garden and arrested eight persons accused of distributing seditious "no-conscription" circulars at a peace meeting held under the auspices of the "First American Conference for Democracy and Terms of Peace."

Trace of the prisoners could not be found for a long time after the meeting was over, although it was understood by the police of the East Twenty-second street station that the arrested men eventually would be lodged there by their captors. The soldiers, however, acted on their own authority, announced merely that the prisoners were taken on the authority of "the United States" and carted the men off without telling the police or federal agents what they were doing.

The meeting was held in a setting unprecedented perhaps in the history of the city. More than thirteen thousand persons crowded into the big meteing place to attend the meeting, ostensibly to advocate peace, but in reality expected to have been converted into tremendous anti-draft demonstration.

No such conversion happened, however. Police, uniformed and ununiformed; soldiers, bluejackets, detectives, secret service agents, agents of the Department of Justice, Deputy Police Commissioners and Assistant United States Attorneys dominated the situation from two hours before the gates of the big amphitheatre were opened until every person had left the place at eleven o'clock.

REITMAN ESCAPES ARREST.

The nearest approach to evasion of the official surveilance that was maintained was accomplished by Ben Reitman, anarchist, and follower of Emma Goldman, who circulated with some of his literature, quietly and unobtrusively through the crowds inside the gardan, distributing a circular announcing the Goldman "no-conscription" meeting which is set to take place next Monday night at Hunt's Point Palace, in the Bronx.

Reitman was not among the soldiers' prisoners, although federal agents and police sought him inside the Garden to search him to see whether he had any of the so-called matter forbidden by the Department of Justice.

Even the Fire Department authority was interposed to take what the managers of the demonstration called its "kick" out of the meeting. It was the hope of the leaders of the organization that held the meeting to reap a golden harvest for the organization's support by circulating printed money pledges in the big audience. The Fire Department effectually put a damper on that arrangement by confiscating, temporarily, the more than ten thousand subscription blanks that were to have been circulated. The firemen took the action on their own authority, and when appeal was made to the higher officers at Fire Headquarters, the persons who made the appeal were told frankly the department had done enough for them in permitting more than the specified number of persons to enter the garden to attend the meeting, and that no interference could be made with the confiscation order.

Every word that was uttered from the speakers' rostrum was taken down by stenographers sent to the meeting in accordance with the ruling of the Attorney General. Much was made by the speakers of this circumstance, and the big crowd howled their disapproval at every mention from the platform of the display of authority that served effectually to put a damper on the opposition to the government authority.

Outside the Garden no such sight ever before was presented. More than three thousand persons were unable to get inside the big meeting place, and the police permitted them to go to Madison square, opposite the Metropolitan Building and hold an overflow meeting there. Before six o'clock in the evening the police arrangements for handling the situation were complete.

The police were in direct charge of Chief Inspector Max Schmittberger, who established a special police headquarters across the way from the Garden in the building of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. About 450 policemen in uniform were stationed in lines about the big building in which the meeting was held and extended for more than a block in every direction beyond the building. Other policemen not in uniform, 100 detectives from Police Headquarters and several inspectors and captains completed the force on guard. Special electric search lights were attached to lampposts at every side of the building.

SEARCHLIGHTS HELD READY

Four police automobiles, equipped with searchlights and loaded with policemen ready for any emergency patroled the streets for several blocks on every side of the Garden. A special telephone switchboard connecting with Police Headquarters, in Centre street, was installed in Chief Inspector Schmittberger's headquarters, ready for the transmission of an emergency call for reserves, who were held in readiness in five police stations closest to the meeting place.

Inside the Garden all was mild. It was plain that almost every one in the audience did not want to fight for America, and at every opportunity they cheered as hard as they could for declarations that this country should not go to war. At least half of the big audience was composed of women, and far more than half of the big crowd were foreigners. Most of the men were of military age, as set forth in the selective draft measure and they made no effort to conceal their fear that they might be made to serve in the army.

The only touch of patriotism that manifested itself was brought into the proceedings by a group of about ten soldiers who sat conspicuously in the arena section of the Garden. One of them waved an American flag. They applauded every sarcastic utterance of the speakers against the draft and they applauded every time the name of President Wilson was uttered by any of the speakers.

On several occasions the soldiers by their waving of their flags and otherwise attracted the attention of Rabbi J. L. Hagnes, chairman of the meeting, and once he called public attention to the fact that "if there was a disturbance over there," indicating where the soldiers sat, "it would be what the police call a 'plant,' not of our making, and will help our cause." The big audience roared its approval, but the soldiers maintained their place and hooted every utterance they considered disloyal.

After a struggle that lasted for several hours, the following resolution was decided upon and offered at the meeting as forming the best judgment of those in charge of the proceedings:

"Inasmuch as we believe conscription laws to be unconstitutional (violations of the Thirteenth Amendment of the Constitution of the United States, which provides that there shall be no involuntary servitude), we appeal to the Congress of the United States so to amend the Conscript Act before June 5 as to grant exemption to all conscientious objectors whether or not they be members of recognized religious organizations.

"Inasmuch as young men of conscriptable age are inquiring, asking whether or not military registration on June 5 will subject them immediately to military law and will compel them to do work without the proection of labour laws under any conditions which the military executive may force upon them, and inas much as the legal branch of the War Department has thus far refused to answer questions concerning the status of these men after registration, be it resolved, that this conference hereby appeal to the governmen for a full and unmistakable pronouncement upon this point."

AFTER DOCTORS FAILED

A Well Known Resident of Port Hawkesbury is Restored to Health and Strength

One of the best known men in the town of Port Hawkesbury, N.S., is Mr. William Duff. He has been a member of the municipal council for 16 years, chairman of the school board, and held other responsible positions. Mr. Duff's words, therefore, can be taken as coming from a man who has the esteem and respect of his fellow townsmen. He makes no secret of the fact that he believes Dr. Williams' Pink Pills saved his life, and that they restored him to good health, after several medical men had failed to cure him. Mr. Duff tells of his illness and cure as follows: "About four years ago I was attacked with la grippe which left me in a condition difficult to describe. I was attacked with general weakness, and a constant dull pain in the stomach. I became so weak that I could not walk a hundred yards without sitting down to rest. The food I ate continually soured on my stomach. My nerves were all gone, and palpitation of the heart and a fluttering sensation all through my chest, especially at night was almost unbearable. I was finally compelled to go to bed, and called in a doctor, who said my heart was affected, and treated me for that trouble. After three months attendance, and feeling no better I called in another doctor. His treatment also failed to help me, and I tried a third doctor. This one said there was nothing wrong with my heart, that the trouble was due to my stomach. After treating me for a time he advised that I go to the hospital at Halifax. On a previous occasion when I had an attack of rheumatism I had been cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I decided that rather than go to a hospital I would again try this medicine. I got a supply of the pills and began taking them. In a few weeks I could feel my strength returning, my stomach was giving me less trouble, the palpitation of the heart disappeared, and after a further use of the pills I felt as well as ever I did in my life. I can truly say that I feel more thankful than words can express for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me."

You can get these pills from any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

QUEENSLAND HAS TROUBLE OVER HER CATTLE SUPPLIES

SYDNEY, N.S.W. — New South Wales and West Australia have each in turn been the "most socialistic state in the Commonwealth," and each to-day has on its hands a number of half-paralysed, money-eating state industries. Now the coveted title is held by Queensland, and perhaps because Queensland has tried to out-Herod Herod, the northern state is reaping more than its usual share of trouble. Several of the most important industries are beginning to groan under the weight of extreme labor legislation; but the most remarkable example of state interference is afforded by the pastoral industry.

Early in its corruscating career, this government entered into the business of producing and selling meat. Already throughout Queensland there are state cattle farms and state butcher shops. War conditions sent the price of meat soaring but the government insisted that "no criminal profits" should be reaped by the Queensland stock-growers. It fixed by law the prices of stock and of meat, in the handling of which it practically secured a monopoly. There were high prices and no such restrictions in the adjoining states; stock began to travel across the border.

The Queensland government found that under the War Precautions Act, it could commandeer all stock for the purpose of export to Britain, and it acted accordingly, and closed the border. If the government had been honest about it, there would have been nothing more than the usual wail from opponents of all new things but the government used the border embargo to fill the butcher shops at its own price, and it wrung the highest price it could get for wheat from the British war office authorities.

For many months stock owners fought for the right to cross the border. A few days ago the Commonwealth government at last acted, and declared the movements and distributions of stock. It readily granted permits to stockowners to cross the Queensland border. The Queensland government has taken the decision very badly and appears to have adopted a policy of passive resistance. It has discovered that some of the stock waiting to cross is infested with ticks and it has invoked an act which gives it power to forbid tick-infested stock to cross the border, and it is refusing to allow any stock to cross. The position at the moment is that numerous droves of cattle, "clean," and recently dipped, and having the authority of the federal government to cross, are held up by the state officers at the border. Lengthy litigation is talked of.

A cattleman of the aggressive type arrived at the border gate with 800 head last week. A state officer tried to prevent him crossing, and demanded 10 shillings per head before he would agree. "I've got Billy Hughes' pass and to ——— with you and the ten bob business," he said, and without more ado forced a way through the border fence. It is expected that the example will be followed by others.

Sunday Sermon For Those Who Do Not Go To Church

(By JAMES SUTHERLAND)

Isaiah 1st chapter, 18th verse: — Come now and let us reason together saith the Lord; though your sins be as scarlet they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson they shall be as wool.

The name of the prophet Isaiah signifies the Salvation of the Lord, a very suitable name for this prophet, who prophecies so much of Jesus, the Saviour, and the great salvation wrought out by him.

Isaiah is by some supposed to have been of the Royal family of Judah, and he prophesied in the reign of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahas and Hezekiah. If he lived to the reign of Manasseh by whom according to some writers, he was put to death, he must have prophesied during a period of 60 years. Lonoth, who speaks of his writings, says they constitute the most perfect model of prophetic poetry and that nothing in the whole compass of Greek and Roman poetry can be said to equal or even to approach some passages in his writings, which are almost wholly poetical and often highly figurative. But the value and importance of the doctrines and predictions in this book far transcend the utmost graces of expression and imagery. Isaiah has well been denominated the Evangelical Prophet on account of his numerous and full prophecies concerning the advent and character, the ministry and preaching, the sufferings and the death of the Messiah and the extent and permanency of his kingdom.

It has been said that he seems to speak of things past, rather than of events yet future, so that he may be called an evangelist as well as a prophet; and it is most clearly evident that he spake as he was moved by the Holy Ghost; the divine inspiration of these writings is indisputably proved by the numerous citations from them in the New Testament. In eighteen passages the prophet is named, and Macculloch states that he has reckoned 250 where the prophecy seems evidently referred to—either by direct quotation or allusion. The prophets were called seers or seeing men and therefore their prophecies are fitly called visions.

Isaiah saw with the eyes of his mind, and foresaw as clearly by divine revelation; he was as well assured of it, as fully apprised of it, and as much affected with it, as if he had seen it with his bodily eyes. It was what he saw concerning Judah and Jerusalem, the country of the two tribes, and that city which was their metropolis. Jehovah appeals to the whole creation in the controversy betwixt himself and his rebellious people, whom he had brought up with all the care and attention of a parent.

The domestic animals observe the hand whereby they are fed, though the owner seeks only his own interest in his care of them, but God's praise their obligations to him, and lessing people did not know or consider true interests in dependence on him. We owe the continuance of our lives, and comforts, and all our advancements to God's fatherly care of us, and kindness to us. The people of Israel know but their knowledge does them no good because they do not consider what they know; they do not apply it to their case, nor put their minds to it. Even among those that profess themselves God's people many are careless in the things that pertain to their souls' eternal interests. Want of consideration of what we do know in religion does not do us as much harm as ignorance of what we should know. God dwells wickedness was universal. It is ill with a people when their sins become national. The guilt of it, and the curse incurred by that guilt, lay very heavy upon them. They were a seed of evil doers and trod in their fathers' steps. They were themselves not only sinners but tempters; their sins were a daring defiance of God and a departure from him. From the soul of the foot even to the crown of the head, from the meanest peasant to the greatest peer, there is no soundness—nothing but wounds and bruises and sores. While sin remains unrepented of nothing is done towards the healing of the wounds, and the prevention of fatal consequences.

The prophet bewails the judgments of God which they had brought upon themselves by their sins. Their kingdom was almost ruined. Jerusalem itself, which was the daughter of Zion, was now deserted, and exposed, solitary and despised, separated as a besieged city. Their wickedness had become so bad that it would answer no purpose to chastise them any more. God sometimes in a way of righteous judgment ceases to correct those who have been long hardened in sin, and whom therefore he designs to destroy. But the Lord had a small remnant of faithful servants in Jerusalem, and for their sakes he preserved a remnant of the nation, otherwise, as their crimes had equalled, their punishment would have resembled that of Sodom and Gomorrah. It is good for a people that have been saved from their ruin to look back and see how near they were to it, to see how much they owed to a few good men who stood in the gap, and that it was owing to a merciful God who left them these good men. It is of the Lord's mercies that we are not consumed. Man's depravity plainly appears from his resistance to the methods which God takes to bring sinners to repentance, faith and holiness. Let us then seek grace from him to render every means effectual, in proportion to our peculiar advantages, else the gospel of Christ will be of no avail to us. Who can justify himself before God? How justly might the Lord address us as he did Judah of old, when he grew so exceedingly wicked, although under the means of becoming holy.

The evil nature is in every one of us and nothing but Christ and his sanctifying spirit can keep us in the narrow way. Let us then commit our all to his care and keeping. Is it not deserving our serious attention that all the saintly and holy men who were inspired by the spirit of God, both under the Mosaic and Christian dispensation, began their ministrations by a confession of their weakness and imperfections, as Moses and Isaiah, and many others. The men of Sodom were wicked and sinners before the Lord exceedingly.—Gen. 13:13. And so were the men of Judah. God justly refuses to hear their prayers or to accept their services. When sinners are under the judgments of God they will the more easily be led to their devotions than to forsake their sins, and reform their lives. Their country was now desolate, and their cities burnt. This awakened them to bring their sacrifices and offerings, as if they would bribe God to remove the punishment, and give them leave to go on in their sins. Many that will readily part with their sacrifices will not be persuaded to part with their sins. They rely on the mere form as a meritorious service. The most costly devotion of wicked people without thorough reformation of heart and life, cannot be acceptable to God. It is shown here in a great variety of expressions that obedience is better than sacrifice. God did not only reject their offerings but their sacrifices were hateful to him. He is never weary of hearing the praises of those truly penitent, but without a lowly and contrite heart our prayers will remain unanswered. God calls them to repentance and reformation. They must cease to do evil. It is not only sorrow for the sins they had committed, but breaking of the practice. Sin defiles the soul. Then they must learn to do well, and acts of justice and charity are more pleasing to him than all burnt offerings and sacrifices. The prophet's exhortations to the Jews implies the mercy and grace of God through their promised Messiah, by which they might be enabled to do their duties here insisted on. It is plain from this and other passages that the sacrifices of the law could not atone even for outward national crimes. But blessed be God there is a fountain opened, where all may be washed and cleaned from sin and may find pardon and acceptance by Jesus Christ.

We now come to the words of the text. Well then may Jehovah call upon us, as here, upon the Jews of old, to draw near to him that he may reason with us, for all his dispensations are righteous and reasonable.

Yours sincerely,
James Sutherland.

COLORS.

The Kid has gone to the Colors
And we don't know what to say;
The Kid we have loved and cuddled
Stepped out for the Flag to-day.
We thought him a child, a baby,
With never a care at all;
But his country called him man-size,
And the Kid has heard the call.

He paused to watch the recruiting
Where, fired by fife and drum,
He bowed his head to Old Glory
And thought that it whispered "Come!"
The Kid, not being a slacker,
Stood forth with patriot joy,
To add his name to the roster—
And, God! we're proud of the boy!

The Kid has gone to the Colors;
It seems but a little while
Since he drilled a school army
In a truly martial style.
But now he's a man, a soldier,
And we lend him a listening ear;
For his heart is a heart all loyal,
Unscourged by the curse of fear.

His dad, when he told him, shuddered,
His mother—God bless her!—cried;
Yet, blest with a mother nature,
She wept with a mother pride.
But he whose old shoulders straightened
Was granddad—for memory ran
To years when he, too, a youngster,
Was changed by the Flag to a Man!

It wasn't often that the local lawyer went to church, but on one occasion he was dragged there by his wife. She was delayed in the porch by a friend and he entered first.

She arrived just as the curate was reading the opening prayer about the wicked man.

Hurriedly she caught up her prayer book.

"Where are they?' she asked her spouse.

'Er—I don't quite know," he answered, fumbling with the unfamiliar book; "but I don't think they've opened the case for the defence yet!"

JERSEY CLOTHS STILL HOLD SWAY

Silk and Wool Jersey Are Used in Combination

Cool Summer Voiles Appear in Numbers

NEW YORK, May 30—All through the spring, one of the materials that has kept steadily increasing in popularity is wool jersey. It has been used for coats and suits, for one-piece dresses, separate skirts and for mildy blouses. It has been braided, stitched, and even beaded, just like all the other smart materials, embroidery is the latest form of decoration to which jersey has taken.

As summer approaches, there is not the slightest indication that wool jersey is on the wane. But, on the contrary, one seems to see more and more of it every day. On a dress that could not possibly be too warm for summer, it was combined with dotted crepe in the following manner; pink crepe with white polka dots made the waist and sleeves; the waist extended down to the hip line, and from there downward the skirt was of white wool jersey. There was a small yoke of the white jersey at the neck of the dress. This is one of the novel ways in which the popular material is used.

Gold silk jersey has been combined most successfully with gray wool jersey in some suits and dresses, and with dark tan wool jersey in others. This combination of silk and wool jersey is frequently used by the best dressmakers. In some loose-fitting suits, with knee-length coats, the silk is used for the sleeves, sides and back of the coat, and the wool for bands down the front and around the bottom of the coat, as well as for the skirt.

COOL SUMMER VOILES

Cool and refreshing summer voiles in dainty flowered effects are charming for the informal cotton frocks, of which every woman requires several for the distressingly hot days. Now is the time to get them made. The styles are generally simple. Pleated, tucked or gathered skirts combine with the simplest of waists having a little fulness at the shoulders with an attractive collar edged with lace or machine picot edging.

THE NEW MANNISH SHIRTWAIST.

Mannish shirtwaists are growing in favour. Some models of linen are made with finely tucked fronts, like those of a man's shirt. In addition to these tucks, there are little sprays embroidered in colours on some of the waists and turnover collars of pique.

As separate waists and skirts grow more and more important there are always some novelties to be found among them. White tub skirts of cotton gabardine are made with yokes of colored linen, and where the skirt is attached to the yoke there are several rows of machine stitching done in heavy coloured cotton the colour of the yoke.

Choice Recipes

PEANUT COOKIES.

Peanut Cookies—One half cupful of butter, one cupful of milk, one sugar, one-half cupful of milk, one egg, white and yolk beaten seperately, one pint, no more, of flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one heaping cupful of chopped peanuts. Cream, butter and sugar, add milk and egg, part of the flour and baking powder, and lastly, peanuts mixed with the rest of the flour. Handle as little as possible and do not roll very thin, and they will be very delicate and soft.

PUMPKIN PIE.

Peel and cut quite fine one small sugar pumpkin, put on to cook, with as little water as possible. When soft, mash fine until you have one quart of pumpkin, which put in a large basin and add one pint of rich milk, little ginger, stir well until nice and smooth. Add another quart of milk, cream and all, and add sugar until sweet enough, little salt, lastly two well-beaten eggs. Cover two deep plates with a crust made with two cups of flour, one tablespoon lard, and one of butter, teaspoon cream of tartar, and a little soda.

Very delicious if made this way.

TAPIOCA CREAM.

Wash two rounding tablespoonfuls of pearl tapioca in cold water and soak over night in two-thirds of a cupful of cold water or milk. In the morning put into a double boiler with one pint of milk and cook until the tapioca is clear.

Beat the yolks of two eggs thoroughly with one-half cupful of granulated sugar. Pour some of the hot milk and tapioca over the egg mixture, stir until smooth, then pour back into the boiler and cook until done, but do not let it get too thick; a rather thin custard is preferable. Take from the fire and stir in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs, to which a pinch of salt has been added when beating. When cold, flavour with vanilla.

Stirring some of the hot milk into the egg mixture before turning into the boiler, seems to prevent the egg from becoming stringy when cooked.

MEAT BISCUIT ROLLS.

This is my best recipe for using up bits of left over meats. Make a rich baking powder biscuit dought and roll out into a sheet half an inch in thickness. Blend together one cupful of cold cooked beef, one cupful of cooked minced ham (or instead one may used minced breakfast sausage or bacon uncooked) one tablespoonful of prepared mustard, two well-beaten eggs, one grated onion and a little pepper. Spread this over the dough, roll up firmly as for jellyroll and bake about 40 minutes. If the meat paste is too dry add a little soup stock or water, so that it will spread easily. Serve hot with brown gravy or tomato sauce. Delicious with either.

COTTAGE CHEESE.

Use sour milk that has set. Warm it slowly in a double boiler if one is at hand until the whey separates from the curd. Then strain through cheese cloth, chop fine, mix with milk or cream, and season to taste. Be careful not to heat too long or too hot before straining or the curd will be tough.

CORNMEAL MUFFINS.

Sift together one cupful of corn meal, one-half tablespoonful of sugar one cupful of white flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one saltspoon of salt. Beat one egg thoroughly and mix with one and one-half cupfuls of sweet milk, and this too the meal mixture, stirring well together. Stir in a half a tablespoonful of melted butter, and beat to a smooth batter. Fill hot greased muffin pans two-thirds full and bake for thirty minutes in a hot oven.

GREEN ONION PUREE.

This is an appetizing soup, and one that has food value. Wash and cut very fine two bunches of green onions. Put them on with three cups of water and cook until they are very soft, then rub through a fine sieve. With two cupfuls of the green onion pulp, place in a saucepan two tablespoons of butter, four tablespoons of flour, and one cupful of milk. Blend together, bring to the boiling point, then cook for three minutes. Season with salt and paprika. Serve with small triangles of toast.

SCALLOPED MEAT.

Two cupfuls meat, three tablespoons fat, three tablespoonful flour one and one-half cupfuls hot stock, one and one-half teaspoonfuls salt, a dusting of pepper, a few drops of onion juice, two cupfuls bread crumbs. Put one-half of the bread crumbs in the bottom of a buttered baking dish, mix with the meat and sauce made of the other ingredients, then cover with the remainder of the bread crumbs and brown in a hot oven for about twenty minutes.

BEATEN BREAD.

Two cupfuls milk or water, one tablespoonful fat, two teaspoonfuls salt, two teaspoonfuls sugar, one-half yeast cake and flour. Put the water or milk, sugar, salt and fat into a bowl. Dissolve the yeast in a half cupful of luke-warm water, then add it to the first mixture. Next add enough flour to make a batter. Beat until the flour is thoroughly mixed. Allow this sponge to rise, then add flour to bake a stiff dough. Beat well for five minutes. Place in pans and when it has risen to double its bulk, bake it in a moderate oven.

BAKED BREAD PUDDING.

Bread pudding is not a dessert which the family clamors for, but it can be made very nice as well as at small expense. Break up two cupfuls of stale bread and soak in two cupfuls of cold water till the bread is soft. Drain off any water left, and press the bread dry, then add half a cupful of milk and mix to a soft mush. Add one-third cupful sugar, two eggs beaten, and half a cupful of raisins and currants. Bake in a buttered pudding dish for about half an hour, or until firm. Serve with a fruit sauce.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S HOUSE DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

It is during the busy hours that the supreme test of a woman's charm occurs, so if you want to come out with flying colors see to it that your house dress does you full justice. Of course, you will make it yourself, for you will then have the color that is becoming and the little detail touches that express you.

For appearance and service it is our opinion that the design illustrated under No. 8,173 stands out as one of merit and you will no doubt agree with us. The waist is on the style of the plain shirt waist and slightly gathered where it joins a three gore skirt, the fulness of which is gathered under a belt of contrasting goods that is stitched on at the joining. A sailor collar finishing the V neck may be of the dress material or in contrasting note and long or short sleeves may be chosen. Some women prefer to have detachable collars for such dresses. The pocket stitched to either side of the skirt is a convenience and an added attraction, especially if in contrasting color.

Linen, gingham, percale in striped or figured effect and lawn are among the favored fabrics for developing. One need not be clever with the needle to reproduce this design, for its lines are the simplest.

To make in size 36 requires 4¾ yards 36 inch material, with ¾ yard 36 inch contrasting.

To obtain the pattern, send 10 cents to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

Address—The Examiner Pattern Service, The Examiner, Peterborough.

THE HOUSE AND GROUNDS

Attractive House Closes Contest

Cozy and homelike is this little home which has been built in Peekskill, N. Y., and which can be put up for about $5,000. It is unusually compact and very well arranged, with seven rooms, an attic and all conveniences.

This is a type of house that will be found well adapted to suburbs where the builder has only a limited plot of land and must keep down expenses, yet desires to have an artistic and comfortable home.

A summary of the cost of the various kinds of work entering into its construction is furnished by the architect.

Excavating	$70
Roofs	223
Masonry	350
Carpentry	1,600
Painting	250
Plastering	440
Plumbing	280
Tiling	75
Heating	255
Wiring	102
Fixtures	105
Hardware	73
Shades	48
Sidewalks	50
Total	$4,029

This is the last of the series of small houses entered in the Prize Competition of the New York Herald and this newspaper to be published until after the prizes have been awarded. When this has been done the $300 first plans and those which were awarded the $200 second prize will be published on consecutive Sundays.

The judges of the competition are Mr. Russell F. Whitehead, formerly editor of the Brickbuilder and of the Architectural Record and later editor of the White Pine Monographs; Mr. Richard F. Bach, curator of the School of Architecture, Columbia University, and Mr. Lewis Colt Albro, a prominent practising architect of New York city.

PUMPKINS AND CORN.

If you have a sufficiently large garden you simply have to grow corn. Straight from the stalk to the pot it is one of the most delicious vegetables. You can have all you want green, and you can have it canned for winter use.

It is one of those plants which likes a warm sunny position and the kernels should not be planted till the ground is warm enough to suit it. You can plant nicely the same time as you put in the first planting of beans, about May 15. It is a heavy feeder and takes a lot of space, so is not the thing for a small garden.

Soil.—Being a heavy feeder it requires rich soil, so use all the manure you have available for it. A light soil is best, so if your garden is clay use sand or coal ash to lighten it.

Planting.—There are two methods of planting. The usual one is to plant in hills about three or three and a half feet apart each way, allowing five plants to remain in each hill. Or you can plant in rows, seeds eight inches apart in rows, the rows being three to four feet apart. It is better to have the corn patch square rather than in long rows.

Plant the seeds two inches deep for early, three inches for the late varieties. The young plants should show in 5 to 8 days.

Succession.—For succession better plant two varieties, an early and a late.

Cultivation.—This is very necessary in growing corn. Hoe up the earth around the growing plants as soon as they are six inches high, and keep the ground well loosened with the hoe all through the season, drawing the earth higher up about the plants as they increase in height. If the season is dry see that they get good watering with the hose.

PUMPKINS.

If you have a good sized plot given up to corn, you can save space by planting pumpkins or squash in between the hills or rows. But do not plant both. If you do they will cross and the fruit will be neither one nor the other. They should be grown in different parts of the garden.

When you are preparing the ground for corn make a couple of hills, well manured, in the centre of the corn patch, and six to eight feet apart. The soil cannot be too rich, as the plant needs a lot of food to supply all the vegetation it has. The seeds should not be planted till middle of May, same time as you plant the corn.

The seeds of either vegetable should be planted half an inch deep, putting half a dozen to the hill, and leaving the three healthiest plants to mature.

Careful cultivation is needed and watering should be done frequently if the season is dry.

Do not plant either pumpkins or squash too soon as the vines are very susceptible to even a slight touch of frost.

Potatoes. — Secure potatoes of about medium size. Cut these potatoes so there are at least two eyes in each piece or set. Do not dig very much fresh manure into the soil where these are to be planted and do not let any come into contact with the set. With the hoe make furrows 2 feet apart and about 6 inches deep. Place the sets 12 inches apart in the bottom of this furrow and cover with 2 inches of soil. The soil should be cultivated thoroughly to destroy the weeds and as the tops grow the soil should be gradually drawn up to the tops in sufficient quantities so that the growing tubers will not be exposed to the sunlight and turn green.

SO scarce are the workers in the agricultural field that even little children should be asked to do their bit. It may not seem to count for very much, but in the aggregate it will count for a great deal. That is only one of the reasons why the children should help in producing vegetables. They can be made to feel a real responsibility for doing their share. They can also begin a garden education which will be of future use to them, physically, mentally and economically.

Children will not only be willing to work in the garden if they are properly approached, but they will show great enthusiasm. Let each child have a piece of land that is wholly his to till, or some part of the big work for which he alone is responsible. He will work hard and keep it up if his pride is aroused to show what he can grow.

If you let the child have a garden of his own, be careful that it is not too large for him to take care of. If it is he will get discouraged or will be unable to get good results. Do not let him use tools that are too heavy for his strength or too light to be effective. There is a medium sized set made for ladies, but which are equally good for children.

In using the spading fork the child should drive it far down, but if the soil is too heavy he may need the help of a stronger person in this part of his gardening operations. Every time the soil is forked over it should be broken up fine. The child may be interested in the reasons for having the soil fine far below the surface so that the roots can go down easily for their food and the moisture find its way down from the surface and up through the subsoil.

Explain to them why the soil needs humus to make it porous or to hold the moisture and to unlock the chemicals in the soil for plant food. Then they will spread it over their gardens and fork it in with interest and determination. Next, let them rake the bed smooth and level.

With the garden bed all smoothed off nice and level and fine, the stretching of a line for straight rows and the planting of the seeds in furrows will be great fun. It should be impressed upon the children that after planting the seeds like covering them the soil should be pressed down firmly.

It will be hard to wait for the seeds to come up. When they do appear it will usually be found that they have been sowed too thick and will have to be thinned out to give the strong ones room to grow to maturity.

Cultivation as soon as the plants are large enough may be done with the hoe or with a small cultivator, which it is easy to run between the rows. This will not only keep the weeds down but will prevent the moisture from escaping.

For Amateurs Who Are Patriotically Helping Out The Food Supply

WHEAT, potatoes, beans—these are the three crops that Americans will want to strain their minds and muscles to produce this year, and the easiest of all is beans.

Green string beans are all very well, they will help out the summer supply of food, but it is the beans that will keep over winter that are most important. For this purpose plant beans that may be dried and stored for the months when nothing can be grown.

Although beans are easy to grow by comparison with some other vegetables, yet those who have never tried to grow them will do well to take counsel with the experienced.

Advice given by Mr. H. B. Fullerton, Director of Agricultural Development, to the chief of a body of Boy Scouts who are trying to increase the supply of food by cultivating some Long Island land is good for others who are trying to do something of the kind.

"Get your ground deeply dug," he says. "Throw on eight hundred to one thousand pounds of hydrated or agricultural lime or slacked lime, all being the same except in name. Don't use limestone, it is too slow in action. Have this scattered over the ground and rake it or harrow it thoroughly. If your soil has been well harrowed after ploughing your seed bed is now ready.

"If you are going to use a horse, plant in rows not over three feet apart—and thirty inches is better, as far as yield is concerned—if your dogs or boys have a well broken team and know how to handle it. If you are going to work with hand tools, cut this down to one foot between rows. This is enough for the beans, but as it is close quarters for the average American, better make it eighteen inches between rows for safety.

"I would advise you to at once invest in a combination seeder and cultivator. As I remember, the price runs from $11 to $13. It is a remarkably valuable instrument, the first one to be used by the whole community. It not only expedites planting, but puts the bean just where it belongs, say, an inch in depth, and besides that drops it in the proper place and at the right distance apart, which successful bean growers say is from four inches to even as great as eight. About six inches is all right, and good crops are raised at both the other distances apart in the row.

"As soon as these beans come out of the ground spray them with Bordeaux mixture; or, better still, a combination of blight preventer and bug destroyer. The cheapest way to buy it is in small bags, which your seed trade can sell or otherwise distribute. Our surplus to the nearest agricultural friends who will, as is normal with humankind, have their larder unfilled and be unready." Directions for mixing any Bordeaux or spray are found on the container.

"Cultivation should start as soon as the beans come up. Better still, before the beans come up, which you can accomplish by planting, after you have planted the beans, radishes, as these germinate quickly and show the rows. Incidentally you can sell and eat the radishes, for they will be ready before the beans require the space. This cultivation should be done as often as possible. Every day means a bigger crop than every other day of stronger, healthier and far more vigorous growth of beans to the plant.

"You want to spray every ten days with scientific care and thoroughness for not less than five times. This will probably do the trick. Don't spray when the plant is wet with dew or when you have a dull, moist day, and never allow any one even to go into the bean patch when the leaves are wet and the air is full of moisture, for anthracnose and other blights are mighty easily started in beans, and they are very susceptible when the foliage is soft and the pores are open during moist periods.

"When your crop is matured, as shown by the leaves, the whole patch, if a large one, can be cut down with a reaper or a mower or a scythe, raked together, thrown into a wagon, or, better still, stuffed into bags, and then they can be threshed with any of the numerous seed threshers, or can be done by thrashing in the sack by use of two old spokes, barrel staves, tennis racquets, golf sticks or other unused clubs, including the baseball bat or croquet mallet, or they can be spread on an old sail, blanket, &c., on the barn floor, and can be threshed by the old fashioned flail, which is a short club made fast to a long stick with about four inches of free play in the clothesline or other connecting link.

"The beans should then be run through a fanning mill or one of the regular seed cleaners, packed into storage, and the Food Committee, in charge of Mr. George W. Perkins, will pay you the full market price for every bean not needed for your own community.

"If you cannot get enough pea beans don't hesitate to obtain the Brazilian or South American Mexico bean and a similar bean in flavor and in yield than our better known to Americans—white bean.

"The navy or pea bean always sells well and is a good standby for winter use, but the white kidney and white marrow, the red kidney and the lima beans may all be used as winter food. In the Middle West they plant the corn's rear beans among the corn, instead of supplying poles for them to climb on. This bean is rich and well flavored.

"Soy beans have been used to fertilize the soil and as food for cattle, but they are now being urged for the home garden. They will not grow, however, except in soil that has been inoculated—that is, has had soil in which soy beans have been grown applied to it. This can be bought from seedsmen, and a little goes a long way.

"If you can get the soil, mix it with a half pint of soil and plant two or three inches apart. Beans may be sown for successive crops up to August 1. When the beans are barely ripe [illegible] pattern, the [illegible] They will shell more easily [illegible] losing water. They [illegible] as peas are."

Help the War With a Garden

"WAR has now made the planting of food gardens an imperative obligation upon every American citizen who has access to land, no matter how restricted its area. The man, woman or child who allows any soil fertility or available labor to go to waste this year deserves the opprobrium that goes to the military slacker. We are perhaps approaching the time when we must adopt meatless days, either voluntarily or by governmental fiat. Let us see to it that the food substitutes for meat are produced independently of the farms by a great host of home gardeners. Because it is late in the season do not neglect to plant a garden for that reason; prolific gardens may be seeded until July. Plant a garden now and help win the war."—CHARLES LATHROP PACK, President National Emergency Food Garden Commission.

Cucumbers and Squashes

AS usually grown, cucumbers are planted in hills, four or six feet apart, and allowed to spread out along the ground. When you have plenty of space in a garden this method will do right, but in small gardens cucumbers should not be grown at all unless they are to be trained upon poles or trellis, allowing much closer planting.

When they are trained to climb the vines may be fifteen or eighteen inches apart. A useful method is to plant them on the south side of the garden fence, so that the vines may grow up the palings to the top of the fence. In training the vines tie them with soft cotton yarn, taking care not to injure the vines, and if large slicing cucumbers are grown it may be necessary to support the fruits with loops of tape.

Since cucumbers thrive in rich soil, a suggested method is to plant them around a leaky barrel, training them up the sides. In the barrel should be placed two bushels of manure and water should be frequently poured into the barrel. Leaking out it will fertilize the plants around the bottom.

Cucumbers must not be planted until after danger of frost, and the planting may continue up to July. Plant the seeds rather deeply—one to two inches—and thick enough so as to have strong plants after thinning to the required distance. They need frequent cultivation. For pickles the cucumbers are picked when under four inches long. For slicing they may be allowed to grow eight to ten inches long. Never allow a cucumber to ripen, for the vine will quit bearing.

But where climbing cucumbers are set fifteen inches apart the squash vines should not be planted closer together than one every three feet. When squashes of the bushy varieties are thus trained to climb up fences, walls or even clotheslines the fruits should be supported with loops of tape or cloth.

There are two types of squashes—summer and winter. Summer squashes are small and are eaten green when the seeds are soft. The larger winter squashes grow to full maturity and may be stored. Summer squashes are bushy and need less space than the winter variety. When the vines are allowed to run along the ground they may be planted in hills four feet apart, whereas the hills of winter vines should be planted eight to ten feet apart.

Three or four squash vines will support a family. When vines are allowed to run it is well to throw a spadeful of earth over each vine every three or four feet at a leaf joint. Where it is thus covered it will put out roots, offsetting any injury to the vine near the main root. Seeds should be planted after all danger of frost, covering them with an inch or two of earth.

A Warning

WARNINGS have been issued to housewives not to buy veal, lamb, spring chicken or the young of any animal for the table, and the warning should be laid to heart also by those who eat in hotels and restaurants.

Live stock is at low ebb and it takes a long time to increase the supply. It is therefore poor economy, and in the present circumstances wicked waste to kill the immature and light weight animals when there would be a tremendous gain by letting them develop and grow to full size.

Veal is a poor meat in any case. It is delicate, but low in nutritive value and difficult of digestion. Mutton should be eaten more generally than it is in this country. Abroad it is almost as much of a staple as beef and is excellent. Spring chicken it is hard to pass by, but it is one of the luxuries that we are called upon to sacrifice.

Root Crops

IN the long look ahead which Americans are being urged to take a careful management of what we have in hand and an energetic, persistent endeavor to increase our stores and to provide for the future is the programme which is being urged by the farsighted and acted upon by the wise.

The first tendency of the garden novice is to plant vegetables that will yield quickly crops that may be eaten at once, but the root crops that may be stored for the winter should have a place in every garden of any size. If you have no place to store them in the autumn you can sell them or give to those who are in need.

Potatoes are a crop to themselves and the general gardener will do little with them. There are many root crops which can be advantageously raised and used next winter. Turnips, carrots and beets are all easily grown and are substantial winter vegetables. Late cabbage may be kept over for several months if properly stored for. Salsify or vegetable oyster is a little grown vegetable, but one that helps to vary the monotony of the winter menu agreeably. The seed should be sown at once in drills one foot apart and one inch deep and the young plants thinned out to four inches.

Parsnips are considered a wholesome winter and spring vegetable. Seeds should be sown now in drills fifteen inches apart and covered to a depth of one-half inch. Some of them may be left in the ground in the autumn, as frost is said to improve their quality.

Onions—require a small, drained, rich, loamy soil. They are, of course, one of the most [illegible]

Lantic Sugar

Has Nothing to Hide

Now that the Government has absolutely prohibited the use of any artificial coloring matter in sugar,

We tell you again that we have

NEVER USED BEETS
NEVER USED ULTRAMARINE BLUE
NEVER USED ANILINE DYES
NEVER USED VEGETABLE DYES

in refining any of our Sugars.

The Lantic Pure Cane Sugar you buy today is exactly the same high quality as what you bought when our refinery started two years ago. This means every pound in the hands of your grocer is pure and uncolored.

So why take chances? Why not insist on having Lantic—the Sugars that have always been pure—and cost no more than any other?

You should exercise the same care and discrimination in buying sugar as in choosing any other food.

The way to guard against inferior quality is to demand Lantic Pure Cane Sugar which is guaranteed pure and wholesome.

Lantic Sugar has nothing to hide. It comes from the most modern refinery in the world. So great is the demand for Lantic Sugar that we are now refining over three quarters of a million pounds a day.

This shows what the people of Canada—and particularly those who want pure food—think of this absolutely pure food product.

The Standard of Lantic Sugar is now the Standard of Canada

War Hades For Commuter With 2 Hun Servants

GERTRUDE, PRIZE COOK, WAS A HOT STRATEGIST—SO WAS EMMA.

FLUSHING, L. I. — Agreement with General Sherman's well known characterization of war was expressed by Harry Alexander, head of an engineering firm with offices at 18 West Thirty-Fourth street, and who has a country home at Great Neck, after he had received a summons to appear before Justice of the Peace Hayden.

Mr. Alexander is accused by Gertrude Steffenhagen, formerly his cook, and Emma Hept, a one time maid, of having struck them with his fist and then pushed them from the Alexander premises. Mr. Alexander denied striking them but admitted that he had ordered them from his premises on April 23 last.

Trouble in the once well conducted Alexander household began with the European war. Mr. Alexander, who is a veteran of the war with Spain, and a member of the naval reserve, became greatly interested recently in the campaign to stimulate recruiting for the United States army. He had his several automobiles decorated with flags and patriotic posters. The arrival of the first of the decorated cars at Great Neck apparently caused a decided flurry in the Alexander kitchen.

Gertrude is from Berlin and Emma is a native of Hungary. They had had their minor differences regarding the conduct of the war, Mr. Alexander said, going so far as to overturn the dining room table in one of their discussions of Teutonic strategy. There was no such divided opinion when the automobile appeared, Mr. Alexander said, and the two employees asked the gardener to remove the decorations at once.

The following day Mrs. Alexander went to New York for other servants. Mr. Alexander on his return at night learned that Gertrude had ceased to perform the active functions of cook. Mr. Alexander stated that Gertrude met his remonstrances with a remark derogatory to the president and that Emma added an equally slurring gibe at the American flag. It was then he said, that he ordered them from the house.

The tragic side of the affair was found in Mr. Alexander's statement that Gertrude was a treasure among cooks until the Prussians invaded Belgium. He added that he had come to the regretful conclusion that kuchen and kultur formed an incompatible mixture.

PUBLIC OPINION

AMERICA'S MISSION TO RUSSIA

(Boston News Bureau)

Our mission to Russia will call for prestige, wisdom and tact. It will have the errand of teaching, encouraging and sustaining—a very varied diplomatic and business role. No American, particularly as regards reputation abroad, could be found so available as Root for this task of constructively guiding the stumbling steps of the new republic, as the many achievements of exposition and organization in his long career have proved. Russia is given the best possible guide philosopher and friend to help solve the problems within and beyond her borders.

That the new provisional government should have encountered difficulties after the amazingly dramatic feat of the revolution was highly natural. Every form of Teuton intrigue has as naturally conspired to accentuate these.

SLACKER WHO MADE GOOD.

(London Chronicle).

G. B. tells the story—and it is only one out of very many—how one slacker has made good. "This particular young man," he writes, "was a magnificent fellow, physically, the very type of a soldier; but for the first eighteen months of the war he refused point-blank to enlist. He turned a deaf ear to all appeals to his manhood and patriotism, to abuse and to scorn. He did not seem ashamed to be known as the champion slacker of the town; and it was only when conscription laid its hand on him, and he was compelled to go, that he joined the army. And yet this man, who was branded to the world as a coward, has proved himself a hero. Before he had been a week at the front he had won the D.C.M. by an act of the most reckless bravery. This feat was followed by many others; and presently news came that he had been shot through the heart while trying to rescue a wounded friend in No Man's Land."

ARTHUR JAMES BALFOUR.

(Sydney Brooks, in N. Y. Tribune)

More perhaps, than any British politician since Charles James Fox, Mr. Balfour has charm, [illegible] and indisputable ascendancy over the Conservative party which he exercised in spite of many patent defects of leadership was at bottom a triumph of personality.

He had, of course, many other assets—a great social position and connections—one may think of him as the finest type of the British governing class—a long and intimate experience of parliamentary life and business, a noble gift of debate, a flashing, luminous, versatile mind. But what has made and kept him the most warmly liked member of the whole house is the man himself and the extraordinary sweetness and sympathy of his nature. He has endeared himself to both sides of the most critical chamber in the world by a hundred bonds of real, personal affection.

Gladstone loved him as a son. His perfect courtesy to opponents, those little touches of chivalry that count for so much in an excitable and disputatious assembly, his disdain for mere personalities and the instant elevation of tone that his disdain engenders, have done more even than his gifts of mind and speech to establish him in the first place in the sentiments not only of his own party, but of the whole house. If he was not a great party leader, he was and is an irresistible critic, a fine intellect, a fascinating character and a great gentleman.

THE BLESSING OF A HEALTHY BODY

Has Not Had An Hour's Sickness Since Taking "FRUIT-A-TIVES".

MR. MARRIOTT.

73 Lees Ave., Ottawa, Ont., August 9th, 1916.

"I think it my duty to tell you what "Fruit-a-tives" has done for me. Three years ago, I began to feel run-down and tired, and suffered very much from Liver and Kidney Trouble. Having read of "Fruit-a-tives", I thought I would try them. The result was surprising. During the 3½ years past, I have taken them regularly and would not change for anything. I have not had an hour's sickness since I commenced using "Fruit-a-tives", and I know now what I haven't known for a good many years—that is, the blessing of a healthy body and clear thinking brain".

The Value of Manure From Twenty-four Steers

The manure from twenty-four steers averaging in weight close to 1,000 pounds each and running loose in two box stalls at the Experimental Station, Kentville, N.S., covering a period of 120 days, or four months, weighed 112 tons, 640 pounds. The average for each day was 1872 pounds or 78 pounds per steer. Straw bedding amounting to 10 pounds per steer per day was used and all liquids as well as the solids were saved.

Chemists tell us that this fresh manure from fairly well-fed steers contains in each ton 7 3-4 pounds nitrogen, 3 1-2 pounds of phosphoric acid and 9 pounds of potash. When buying commercial fertiliser we pay 25 cents per pound for nitrogen, and 7 to 8 cents for phosphoric acid. Potash cannot be bought at any price, but in order to get at a fair valuation for the manure we should allow at least 5 cents per pound, the price of potash before the war.

PRICE PER TON.

At the valuation of $3.63 per ton, 112 tons, 640 pounds would be worth $396.40, or $12.31 per steer, a little over $3.00 per steer per month. Considering that potash will each year become a greater factor in economical agricultural production, the value is even greater than that given above.

Nothing has been allowed in the above calculation for the value of the humus. It is estibated that the humus value of manures is 50 to 100 per cent. of the value of the chemical ingredients, depending upon the soil of which the manure is used and the manner of application.

It is a well-known fact that half of the total value of the excrement from live stock is in the urine. If the liquid part is allowed to drain away through holes in the stable floor or otherwise, over one-half of the value of the manure will be lost, therefore, every effort should be made to conserve all the excrement voided by animals.

The water retained after twenty-four hours by 100 pounds of material used for absorbents in the stable is estimated to be as follows:—

Hurrah! How's This

Hospital records show that every time you cut a corn you invite lockjaw or blood poison, which is needless, says a Cincinnati authority who tells you that a quarter ounce of a drug called freezone can be obtained at little cost from the drug store but is sufficient to rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or callus.

You simply apply a few drops of freezone on a tender, aching corn and soreness is instantly relieved. Shortly the entire corn can be lifted out, root and all, without pain.

This drug is sticky but dries at once and is claimed to just shrivel up any corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin.

If your wife wears high heels she will be glad to know of this.

BARBWIRE USED IN WAR 30,000 MILES IN LENGTH

American Steel Export Company Has Sold More Than 12,000 Tons to the Allies.

NEW YORK, May 31.—The American Steel Export company announces that its shipments of barb wire to the allied armies total more than 12,000 tons, which, if stretched into a single line, would extend 30,000 miles. The shipments have been in progress ever since trench warfare was first undertaken on a big scale in France and Russia.

"The product is not the ordinary barb wire," says the Company, "but a special military type, very heavy, and strong, with great four-pointed barbs and painted the grim olive drab of war. The wire is made up in different ways, sometimes coiled in a special manner and held by a single strand, so that it might be tossed bodily out in front of a trench and the binding strand severed, allowing the whole coil to burst open and unwind like a great clock spring, covering the front of the trench with a tangled mass impenetrable to attacking troops.

"On other occasions, when time permitted the barb wire has been woven into wonderful and intricate defensive works laid out on exact geometric lines. They offer the greatest possible obstructions to advancing troops, and yet allow egress for the troops in the trenches when it comes their turn to advance."

Great quantities of high-carbon sheet steel plates have been shipped from this country to Europe to be made into helmets. The company estimates that fully 12,000,000 of these head coverings have been stamped out in factories of England and France since the allied armies began to wear them, and production is increasing, in order to equip new forces and replace the helmets lost in charges on the western front.

"Bobbie, your face wants washing. Did you look at it in the glass this morning?" "No, mother, but it seemed all right when I felt it."

NEPONSET TWIN SHINGLES

DID you ever see a big fire, where burning embers falling on wooden shingles set other houses alight? Neponset Twin Shingles absolutely resist fire, and cost little more to lay than wooden shingles.

Studebaker

The Studebaker Car
As to Value

OVER 800,000 Studebakers in actual service in every part of the world have contributed experience to the perfecting of the Series 18 Studebaker Car.

Studebaker maintains what are probably the most complete laboratories in the automobile industry for the development and the proving of materials used in Canadian-built Studebaker cars.

Studebaker workmanship is experienced, painstaking and carefully supervised.

All this means QUALITY.

Studebaker is one of the largest manufacturers of automobiles in the Dominion.

Studebaker gives you the benefits of all economies made possible by great resources.

Studebaker turns to your advantage all savings made possible by the development of steadily improved manufacturing methods and by the installation of the latest and best labor saving machinery.

This means ECONOMY.

Furthermore, Studebaker has concentrated on the development of a single basic chassis design.

The entire attention of Studebaker's highly efficient engineering department has been focussed on the perfection of this one design.

This means still higher quality and still greater economy.

These are the reasons why Studebaker is able to produce so good a car at so low a price.

If real economy is your consideration—if you want to get the most for your money—investigate Studebaker before you buy.

MAKES WOODEN LEGS HAS LOST HIS OWN

Kansas City Man Turned to Artificial Trade as Result of Accident.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 31. — A verdict against the Kansas City Railways company of $24,115 has been awarded in Judge Porterfield's division of the Circuit court to Harry Morris, manufacturer of wooden legs. Morris lost his own left leg when he fell under a Troost avenue trailer, Jan. 15, 1916.

Ten years before that Morris had lost his right leg in a railroad accident while working as a brakeman. After the first accident he failed to find a satisfactory false leg and turned his attention to devising one for himself.

He waited a wooden leg, and patented it. He then formed a partnership with J. C. Collins, a one legged man, and they prospered in the manufacture and sale of wooden legs until now they employ fifteen men in their factory. All of the employes are one legged man.

When Morris was taken from under the street car and it was learned that his good leg had been crushed, he smiled and said:

"Well, I guess I can make another one."

There was proof that he had done so, when he walked around the courtroom on two false legs this morning.

FROM THE TRENCHES.

Trench life has so far affected our ideas of things in general that it has made it possible to repeat stories that three years ago would have gone to waste. One of them comes to me thus:

"A man in my platoon the other day felt something biting the back of his neck. He bent down and grabbed the beast; and while he was stooping a shell passed over which would have taken his head off if it had been in its normal position. 'You little blighter,' he said to the—well, the assailant—'I can't give you the D.S.O., but I'll just put you back ag. in.' And he did!"—Westminster Gazette.

RECIPES WORTH KEEPING AT HAND.

Indian Pudding.

One cup fine crumbs, one quart skim milk, one-third cup sugar, two tablespoons melted butter or other fat, one-quarter cup molasses, one-quarter teaspoon ginger, one-quarter teaspoon cloves, one-quarter teaspoon cinnamon. Scald crumbs in milk, and other ingredients and bake one half hour in slow oven. This pudding may be made with any kind of bread crumbs, but it furnishes especially good means of using up stale corn bread.

Cold Meat Sandwiches.

Appetizing sandwiches may be made from leftover meats that are ideal for luncheon. Sunday night supper or picnics. Take two cups of cold boned chicken and a half a cup of cold boiled ham, cut these into small pieces in a chopping bowl, then mix one teaspoonful of curry paste with one-half cupful of white sauce in a saucepan over the fire. When it boils mix into it the ham and chicken, take it from the fire and let cool. Cut some thin slices of bread and butter it. Spread the mixture of chopped meat and sauce evenly over one-half the number of bread slices, and one the meat place sprigs of watercress or lettuce leaves; then cover with another slice of bread, pressing the two slices firmly together. Garnish with olives.

Escaped Forger Must Again Face Trial in Canada

George Ruthven, alias George Benson, who escaped from the county jail in January last, will be extradited from Detroit to Canada, an order to that effect having been issued in the border city yesterday. Ruthven was willing to wave extradition, but the commissioner would not permit it.

Crown Attorney J. B. McKillop conducted the case on behalf of the provincial authorities, who instituted the extradition proceedings two weeks ago. Detective Robert Egelton gave evidence at the hearing which was held at the Federal Buildings, Detroit, before Extradition Commissioner James D. Wilcox.

Ruthven is confined in the Wayne County jail, where he will remain until the final order for his removal is received from Washington. It is expected that ten days or two weeks will elapse before he is returned to Canada. He was awaiting transfer from the county jail to Kingston Penitentiary to serve a two-year term for forgery and desertion when he made his successful break for liberty. He was in charge of Turnkey Sproule, who had sent him to the storeroom for a pail. He saw the open stairway leading up to the main floor and was away like a flash. He was captured some weeks later in Detroit on information furnished by the local detective department. He will be brought to this city, and will be transferred to Kingston to serve his term.

Home Health Club

By Dr. David H. Reeder

Are you helping? It is staring at us from the pages of every daily weekly and monthly newspaper and magazine, this question of food. To a world shortage in production has been added the deliberate destruction of war. The people of America have revelled in abundance for many years. We have educated the working producing people up to the idea that there is always an abundance of food. Frequently the price is put upward by manipulation, but the supply is always there, why economise?

Carefully gathered facts show that in the city of Chicago alone fully 1,250,000 pounds of food goes into the garbage cans daily. Instead of an asset in the way of feed for poultry or pigs it is a liability and costs several thousand dollars each day in order to haul it away and destroy it. On the farms the waste from kitchen is practically nothing as that which is not eaten at the table when freshly served is given to the chickens and the pigs; thus it intimately comes back to the table.

Three-fourths of a pound of food for each person in the large cities is the average amount of food that has been actually wasted, destroyed at an expense to the taxpayers. Are you making any effort to save food? Thousands of people in Europe are starving to death while we throw away the precious food that would save them. Let me tell you of just a few ways in which you can supply the necessary sustenance for your daily needs and be much better off physically than you were before.

When preparing radishes for the table, wash them very thoroughly, and leave about one inch of the top on the root. Eat all of it. There is an added flavor and a special benefit in the tender top that you do not get in the root. It will be more easily digested and helps to furnish the necessary bulk. In preparing raw young onions leave at least one-third of the top on the onion and eat all of it. Do not use any finely bolted white flour but demand the finely-ground whole wheat flour, and if you cannot get that use corn meal.

At the present time there is a big strike on in Chicago among the employers of the big commercial bakeries. It is said that they make and sell over one million loaves of white bread daily. If this strike forces the housewives to go back to the old-fashioned method of baking the bread for her family the strike will be the greatest blessing that has come to Chicago for many years. I advise every family to have a small hand power mill in which may ground wheat, corn, rye or barley meal, and that the bread for at least two of the daily meals be made from this meal. The health of your family will be greatly improved and the cost of the bread greatly reduced. You can make your own cereal breakfast food for less than one-fourth what you pay for that sold in packages. After you have used the grinder for a few weeks try grinding up a pound of popped or parched corn and eat it with cream and sugar the same as you have been eating toasted corn flakes. You will not only find it delicious but the cost is so small you will readily understand why the big cereal manufacturers have become multi-millionaires.

Here is a simple and safe remedy for whooping cough that was communicated by T. Mark Rowell of Louisville to the British Medical Journal, for July. "Peel the cloves of garlic, cut them into thin slices, and wear them under the soles of the feet between two pairs of socks (if placed next to the skin the pressure produced by walking is apt to cause irritation.) The garlic can usually be smelt in the breath within half an hour after the slices have begun to be worn and the whoop and spasm usually disappear within 48 hours. The garlic should be worn for a week or 10 days or longer according to the severity of the case. Among the French Canadians onions are used in exactly the same way. Garlic may also be administered by eating it as a form of bread sauce, made by chopping up the peeled cloves, boiling them in milk and mixing them with bread crumbs.

CLUB NOTES.

I will gladly answer all inquiries for information on health subjects from all readers of this publication, if the same are addressed to Home Health Club, 5639 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago, Ill. Send full name and address with 4 cents in postage.

Dear Doctor: I am 55 years old, of dark hair and complexion, rather small in stature and thin in flesh, of the wiry kind; have always worked hard, scarcely ever been sick, yet never feel quite well. Am a farmer and married. I wish that you would mark out a rule of living as to habits, also dietary course, that I may maintain perfect health, do the most work without injury to the health, live the longest, etc. One physician has told me to eat no breakfast but to take a teaspoonful of pure olive oil and also one of lemon juice, then work until noon, eat a good dinner, and then a light supper. What is your advice? J. S.

Answer: There are thousands of people situated in the same way as you. They claim that they are rarely sick but at the same time they never feel well. They may be thin in flesh the same as you and possess the hungry look which Shakespeare attributes to Cassius. This is due to the inability of the organs of the alimentary canal to properly digest and assimilate the food. You may have a good appetite and eat plenty of good nourishing food; still it is not likely that you will ever become fleshier because you have never eaten the food in the proper way. You may have chewed it well as you thought, but not sufficiently. You have allowed it to pass down into your stomach without being dissolved in the mouth by the saliva. You have been in too much of a hurry.

In order to write out a course of diet that will help you to maintain health and strength I have to know more of yourself and your personal characteristics. If you had the Club books, which are systematic and give extensive instructions regarding the matter of regaining health and preserving it, you could work out for yourself the measures that would benefit you most and enable you to regain what you desire. In order to gain flesh and strength as well as to preserve it, it is necessary for you first to chew the food well and to adopt a diet that will not only make you temporarily well but permanently so. The directions given in the Home Health Club books, Vols. I and VI. would be of much help. Olive oil is excellent and I think that you would be wise to use it in tablespoonful doses twice daily. This will have a good influence on all the organs of the alimentary canal. I approve of the "no breakfast" plan in many cases, not all. An orange or perhaps a small dish of stewed prunes for breakfast is sufficient for any man. This should be followed at noon with a generous dinner of well prepared foods, but not those that are very difficult to digest. You should tell your height, weight and bodily measurements as well as what you have been in the habit of eating, and how. I would then be able to give you further directions regarding what to do in order to accomplish your purpose.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Policeman's Life Is Not a Happy One

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

"My son," began the officer as we walked his beat together, "when you see a patrolman sauntering along the street and swinging his club you think to yourself how easy he earns his money. It is not so easy when you come to understand everything. I may not make an arrest once in two weeks of an offender against the law, but I am busy all the time, and you shall hear about it.

"In the first place it seems to me that four out of five families have a row three or four times a week. In winter I do not hear so much, but in summer, when the windows are open, I hear much more than I want to. The dwelling houses on my beat are mostly three stories and of brick. The first story is occupied, as a rule, by bookkeepers, salesmen and the like, who can afford to pay about $20 a month. There are two families above them which belong to the laboring class.

"I am sauntering along my beat and the first floor family are at supper when I hear the husband call out:

"'Maggie, what in the devil do you get such meat for?'

"'It was all I could get with the money you left me.'

"'Then why didn't you run in debt a little?'

"'Because we owe now more than we can ever pay.'

"'Don't you concern yourself about what I can pay or cannot. This meat isn't fit for a dog to eat! It is all bone and fat and gristle.'

"'Well, you must eat it the best way you can. I am always pinched for money and always have to buy the cheapest things. We have got to keep you well dressed, you know, and the rest of us must wear our old clothes.'

"'Darned if I don't wish I had never married!'

"'And so do I, for that matter.'

"And then I hear the husband shove back from the table, and in a minute more he is on the street and walking away. Half a block below I hear another row.

"You may say, my son, that these family skeletons do not concern the patrolman on the beat, but they do just the same. About three out of five of them end in a row in which furniture is smashed and blows are given and taken. Then it is his duty to make his appearance and take a hand in. We try to be peacemakers, but it often happens that we have to take the whole family to the station. Wives drink as well as husbands, and when it happens that both have been drinking they are very hard to handle. When they appear in court next morning one or the other has a black eye to be ashamed of, and they are so repentant that his honor generally lets them go on suspended sentence. There is another thing, my son, that may surprise you. Take them as they run on any patrolman's beat in this city and not one out of five children up to six years old has learned the number and street of his home. As sure as they get three or four blocks away they are lost. They can tell the first name of the father or mother, but that is the best they can do. It would take a father or mother about fifteen minutes to teach a child the street and number, but they don't do it. It would take about ten minutes to write the address down on a card and sew this card to their clothing, but they never take this precaution. When a child is lost the first step of the mother is to find me. She seems to think I ought to know every child on my beat.

"I can't leave my beat to go hunting up lost children, and so I send her to the station. Nine times out of ten I have got to go looking around after my regular hours of duty. Sometimes I find the child not more than two blocks away, and sometimes I have to hunt for two hours, with my feet aching as if somebody had clubbed them. I tell you as a fact that not one mother in ten can so describe a lost child as to make easy work of finding him or her. We will suppose that a woman comes running up to me to say that her little girl, five years old, is lost. I must first calm her, for she is greatly excited, and then the conversation runs about as follows:

"'When did you miss your girl?'

"'About two hours ago.'

"'What was the color of her hair?'

"'Brown, sir.'

"'And were her eyes blue or black?'

"'I can't be sure which, but I think they were black.'

"'What sort of a dress did she have on?'

"'A brown calico.'

"'Did she have shoes on?'

"'I think not, sir.'

"'Did she wear any sort of a hat?'

"'No, sir.'

"'Is she a good sized girl for her age?'

"'Many people have taken her for ten years old, sir.'

"I take all this down in writing, but I am pretty sure that it is useless. Four blocks up my beat I come across the lost girl. She has walked and walked until she has become weary and is sitting on the curbstone to rest. Her hair, her eyes, her size, her dress, are all different from what the mother described them, and yet she is the lost girl. When I lead her back to the corner from which she can see her home she is all right. If I hadn't happened to pass her the hunt might have gone on for two or three days."

Two Splendid Things

One is plenty of open-air exercise.

If you can't get all of that you should, it's all the more important that you should have the other tried-and-true remedy for a torpid liver and bowels that don't act freely and naturally.

Temporary Finance Minister Given Authority to Secure Funds.

PETROGRAD, May 31.— The provisional Government to-day approved the proposal of Temporary Finance Minister Teretschenko to raise 2,000,000,000 roubles and take steps for securing for the treasury "the supply of paper money which already has become indispensable," the official news agency announces. The Government's approval of the measure was unanimous, it is stated.

Internal Bathing's Rapid Growth

It is but natural to expect that a relief from Constipation and the many ills which it causes, which is so effectual and so natural as Internal Bathing, should quickly make many converts.

But its general use has increased so tremendously in the past few years as to suggest other reasons, and these are found in the statement of users that they feel as if "made over" the morning after an Internal Bath.

The elimination of the pernicious ad poisonous waste which is ever present in the Lower Intestine gives Nature a chance to work unhampered. And one rises in the morning clear headed, able, bright, confident and eager for the day's duties.

Mr. F. E. Smith writes:

"Dear Doctor,—Your 'Cascade' made a new man of me at the age of 49. I persuaded my wife to use the treatment also, and to-day she has better health than ever before. Since the use of the 'Cascade' she sleeps better and can walk for hours without fatigue. Fainting spells have become a condition of the past; can eat anything on the bill of fare and drink all beverages. Does not take cold when exposed; hot weather does not cause oppression."

The "J.B.L. Cascade," the most efficient device for Internal Bathing, is being grown and explained in detail by the Warne Drug Company, Peterborough. MINIMUM CONSCRIPTION AGE BASED ON STANDARD OF MOSES.

OTTAWA, May 31. — The Journal says: "It is interesting to learn that when the members of the cabinet were discussing the age below which men should be exempt from military service, the practice of great countries past and present were referred to. One of the ministers, who is said to be Hon. Arthur Meighen, reminded his confreres that Moses, the greatest man in Jewish history, had made 20 the conscription age. It is related that this had considerable weight with the government in making the Canadian age of military service under compulsion the same.

CANADA'S RIVERMEN BRAVE THE TIGRIS

Stirring Experience in British Columbia which Fitted Pilots for Inland Transport Service

One knight of the British Columbia pilot service to join the inland Waterways Transport from the B[illegible] Army was Capt. D. A. Foster of South Fort George—known throughout the North as the pioneer navigator of the Upper Fraser. For 15 years, until railroads replaced steamships as a means of transportation, the genial captain piloted flat-bottomed steamers and motor boats on the turbulent Fraser, until he left for Mesopotamia, to command a steamer using Bagdad as a base. Steamboating and scowing went hand in hand with the construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, the Canadian Northern Railway and the grade of the Pacific Great Eastern.

Fatalities and Toll

Operating out of Prince George, in every direction, there were at one time eight steamboats engaged in railway construction work, and a fleet of scows numbering at times fully one hundred. The steamers made round trips of approximately 1,000 miles, while the scows were built at Tete Jaune Cache, the head of navigation on the Fraser, and floated downstream to Prince George. This entailed considerable labor and no small amount of danger. The Goat river rapids were responsible for many a wrecked crew, while the Grand canyon took heavy toll, both of freight and lives.

During the summer of 1912 dozens of men were drowned in the icy waters of the Fraser. After working for a few months or weeks on construction, thereby accumulating sufficient money to guarantee a good spree, a party of laborers would build a raft, launch it upon the Fraser and set out for the nearest booze town. In too many instances these failed to reach their destination, being sucked down while running the dangerous waters of the canyon.

Made Money Fast

Scows carrying thirty or forty tons of freight, and in charge of three, four or five men, could be seen stretched out along the river for 400 miles, and many were the tales of hairbreadth escapes, wrecked fortunes and quickly acquired riches. The river steamers carried from 75 to 175 tons at a time, and the gross receipts of one fine river boat, which was fitted up with every luxury of travel, amounted to more than $120,000 for a single season.

Trained for War

In addition to the steamers and scows there were canoes and small boats without number. Freight rates were high and one season's earnings for an able canoeman often amounted to several thousand dollars. During the early days of construction, while steel was still many miles distant from the Rockies, canoes were the only means of travel, and the trip up river from Prince George to Tete Jaune Cache required from 15 to 20 days of unremitting toil. Engineers, surveyors and railroad officials, whose time was worth a large sum daily, were forced to spend weeks in arduous travel to cover a distance now traversed by trains in half a day. This training resulted in fitting men for the present important work of the Water Transport Service, and many stirring stories have already reached Vancouver from Kut-el-Amara and Bagdad.

ITALY'S SOLDIERS SING

Buoyant Spirit of Alpini Soars Upward in Song

The incident of Italian soldiers singing in an Alpine blizzard almost strong enough to sweep them from their feet made no small impression on me, writes Lewis R. Freeman in the Atlantic Monthly. And what a spirit it is, he says. Beppo sings as he works, he sings as he plays, he sings as he fights, and—many a tale is told of how this or that comrade has been seen to go down with a song on his lips—he sings as he dies. He soothes himself with song, he beguiles himself with song, he steadies himself with song, he exalts himself with song. And on that stony trench-torn plateau of the Carso, where men live in caverns under the earth and where the casualties are multiplied two or threefold by the fragments of explosive-shattered rock—even these, on this deadliest and most repulsive of all the battle fronts of Armageddon, the lilting melodies of sunny Southern Italy—punctuated, but never for long interrupted, by the shriek and detonation of Austrian shells—are heard on every hand.

"When the history of what little children have suffered in this terrible war is written, it will be the saddest of all reading," says a British journalist.

More than 50,000 men from Islington joined the colors.

PRESS COMMENT ON ITALIAN OFFENSIVE

Operations Against Austria Are Assuming Great Importance, Say Various Editors.

"Still Strong in Field."

Brooklyn Eagle:—"Should the Italians continue on the offensive their campaign may have considerable bearing upon the military situation as a whole. Italy, far from being in a state of military exhaustion, is still very strong in the field."

"Serious For Kaiser."

Albany Argus:— "Her achievement is serious for the Kaiser in that he will now have to further denude his lines to come to the rescue of Austria—with much doubt if he can get there in season."

"Weakens Western Defence."

Troy Record:—"This will mean that Germany must send aid to its ally, which in turn will tend to weaken the western defence and indirectly aid the French and British in their drive on the Hindenburg lines."

"Shock to Austria."

Springfield (Mass.) Republican:—"It will come with something of a shock to Austria, which seems to have been taking the deadlock on the Italian front as a settled fact."

"Has Much Significance."

St. Louis Republic:—"At the present time the new Italian offensive along the Isonzo has as much significance and is of such importance as the strongest efforts being made by the Allies anywhere in France."

"Impressive Feature of Campaign."

"America at Work."

Columbia (S. C.) State:—"In the new drive of the Italian army against the Trieste defences it is not difficult to see one of the very first results of the entrance of the United States in the world war."

"Hampering Hindenburg."

Charleston (S. C.) News and Courier:—"The Italians by attacking on their front may reduce the size of the reinforcements that Hindenburg is receiving from the east."

the "American Conference for Democracy and Terms of Peace" has been in session in the Madison Square Theatre. For three hours in the afternoon the delegates fought and wrangled over a "conscription" resolution.

They finally adjourned without having adopted any, and sent back to the Executive Committee of the body, one that had been offered, because many of the delegate protested it would violate the laws. The resolution read by Dr. Magnes at the meeting last night was a substitute for the rejected one offered at the afternoon session, and presumably had been gone over by lawyers who were present at the afternoon discussion.

Silence settled over the big crowd almost as soon as Dr. Magnes opened the meeting. He announced as his greeting to the audience that three representatives of the Department of Justice were "here in response to the mandate of the Attorney General, who has given instructions that officers and agents of the department in communities where meetings for agitation against registration attend such gatheirngs and obtain stenographic record of the addresses. I believe that the sessions of our conference for two days must furnish abundant proof that such addresses could not be made." Dr. Magnes emphasized from the start that every precaution was taken to see that everything the conference did was within the law.

Then he read the resolution which was submitted to the meeting but not acted upon, and in doing so drew attention to the fact that it was the belief of every one who had anything to do with its formulation that it was entirely within the law.

In the meantime the three stenographers were taking notes of the resolution and everything else that was said.

Ever thought of endowing your home?

It's very easy to do it.

Suppose—having purchased a house and effected a mortgage on it—you should die suddenly!

Wouldn't your wife and family have a hard time meeting the interest on the mortgage and discharging the principal sum when due?

Not so, however, if you were insured under an Imperial Endowment policy for the amount of the mortgage. A small amount invested each year in such a policy will enable your heirs to pay the mortgage immediately after your death, even if it should occur next week. On the other hand, if you should live until the policy matures you can pay off the indebtedness yourself out of the amount of the Endowment.

Have you a mortgage on your home? Then let us show you how you can make sure of its repayment whether you live or die.

Write today—tomorrow you may be uninsurable.

Latest Red Cross Instructions in Regard to Parcels For Prisoners of War

Dear Sir,—We have just received the latest instructions from London in regard to Prisoner's parcels.

The instructions are so clear and so explicit that we would feel obliged if you will kindly insert them in the Examiner.

The Canadian Red Cross is the only official cord of communication between Canada and our men who are prisoners.

If those who have continued sending private parcels only knew how every parcel sent by them hitherto has had to be repacked and censored in London, by the Canadian Red Cross they would be willing to forego the personal touch so loved by us all, and send their gifts in money to our Prisoners' Department.

Yours faithfully.

ANNIE FORBES ALLAN.
E. MORROW.

PRISONERS' OF WAR DEPARTMENT.

The Canadian Red Cross Society send every fortnight three 10s parcels of provisions, weighing 10 lbs. each to every Prisoner of War in the Canadian Contingents, this under the New Regulations is the maximum amount which may be sent.

The C.R.C.S. send 13 lbs. of bread fortnightly, and 1-2 lbs. of tobacco or 20 Cigarettes.

The present regulations forbid private people sending to Prisoners of War any parcels containing Food, Clothing may not be sent. The following that might conceal secret writing, or anything mentioned in the Prohibited List appended, neither may the Red Cross accept any such parcels to forward to Germany.

It will be seen, therefore that there is really very little that may be sent by private people, and under the circumstances it is the only plan for people to order any special food, tobacco or comforts through the Red Cross. The Society will order and despatch parcels to any particular man with any money contributed for him, and will do its best to carry out any wishes expressed by the subscriber as to the contents of the parcel, within the prescribed limits.

Owing to the very strict regulations issued by the War Office extra Clothing may not be sent. The following outfit, as authorized, is sent by the Society to each Prisoner of War, and is repeated every six months:—

Greatcoat (every 12 months), Jacket, Trousers, Cap, Pair Boots 2 Shirts, 2 pair Socks, Canvas Shoes, 2 Vests, 2 pairs Drawers, Cardigan, Gloves, Kithag, 3 Handkerchiefs, 2 Towels.

A parcel of toilet requisites—brush, comb, tooth paste and brush, housif, etc., is sent at intervals.

Books, games, gramophones, etc., are sent occasionally and seem very acceptable.

Books, music, playing cards, may be ordered by private people through an authorized firm, such as Messrs. W. H. Smith, Strand, London, or the Camps' Library, Horseferry Road, London, S.W.

Books of an educational nature will be sent free if application is made in writing to A. T. Davis, Esq., Board of Education, Whitehall, London.

The Canadian Red Cross will order, if requested, medicines or other medical comforts through The Invalid Comforts Fund, Hove.

Many people are glad to "adopt" prisoners, either wholly or partially, by subscribing towards their 30s-worth of provisions fortnightly. These parcels are then sent in the name of the subscriber and the receipt acknowledged by the prisoner direct to them. Any sums are gratefully received for these purposes, as are any contribution to the General Fund of this Department.

There are no new regulations regarding letters or post cards.

If prisoners express a wish for money to be sent them, this can be done through any Post Office by International Money Order.

Tennis balls, footballs, boxing gloves, gramaphone records may only be sent if specially asked for my a prisoner. The letter containing such requests should be sent to the Canadian Red Cross Society, who will make the necessary arrangements.

The Canadian Red Cross Society will gladly give any further information that it possibly can.

Cattle Trade Good Early Part of Week

But Slackened Towards the End, and in Closing Market Went Off 25c.

With a lighter run than usual of late for the Monday market, trade opened for the week with a good active demand, and prices worked easily upwards to 25c to 35c higher than the previous week's average. The market held steady at the advance for the succeeding days to Wednesday's closing, when there was a noticeable clowing up. Several loads of good quality steers and heifers, which had been held at rather high prices by the owners, probably having cost a bog price in the country, failed to find purchasers at the price and consequently were held over until Thursday's market. This proved a bad move, fr Thursday's market opened with scarcely any demand, and trade was quieter than for many weeks past. Fortunately there was a very light offering of fresh cattle on the market, but even at that, prices eased off below those for the preceding days. Exactly how much the market was off would be difficult to say, seeing that the transactions were few, and a considerable number of cattle still held over unsold. The average quality of the week's offerings was high, comprising some of the best loads of the winters stall-fed cattle yet marketed. It is probable the bulk of the stall-fed are now marketed, and dealers are not looking for heavy receipts for the next few weeks. Prices therefore may not very materially change from present levels.

Fat cows and butcher bulls have continued in good demand through the week, and suffered less than any other class from the week-end decline.

The stocker trade was comparatively quiet, except for good grass cows, which kept in good demand at about steady prices.

Choice milch cows and springers in good demand,

Choice veal calves were strong all through the week, prices working higher.

The sheep market is easier and light. A few spring lambs in demand at a little better prices.

The hog market was weaker, and prices early eased off half a dollar, steadied at that for the rest of the week, but with prospects for lower quotations by the packers for next week.

Cattle Receipts.

Union Stock Yards—Total receipts for the week, 531 cars, with 4,152 cattle, 1,187 calves, 10,298 hogs, 405 sheep and lambs, and 3,290 horses.

City Cattle Market.—40 cars, with 560 cattle, 214 sheep and lambs, 272 hogs and 253 calves.

Was Troubled With Shortness of Breath

When the heart becomes affected, there ensues a feeling of a choking sensation, a shortness of breath, palpitation, throbbing, irregular beating, smothering sensation, dizziness, and a weak, sinking, all-gone feeling of oppression and anxiety.

The nerves become unstrung, you dread to be alone, have a horror of society, start at the least noise and are generally fatigued.

On the first sign of the heart becoming weakened or the nerves unstrung, Milbura's Heart and Nerve Pills should be taken. They are just what you require at this time. They regulate and stimulate the heart, and strengthen and restore the whole nerve system.

Mrs. C. M. Cormier, Buctouche, N.B., writes: "Since two years ago I was troubled with a shortness of breath, and sometimes I could hardly breathe. I went to see several doctors, and they said it was from my heart and nerves, but they did not seem to do me any good. One day I got one of your B.B.B. Almanacs and read of a case similar to mine.

"I bought a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and after taking it I noticed such a change that I kept on taking them until I had used four more boxes, when I was cured."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c a box, three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co.,

Since the announcement that a Destroyer Flotilla from the American Navy had arrived in European waters, more interest has been taken in our neighbor's fleet and what work it will do. Along this line we reproduce a picture of the navy yard at Norfolk, Va., as it appears during war-time.

Chief Strong Heart was the first full-blooded Indian to volunteer to go to France with Col. Roosevelt's division. Chief Strong Heart was born in Yakima Valley, Washington, but spent most of his life in Alaska.

Coucy-le-Chateau, France's best preserved mediaeval castle, as it appeared before the Germans destroyed it. It dates from the early part of the 13th century, and was built by Enguarrand the Third, surnamed the Great, and Picardy's most noble knight. The castle was dismantled in 1653 and later on became State property. The famous stronghold spread over 10,000 square yards.

These photographs of a single French munition store indicate something of the enormous shell-power of the French.

A French officer's arrival at home after his tour in the trenches, and his children who are "doing their bit" by gardening find a use for his trench helmet not thought of by the general staff.

America Day Celebrated in London - A New French "Tank"

London kept America Day (April 20th) with all good will, and gave [illegible] a warmest of welcomes. A little incident during the day is here shown, when a friendly policeman [illegible] little girl on his horse. (Photo to the left.)

The King and Queen arriving at St. Paul's on America Day, where a great gathering was held in honor of America. (Photo above.)

The patrols meet—A silent but deadly struggle. Both British and Germans sought refuge in the same shell-hole from the light of a star-shell. A miniature battle then followed, which was carried out silently, for no shots must be fired on "No Man's Land."

The Chinese-American Citizen's Alliance is raising a unit of 600 Chinese soldiers to be offered to the United States Government. The Chinese soldiers are being drilled in the heart of Chinatown, New York, by Mr. Tien tiu Lie, a student at Columbia University, and the only Chinese member of the Officers' Reserve Corps.

Gun boats on the Canal of the Aisne in the Champagne region, with 140 millimeter guns and 2-47 millimeter guns, help to bombard the enemy. These boats are quite numerous, and are placed a few hundred yards apart.

The French now use tanks also, and one of them is pictured above just coming back from a raid on the enemy's trenches and being hid from German aeroplanes under cover of the trees.

This is a very interesting Church and dates back to the 13th Century. The two Regiments marched into Witley in full strength, with bands playing and colors flying, and delivered their colors to the Vicar and Church wardens with a considerable amount of ceremony, in the presence of many spectators. The group photograph shows Colonel Vaux Chadwick and officers of his Regiment, the 124th C.E.F., just before leaving England for France.

MOTHER, nurse, and baby were taking the air in the park. Mother was absorbed in an illustrated paper, and when baby began to cry peevishly she said without looking up:

"Give it to her nurse."

The crying went on, and mother said imperatively:

"Oh, give her what she wants. I can't stand the noise."

Suddenly the cries rose into a howl. The mother sat up and glared at the nurse.

"Why don't you do as I tell you?" she inquired angrily. "Give it her at once."

"She's got it, mum," said the nurse quietly. "It's a wasp."

CUTTEN CORRECT FOSTER FIN SH Slip Covers or a New Top CUTTEN CORRECT FOSTER FINISH
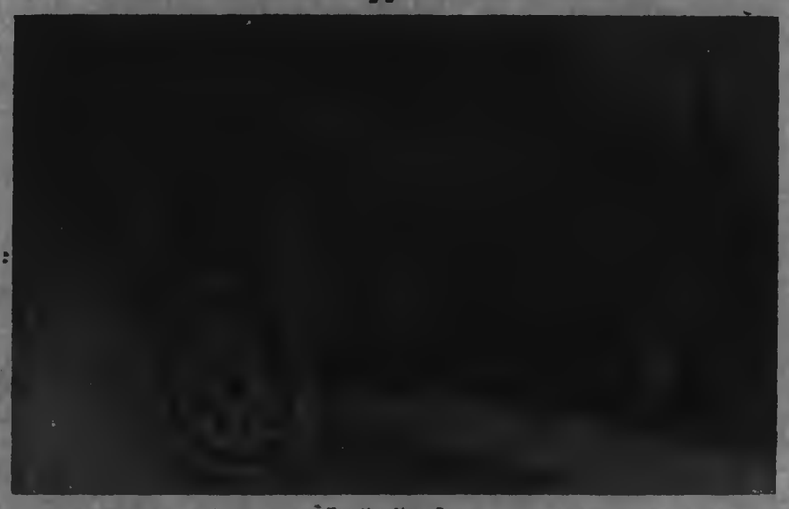
Add 100% to the Appearance of Your Car



For the New Car.

Slip Covers improve its appearance 100 per cent., and the additional pride you will take in it will greatly increase the joys of motoring. They prolong the life of the upholstering, and are much more sanitary; being smooth, the dust cannot adhere to them. They are much cooler in summer and much warmer in winter than leather, a feature which adds greatly to your comfort in motoring. Our Sleeve Type Envelope, too, is a regular life insurance policy for the Top, as it covers and protects it completely against damage and stains from dust and moisture, which spoil its appearance and rot its fabric. Equip your car when new; you will never regret the investment.

For the Used Car.

They cover and hide worn and unsightly upholstering, and add new life to cushions and backs that have become flattened out by long use. By restoring a new appearance to a used car they greatly increase its value, as well as its selling possibilities. The Envelope completely covers and hides a Top that has become faded and shabby. A set of Slip Covers, costing anywhere from $25.00 to $115.00, will very often save you the expense of having your car reupholstered, an operation costing at least three times the amount.

C. & F. Seat Covers fit like a high-grade custom tailored suit and hold their fit. They are made from the highest grade materials, hand tailored—not factory made, and give service for every dollar invested.

All edges are bound, arms and places subject to hard wear are amply reinforced, door coverings have pockets with flaps.

We have a variety of patterns from which to choose.

All are first quality guaranteed goods.

GERMAN ATTACKS STOPPED BY FRENCH

SUCCESSFUL REPRISAL AIR RAIDS BY BRITISH

HEAVY LOCAL ATTACKS BY HUNS CHECKED BY FRENCH

Official Communique Mentions Assaults at Different Points on the Line, All of Which Result in Failure---British Air Craft Successfully Bombard Ostend, Zeebruge and Other German Bases---United States Ready For Registration.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

Special to The Examiner:

PARIS, June 2.—Scattered local German attacks around Hurtebise, Craonne, Ghevreux, and in particular north-west of Freidmont, to the west of Gerny, were easily repulsed last night, to-day's official statement asserted. Off the Mouse Hills French forces carried out a successful raid, taking several prisoners. In the Chemin des Dames sector the artillery on both sides was active.

AMSTERDAM, June 2.—Kaiser William has wired his hearty congratulations to Emperor Charles of Austria for the Austrian defence on the Italian front, according to Berlin despatches to-day. "Your army on the Isonzo has bidden defiance to a mighty and stubborn onslaught, and caused it to fail." The Kaiser declared: "I congratulate thee and thy brave troops on their great success, God helping us."

(By Wm. Philip Simms, United Press Correspondent).

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, June 2.—British artillery and trench mortars reared an active bombardment throughout most of last night and this morning on the German positions near Vimy, around Lens, Ypres and the Canal to the north. There was little response from the Germans.

East of Bullecourt, however, the enemy heavily bombarded the British trenches. The casualties were slight.

As evidence of the fierceness of the fighting in the raid in this section on Friday morning, and by which the British took two German posts, twenty German dead were found scattered about in front of the position.

The weather was clear and summery to-day. Conditions for flying were perfect, and the British airmen were active.

Special to Examiner:

WASHINGTON, June 2.—Five divisions of national guardsmen, about 135 thousand men, will be in Europe by the time anew flies, if plans under consideration by the Army General Staff are adopted.

LONDON, June 2.—In reprisal for Germany's murderous air raids on England, British airmen are making daily punitive expeditions against German air and submarine bases along the Belgian coast, at Zeebruge, Ostend, Bruges and St. Denis. To-day's official statement indicates further British attacks from the air on these points. Aeroplanes and seaplanes dropped several tons of explosives on these German works and buildings, doing immense damage. These British raids were made Thursday and Friday, and repeated again this morning.

Germans Claim a Win Over French

BERLIN (via London), June 2.—The capture of a French position three-quarters of a mile in width, near Allement, north-east of Soissons, was announced by the War Office to-day. The Germans made their gain by a sudden surprise attack. The official statement also declared that 12,000 prisoners, including a General, were captured in the Western war theatre during May.

Three guns, 211 machine guns, 434 quick-firers and 18 trench mortars were also captured, it was asserted.

Allement is a village about three miles south of Anizy le Chateau, and a little more than a mile from Luffaux, where heavy fighting was recently reported. Allied statements to date have not mentioned any of their Generals being captured by the enemy.

WASHINGTON, June 2.—The War Department to-day ordered into active service the nine regiments of engineer corps that are to go to France to work upon the lines of communication. The regiments will probably be mobilized for training before sailing for France. Four of the nine regiments are already filled to full war strength; four others are recruited to more than half their war complement. There will be over ten thousand men altogether.

LONDON, June 2.—A News Agency despatch reports the arrest at Tiflis of Grand Duke Nicholas, formerly Commander-in-Chief of the Russian Armies, as a result of Royalist riots in that centre.

AMSTERDAM, June 2.—The sinking of the Swedish vessels Pauline, Cyrus, Erik, Therese Knell and [illegible], in the Gulf of Bosnia, was announced in Berlin despatches to-day. The Swedish Carta Marta and Lizzie have been taken into Swinemunde for examination.

Chicago, Ill., June 1st, 1917.

Mr. W. H. Dunham,
C/o The Quaker Oats Company,
Peterborough, Ont.

We extend our heartiest congratulation. You are real campaigners. We have just wired the Mayor expressing our appreciation of the good work he has done. It is gratifying to feel that the people really want us.

(Sgd.) JOHN STUART.

IT is always safe to send a Dominion Express Money Order. Five dollars cost three cents.

Mr. Robert Stuart's Reply To Mayor's By-law Telegram

Chicago, Ill., June 1, 1917.

Jos. J. Duffus, Mayor,
Peterborough, Ont.

Thanks for your message. I congratulate you and the aldermen on the splendid support given you by the people. We appreciate this vote and hope that we shall always be able to retain the interest and good will of the people of Peterborough. I can assure you that the new mill will be better and bigger than the one that was destroyed, and as modern as we can build.

We thank you and your associates for the time, the hard work and the fair way in which you have handled this matter. We received many attractive invitations from other cities, but we all liked our old home and are glad to stay.

ROBERT STUART,
Pres. of Quaker Oats Co.

HORSES WANTED IN THIS DISTRICT FOR THE ARTILLERY

Brig. General J. W. Neill of the British Remount Department and Lieut. Col. Carruthers Representing Canadian Government Here Yesterday

PLEASED WITH PROSPECTS

That the British Government is in the market for large quantities of suitable artillery horses is evidenced by the visit to Peterborough yesterday of Brigadier-General J. W. Neill, of the British Remount Department, and Lieut.-Col. Geo. V. Carruthers, of Montreal, the latter representing the Canadian Government. General Neill is a Canadian, who went overseas with the first Canadian division, and has been in charge of the remount work in England and France for the Canadian troops. His services have been loaned to the British Government, and he is at present travelling through Canada from coast to coast in connection with the arranging of a supply of horses suitable for artillery work. It is incidentally the first opportunity he has had of coming back to Canada since he left in August of 1914.

Yesterday Brigadier-General Neill and Col. Carruthers inspected a number of fine horses at the stables of Messrs. Green and Cruikshanks, who have been doing splendid work in securing horses for war purposes. Thirty-eight horses were secured yesterday, and Brigadier-General Neill, when seen by the Examiner at the Empress last evening, expressed himself as thoroughly satisfied with the number and quality of the horses offered. There will be periodic inspections here on behalf of the British Government, and the officers expect to secure a good supply from this district.

Just at present cavalry remounts are not required, and the only demand is for artillery horses. The specifications may be quoted briefly as follows: Age, 6 to 9 years; height, 15.2 to 16 hands; weight, 1,200 to 1,350 pounds. Colours, any except light grey, white or light buckskin. The horses must be sound, of good conformation, free from blemishes and broken to harness or saddle.

Brigadier-General Neill and Col. Carruthers arrived at noon yesterday from London and went on to Ottawa early this morning. They expect to return to Peterborough in several weeks' time.

Lieut.-Col. Carruthers incidentally remarked that it was his first visit to Peterborough since he played hockey here twenty-four years ago with a Toronto team against the Peterborough seven, which included Lionel King and Walter Phelan. By a queer coincidence, the latter is at present here on a visit.

REMIT by Dominion Express Money Order. If lost or stolen, you get your money back.

FIVE LOCAL SOLDIERS OFFICIALLY REPORTED ON LIST OF WOUNDED

More Members of 93rd Battalion Hit--Pte. Norman Wearing Brother of Mr. Jos. Wearing, is Missing---Corp. Chas. Barrett, a Peterboro' Boy Mentioned by Field Marshal Haig For Good Work--To-day's General Military News

MISSING.

Pte. Norman Wearing, Infantry, brother of Mr. Jos. Wearing, Peterborough.

WOUNDED.

Pte. Joe Mullin, late 93rd Battalion, Peterborough.

Pte. N. Watkins, late 93rd Battalion, Gore's Landing.

Pte. G. H. Ford, Canadian Infantry, Peterboro'gh.

Pte. L. L. Forsythe, Infantry (shell shock).

Pte. Ed Hargrove, Mounted Rifles, 88 Gladstone avenue.

PTE. NORMAN WEARING

Mr. Joseph Wearing, the local lawyer has received a message giving him the sad news that his brother, Pte. Norman Wearing, Canadian Infantry, is officially reported missing, between May 2nd and 3rd. Pte. Wearing, who was nineteen years of age, enlisted in Barrie with the 157th Battalion, and was transferred to another battalion at the front. Another brother is also overseas.

PTE. JOSEPH MULLIN.

Pte. Joseph Mullin, who became a member of the 93rd Battalion in September, 1915, and was transferred to another Canadian battalion on reaching England, appears in the latest casualty list issued at Ottawa, as having been wounded in the recent fighting. Pte. Mullin went overseas as a member of No. 3 platoon, A company.

PTE. N. WATKINS.

Pte. N. Watkins, who enlisted here in the 93rd Battalion in October, 1915 and went overseas as a member of A company, of Lieut. Johnston's battalion, is officially reported wounded, according to yesterday afternoon's list from Ottawa. Pte. Watkins' home is near Gore's Landing, Rice Lake. He went overseas with the 93rd and was transferred.

PTE. G. H. FORD.

According to yesterday afternoon's official casualty list issued at Ottawa No. 103118 Pte. G. H. Ford of Peterborough has been wounded. Pte. Ford enlisted in an outside unit.

PTE. L. L. FORSYTHE.

Mrs. Mary Forsythe has received word saying her son, Pte. L. L. Forsythe, No. 406267 is in the hospital suffering from shell shock. This is the second time Pte. Forsythe has been shell shocked. He is a brother to Mrs. F. W. Bates, Stewart street.

PTE. EDWARD HARGROVE

Mr. Edward Hargrove, 88 Gladstone Avenue, Peterborough, has received word that his son, 111558, Pte. Michael Edward Hargrove, Mounted Rifles, has been admitted to war hospital, Newcastle, May 29, with a gunshot wound in the left arm. Pte. Hargrove enlisted here with the first draft of the 8th C. M. R. from Peterborough. He worked in the Lock Company's works before enlisting and went to Victoria when war broke out with the Cobourg Heavy Battery, afterwards joining the Mounted Rifles, when the Heavy Battery returned east.

Pte. A. J. Hargrave of the Cobourg Heavy Battery, is a brother. He also has a brother, Gunner Q. A. Hargrave, in France, having left with the first draft of the 3rd Battery.

PETERBOROUGH BOY MENTIONED.

Among the Canadians mentioned in despatches by Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig is a Peterborough boy, Corp. Chas. W. Barrett of the Canadian Engineers, whose good work at the front has earned him official mention. Corp. Barrett, who is a son of Mrs. Bugg, 249 Aylmer street, left Canada with the 2nd Divisional Engineers, and has been in France for many months.

Following is a copy of the last letter received by Miss Mary Scott, of Young's Point from her brother, Pte. Nicholas Scott of the 93rd Battalion, who was killed in action on May 8th:

Somewhere in France,
May 4th, 1917.

My Dear Sister,—Just a few lines in answer to your most kind and welcome letter just received a few days ago. Was indeed glad to hear you were all well, as this leaves the little boy at present; thank God for it. Well, Mary, I wrote to mother and Rose last week, so I guess you will be beginning to think I am not going to write to you at all.

I think I will have more time to write now for a while as I have a new job. I am stretcher bearer now, so I won't be so busy. All I have to do is just dress whoever gets wounded in our platoon, or perhaps a few more if I happen to be near them at the time, so you will see that there is quite a change in me since I came over here. You know, Mary, when I was at home I would almost faint if I saw a bit of blood, but now I can tie up a man that is half blown to pieces and don't mind it at all. The only thing that's wrong is that I can't kill any more Germans, as I don't carry any rifle nor bombs any more, but still I think I have done my share of that. If every one kills as many as I have, we will surely soon win the day. Well, Mary, I don't have to carry the wounded on the stretchers you know, so it is a little easier job. Our other stretcher bearer got sick a while ago, so I took his place. He is in England now in the hospital.

Well, Mary, I got all those nice pieces you sent me out of the paper. That was quite a piece about when the war is over. I also got the letter you put in of mine, also the picture Rose sent me, and forgot to tell her in the letter I sent her the other day.

PETROGRAD IS SWEPT BY A WAVE OF CRIME

Criminals Released From Prison in First Celebration of Independence Are Fast Making the Russian Capital Unsafe.

MANY DISTURBANCES

(By William G. Shepherd, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

Special to The Examiner:

PETROGRAD, June 2.—Russia's criminals, all released from prison in the first celebration of independence are fast making Petrograd unsafe. A wave of robberies and violent crimes is sweeping this city. Minister of Commerce Konovoloff tendered his resignation to-day on account of differences with the Minister of Labour as to financial and economic measures. To-day a millionaire merchant, Gregorioff, was shot down at his mansion in the very heart of the city by three men who claimed to be anarchists and demanded money of the merchant. Militiamen and workers responding to Greforioff's cries for help, killed one bandit and captured a second. The third committed suicide. The thirty thousand roubles ($15,000), which they had forced Gregorioff to give them, were recovered. When the new democratic government took hold all criminals were released from the prisons. They sought out the cities and towns, and have grown bolder and bolder in thievery and murder. The unrest in the city has been augmented by a strike of six thousand clerks in the Petrograd shops. They are demanding double wages, retroactive since the start of the war. No additional details were received to-day on yesterday's rioting at Kiev, where fifteen thousand absentee soldiers were said to have organized a formidable demonstration in protest against Minister of War Kerensky's regorous orders punishing desertion with penal servitude. The latest information was that a number of rioters were killed and wounded. The Provisional Government will endeavour to obtain a revocation of the vote of the Council of Workmen and Soldiers yesterday, assuming control of the fortress of Kronstadt, the principal defense of Petrograd. The journal of the Workmen's and Soldiers' delegates announced to-day that confiscation of property and money may be necessary owing to the slow progress made in obtaining subscriptions to the Russian liberty loan. The Workmen's and Soldiers' Council to-day adopted a resolution demanding the removal of the former Czar of all the Russias from his winter palace at Tsarkoe Selo to the great fortress of Peter and Paul. The delegates were convinced that the autocrat of other days is carelessly guarded under the present arrangements. Peter and Paul fortress housed many a victim of Russia's secret police of the other days. Its gloomy corridors date from the very foundation of Petrograd itself. The fortress is situated on an island in the great Neva River in the city limits.

A number of heavily armed anarchists paraded the Nevsky Prospect today bearing banners inscribed "Down with autocracy. Live long the Social revolution." Speakers at various meetings of the paraders urged the people to loot the banks. Many soldiers and sailors joined in the demonstration. The paraders were armed with rifles, revolvers and grenades. No attempt was made to arrest them.

Officials emphasize to-day that the action of the soldiers and workmen in Kronstadt in assuming control of the fortress did not indicate friction

IRISH CONVENTION IS LEADING TOPIC AMONG POLITICIANS

Bobs Up in One Form or Another in Nearly Every Issue of Every Paper But the British and Irish Attitude Are Doubtful

THE CHIEF DIFFICULTY

By T. P. O'Connor

(By T. P. O'Connor, M.P.)
(From Central News.)

LONDON, June 2. — The coming Irish convention for the proposed settlement of the home rule question continues as the leading topic of domestic politics. It has occupied almost as much time as the most urgent of the war problems during the so-called holidays among British and Irish politicians alike and bobs up in one form or another in nearly every issue of every paper. The attitude of both the British and the Irish public towards the proposition is, and will remain doubtful until the composition of the convention is announced. Even then it will be impossible to tell what will be its reception or ultimate fate.

The chief difficulty to be met will consist in so composing the convention that there will be a fair balance of parties, although it must be said that John Redmond and other Nationalist leaders have voluntarily surrendered any claim that the Nationalists should have in the convention a numerical superiority proportionate to their majority in population and their representation in Parliament. Thus there will be at their suggestion, an equal number of Nationalists, Ulster and Orange members of Parliament.

The first question to be confronted is the size of the convention. Opinion varies greatly as to the number of delegates that should be chosen, estimates ranging anywhere from fifty to two hundred. The advocates of the smaller number declaring for a body that shall be entirely expert in character, while others favour a larger gathering as being more representative.

A second question of great moment is what bodies shall be represented and what shall be the balance of the urban and rural representation and the number of nominees by the Government. This last again involves the question as to how far the scale will be kicked as the result of fierce divisions brought about by shackled and committed politicians, or by the shifting of the balance by business men from Ulster and the South such as bankers, representatives, members of Chambers of Commerce, etc.

SATURDAY, JUNE 2, 1917

PRACTICAL EDUCATION.

The letter of Mr. V. Eastwood, chairman of the Board of Education, printed in yesterday's issue, directs attention to a very important matter in relation to our industrial efficiency and standing. By the adoption of the bridges by-law we showed that we had a real interest in promoting the industrial interests and industrial growth of the city.

We committed ourselves to a considerable financial obligation and a large part of the work of meeting it will devolve upon our future citizens—upon what are now boys and girls in our schools. These, it is natural to assume, think very little about their future responsibilities and duties, and we elders must think—and more—act for them.

And it is unfortunate that this lack of thought extends to those who have the general educational charge of the pupils of our schools. Our general educational system is held to be admirable; but it is defective in that it does not provide for the most needed form and character of education. In the regard to meeting the most important educational want—technical education—it is a good deal like the encomium of the sentimental farmer's wife on her cow—"she's a fine little cow, but she doesn't give much milk."

We have in Peterborough, schools as good as any city in the province. We support them liberally; we provide generously for the best of equipment, material and pedagogical. We have, perhaps, the best staff of teachers, in the province. But they are doomed to be slaves to a rather rigid curriculum—a curriculum, however, that does not sufficiently recognize the claims and necessity of what Mr. Eastwood declares is demanded—technical education.

Under the circumstances, we turn out pupils with a mental education as thorough as the course of study will admit. But it is unfortunately the fact, that little education of a practical character is included—little that specially fits Mr. Eastwood's "sixty-five per cent. of our boys and girls," for the actual duties of life. We train the mind—or aim to do so—but the hand is neglected.

The great proportion of the pupils who pass through our schools have to look forward to manual employment, skilled or otherwise, to earn a living, and play their part in productive citizenship. Their education has to be crowded into the few years of school life between six or seven and fourteen or fifteen. This precious time should evidently be employed to the learning of things that they can use in after life, and should not be monopolized in learning of a purely literary or mental character that has little or no practical relation to the life work that lies before the children.

Mr. Eastwood has brought into prominence a subject of the very first importance, and one that is more of a concern to the industrial future of the city than even a high level bridge at Hunter street. The subject is of so much moment that the committee on Education of the Greater Peterborough Association, might well amend its terminology and put "Technical" before "Education;" that is, give it first prominence.

It is not practicable to go into details on the subject of technical education, but these will come out with fuller discussion in the press and elsewhere if the people generally follow the invitation of the Board of Education which, judging by the sentiments of its chairman, is in sympathy with active cooperation in extending to the school boys and girls the benefits of the necessity—of Technical Education.

Many Books are a corollary of [illegible] education in the schools—to teach the right use of what children should practically learn to earn.

Peterborough's Contribution To The Golden Jubilee Celebration Of The Canadian Confederation

The Greater Peterborough Association has already proved its worth, and has now entered upon the arrangements for the celebration of Dominion Day. In fact, with commendable enterprise and foresight the plans were generally outlined within the past month, and there remains practically the details to be finally considered and determined. The committee on Sports and Amusements of which Mr. R. Denne is chairman, have been largely concerned with the object of providing a field day of events that would not only hold the interests of the citizens in a local celebration, but also attract visitors from the surrounding district. At the same time the committee fully realize that July 1st this year is the semi-centennial of Confederation, a feature that should, if possible, be fittingly recognized in the celebration.

It has already been decided to devote the proceeds of the occasion to the Peterborough Health Association, a charitable organization that richly deserves all the financial assistance that can be obtained for it. Hence, it is desirable that the holiday profits should reach fairly large proportions. If the sole end of the celebration were to feature the significance of Confederation it would be comparatively easy to propose a programme in which the consideration of a financial balance could be disregarded. It is a regrettable fact that the original objects of our national holidays have gradually become obscure and vague under a growing indifference partly due to the steady recession of the events they were intended to commemorate. Victoria Day with its old and hallowed association has lapsed, but in Empire Day we should find expression of our pride of place in the Empire, that was expanded and welded during the long and eventful reign of Victoria the Good. Labour Day and all that it represents should bear a deeper impression upon the people, but its possibilities are unheeded. And in Dominion Day we have the annual reminder of our arrival at the stage of nationhood. Fifty years ago Confederation was an experiment; to-day who will assert that it was a mistake? Certainly the name of Canada in this golden jubilee of the federation of its provinces shines before the world with a lustre that was beyond the dreams of its makers. But even now the national spirit seems to await a final welding, through which we might have long since passed if in the constituent provinces each succeeding Dominion Day had served and been employed to develop and intensify the aims of the Fathers of Confederation.

But an hypothesis of past neglect is of little avail in the present, and with the holiday only a month distant there remains but little time to complete the plans of its celebration. Whatever programme the committee finally prepares it should be remembered that Dominion Day is Canada's national holiday, and that the final fruits of Confederation can be realized only through the co-operation of individual Canadians.

FRUITFUL CELEBRATION.

This is a pivotal period in the history of Canadian armies in the field of first anniversary of the repulsion of the Fenian invasion, and July First, next, marks the completion of the first half-century of Confederation. This year—this time—marks, too, the most splendid achievements of Canadian armies in the field of action in France and Flanders, the time when Canada leaps into the white light of her greatest period of glory—the focus of the world's admiration and praise.

While Peterborough will join with all Canada in celebrating the golden jubilee of Federated Canada; and though such a celebration is founded on sentiment, patriotic sentiment, it seems fitting that with the new and practical spirit that has come to Peterborough, we should turn the sentiment to practical purposes—make it the moving impulse of beneficent action.

On this page is a reference to the form, or at least one form, of local observance; of the fiftieth Confederation year, which appeals to our sympathy, for it is to be made contributory to the help of the most important element in our civic life and well being. The proceeds of the sporting feature of the local celebration are to be given to the funds of the Peterborough Health Association, far and away the most important agency of public good in existence in this city. We may thrive materially; may build bridges and pile up factory buildings—may be busy and make money—but all this becomes as dross to gold, if we do not take steps to promote and maintain a healthy, sound, physical citizenship. This is the object of the Peterborough Health Association, which needs and, what is better, deserves, funds, for the promotion and the maintenance of its splendid work. For this reason, in association with the patriotic and national aspects of the golden jubilee celebration in Peterborough, the hearty and practical sympathy of the public is demanded, as a response to both the call of sentiment and duty.

Labour men are naturally "sick and tired" of a Government that doesn't do things.

INCONSISTENCY.

Partisan journals are trying to create the impression that all the opposition to conscription, which opposition appears to be increasing day by day, is of Liberal origin; and some of them are frantically calling upon Sir Wilfrid Laurier to discipline the Quebec element in opposition to conscription. "Here's richness," as Mr. Squeers would say. The most blatant leader of the agitation against conscription in Quebec is a Conservative and a protege of the Borden government. Mr. Tancrede Marail, the anti-conscriptionist agitator in Montreal, who has been organizing and heading the demonstrations, and demanding revolution, is very close to the Conservatives, so close that he is charged with the local interests of the apple of the eye of the Borden government—party patronage. Mr. Tancrede Agitator Marsil was the Conservative candidate for Bagot in 1911, and has had charge of the Borden government patronage in that riding since his defeat by the present Liberal member, who has two sons at the front These are facts and were brought out in the discussion of the customs estimates in the House .It was shown that Mr. Tancrede Marsil, the leader of the anti-conscription campaign in Quebec, had advised the reduction of the salary of a customs official by reducing his rank. It was asked, if in view of the recent developments, the injustice worked upon Tancrede Marsil's recommendation was to be remedied. It is monstrous cheek for partizan journals to try to saddle opposition to conscription upon Liberals, when the chief opponent to it, is kept in the government's confidence as distributor of party patronage.

Protection of the consumer should go hand in hand with the government's call upon the producer.

CON AMORE.

The Senators at Ottawa are hard at work, taking a deep interest in the war. A motion has been introduced requiring that in any conscription measure enacted in Canada it shall be provided that no man whose father, son or brother, who has gone to the seat of war, or is in training, shall be selected for compulsory service. They have also great sport in digesting, con amore, the reports of the special committee on divorce. In Tuesday's "Minutes of the Proceedings of the Senate," the old boys considered, "together with the evidence taken," four reports of the special commitee on divorce. The Senators are too old to fight, but they are not too old—they retain enough of the fire of youth—to enjoy the frisky details of the evidence presented in hearings of divorce petitions . It is a beautiful thing to keep one's youth and to take an interest in the exciting eddies of the interrupted course of true love. The Senators are no longer young in years, and may be short of the natural complement of teeth, yet they reverse the truth of the statement applied to the bride, that she has tied a knot with her tongue that she cannot untie with her teeth — the Senators loose the burdensome bonds of matrimony with gloating glee.

The man with the hoe—the farmer, and the man with the hammer—the mechanic, are the prime packages of Canada's citizenship; and both need the advantages of technical education in our schools.

CLOSING WEEKLY LETTER

(Bryant, Dunn and Company)

We had new high prices for stocks this week led by Steel group. The upturn culminated the day before U.S. Steel sold ex-dividend of 4 1-4 points. The move was attended with a general driving in of shorts. With Steel ex-dividend, some of the more daring operators appeared to think this stock was due to have a substantial break. The break came with a curious combination of circumstances. The closing of the port of New York was announced almost simultaneously with the news of the sinking of an American ship, and many assumed there was connection between the two. They thought a German submarine must be operating near New York. U.S. Steel broke from above 131 to 120 3-4, but other issues declined much less. Not long afterwards it was stated that the port of New York had been opened again and then it appeared from the statement of the British Admiralty that the American ship referred to had been sunk off England. Stocks rallied as easily as they declined and public buying was resumed.

Ample Evidence.

We have had ample evidence this week of public participation in stocks, subject to such dips as we had yesterday morning. We think the rise will go further. The principle of inflation to which we called attention a week ago, is having its effect in the stock market as well as elsewhere. The Washington statement that the new buying commission of the Allies will probably spend $10,000,000,000 a year in this country has been made much of. Anybody can see what this means to our leading industries. They figure ten per cent. profits. This is a billion dollars. It is small wonder that the steel stocks have reached new records. War is built on steel. It would be risky setting any limit to the rise. There is every probability that in a year from now if the war is still going on, profits of the Steel companies will be much larger than to-day. They will of course be heavily taxed, but following the methods of the Allies they will still make enormous profits.

Peace Talk.

We had further peace talk this week, but people attached little importance to it. The speech of Emperor Charles in the Austrian Reichstrat, in which he advocated peace, fell flat. At the time this was being delivered Russian armies were preparing for more vigorous operations, and Germany was shifting some of her forces back to the Eastern Front. Our own government does not appear to take the latest peace talk seriously. Under the circumstances, our security markets will be influenced by factors which point to huge business operations with corresponding profits.

Subscriptions for the great war loan pour in at such a rate that there can be little doubt that it will be largely oversubscribed. Considering this was also the probability that the railroads will be granted an increase in freight rates before July 1st, we think that stocks will work higher in the meantime, and all dips such as we had to-day should be used for purchases. Congress shows a disposition to reduce war taxes below the original programme, thereby relieving the strain on business.

RUPTURE APPLIANCE SPECIALIST HERE

New Invention Retains Rupture Without Knife, Danger or Pain.

Old-fashioned galling, slipping trusses and foreign mail order methods are done away with by the wonderful invention of a Canadian specialist who has devoted years to this one study. The marvelous new Egan "CURATRUS" gives instant retention, rest and security where others have failed. It prevents all irritation, restores every part to its natural position as soon as it is used, and old style trusses are thrown away. Egan's "Curatrus" is intended to close and retain the opening in the shortest time known without an operation and at small cost. Testimonials from men, women and parents. Nothing complicated. No loss of time, but just a natural retentive method. It costs you nothing to investigate. Delays may be dangerous. Now is the time to build yourself physically fit for your daily work. SHOULD RELIEVE ANZACS.

Australian Minister of Defence Makes An Appeal.

LONDON, June 1. — The Daily Mail's Sydney correspondent wires that Pearce, the Commonwealth Minister of Defense, announces that 5,000 Anzacs who made the original landing at Gallipoli are still fighting in France. He appeals for a corresponding number of recruits to allow them a furlough in Australia, and adds: "Many are against compulsory service, but you are fighting for compulsory service for those 5,000 men whom you send back to the fighting line time after time."

Pearce's statement will be made the text of a special recruiting effort.

POLITICAL SITUATION STILL VERY TENSE

Chief Liberal Whip Pardee Pays Another Visit to Sir Lomer Gouin —Unionist Party May Be Formed If Quebec Premier Refuses to Join a Coalition Cabinet.

Special to the Examiner:

OTTAWA, Ont., June 2.—The political situation generally, with coalition and conscription in particular, will continue tense over the week-end. Chief Liberal Whip Pardee, who is himself a strong conscriptionist, has gone to Quebec to make another effort to show Sir Lomer Gouin that the Liberal party must show a loyal and united front on this question. In the meantime the Montreal Gazette, which is strongly Conservative, and generally correct, is taken here to just about state the position of things, when it says editorially this morning that Sir Robert Borden will consent to coalition on condition that compulsory service is put through Parliament and put into effect as early as possible. "The coalition cabinet," says the Gazette, "would consist of an equal number of Liberals and Conservatives, with Sir Robert Borden as Prime Minister, thus giving the present Government a majority of one. If Sir Lomer Gouin consents to join the coalition on these terms, so will Sir Wilfrid Laurier. If he refuses, then a new Unionist party will be created to include nearly all the Conservative members and most of the Liberals outside of Quebec.

OTTAWA, June 2.—A Labour conference here to-day unanimously condemned J. W. Flavelle, head of the Imperial Munitions Board, and demanded his dismissal.

OTTAWA, June 2.—It is stated to-day that the Government has finally fixed the age limit from 20 to 45 for selective draft, to be divided into ten classes.

NEW YORK, June 2.—The machinery is ready and the holiday prepared for the youth of America to register for war next Tuesday, and as for anti-conscriptionists, a crushing welcome awaits them at every registration booth, from Maine to California, and from the great lakes to the gulf, where ten million Americans from 21 to 30 years of age will appear and answer "Present" as Uncle Sam calls the roll. Nation wide reports to the United Press to-day show that America's answer to President Wilson's first call to the colours under the new draft law, has been prompt and hearty.

Irish Convention Is Leading Topic Among Politicians

speed the problems as to the composition of the convention are so momentous that they must entail some delay. In the meantime the portents are not altogether satisfactory in spite of the earnest and united desire on the part of politicians of all parties to see the convention succeed in accomplishing the object for which it is called.

The Ulster Unionists, it is evident, will hold back their approval of the gathering until they can form some idea of the composition of the body. They violently oppose the release of the Sinn Fein prisoners, which I believe the Government will grant in order to clear the atmosphere. The Unionists will also insist that nothing can bind them which does not give outright the six Ulster counties. The enemies of the Irish party, on the other hand, are more concerned in their determination to destroy them than in helping the convention.

Assailing the convention already from different points of view, their proposed schemes are quite as impossible as the Orangemen and Sinn Feiner's demand for a general election and an Irish Republic, while Murphy, of the Independents raises the demand that Canadian Home Rule, that is, Irish government with the right to create tariffs against England, be made a preliminary condition of acceptance of the convention. The Orangemen on the other hand demand a partition of the country as the sine qua non, while Murphy denounces any such proposition in any form whatsoever as utterly destructive of the convention.

All these facts show that the convention is in an exceedingly dangerous position and the best hope of the friends of Ireland is that the common sense of the reasonable men of all parties will insist upon its coming into being and that the composition of the gathering be thoroughly representative and thoroughly fair, that when it meets its members, in view of the dismal prospects of failure both to England and Ireland, will by patient determination and by mutual concessions arrive at a satisfactory compromise.

If a compromise can be reached by common sense the majority who remain in spite of the passionate impatience of certain sections of the Irish people, will back up the result. In the meantime the Germans are helping the situation by their wholesale torpedoing of fishing vessels belonging to the prosperous and industrious fishermen of County Cork.

What Makes A Soldier Great

(By Edgar A. Guest.)

The things that make a soldier great and send him out to die,
To face the flaming cannon's mouth, nor ever questions why.
Are lilacs by a little porch, the row of tulips red;
The Peonies and pansies, too, the old petunia bed;
The grass plot where his children play, the roses on the wall;
'Tis these that make a soldier great. He's fighting for them all.

'Tis not the pomp and pride of kings that make a soldier brave;
'Tis not allegiance to the flag that over him may wave;
For soldiers never fight so well on land or on the foam
As when behind the cause they see the little place called home,
Endanger but that humble street whereon his children run,
You make a soldier of the man who never bore a gun.

What is it through the battle smoke the valiant soldier sees?
The little garden far away, the budding apple trees.
The little patch of ground back there, the children at their play,
Perhaps a tiny mound behind the simple church of gray.
The golden thread of courage isn't linked to castle dome.
But to the spot, where'er it be—the humblest spot called home.

And now the lilacs bud again and all is lovely there,
And homesick soldiers far away know spring is in the air;
The tulips come to bloom again, the grass once more is green,
And every man can see the spot where all his joys have been.
He sees his children smile at him, he hears the bugle call.
And only death can stop him now—he's fighting for them all.

Debentures Were Sold To Bank of Nova Scotia

97 Was Offered and Accepted For Hydro Electric and Sewer Debentures

At a meeting of the Finance committee held yesterday afternoon, tenders were received for the sale of debentures to the amount of ninety thousand dollars' worth of Hydro Electric debentures and sewer debentures to the amount of $9,742.82. The Bank of Nova Scotia was awarded the entire lot at a rate of 97, which will set the vendors a total of $90,556 on the two amounts. The sale of the Hydro debentures was confirmed this morning at a special meeting of the Commission. The committee also passed the usual grist of accounts which will be submitted to the regular meeting of the City Council to be held on Monday evening.

STRIKES IN PETROGRAD.

More Than 100 Factories Doing War Work Will Be Tied Up.

LONDON, June 1.—Strikes or other measures to paralyze production have been decided upon in more than 100 of the largest factories in Petrograd, most of which are engaged in war work, Reuter's Petrograd correspondent telegraphs.

The Health of The Province

TORONTO, June 2.—Reports to the Provincial Board of Health for the month of May show for the province an increase in scarlet fever, diphtheria and typhoid fever, but a marked decrease in measles and whooping cough. On the whole the health of the Province is better as a total of only 1507 cases and 108 deaths were reported for last month as against 3,620 cases and 126 deaths in May of last year.

HYDRO ELECTRIC ACQUIRES ONTARIO POWER COMPANY

People's Project in $22,669,000 Deal Becomes Producer as Well as Distributor of Energy—Hydro Now Biggest of Its Kind in World

TORONTO, June 2. — Sir Adam Beck has announced that the Hydro-electric Power Commission of Ontario has acquired the assets of the Ontario Power Company for $22,669,000, on the following terms:

"The company agrees to deliver all its Canadian properties, along with all its physical assets and contracts for the delivery of power, in return for which the Commission agrees to pay in its own debentures to the extent of $8,000,000 for the $10,000,000 of stock now held by the company, and to assume the bond liability of $14,669,000, secured by a first mortgage on the property. The company is to receive the current assets, and to assume the current liabilities."

Thus the Hydro-electric Commission acquires the Ontario Power Company's Canadian properties and other assets without the payment of a dollar in cash.

TRIUMPH FOR HYDRO.

It is another triumph for the people of Ontario. The Hydro-electric Commission will take possession of the property on the first of August. The municipalities will get their power at $9 per horse power, and, even selling power at that figure it is estimated the plant would pay for itself in twenty-five years.

The principal owner of the Ontario Power Company was Mr. John Joseph Albright of Buffalo, N.Y., who agreed to sell to the Hydro-electric Commission ninety thousand shares of the company's stock at $80 per share. The shares have a par value of $100 each, and Mr. Albright has undertaken to accept as payment Hydro-electric four per cent. forty-year bonds. It is believed the Commission can buy the remaining ten per cent. of the stock on similar terms.

HYDRO BIGGEST IN WORLD.

With the acquirement of the property of the Ontario Power Company the Hydro-electric Power Commission becomes the biggest institution of its kind in the world. There is now invested in Hydro property in this province practically seventy million dollars, including the money put in by the municipalities. Hitherto the Hydro Commission has really only been a distributor of Niagara power, but with the purchase of the Ontario Power Company's plant, which is located at the foot of Niagara Falls on the Canadian side it becomes a producer as well as a retailer of electrical energy generated at Niagara Falls. Of course the Commission has large systems in other parts of the province both for the manufacture and distribution of power.

A GOOD BARGAIN.

The excellent bargain made by Sir Adam Beck is only partly illustrated by figures taken from the company's books, to which the Hydro Commission has had access for the past two or three years. In the first place the Hydro Commission is getting ninety per cent. of the company's outstanding capital stock at eighty cents on the dollar. The company's customers are stable and reputable concerns and a large quantity of power that is now going to the United States will be available later on for the use of the people of Ontario.

The company's book valuation is $26,900,694. The total revenue for 1916 from the sale of power was $2,396,277; the net income for that year was $1,501,353. The interest on its bonds was $767,118, so that the net earnings for the company after paying interest on the bonds, was $734,235.

DOURO COUNCIL HOLDS A BUSY SESSION

Following are the minutes of the Douro Council meeting held on Monday, May 28th, 1917.

Council met at the Town Hall Douro on Monday, May 28th as a Court of Revision. All the members were present.

Having subscribed to the oath of member of Court of Revision the following appeals were heard with Mr. Hamilton in the chair.

John B. Condon appealed against assessment of east half of Lot 11, Con. 6 as being too high.

On motion of M. Coughlin and M. Kennedy this was reduced $200.00.

M. Garvey appealed to have part of north east corner of east half of Lot 5, assessed to P. G. Towers as owner. Appeal allowed.

James Sweeney appealed against assessment on east half Lot 2, Con. 5, as being too high.

On motion of M. Walsh and M. Kennedy this assessment was confirmed.

James Leahy apealed to have John London assessed for west half of Lot 6, Con. 6 as owned. Appeal allowed.

J. J. McBain appealed to have assessment of part of Lot 2, Con 12 reduced as part of lot had recently been sold to Gough Co.

Moved by M. Walsh and seconded by M. Kennedy that owing to not having sufficient information on the appeal of J. J. McBain no action be taken. Carried.

T. H. Jones, Toronto appealed against part of north half of Lot 18 Con. 4 being assessed as a stone quarry. Appeal not allowed.

The Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario appealed to have property owned by the Commission in township of Douro assessed for school and municipal purposes only. Appeal allowed.

Moved by M. Kennedy seconded by Geo. Hamilton that the assessment roll be confirmed and Court of Revision being concluded that the Council go into regular session for the transaction of ordinary business.—Carried

On motion the minutes of last regular and special meetings were read and confirmed.

Moved by M. Coughlin seconded by Geo. Hamilton that $37.00 be granted to the Lakefield Agricultural Society and that the Treasurer be authorized to pay same to the Secretary of the Society on or before September 1st.—Carried.

Moved by M. Coughlin seconded by M. Coughlin that on the order of the Reeve or any Councillor the Treasurer is hereby authorized to pay to the amount of $10.00.—Carried.

Moved by M. Kennedy seconded by M. Coughlin that by-law No. 337 be read a third time and passed and the following commissioners appointed to expend appropriations under same, viz. Road No. 1 Henry Ougram; Road No. 3, Wm. J. McManus; Road No. 6, Wm. Barry, and Road No. 7, John Ball.—Carried.

Moved by Geo. Hamilton seconded by M. Coughlin that the Reeve and Clerk be appointed to get legal advice as to proper proceedings to be taken in case of obstructions being placed on highway.—Carried.

By-law 340 allowing persons wishing to commute for statute labour to do so at a rate of $1.50 per day was passed.

Moved by Geo. Hamilton seconded by M. Kennedy that the sum of eight hundred and eighty dollars be appropriated for expenditure on the roads and bridges in the municipality in the year 1917 and commissioners appointed who shall have power to let by contract or to appoint subcommissioners to assist in the expenditure of said appropriations as subdivided and in the manner herein specified and in the event of any of the appropriations remaining unexpended after the 14th day of December, the Treasurer be authorized to strike some off his books.

Grant to Ward No. 2—M. Kennedy commissioner, $200.

Grant to Ward No. 3—M. Coughlin commissioner $200.

Grant to Ward No. 4—R. Moloney, $200.

Boundary between Douro and Otonabee, M. Walsh commissioner $80.

Wages for man and team to be at the rate of $4.00 per day of 10 hours and for man to be at the rate of $2.00 per day of 10 hours.—Carried.

The following accounts were passed viz:—

Thos. O'Brien, repairing side road $5.25; B. Q. Dench salary as assessor $70.00; Mrs. Agnes McMurray balance of collector's salary and postage $10.93; Clerk part of salary, $25.00; A. G. Clyndale, tile, $8.10; Gordon Payne, overcharge of taxes $1.00; John McMurray overcharge of taxes $2.00.

Council adjourned to meet at a call from the Reeve.

Rupture Is Curable

Results Not Influenced by Age or Length of Time Standing, Reports Expert.

Rupture is not a tear or breach in the abdominal wall, as commonly supposed, but it is a stretching or dilation of a natural opening, says J. Y. Egan, of Toronto, the noted Rupture Appliance Specialist who will visit Peterborough, Empress Hotel, Saturday, Sunday, June 9th and 10th.

The "Curatrus" as now used and approved will not only retain any case of rupture perfectly, affording immediate and complete comfort, but is intended to assist nature to close the opening in the shortest time known without an operation. This appliance has received highest awards wherever shown, producing results without harmful injections or other aids. Mr. Egan has testimonials from our own section for inspection. If interested call, he will be pleased to show you same without charge.

Lull On The British Front

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, June 2.—The lull on the British western front continued with even more than usual quiet last night, Field Marshal Haig's report indicated to-day. "In the neighbourhood of Bullecourt the enemy's artillery was active at night," he said. "There was also fire around Vimy village."

"If you forgot to buy Mennen's don't shave to-morrow. Wait and get a Mennen Shave on Monday."

FOR MEN ONLY

The special announcement is made by the Globe Tailoring Co., corner Brock and George streets, of the purchase of a Toronto Tailoring Coy's stock of suitings at a discount of 60 p.c. off actual cost prices. These goods have been shipped to their Peterborough branch store, and the men of the city are to have an opportunity for the next four weeks to reap some of the bargains. Many men will need a new summer suit, so that the offerings by the Globe Tailoring Co. in tweed, tworsted, guaranteed blue serge, and other English fabrics are very attractive and worth seeing. Mr. Green, of Toronto, the head of the firm, is in the city arranging for this special sale.

Corinthian Chapter Visited St. John's of Cobourg Last Night

Eighteen members of Corinthian Chapter Royal Arch Masons accompanied Mr. R. S. Cotton, superintendent of Ontario district No. 2, on his official visit to St. John's chapter, Cobourg, last night. The Corinthian party motored down and back, and incidentally shared a very pleasant evening with the members of the Cobourg chapters. Among the Peterborough delegation were the following gentlemen: Messrs. H. Rush, W. A. Logan, G. W. Haley, R. Dobbin, W. J. Henry, W. Lytle, W. Stocker, C. B. Adair, S. Taylor, A. D. Jardine, Isaac Richardson, J. D. Cameron, W. J. Dickenson and Geo. B. Wilson.

CROSS, SICKLY BABIES

Sickly babies—those who are cross and fretful; whose little stomach and bowels are out of order; who suffer from constipation, indigestion, colds or any other of the minor ills of little ones—can be promptly cured by Baby's Own Tablets. Concerning them Mrs. Jean Paradis, St. Bruno, Que., writes: "My baby was very ill and vomited all his food. He was cross and cried night and day and nothing helped him till I began using Baby's Own Tablets. They soon set his right and now he is a fat, healthy boy." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Shooting Case At Trenton

Mr. Thomas Lapointe of Peterborough Makes a Statement

Mr. Thomas Lapointe, Simcoe St., brother of the late Louis Lapointe, who was fatally shot at Trenton by a guard, makes the following statement regarding the reports in the newspapers sent out by the despatches.

The deceased had lived in Trenton all his life, had worked in the works about five months. He wore a Government badge on the lapell of his coat, and his pass in the band of his hat. It is claimed so long as the above conditions were carried out, it was not necessary to give the pass word. The tragedy took place about 3.30 in the afternoon.

It seems unfortunate that with all the precautions taken that the life of a fellow-citizen should be cut off when it should have been unnecessary.

Early Morning Fire In The C. G. E. Test Department

A big transformer built for the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission burst into flames about four o'clock this morning in the transformer test department of the Canadian General Electric Company, and was seriously damaged by fire and water. Several other machines were injured by the water used in extinguishing the blaze, which also caused some minor loss in the department. A heavy load of probably 110,000 volts was being used in the test, and the fire is believed to have originated from overheating. The oil used in the transformer was inflammable, and gave the test employees and the city fire department a battle before it was overcome. Many of the coils were burned and otherwise damaged.

Mr. E. G. Patterson stated that the loss had not yet been estimated, but it is understood that it may reach from $10,000 to $15,000.

Butter Held Steady During The Week

Comment on the Market Situation as Regards Food Stuffs

The following comment on the market situation as regards food stuffs, appeared in Canadian Grocer this week:

"A further decline of $1 per barrel was registered in the price of Manitoba flour during the week, which now makes the selling price $3 per barrel under the recent highest point. Ontario winter wheat also showed a similar decline. There is now considerable flour going into the United States for use by the army. Millfeeds declined $2 per ton quite generally. There is a lighter demand for these products now that grass for stock is more abundant.

Sugar Steady.

Sugar held in steady market during the week. Reports from Cuba continue to be favourable toward a fairly heavy production. Demand for sugar is somewhat light at present. Hams were slightly easier in price during the week and prices being paid for live hogs were at lower levels than last week. Production of eggs is stated to be mounting up well as compared with last year, but prices have not been much lower as yet. Butter held steady in the Ontario market, but was lower in the Quebec markets. There is expectation among commission men that both butter and cheese will be lower in price. Cheese is in a waiting condition, due to the fact that the new purchasing commissions has not yet set the price at which they wil buy.

Pineapples Higher.

Pine apples were higher during the week, but there is every possibility they will be lower in price in the near future. A strike which has been in progress in Havana has been settled and shipments of Cuban pineapples are now permitted to proceed. It is anticipated that the second week in June will see about the heaviest arrivals of the season at which time prices will in all probability be the lowest. Advances have been made in such lines as soaps, peanut butter, condensed milk, ammonia, ice cream salt, shelled walnuts. In spite of the holiday breaking into the week, business with wholesale houses was quite satisfactory."

A WEAK CHESTED BOY.

"My daughter suffered from inflamed eyelids and eczema on her head," writes Mr. H. W. Lear, of North Pleasford, Nfld. "The child was in a bad state and suffered greatly. The doctor failed to help her and on the recommendation of a friend I used Dr. Chase's Ointment which made a complete cure. With a grateful heart I write you this letter."

Sir Wilfrid Confers With His Lieutenants

OTTAWA, June 1.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier will confer with his lieutenants this afternoon. Following the conference it is probable that some indication will be given of the final outcome of the present difficult situation. A climax to the two weeks doubting will, it is expected, be reached by the beginning of the week. The Liberals are making a serious effort to bring harmony out of the present political chaos.

SAFETY IN Pasteurized Milk

140 Typhoid Cases in Neighbouring Town

The Statement of Dr. J.W.T. McCullough of the Provincial Board of Health on the Outbreak in Orillia is herewith annexed:—

Only a few days ago, the newspapers gave the particulars of a serious outbreak of Typhoid Fever in a Northern Town, not a hundred miles from Peterboro, in which it was stated that 140 cases and 2 deaths had occurred in two weeks.

Investigation was made by the Ontario Board of Health, and the epidemic proved to have been caused by Milk supplied from a Farm where several people had Typhoid Fever.

QUESTION:—

What is the Lesson for Peterboro

ANSWER:—

That all are Protected from MILK IMPURITIES who use

Pasteurized Milk Endorsed

Dr. McCULLOUGH Says:—

"At the beginning of the present year the board sent up to all municipalities that had not a milk by-law a copy of a model by-law, and suggesting that these be established, and further suggested the pasteurization of milk. If this had been done in Orillia, there would have been no typhoid fever there from a cause such as milk, as pasteurization destroys the germs.

"Now the board has ordered the Council of that place to establish pasteurization without delay, and other municipalities will do well to follow in this line."

Temple, where Adjt. and Mrs. McElhiney will conduct a special service on their behalf.

The special services will continue each night during the week.

On Wednesday evening next Adjt. and Mrs. Lyndall, of Toronto who have lately returned from India, will do a special service in Indian costume.

Major and Mrs. Jennings will conduct the next week-end services.

Further arrangements will be made later.

The open air service to-morrow morning will be held at the corner of Harvey and McDonald.

"Hank" Gowdy Quits Baseball To Enlist

CINCINNATI, Ohio, June 1.—"Hank" Gowdy, Boston National catcher, and hero of the 1914 World Series, to-day gained the distinction of being the first ball player to relinquish voluntarily the luxurious life of a big league ball player to carry a gun as a private in the army. Gowdy to-day left for his home in Columbus, Ohio, to enlist in the Ohio National Guard. The catcher will report for military duty July 15, playing ball up to that date. His team mates were infected with the military fever by his decisive step and a day off, and Stallings fears others will follow suit.

A GASOLINE SAVER

The Maxwell Motor Car Does Some Smart Stunts at 30 Miles to the Gallon of Gasoline

For those owners of motor cars, who are studying economy in gasoline, the recent record made by the Maxwell is attracting the attention of prospective buyers. With the price of gasoline up to 38 cents per gallon, demonstrations made by the Maxwell in averaging about thirty miles per gallon of gasoline, have given much publicity to the Maxwell Company. In rates of power Maxwell has been proven to be most economical in gasoline consumption, twenty-five miles to every gallon, has been counted good work, but this later experience of the Maxwel shows up eeeeeeeeee ohhr doohr didwofiwoke strongly for this car.

As will be seen by the announcement from the local Gillespie Garage, Aylmer street, another economy contest is authorized by Walter E. Flanders, President and General Manager of the Maxwell Motor Company.

Fifty thousand dollars in U.S. liberty bonds will be given by the Maxwell Motor Company as prizes in a nation-wide Maxwell owner's one gallon gasoline economy competition, June 16th to 25th, similar in scope to the great dealers' contest of May 23rd and inspired by its tremendous success.

Local Maxwell owners have as good a chance as any to win liberty bonds. The contest is open to women drivers as well as men. The contest details will be published in a few days.

Purse and Letter Of Farewell to Mr. And Mrs. Campbell

A number of the residents of Chandos Township gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Campbell, ex-Reeve of the township, on the eve of their departure from that locality and assumption of the position as Superintendent and Matron of the County House of Refuge, when the following address was presented to them:

To Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Campbell, Clydesdale, Ontario:

Dearly Beloved Friends, —It was with deep regret we learned a few short weeks ago that you were about to take your departure from our midst, but it was, indeed, with extreme pleasure that we learned of your appointment as Superintendent and Matron of the County House of Refuge, and we take this opportunity at the eve of your departure of offering to you both our heartiest sentiments of joy and congratulation. We also feel proud to think that the appointment has fallen on such worthy shoulders, and we were pleased to know that the County Council has chosen one so eminently qualified to fill the vacant position.

We know how ardently and faithfully you have worked in whatever capacity you were employed, and we feel that in your new positon you will gain the love and friendship of the inmates of the House and instead of giving you looks of sarcasm they will look to you both as a father and a mother.

We know that your loss will be greatly felt as Superintendent of the Sunday school, where you always showed such a good example of Christian charity, fatherly solicitude for all, and your genial disposition were a few of your stirling qualities which endeared you to all the people you came in contact with. You were always ready with a willing hand to help along any scheme that would in any way advance the interest of the community, and we feel during your term in the County Council you have made many warm friends who will heartily congratulate you on your appointment.

We now ask you to accept this purse as a slight token of the high esteem you are both held by the people of Clydesdale, and once more we extend to you both our best wishes and congratulation.

Signed on behalf of the well wishers of Clydesdale.

"Jas. Donald."
"Herb Moloney."

PUMPING ENGINE WAS TESTED OUT THIS AFTERNOON

A Pump Pressure of Two Hundred and Seventy Pounds Was Obtained Manufacturers Were Satisfied

Members of the City Council, manufacturers and private citizens to the number of several hundred turned out this afternoon to witness the trial operation of a motor driven pumping engine. The demonstration was held on Murray street near the creek that winds its way through the city. The engine, which was manufactured by the La France Fire Engine Company, has been purchased for the use of the Hull Fire Department. At the request of a number of aldermen, the manufacturers agreed to drop the machine off in Peterborough for a day and put on a demonstration for the benefit of the City Council and the manufacturers. The demonstration included trial runs throughout the city. Some of the steepest hills that could be found were successfully negotiated by the car, which is propelled by a one hundred and twenty horse power engine.

Pump Pressures.

The manufacturers, including Mr. W. H. Denham of the Quaker Oats Company and Mr. E. G. Patterson of the Canadian General Electric Company, manifested considerable interest in the pump test. The pump pressure varied all the way from sixty pounds to two hundred and seventy pounds. Four lines of hose were laid and as many streams were shot high in the air at the above stated pressures.

"You ought to have two machines like that," said Mr. Denham to a couple of the aldermen who were standing near. The demonstration was carried out under the supervision of Mr. B. E Thomas, representing the American La France Fire Engine Company.

Co e your tongue lest it confine you.

CHIEF MEYERS SUBSCRIBES $10,000 U. S. WAR BONDS

St. Louis Sporting News:—Lo, the poor Indian, hasn't much to thank these United States for. Not much of that freedom and right to the pursuit of happiness that we white interlopers declared for ourselves ever was apportioned to him, and now we, going abroad to bring liberty to other peoples, hardly can look back over our own history and say that we have been consistent. We set out to demand that each race shall enjoy the privileges of its own land, and poor Lo, pressed into the corners and the barrens, can't be blamed for grunting sarcastically

Yet he doesn't do that. What does he do? Well, the baseball players had it suggested to them that they should invest in some of the Liberty Loan bonds, and many of them did. This one took $50 worth and this one $100; maybe this one $500. Jack Meyers, Brooklyn, catcher—Tortes, the Mission Indian—took $10,000 worth of the bonds, and his name heads all the list of player subscribers.

Perhaps, being an Indian, Jack Meyers has a keener appreciation of what liberty means to a man, because his race has been denied so much of it in this land of the free.

Y. M. C. A's MISSION IS TO CONSERVE YOUNG MANHOOD OF CANADA

Capt. H. A. Pearson and Mr. J. W. Hopkins, Secretary of the Toronto Central Y.M.C.A. Conferred With Y. M. C. A. Board of Directors Last Evening.

The third of a series of conferences between the Y.M.C.A. Board of Directors and other friends of the association was held last evening. As far as progress was concerned, this third conference seemed in advance of any of the previous ones. The gathering was favoured with the presence of Captain H. A. Pearson, a former Peterborough man, who spent two years in France in connection with Y.M.C.A. work for soldiers, also Mr. J. W. Hopkins, secretary of the Central Department of the Toronto Y.M.C.A. Both of these men were called upon to address the gathering, and their words were most inspiring. Captain Pearson reminded the men of the fact that Canada's best young men have laid down their lives at the front, and that the real cost of the war to Canada is the loss of these young men, the future leaders of the Dominion. The problem at the present time is that of training boys to take up the burdens of Canada's future. This work is the Y.M.C.A.'s call, and the most important thing that the association can do at the present time is to conserve the young manhood of Canada.

Mr. Hopkins said that he had not come to Peterborough because he had no problems of his own, but because of the fact that he was called upon to face problems in his own work, and sympathized with others who were also seeking the solution to grave problems. Mr. Hopkins says in reference to the Y.M.C.A. budget, "We at Toronto Central must dig up one thousand dollars per week for salaries and wages and $12,000 a month must be secured in cash to cover our current expenses." The budget of $9,500 that the Peterborough Y.M.C.A. had adopted seemed to him to be very modest, in view of the increasing value that must be placed on the young manhod of the community. He said: One can scarcely run a cigar store for the amount that you are making for your current expenses this year. A well-known student of economics in Toronto has very carefully computed that the worth of a normal boy to the State was $100,000. He said, "Capitalize your boys' department at $100,000 per boy and figure the earning power of this capital and see if it would not be much greater than the amount you are asking the public to give in order to conserve the manhood of your city."

Mr. Hopkins also said that nearly everyone saw life from a new viewpoint than before the war. Before the war we did not know what sacrifice was, although we had talked of sacrifice in vague terms, but now mothers have learned what it was to give their boys, wives have learned what it was to sacrifice their husbands, and communities have learned to give their best red-blooded manhood to the Empire's need.

We did not know what service was before the war, but now almost every one is seeking the best way of serving their fellows, their municipalities and their country.

We did not know what giving was before the war. Toronto had always been known for the liberality of its gifts to benevolent causes, and the first year of the war very readily subscribed $800,000 to their patriotic funds. This was giving, but not as we know it to-day. In Toronto in three days $3,500,000 was subscribed to patriotic purposes.

The work of the Y.M.C.A. was appreciated before the war, but no one realized that it was being prepared to meet the needs of a time like this. One man has said as he considered the training that our battalions receive before they are fit to go to the front, that if all the past seventy years of Y.M.C.A. history had simply been to train and prepare the association for service in the present war, that it would have been money and time well invested for the service now being rendered was worth all the money that had ever been invested in this movement.

In answer to the question as to what he would do if he were launching a campaign in behalf of the Peterborough Y.M.C.A. this year, Mr. Hopkins said that the public first should be fully informed as to what the association had accomplished and regarding its programme for the future. Second, he would confer with men and women of means who held large interests in the community and who would appreciate the value of the right type of manhood, to start the fund with a number of liberal contributions that would be an expression of their appreciation for the effort that is being made to conserve manhood, which is really the one big asset of the community to-day. Third, Mr. Hopkins thought that an outside leader would be necessary if the campaign was to be a success. Local members of board are likely to be too busy in their own affairs to do more than ordinary routine work in connection with the campaign. Members of the staff should continue their regular programme of work, so it seemed to him that an experienced man from the outside should be brought in for at least two weeks to study the field and direct the setting up of the campaign.

Mr. Hopkins strongly urged the Board of Directors and the other men present to leave no stone unturned in the effort to provide for every need of the local association this year. There will be a period of readjustment after the war, and money may be secured more easily at the present time than for several years after the war closes.

The Board of Directors adjourned, to meet on Tuesday evening, June 5th, on which occasion all the advice received from the various conferences held will be reviewed and final plans for a financial campaign will be made. The directors believe that the public in general is in sympathy with them as they undertake this great work of building manhood in our city, and that our citizens will back up any effort that may seem wise to be made this year.

How You May Change Your Face Completely

Any woman not satisfied with her complexion can easily remove it and have a new one. The thin veil of stifling half-dead cuticle is an encumbrance and should be removed to give the fresh, vigorous, young skin underneath a chance to show itself and to breathe. There's a simple, old-fashioned remedy which will always do the work. Get an ounce of pure mercolized wax from your druggist and apply it at night like cold cream, washing it off in the morning. The wax will gently absorb all the lifeless skin and leave a healthy and beautiful complexion, as fresh as a child's. Naturally it takes with it all such facial blemishes as freckles, moth patches, sallowness, liver spots, pimples. It is pleasant to use, and economical. The face so treated soon looks years younger.

To keep the skin free from wrinkles and furrows there's nothing quite so good as the old reliable saxolite lotion. It is only necessary to dissolve an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint of witch hazel and bathe the face in this as required. The result is instantaneous and wonderful, and there is no harmful effect whatever.

Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I wonder if any of your readers has noticed the entire absence—on the 2nd of June—of buds on the lilac trees. I have carefully examined my healthy lilac bushes and fail to find the slightest signs of a bud or the slightest presence of a bosom. Others have told me of the same conditions in the lilac trees. Other years the lilacs are in full bloom. Or is the absence of buds another incident in the backwardness of the season?

Yours truly,
BLOOM-LOVER.

The Car For The Business Man

THE FORD is the ideal car for city business and professional men. It meets their every need fully and plays an important part in the rapid transaction of business.

Many people now are discarding their heavy limousines which are costly to buy and expensive to maintain, for light, handy, efficient, economical Fords.

The use of Ford cars will assist in reducing the high cost of living and effect a great saving to the nation during wartime.

Think it over—for active service—buy a Ford. Runabout $475; Touring $495; Coupelet $695; F.O.B. Ford, Ont.

MILITARY NEWS

I also got Stephen's and Maggie's and Michael's letter. Will answer them very soon now. I may write them any day now, but will not be able to send them for a few days.

Well, Mary, I suppose you are all busy putting in the garden. Put in lots, for I think I will be home for Christmas, and you know how fond I am of vegetables. I suppose Dad and Stephen have all the crop in by this time. Tell them to not work too hard Well, Mary, Joe and Anthony are fine I haven't heard from Dan or Lewis lately, but I guess they are having good times. Oh, yes, Mary, I got my parcel from the ladies of the Red Cross Society. Many thanks for it. You thank them all for me until I get back and remember me to every one of them, and to all my old chums. Well, dear sister, I think I have told you all for this time, so with love to dad and mother and all the rest of you I remain.

Your loving brother,
PTE. M. SCOTT.

Mrs. M. McIlmoyle, of Young's Point, has received the following letter from her brother, Pte. Tom Drain, formerly of the 93rd Battalion, who was wounded some time ago:

I received your two post-cards and letter. Was glad to hear that you are well, and your letter found me the same.

I am back to duty again. My wound is all healed up nicely, and I am able to work again. I had my ten days' leave in London and had a fine time. I expect I will have to go to France again, but I do not know just when. I expect to be training here for a month or so yet.

I heard that Ruttan was over here, but I have not seen him yet. I have been looking hard to find him, but have not yet succeeded. I met Louis Drain in London. He was down on sick leave. If you see any of his people tell them I spent three days with him, and that he was quite well.

FINE SCOTTISH ATHLETE IN CANADIAN ARMY, KILLED

Enlisted in Calgary—Football International and High Jump Champion.

EDINBURGH, June 1.—News has reached Edinburgh of the death of a Scottish athletic international, Capt. D. C. Campbell, who, after studying at Edinburgh University, went to Canada in the autumn of 1913 to practice law. He joined the Canadian force at Calgary, and was wounded during the Somme offensive, returning to the front a few months ago.

Capt. Campbell, who is the thirteenth Scottish athletic international to lose his life in the war was a fine, all-round athlete when at home in Caithness, winning ten first prizes on one day. When he went to Edinburgh he specialized as a high jumper, and won the Scottish Inter-University high jump championship, the Scottish A.A.A. high jump title, 1910 to 1913, and the high jump in the Scots-Irish International in 1910 and 1911, being the only Scotsman to win this event.

in
THE GILDED CAGE

A brilliant, unusual drama in which Miss Brady's wonderful personality is seen to splendid advantage. This great picture has been called "The sweetest story every told," and those who see it will agree that this is an excellent description for it.

"The Gilded Cage" strikes a high note in all particulars. The story interests and entertains. It grips the spectators from the start and holds them enthralled through all the reels. It would be difficult to improve upon this drama in any point.

Scenario by Frances Marion
Photographed by Arthur Edeson

Story by J. I. Clarke, Directed by Harley Knowles, Produced by Peerless Studio. Released on the World Film Program

EXPLOSION A SUCCESS

Northern Part of Quaker Oats Warehouse is Destroyed By Dynamite

The process of cleaning up the ruins of the Quaker Oats Company is making rapid progress. To-day the northern part of the big warehouse was wiped out of existence by means of dynamite. The explosion was a huge success, the six storey structure collapsing like a house of cards and crumbling into small pieces. The blast could be heard in all parts of the city while the air in the vicinity was for some time filled with dust particles. The southern part of the warehouse is now being wired for the explosion that will send it crashing to the ground.

First Band Concert Held

His Worship Mayor Duffus Made Recruiting Speech

The first band concert of the season was held in Victoria Park last night and in spite of the cool weather a large crowd gathered to hear the enjoyable programme rendered by the band of the 57th Regiment. In addition to the band members, Mr. Douglas Carlisle sang "Elgar's "Land of Hope and Glory," in excellent voice. During the evening His Worship, Mayor Duffus made a brief but forcible recruiting speech in which he expressed the confident belief that enough men would come forward voluntarily in this district to supply the needed reinforcements. His Worship paid a hearty tribute to the work the women have been doing in connection with the war.

Miss Phyllis Cumberland, Russell Munition Co., Toronto, is the week end guest of friends in the city.

OBITUARY

MRS. MICHAEL COLLINS.

Margret O'Brien, beloved wife of Michael Collins, Kinmount, passed away on Monday, May 14th, after an illness of three years.

Mrs. Collins was born in Douro in 1856, and came to Galway with her parents when six months of age, where she has been a resident ever since.

She leaves to mourn her loss, besides her sorrowing husband, two daughters, Mrs. M. D. Hickey, Galway, and Mrs. Wm. Doherty of Somerville, and five sons, Jack of Toronto, James of Kingston, and Lawrence of Galway, and William and Leonard at home.

The funeral took place Wednesday morning at nine o'clock from the family residence and proceeded to the Church of the Immaculate Conception, where solemn requiem high mass was sung by Rev. J. J. Guirey and afterwards to the Roman Catholic cemetery, Galway, where interment took place.

THE LATE MARK MANLEY.

There passed away suddenly at Precious Corners, on Sunday, May 27th, at the home of his cousin, M. Manley, Mark Manley, Sr., in his 87th year. Mr. Manley was born in Somersetshire, Eng., in 1831, and came to Canada when he was about 27 years of age, locating first in Port Breton, and afterwards at Precious Corners, where he has remained for nearly sixty years. Mr. Manley was a successful blacksmith by trade, and through his business became well known to a large circle of friends.

He was for over fifty years a member of the Methodist Church, until the last few years serving in the capacity of superintendent of the Sunday School or teacher, during which time he continued to influence the lives of scores of young people, many of whom were present at his funeral to bear witness to the love and esteem which they bore their old friend and teacher.

The funeral service was conducted by Rev. E. W. Tink, B.A., who took for his text: "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord." The speaker spoke of the power of a good life.

The funeral was largely attended. In addition to many of the home friends there were present Joseph and Henry Manley, Peterborough; T. M. Williamson of Hamilton; and George Precious, of St. Thomas.

Beautiful floral as well as spoken tributes bore witness to the place Mr. Manley had earned in the hearts of his many friends.—Cobourg Sentinel-Star.

ALF. FLANNAGAN HAS ENLISTED IN WINNIPEG

Alf. Flanagan of Fort William who played on the 207th hockey team last winter, enlisted in a Winnipeg Battalion, according to a letter received from him by one of his Peterborough friends. He adds: 'So there is no possible chance of my being in Peterborough next winter."

IN MEMORY OF PTE. FRED STANLEY.

My brother dear he went away
To fight for his Empire dear,
But God thought it best
And took him to rest
To a land that knows no fear.
—Brother Herbert.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of my dear son, Pte. Fred Stanley:
The place made vacant in our home
Can never more be filled,
For one so precious to our hearts has gone,
The voice we loved is stilled.

Jesus can make a bed of clay
Soft like a downy pillow,
While upon his Saviour's breast his head is laid
And breathed his life away.
—Mrs. W. Stanley,
From His Mother and Family.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of my dear brother, Pte. Fred Stanley, of the 4th C.M.R., killed in action June 2nd, 1916:
I had a treasured brother once,
I loved him, oh, so well,
But when he heard the country's call
He faced the shot and shell.

Six long dreary months he stood it,
Through the thickest of the fray,
But my dear brother's days were numbered,
For the next shell came his way.

All is dark and dreary around me,
Lonely is my heart to-day,
For the one I loved so dearly
Is forever laid away.
—Sister Maud.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of Pte. R. B. Smith, of 8th Mounted Rifles, who fell in the Battle of Ypres on June 2nd, 1916.
We miss him, yes, no tongue can tell
How deep, how truly and how well;
Christ loved him too and thought it best
To take him home with Him to rest.
—Inserted by his Mother.

FOWLER'S PEBLO GLASSES

CAN YOU GUESS RIDDLES?

Some people are very good at guessing—Dr. Fowler never does any of his optical works by guess, he goes by the records shown to him, conclusively by his scientific instruments, which tell him exactly the trouble and what to do to correct it. This is why he guarantees all glasses he fits his patrons with to be absolutely satisfactory.

TIRED OUT KIDNEYS.

Kidney troubles are so frightfully common because the kidneys are so easily upset by overwork or exposure in eating and drinking. Cure is effected not by whipping them to renewed effort but by awakening the action of the liver and bowels by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This rests the kidneys and makes them well. Backache and urinary disorders then disappear.

PREMIER'S UNCERTAINTY BLOCKS THE WAY TO COALITION GOVERNMENT

Sir Robert Victim of the Office, Not Its Master —Vacillates With the Hours and As Callers Come and Go — Unable To Keep His Mind Made Up — Is Being Compared With Asquith — Canadian Lloyd-George Is Lacking

OTTAWA, June 4. — When Mr. Chamberlain had toured South Africa after the Boer War, he was asked in Capetown, what he found in Johannesburg. He answered: "Mostly mining engineers, mostly Americans, mostly Hennen Jennings." You can sum up the troubles which beset Ottawa, and through the whole country after the Chamberlain manner. "Mostly the war, mostly the Government, mostly Sir Robert Borden." Wherever you turn you come across Robert the Unready, an honest, patriotic, pathetic figure of a man, who is the victim, and not the master, of his job. Until the cardinal factor in the situation is realized, the situation in which this democracy is floundering remains confused, and the future is overcast.

Holding the Asquith Attitude.

Nobody in Canada ever had more of the public good-will than Sir Robert Borden. Nobody has str.ven more consistently to deserve the good will. Whatever happens, the kindliness of his countrymen will be given to him, without grudge and without envy. He may feel now as Mr. Asquith did when he said that he intended to remain at his post till the war was won. There was a time when he had a very modest opinion of his own capacity for statesmanship. But that time has passed. His innate stubbornness—which is not always strength—has become an ascendant quality.

Some time ago, in the bitterness of his soul, Sir Robert said to a friend: "It doesn't seem to matter what I do, I never get credit for anything." Others tell you that when he wants anything from a department, he asks for it in a manner of bated breath and whispering humbleness. It is well known that in his Cabinet he has been an observant more than a dominant force. In social company he has been a much appreciated member, as long as the subjects of discussion were of no particular importance. But as soon as the ladies have retired, and matters came into talk on which there was room for illumination, and the freedom which is understood to belong to conversations which are naturally regarded as confidential, the Prime Minister of Canada has displayed that sense of retirement which is so conspicuously lacking by sturdy members of his Cabinet.

Getting the Last Word.

Certain of his colleagues have long used their knowledge that the man who has the last word with their chief through him—and he is a great seeing his counsel translated into action—or more often into inaction.

A score of stories could be told of deputations that have gone to Sir Robert to press some non-party measure upon him, and have come away confident that something worth while would be done, speedily and effectively. They have learned that chagrin is one of the rewards of patriotic purpose. Take an example. Several gentlemen from Montreal went to Ottawa, by special arrangement, to urge a plan of action which would have quickly and efficiently marshalled Canada's resources for war service. Sir Robert received their suggestions with as much enthusiasm as he ever shows for anything. He would take the matter up right away.

"If I sent for you again on Monday, will you be willing to return?" was his parting encouragement. They said they would and disposed of their engagement accordingly. That Monday never arrived. They heard nothing more; and hope deferred, you know, makes the heart sick. As the delegation went into Sir Robert's room they met a Cabinet Minister coming out. They told him their business. His countenance fell thirty degrees. He was obviously peeved that the matter had not been put up to the chief through him—and he is a great stickler for the traditional avenues of "political" approach to the great, among whom he modestly reckons himself.

Too Scrupulous To Succeed.

One who has much intimate knowledge of the Borden method sums up Sir Robert in this way—the word he uses is a Scriptural one, and therefore quite permissible in devout society. He says: "The trouble with Borden is that he hasn't got enough 'Go to hell' about him." And he illustrates his judgment by many stories of the methods of a far stronger man, whose public life is guided by a remark made by Mr. Chamberlain in a letter commencing 'Barry O'Brien's Life to Parnell. "It is true the famous Colonial Secretary, "but, then, all great men are unscrupulous."

The attempt to make a coalition at this belated stage inevitably reminds one of the construction of the first Borden Cabinet. One evening Mrs. Borden sought refuge in a neighbour's house. "I can't move at home," she said plaintively. "There are men everywhere, waiting to see Bob. They are even in my boudoir, and I really must have some place to sit down.

His Mind Won't Stay Made Up.

The rush for seats in the Government was phenomenal. The Cabinet varied from day to day —almost from hour to hour. One night a certain gentlemen from down east was told that he would be sent for next morning to be offered the post of Minister of Justice. He is waiting yet for that call.

Another well-known politician was wired for, er receiving an authoritative intimation some days before that he would receive the all-important message. When he arrived Mr. Borden occupied an hour in telling him why he could not invite him to join the Government.

"I didn't ask you for a place in the Government," was the answer. "There was no need to ask me to travel several hundred miles to tell me this."

There is a famous gentleman who was in the Government from the early days of its embargo, until the last hour. The story of Sir Sam's inclusion is variously told by Hughes himself and by others who have varying degrees of admiration for him. At one time he was definitely understood to be out of the running and one of his backers jumped into the race himself. Sam was met in Toronto at the time of his acute suffering.

"Well," his friend said to him, "I suppose we shall soon have the appointments."

"Yes," replied the colonel, grimly, "and the disappointments."

Revised by Rogers.

There was also a Rogers incident, the precursor of many others. Rogers had helped materially in raising the campaign fund, and had held the Manitoba representation undiminished—some feat, he thought, in the reciprocity year. His uncompromising hostility to reciprocity in the face of overwhelming Western sentiment was an exhibition of real courage, even though it was tinged with the heroics of the gambler. Among his faithful henchmen in Winnipeg —some of whom say they would vote for him even yet, though they could not see their way clear to play in the band—the story goes that when Mr. Borden was preparing for his anti-reciprocity tour of the West he sent his stock speech to Winnipeg for approval. It was a wobbling speech, as the stalwarts of Winnipeg expected. It was sent back vigorously amended.

When Mr. Borden and his lieutenants arrived the chief was taken to spend the Sunday with Mr. Rogers, for gingering purposes. Mr. Rogers himself presided at the first meeting of the tour in the Walker theatre. His speech was interlarded with such expressions as, "As our leader will tell you," "the stand taken by Mr. Borden," and so forth. Before the meeting was over the chairman had vacated, and was where he could be in touch with his legions, who were also in the "ginger" brigade.

Rogers Won a Bluff.

When the Government was formed Mr. Borden desired to recognize Mr. Rogers' electioneering ability and his known financial facility by giving him a place where there would be practically no money to spend. He was offered the Ministry of Labour. He refused it indignantly, packed his grips, and, according to his own story, was at the Central Station waiting for the Winnipeg train when a repentant Prime Minister recalled him, to place him in the Interior, whence the advance to Public Works, which had been the range of the valiant Bob in Manitoba, with results for his colleagues which all the world and Mr. Justice Galt very well know.

Those were grievous times for Mr. Borden. Making a Government became so very much like making a mistake that the victor of a most decisive general election decided to throw up the sponge. A majority of forty-six availed nothing against the army of seeking. It is no secret that an old counsellor of the distracted chief was called in, and asked to suggest a name which Mr. Borden might commend to the Governor-General when he went to Rideau Hall to announce that he could not form a Ministry. The old warrior was aghast, and delivered his mind with much kindness and more firmness. For the second time in his life Mr. Borden changed his intention, and in the end the surrender to the Nationanists was made, after Armand Lavergne appeared at Ottawa on a special train, the Cabinet was completed, and the unsuccessful applicants reflected that patience was a virtue.

Waiting for a Lloyd George.

The old uncertainties in temperament have reasserted themselves. Sir Robert announced selective conscription as he announced the five hundred thousand men for the army — without consultation or sizing up minutely the task he was attempting. The days go by with confusion becoming worse confounded. It was bound so to be. Reuben cannot become Joseph. As a man is made, so is he. If a coalition Government is born under existing auspices, it cannot long abide. For while a party Cabinet will do everything to retain a chief whose very weakness plus his good character made him indispensable to a patrician regime, a union Government which contains men big enough for these appalling times cannot be held down by such conside rations. Whatever happens, we are going to see leadership go to the man who will lead. Sir Robert canot lead. He is a pale Asquith — very pale. As yet no Lloyd George has appeared. But events must happen which will produce their man. — Toronto Star.

POISONED PENCIL THE VERY LATEST PRUSSIAN DEVICE

SHARPEN IT AND IT EXPLODES MAIMING OR KILLING THE SHARPENER.

CHRISTIANIA. — An amazing collection of bombs, poisons bacilli of deadly diseases and other means of death and destruction has been seized by the authorities here as part of the baggage of Baron von Rosen, a Swedish nobleman and alleged to be a German agent. The Baron fled to Norway after his activities had aroused the Swedish authorities. He was arrested but as he could not be convicted of violating any Norwegian law he was released with a warning to leave the country.

Baron von Rosen's field of operations was along the Swedish-Finnish border. His purpose is supposed to have been the destruction of Russian food and munition storehouses, but what success he had is not known. When he fled from Sweden last January part of his baggage was seized by the Swedish authorities and found to contain a large quantity of high explosives, packed in tin cans and labelled "corned beef." It remained, however, for the Norwegian police to uncover the real extent of his equipment.

After the Baron had been ordered out of Norway those parts of his baggage which had not been seized in Sweden, arrived at Christiania and were turned over to the police. Among the articles found were cans of explosives marked "table salt" bottles marked "mouth wash," containing cultures of dangerous bacilli, identified by the States Health Laboratory; boxes of lump sugar, each lump concealing a small glass vial filled with bacilli of anthrax or glanders, and several explosive pencils.

The latter article is an ingenious infernal machine and a departure in frightfulness so far as the authorities here are aware. It has the appearance of an ordinary pencil, but if sharpened a drop of acid concealed in a thin glass tube is released and, acting on other concealed chemicals, causes an explosion sufficient to maim or perhaps kill the sharpener.

One scheme of Baron Von Rosen in which the poisoned sugar lumps were to figure is believed to have been directed against the great traffic stream which the war has called into being between the northern Norwegian town of Narvik and Finland. A tremendous tide of merchandise flows into Russia along this road by horse transports. Between two thousand and three thousand horses are used for freighting goods and barns have been constructed along the road for their accommodation. The scheme attributed to Baron von Rosen was to put the poisoned sugar in the feed boxes in those barns and start an epizootic among the horses which would cripple the whole transportation system.

The revelations in regard to what the Baron described as his "scientific expedition" have aroused great indignation here and the authorities are severely blamed for releasing the Baron. There have been some cases of infectious diseases among horses at places where Baron von Rosen stayed but his responsibility has not been proved.

A guilty conscience needs no accuser.

Better do it than wish it done.

Better go around than fall into the ditch.

CANADIAN GROVE FOR VIMY RIDGE GRAVES

Scene of Glorious Deaths Worthily Pictured—Seaforths of British Columbia Were Victors at Big Price

Perry Robinson, writing from France, described at length the horrid desolation of Vimy Ridge. Referring to the Canadian cemetery there he said: "In the middle of the waste on the summit of Vimy Ridge there is a little group of white-painted wooden crosses marking the graves of the Seaforth Highlanders of Canada, who fell in the capture of the ridge. These Canadian Seaforths were mostly British Columbians. A long, long way they came to die, these long-limbed sons of Victoria, Vancouver, New Westminster and Nanaimo. Some came even farther, for they came from the far-off slopes and peaks of the mountains or upper waters of the Fraser River when they heard the call. Many other feet will tread the same journey after them, the feet of pilgrims, who, through generations yet to be born, will come here as to a shrine. The little graveyard will be as a flame of inspiration to Canada in the ages, for there was nothing finer done in the war than the achievement of those Western men on the ridge."

Hideous, but Proud

"There is not a yard on all this tableland where man can find the original surface of the earth, but everywhere are shell-holes, hardly distinguishable from the remnants of the old German trenches, the thin covering of soil being all churned up with the white chalk below till all is greyish white. The hot sun beats down on it, shells sing over the place both ways, and overhead the aeroplanes drone in a circle. It is a hideous place, but there could be no prouder burial place for these men than this centre of the summit of the ridge they won so splendidly."

A Permanent Memorial

"When I first knew British Columbia, Victoria was a little English country town embowered in a garden, the sea on one side and woods on the other. The City of Vancouver was not. When I stop to look at these graves it is the old British Columbia that leaps to my mind with its great reaches and unbroken forest. If I had my way I would plant this Vimy Ridge with trees brought here from Canada, and let these men, when the wooden crosses are replaced by a noble and permanent monument, rest under the shadow of a grove of their own pines, firs and cedars."

BRITAIN'S GREAT MAN

Lived in Modest Dwelling on Western Battle Front

An extract from Lord Northcliffe's book gives the following: "When history relates the story of the great battles of the Somme it will tell how Sir Douglas Haig and his staff had their headquarters in a modest dwelling, part of which was still occupied by the family who owned it. Thus it is that the voices of children running up and down the corridors mingle with the ceaseless murmur of the guns and the work of the earnest little company of men whose labours are never out of the thoughts of their countrymen throughout the Empire."

STRENUOUS LIFE OF GIRL WITH AMBULANCE

Driving Wounded in France is Very Interesting—A Word for Slackers

To a Vancouver girl came the honor of being chosen to drive a motor ambulance in France. Miss Grace Macpherson received her diploma for first aid ambulance driving and has since gone to France, where she is engaged in this work. Writing from a town near Boulogne she says: I have been here about a week. I arrived late at night. Rested that night and most of next day, as we were on for night shift. Called at 11 p.m.; out until 1; in for cocoa and bed. Called at 4.30, out until 7.30, in for half an hour and cocoa, out until 9.30, back to breakfast and bed. Weather absolutely rotten—snow, wind, rain and hail.

I wonder if it would stir the souls of our hardened slackers, both in Canada and England, to see some of the sights over here as we see them. Men in all stages of their misery and suffering, simply pouring out of trains from up the line, and being taken to hospitals already packed and too full to receive them; lying, on their stretchers in the reception tents of huts, floored with straw—and the most cheerful beings alive they are, too.

Hospitals Overflowing

For a couple of nights the hospitals were overflowing, so that there were no trains to meet, only emergency calls from hospitals to and from other towns. Last night we had an evacuation from hospitals to trains for "blighty," and they seemed all so happy. It was a glorious moonlight night and as bright as day. I was writing letters waiting for calls, when our lights were turned off in all the huts on account of "Zepps," but nothing happened.

Not Much at Display

Yesterday p.m. we were told to be ready for a dress parade for inspection by the brigadier-general. Of course we weren't ready. I was polishing my boots—one had a fine shine, but the other! My aid, another girl, had one muddy gum boot on one foot, a neat low shoe on the other. Oh, we 100 were a sad-looking lot, and I stood up in the front line like a little man! I have now been up all night and this morning till lunch time, and as it is now 2.30 p.m. I should snatch 40 winks before I appear for dinner and night duty, so will be off now.

READJUSTS NOAH'S ARK

Little English Girl Moved by One-Legged British Officer

A small English girl was introduced at tea to an officer who had lost a leg in action. After observing him carefully and thoughtfully she went to her nursery and returning with her Noah's Ark dumped the menagerie on the floor and proceeded to break one leg off each animal. When she was asked why she did it the little girl replied: "Legs are awfully useless things. The animals all have one too many."

No Time for Golfing

"Every able-bodied man and woman found golfing at the present time should be taken by the scruff of the neck and made to do some work of national importance," said Mr. Weddie at the Edinburgh Parish Council.

Treat Crews Well

While every superfluous item has been cut out in building standard cargo ships, the living accommodation for officers and men is still first class, states Sir Leo Chiozza Money.

NO "BUTTERFLY" NURSES

Volunteer Nurses Replaced by Professionals

Volunteer nurses in French hospitals, says a London writer, where military sick and wounded are cared for, have been replaced by professional paid nurses. The volunteer infirmieres who came forward at the beginning of the war, when there was a great shortage of trained women, was pressed into service after a short, superficial training. She has done nobly, toiling day and night and spending her money freely on the wounded besides paying her own personal expenses. But doctors frankly prefer the professional nurse, who can be ordered about in a way her volunteer sister would resent. They say that the unpaid assistant has her own ideas of discipline. The lady nurse, too, is apt to err in matters of taste. I saw one step out of a luxurious car once much overdressed. A lady friend said, "Look at those stilts; one cannot call them heels. How can she run backwards and forwards in the wards all day in these?" As the butterfly nurse got out of the car she raised her snow-white uniform and displayed yards of billowing petticoats in batiste and embroidered white silk. "A nice get-up for a day's work," remarked my pessimistic friend. "How the paid nurses must love her!" The doctors of the Paris hospitals were sometimes obliged to suggest that volunteers should go home, discard their diamonds, and dress more discreetly. One insisted on a lady putting on a less decolletee gown as "he wouldn't have half-naked women hanging over the beds of his patients."

"HOOVER OF BELGIUM"

Man who "Held Dying Nation in His Arms"

"Hoover of Belgium" is a title as significant of a great work well done as "Kitchener of Khartoum." There probably will be many honors bestowed upon Herbert C. Hoover. None will compare with the name by which he is known all over the world—Hoover of Belgium. The man who fought back the starvation that threatened that unhappy nation was born in West Branch, Iowa, August 10, 1874. He was graduated from Leland Stanford University in 1895 and immediately began his profession of mining engineer, working first as a laborer at $2 a day. He rose rapidly and became wealthy through his development of gold mines in Australia. Later he was engaged in exploration in China, when the Boxer rebellion broke out. He and his wife were among those who defended Tien-tsin during the siege.

From that time until the outbreak of the present war he lived in London, carrying on mining operations in Burmah, Mexico, Australia, China, California and Russia. With the war came the call for him to head the Commission for Relief in Belgium. He gave up all other interests and put his whole soul into his work. No one save himself will ever know the difficulties which he was obliged to face. He had to feed men and women and children on painfully slender rations. He had to clothe them when clothing was scarce. He dealt with Flemish and French refugees and with Prussian, British and French officials with delicate tact. For more than two years this simple mining engineer held dying Belgium in his arms.

Even Tombs Desecrated

A London correspondent, writing of the devastation made by retreating Germans, says: It was a princely estate, lying in the hollow of a little stream, and could have no earthly strategic value. Before reaching the village by the road-side is a fine mortuary chapel where on tablets closing the entrances to the tombs one reads the honors of a noble family.

Half of these stately tablets, with such inscriptions, had been wrenched out of place by the Huns and lay on the floor, exposing the tombs within. You could see where the coffin had been opened and imperfectly screwed up again.

BEST PRUSSIAN GUARD

British Artillery Very Fond of Canadian Infantry

A Western Canada soldier writes: One of the officers of the artillery (imperial) says: "Tell your boys the British artillery would just as soon work for and have the Canadian infantry in front of them as any body of men fighting." It is a very nice thing to know, isn't it, that we have the absolute confidence of such a militant institution as the British artillery, and, let me tell you another thing, it is grand to have that confidence instilled in you that you know the guns at the back of you are not going to fail you.

Vimy Ridge is the same spot that the French tried to take and did not succeed. They had 27,000 casualties, but that was not their fault as circumstances at that time were different to the day when our boys made the splendid charges and succeeded. You will understand that no two days are the same at the front, and it is quite possible that if we had been there at the time the French were, instead of them, we might have failed too, but the Canucks, backed by the British artillery and our own artillery as well ventured much and won. We were opposed by that wonderful, over-estimated Prussian Guard, which was supposed to be invincible; to get the full significance of it: The Canuck soldiers of one or two years' standing were more than a match for the crack Prussian Guard, who started soldiering from boyhood.

WOMEN'S AILMENTS

Come From Heart and Nerves

Young girls budding into womanhood, who suffer from pains and headaches, and whose face is pale and blood watery, will find Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills build them up.

Women, between the ages of 40 and 50, who are nervous, subject to hot flushes, feeling of pins and needles, smothering feeling, shortness of the breath, palpitation of the heart, etc., are tided over this trying time of their lives by the use of this remedy.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have a wonderful effect on a woman's system, making pains and aches vanish, bringing color to the pale cheek, and sparkle to the eye.

The old, worn out, tired out, languid feelings give place to strength and vitality, and life again seems like living.

Mrs. Alfred Winter, Castor, Alta., writes: "I should like every woman who is suffering from nerves or heart trouble to know how much Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have helped me. For two years I kept a hired girl and was doctoring all the time. After having taken four boxes of your pills I am able to do all my own work. I would especially recommend them to women between 40 and 50, as at that time they are more liable to be far from well. One of my neighbors knows how they helped me, and she is now using them."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c., or three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

LIFE WITH ARTILLERY

Valuable Training for Active Life with Efficient Body

"Gunner" of 73th Battery, Montreal, writes: The British and French Artillery spells efficiency, got an efficiency acquired slowly by means of long years of practice and hard work, but attained, in what seems to an incredibly short period of time. Here the Frenchman specializes. They have a very special and exclusive genius for egregious miscalculation. For a classic example, Britain's "contemptible little army" was to be thrust to one side as a mere pulling-in-ary or side issue to the task of subjugating the world.

It is the capable London clerk, the Canadian drummer, the youth scarcely out of his teens—many not yet out of their teens—the backwoodsman, the young farmer, and even the fool of the family, who is operating the guns, laying the greatest execution and shattering and demoralizing the enemy. The writer sees much interesting and fascinating work ahead and is confident that the enterprise of abandoning a newspaper desk in the fifth decade of life in order to work a gun will mean all round rejuvenation. A renewed lease on the tenure of existence, and the latent development of qualities of mind and body equivalent to a regeneration of youth.

How that must it mean to the young-er man! The inculcation of habits of discipline, of alertness, of close and continued accuracy, and an amazing desire to resume civil employment when the war is ended, will be the priceless heritage of those who are now willing to sacrifice all in the one supreme call to duty. Artillery work is reduced in scope and almost entirely free from the fatigue and drudgery which otherwise is the expected and uncomplaining lot of a soldier's life.

"SUNSHINE" OF LIFE?

Horrors of Child-Life in War's Shell-Swept Zone

A woman correspondent writes: The condition of the half-starved, wounded, mentally deranged little children is terrible. My sister-in-law, who has a hospital near the shelled district, has 400 child patients all under 12 years of age. They have been wounded, some fatally, some have lost arms or legs, others their sight, others are suffering from brain fever, others are wasting away. You cannot imagine anything more terrible than to see these mutilated little victims who will never play or enjoy life as other children do. They are just little shadows of childhood. It is difficult to make them talk, and they tremble and start at any noise or sudden appearance of a nurse. Women are always gentle with little children, but with these children one must have special gentleness.

Glissoding in the Canadian Pacific Rockies.

WHERE THE ALPINE CLUB WILL CAMP

THE Annual Camp of the Canadian Alpine Club will be held next July in the Cataract Valley, one of the most beautiful regions of the Canadian Rockies—the main camp being pitched at an altitude of 6,700 feet above sea level, three and a half miles from the station at Hector, on the Canadian Pacific Railway, surrounded by Mount Victoria (10,454 feet), Pope's Peak (10,360 feet), and right under the spectacular obelisk of the Watch Tower (8,000 feet. A subsidiary camp will also be pitched close to Lake O'Hara, at an altitude of 6,700 feet. It was on the shores of this lake that J. S. Sargent, the famous American landscape painter, camped last summer, finding in the peaks and glaciers which surrounded its emerald waters the inspiration for some magnificent canvases. The lake is more rugged in character than the better known Lake Louise, but is considered by those who have seen it to be just as beautiful. From its shores rise the peaks of Mount Oderay (10,165 feet), Mount Huber (11,041 feet, Mount Victoria (11,365 feet), and several others under 10,000 feet. In a hanging valley directly below Mount Biddle, at an altitude of 7,359 feet, and easy of access from the Camp, lies Lake McArthur, a typical glacial lake of exquisite corulean lakes.

Although many members of the Canadian Alpine Club are serving their country at the front, it has been decided to maintain the Annual Camp, which was successfully carried on, though with diminished numbers, in 1915 and 1916. Those who wish to become full-pledged active members have to undertake a graduating climb of 10,000 feet or 2,500 feet above the timber line of its region, but as a very large number of ladies have reached membership this qualification is not so severe as might be imagined.

The Club House is at Banff, and opens on June 15th. Many of the members go to the Camp in the Club House grounds before taking part in the Annual Camp, so that they can make some practice climbs before taking part in the more strenuous work of the official programme. One of the features of that programme will be a two-day expedition over the Abbot, Mitre, Sentinel, Wenkchomna and Opabin Passes, leading through the Death Trap defile between Victoria, Lefroy, Mitre, Hungabee, Wenkchomna and Opabin Glaciers.

The Secretary of the Club, Mr. S. H. Mitchell, whose headquarters are at Banff, is of the opinion that this twenty mile circuit embraces the most superb scenery in the Canadian Pacific Rockies.

MONTREAL'S 275th BIRTHDAY

St. James' Catholic Cathedral, Montreal.

Dominion Square, Montreal, with the great C. P. R. Station in background.

MONTREAL is proud to celebrate its 275th birthday this year. On May 18th, 1642, Paul de Chomedy, Sieur de Maisonneuve, brought his little flat-bottomed pinnace to anchor close to the site selected by Samuel de Champlain thirty-one years previously, and the new settlement was formally dedicated by Pere Vimont.

To-day Montreal is a city of wide streets and stately buildings, with wealth unaccountable and a population of nearly three-quarters of a million; headquarters of most of the great banking companies and of that world-wide enterprise, the Canadian Pacific Railway. But all this springs from the landing of Maisonneuve and his associates in May, 1642.

The Island of Montreal was visited by Jacques Cartier in 1535, and nearly a hundred years passed before another white man came. On the 28th of May, 1611, Samuel de Champlain landed with another Frenchman and an Indian. He seems to have explored the shore line as far as the Rapids, but finally decided that the best place for a settlement was a little strip of meadowland, to which he gave the name of Place Royale. Incidentally, it was de Champlain who first advocated the cutting of what is now the Panama Canal, in 1600.

Thirty years later, plans were perfected for the founding of the settlement, which was called in advance, Ville-Marie de Montreal for Mount-royal. De Maisonneuve was appointed leader of the little party, consisting of about a score of people. They set sail from France in a small pinnace, landing at Quebec on the 8th of May. Here they were warned by Montmagny of the danger of annihilation by the Iroquois.

"It is my duty and my honor to found a colony at Mount Royal," said Maisonneuve, "and I would go if every tree were an Iroquois."

The long buffetting across the Atlantic in his cockleshell of a boat had not daunted his courage or that of his companions, nor did the almost equally perilous passage up the unchartered St. Lawrence, which occupied them ten days. He and his associates had their duty to do and they went on and did it.

It was a beautiful afternoon when they first sighted the Island, with the forest-clad mountain rising steeply against the sky. The pinnace fetched up by the side of a rivulet running into the St. Lawrence. There was a stretch of meadowland along the shore, with patches of flowers growing amid the grass and brightly colored birds darting to and fro. Beyond the meadowland lay the forest, with who knew what secrets hidden in its mysterious depths. De Champlain had told them of the palisaded town of Hochelaga which stood opposite the present McGill University.

De Maisonneuve was the first to spring ashore, followed by Governor Montmagny from Quebec, Pere Vimont, Mdlle. Jean Mance, Madame de la Peltrie and her servant, Charlotte Barré, and about a dozen farmers, artizans and laborers. A guard was hurriedly set to watch the forest paths. Tents were landed and set up, and the baggage and stores were brought ashore. And then, having provided for their immediate safety and comfort, an altar was raised and Divine Service was held.

The sun was sinking as Pere Vimont pronounced the last words of his solemn exhortation and the fireflies were twinkling in thousands about the meadow. The colonists caught them and hung them in phials about the altar, where they gleamed for a little time and then faded one by one into the darkness. Whereupon the little company, having lighted watchfires and strengthened their guard, lay quietly down to sleep on the grassy slopes of what is now Place Royale. From the heroism of those early Canadians to the heroism of those who have immortalized the names of Ypres, Courcelette, Givenchy and Vimy Ridge, is a long way as time goes, but it shows that the spirit of Maisonneuve and those who helped him to found the city of Montreal still survives.

WOUNDED AND MAIMED BUT "CARRYING ON"

A war correspondent relates the following incidents which occurred in the encounter between H.M.S. Broke and six German destroyers off the coast of Dover: There was big, jovial Herbert Rowles, the helmsman, wounded in both legs in the first salvo, and, with his boots soaked in blood, standing at the wheel and carrying out the orders of his captain which came down the voice pipe from the bridge above until, to use his own words, he called out, "Can I have some relief now, sir? —I'm just going," and, collapsed on the bridge unconscious.

There was the telegraphist by his side with two wounds in his leg also carrying on. There was the wireless operator with wounds in his back and legs, sticking to his instrument, and in the forecastle the little band that met the panic-stricken Germans who boarded the ship from the rammed destroyer—Midshipman Gyles, with a wound in his eye, helping at one of the two guns, most of whose crews were lying about dead or wounded; a gunner, who, although badly injured, stood by helping to work the gun, and a lad of nineteen, named Fowles, in charge of the voice pipe, with one leg broken, the other seriously injured, his face bleeding with wounds, lying on the deck propping himself up on one elbow and shouting out the commands that came down the pipe.

VARIED INCIDENTS AND BATTLE SCENES

"Traffic Policemen" On Country Roads —Doughnuts from Germany— Shell-Fire "Like Ocean"

An interesting letter from William Nicholson of Vancouver, fighting "Somewhere in France," said: "Our rest period was cut short and we were hurried back to the fighting line, to 'go over the top,' as we were told. Our victory was a glorious one, although the cost was heavy. The shell and machine-gun fire was like an all-engulfing ocean. I spent night after night, as well as day, out in small holes in front of the line with a machine gun. It was terribly cold, always raining or snowing, and the trenches were a sea of mud.

Too Tired to Keep Souvenirs

"Our platoon went over into Heinie's trenches one morning about 11 o'clock and found he had departed. We got some fine souvenirs, which I am sending home. I got a map in one officer's dug-out, with a box of fresh doughnuts, probably just out from the 'Fadeland.' Other things I took also, but when I came to carry them out I found myself so played out that I had to cast them away.

Endless Two-Way Traffic

"I don't know how long we are out for this time, probably only a day or two, although our divisional rest, 30 days, is long overdue." Pte. Nicholson referred also to the tremendous volume of traffic on the roads of France, and states that at crossroads traffic police and guides are employed to keep things straight. The procession consists of huge motor lorries transport trains, mounted and foot troops and droves of tired and used up horses. This all flows both ways, up to the "line" and away from it.

FRANK FRENCH PRAISE

The Paris papers give great attention to British successes, and the talk everywhere is of French soil being wrested back from the brutal invaders. Generous and discriminating praise is given to British feats of arms. It is recognized that the British artillery work has reached a perfection nothing less than miraculous, considering all that we have had to learn. "But," writes "Polybe," in the "Figaro," "the admirable English infantry has also been making history. Steel is not the only metal. There is a metal stronger still, as it is still more precious, the human metal. This is also a victory of the brain, of that clear and vigorous intelligence of Haig."

STERN SENTENCE ON ROVING TURKEY

GREAT BIG POLICEMAN AND HIS SIX CHILDREN TO GOBBLE THE GOBBLER.

This is a tale of a turkey who went a calling and of the policeman father of the six children who are going to eat the turkey. It is all a matter of record on the blotter of the East Fifty-first street police station in New York.

The turkey enters the story by way of the telephone at the station. Lieutenant Theodore Raynor was at the desk. He answered the 'phone.

"Lieutenant," said an excited voice, "there's a turkey in my house. What shall I do with it?"

"Throw it out," replied Lieutenant Raynor, thinking he had detected a joker.

A quarter of an hour later Thomas King, of No. 309 East Fifty-fifth street, arrived at the station.

"Lieutenant," he said, "There's a turkey in my house. What shall I do with it?"

The Lieutenant decided King was playing a practical joke and repeated his telephonic advice to throw the turkey out.

"It's no joke," said King. "A real live turkey gobbler flew into my kitchen through the window, and I want to know what to do with him."

Lieutenant Raynor signalled to Policeman Herbeck, who brought the turkey to the police station in a bag, relieving King's anxiety.

Captain William Duggan, of the East Fifty-first street station was puzzled to know what to do with the bird until the men in the station suggested it be auctioned off (police captains have authority to auction off all perishable goods for which no owner can be found). Captain Duggan took off his uniform and auctioned off the turkey in the reception room. Bidding began at one dollar and finally went up to six dollars. Captain E. M. Sperling, of the Home Defence League, was the highest bidder and the turkey was bidded down to him. He said he did not want it and suggested that Captain Duggan give to the policeman present who have the most children.

Captain Duggan consulted his records and found that Policeman Bernard Clark was the father of six children—more than any other policeman then in the station could boast—so the gobbler was given to him, and he carried it home in a feed bag. He said he was going to invite every policeman in the precinct to help his six youngsters eat it.

RUSH FOR POTATOES

A Queue Nearly a Mile Long.

Remarkable scenes were witnessed at Farnborough (Kent), which was visited yesterday by over 2,000 people from all parts of South London for the sale of the remainder of a potato stock at Orchard Farm, Wellbrook-rd. The supply was limited. The first motor-buses from South London and the munitins district were packed with buyers. At 10 there was a queue a mile long. There was such a rush to gain admittance through a gate that the fencing was broken down and the sale was stopped until the police had restored order. One woman fainted in the crush. To make the supply go round each person was only allowed 4 lbs. for 7d. One woman from Rotherhithe had spent 1s. 2d. on a return bus ticket, and many had come 10 to 14 miles. The crowd extended from the farm to the London-rd. In four Saturday sales recently nearly 50 tons have been disposed of in small lots and the salesman has little hopes of obtaining further supplies.

RAILROAD MEN MUST KEEP FIT

There is a splendid fraternal spirit among the men who earn their living on the railroad. Good news is passed along from man to man, and it was in this way Mr. Frank Ide, a well-known Buffalo Pullman car conductor, learned how he could free himself of terrible pains in the groin and back and painful urination from gravel, the result of his kidneys being out of order.

He treated for two months, when one of his railway friends whose life had been despaired of, but who had made a very quick recovery through using Gin Pills, strongly recommended Mr. Ide to try them, and as he says, "The pain left me entirely. I feel as well as I ever did in my life. I recommend Gin Pills to everybody in any way troubled with kidneys or bladder".

Not only do Gin Pills assist nature to cleanse the system through the kidneys, but they stimulate the bowels, quickly relieving constipation.

All good dealers sell Gin Pills at 50c. a box or 6 boxes for $2.50. Free sample upon request to the National Drug and Chemical Company of Canada, Limited, Toronto. 96

MINISTER ASKS $10,000.

Brings Libel Action Against Former Recording Steward.

TORONTO, June 1. — Mrs. Justice Kelly has reserved judgment on the appeal of J. C. Spence from the order of the Master-in-Chambers striking out a portion of his defence in the action brought against him by the Rev. Isaac Couch.

Rev. Mr. Couch was pastor of McLeod Street Methodist church, Ottawa, and the defendant, who is a Public school teacher, was formerly recording steward of the church. It is alleged by Mr. Couch, who sues for $10,000 damages, that Mr. Spence wrote a letter to the recording steward of the First Methodist church at Owen Sound which caused an invitation for him to fill that pulpit to be withdrawn.

The Master-in-Chambers struck out of the defence as embarrassing a reference to anonymous letters which had, it is said, circulated in Ottawa reflecting on the pastor of a neighbouring church to which some members of the McLeod Street church are said to have transferred.

ECZEMA ON FACE

WAS SO BAD HAD TO STAY IN HOUSE

All skin diseases such as eczema or salt rheum, itching or burning rashes, eruptions, ulcers, boils, pimples, etc., are all caused by bad blood, and while not usually attended with any fatal results, may sooner or later develop into some serious blood trouble and the entire system become affected.

Burdock Blood Bitters, that old and well-known remedy, will cleanse the blood of all its impurities, and by this means cure all skin diseases and other blood troubles.

Mrs. Ernest Andrews, Hamilton, Ont., writes: "My face was covered with eczema and was so terribly bad I had to stay in the house. I had ten different doctors but got so tired of their treatment that I went and bought a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, and it helped me, so I kept on taking it. Now I am cured, and have a lovely skin.

"People who used to see me when I was so bad and see me now will not believe it, but I always tell them that nothing cured me but Burdock Blood Bitters."

TOOK 31,829 PRISONERS.

French Haul April 15-May 24, Covering Three Phases of Attack.

ON THE FRENCH FRONT IN FRANCE, June 1.—Between April 15 and May 24 the number of German prisoners falling into French hands reached a total of 31,829, of whom 29,045 were unwounded. This period covers three phases of the general attack, now temporarily abated, which the French undoubtedly will continue when the proper moment arrives.

As a result of their successful attacks the French now possess the initiative and occupy more important positions than when they began the forward movement in April. Artillery duels continue unceasingly at all points on the front, occasionally intermingled with local infantry combats, in the course of which short stretches of trench sometimes change hands. Thus far the French always have regained any positions taken from them, and at some places have bitten further into the German lines.

The Germans are showing great nervousness as to what is about to happen, and the slightest movement in the French lines calls forth a hurricane of artillery and machine gun fire.

GET PAID SEMI-MONTHLY.

Railway Employees Will Benefit by Amendment to Railway Act.

OTTAWA, June 1.—Railway employees of all roads in Canada are to be paid semi-monthly if an amendment which was put into the General Railway Act to-day by a special committee of the House becomes law. There was a unanimous vote in favour of the proposal, though counsel for the railways has objected and pointed out difficulties. Representatives of the railway brotherhoods argued that in the United States Canadian roads pay fortnightly in such States as they are required to do so. They were willing to give a few months' delay, after the passage of the act, to allow the companies to adjust their accounting systems.

MAURICE AND WALTON ARE GOING TO FRANCE

NEW YORK, June 1.—It was learned yesterday that Maurice Mouvet, dancer, known professionally as Maurice, has sent to the Norton and Harjes Hospital in France, a cheque sufficiently large to buy six ambulances, and that he will leave an Atlantic port on June 9 for Europe to give his services to his country as an ambulance driver, for six months at least.

With him will go his wife, known on the stage as Miss Florence Walton, who will do war relief work in Paris, turning over her income from afternoon dances and teas to the Red Cross. While the two were in Paris the second year of the war they made $16,000 in this way and turned it over to France. Previous to going abroad Maurice and Miss Walton will dance at the opening of the Cascades, the roof restaurant of the Biltmore Hotel.

Maurice's brother is in the French army.

NIAGARA FALLS FEELS IT.

Embargo on Men Going Across Line May Build Up the City.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., June 1.—To-day the interim cards were cancelled, and it is passports or stay in Canada. The immigration officials have issued a lot of passports, but some who have applied for them had no more excuse to offer than that they desired to attend the theatre in the American city, as there is only one moving picture house here. Young men on this side of the river who keep company with young ladies in New York State have had to give up their usual calling nights. Members of clubs in the American city also suffer. The hotelmen here are very blue over the embargo. They declare their transient business has dropped off to an alarming extent. Tourists will quit coming here if they can't cross the river. And the same thing, they maintain, applies to commercial travellers.

Police Court revenue from fines imposed on men who have imbibed too freely across the line has also suffered severely. Tradesmen, however, may profit, as shoppers have to do their buying at home. If present conditions continue for any length of time, they will bring many permanent improvements to the city.

Charity begins at home but does not end there.

Climb not too high lest the fall be the greater.

Confession of a fault makes half amends for it.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S SHIRT WAIST.

By Anabel Worthington.

8143

Even in competition with the afternoon blouse the simple, tailored blouse always shines out as an indispensable garment. It is a perfect boon to the business woman and to the housekeeper who discards her morning work dress for the waist and skirt costume, for walking, shopping or in which to spend the afternoon at home.

The smart blouse in the picture is ideal for combining with one of the new semi-tailored skirts. It is of full, comfortable cut, with the back extending over the shoulders at front to give the popular shoulder yoke effect. The waist fronts have their fulness gathered at this point, giving a graceful line to the garment. The broad collar is as collars of the times are—deep, and straight across the back, a correct finish for the V neck at front. The well liked front closing is with pearl buttons. Sleeves set in without fulness may be in either three-quarter or full length; the flare cuff, button trimmed, gives snappy style when the long sleeve is chosen.

Dress shops are just full of new spring fabrics for blouses and the wise woman will buy a quantity for her sewing room before the best are carried away by some one who is after the first pick. Linens are good; voile, satin and like fabrics are other favorites.

The waist pattern No. 8,143 cuts in sizes 36-42 bust.

To make in size 36 requires 2¾ yards of 36 inch material.

To obtain the pattern send 10 cents to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

Huns Reach Advanced French Positions After Hard Fighting

Paris Official Communique Admits Loss at Several Points. General Haig's Reports Show New Gains by the British Troops Near Vermelles --- Russia's Situation Shows No Improvement Over the Week-end.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

Special to The Examiner:

PARIS, June 4.—(French Official).—Strong German attacks north-west of Froidmont Farm last night gained the enemy a foothold on an advanced element of the French positions, the War Office statement said to-day.

"North-west of Froidmont Farm at 11 p.m. the enemy attacked and obtained a foothold on several of our advanced elements," the statement said. "On the plateaus of Vauclerc and Californie the enemy did not renew his attacks last night, but bombarded our positions. In the Champagne, east of Tetonmount, we carried out a successful raid. The enemy yesterday made an air raid on Dunkirk and Nancy, killing several civilians."

LONDON, June 4.—British forces wrested back from the Germans early to-day the lone British post which Sunday morning's enemy attack had gained for them south-east of Cherisy, Field Marshal Haig reported in his report to-day, and a further British advance into the enemy trenches to the east of Vermelles. The post south-east of Cherisy mentioned yesterday as remaining in the enemy's hands was recaptured during the night, the statement said. "South-west of La Bassee and in the neighbourhood of Neuve Chappelle, hostile raids were repulsed. East of Vermelles we entered the enemy's trenches."

Cherisy is one the Sense River, close to the main highway between Arras and Cambrai, and about seven miles from Arras. La Basse is seven miles north of Lens and Neuve Chappelle four miles further to the north. Vermelles lies nearly midway between Lens and La Bassee.

PETROGRAD, June 4.—Forest fires in the Minsk region have already burned over 7,000 acres, destroying three million bushels of wheat and the big elevators at Saratoff, according to word received to-day. The fires are believed to be due to incendinary origin. Whether there was loss of life has not been ascertained. A vigorous investigation is in progress. The Provisional Cabinet met to-day at the home of Former Minister of Commerce Kornavoloff, pleading with him to withdraw his resignation. Premier Lvoff wept in parting with the former Cabinet member as he refused. The workmen's and soldiers' journal, now all powerful in Petrograd, complained editorially to-day against the further issuance of paper money by the Government, and demanding that all war profits be confiscated by the central authorities. Four hundred persons succumbed to alcoholism, following the recent looting of wine factories at Troitsk, the newspaper Novoe Vremyn asserted to-day.

OTTAWA, Ont., June 4.—This week begins as the last week ended in uncertainty as to the outcome of the present political crisis on coalition and conscription. Meantime the leaders of both parties are exerting themselves in an attempt to create at Ottawa out of the remnants of the present Parliament a harmonious and co-ordinated administration. This is Government holiday here, but Cabinet councils and Liberal caucuses are the order of the day. Important meetings of both parties are scheduled for this afternoon. Strong pressure is undoubtedly being brought to bear upon the Prime Minister from various quarters to make no compromise on the question of conscription. Whether the Premier will allow this body of opinion to overcome the equally strong, if not stronger, pressure in the opposite direction remains to be seen. If coalition fails Sir Robert Borden will re-construct his Cabinet in all probability and proceed with the conscription and parliamentary extension bills. Whether or not an election will follow strong opposition in the House, time alone will tell. The expectation is that the present uncertainty cannot long continue and that a definite decision, either for or against a coalition government, must be arrived at soon, possibly to-morrow.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier went to the east block about 11 o'clock this morning and conferred for about half an hour with the Prime Minister. The meeting took place in a small room next to Sir Robert's office. When Sir Wilfrid came out he was asked for information. He remarked, "I am not the Prime Minister." Sir Robert Borden, when seen in his office, intimated that he did not anticipate that there would be any announcement to-day.

MEETING HERE ON THURSDAY TO URGE OPENING OF CANAL

Mayor Has Invited Municipal Representatives from the Trent District To Meet Here — Want Bridge Obstacle Removed.

MAY DECIDE ON DEPUTATION

Mayor Duffus has called a public meeting to be held in the Council Chamber on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock for the purpose of formulating a big petition to the Government asking that the southern section of the Trent Canal be opened this summer.

Letters were sent out last week from the City Clerk's office to the representatives of all the municipalities on the Trent waterway between Trenton and Lindsay and it is expected that many Mayors, Reeves and Councillors from this Midland district will be present. Peterborough will contribute, among other prominent and influential citizens, the members of the Transportation committee of the Greater Peterborough Association, and altogether it is hoped that the memorial to be forwarded to the Government may be so strong that it will be followed by desired action during the present summer.

Peterborough Has Been Busy.

Heartily supported by the Aldermen, Mayor Duffus has not ceased his efforts to have the final obstacles, such as the G.T.R. bridge at Campbellford removed, that navigation through the new waterway may, at last, extend from Lake Ontario as far north-west as the remaining two per cent. of unfinished work. He and Alderman Dobbin recently waited on Premier Borden and presented a strong plea that the Campbellford obstruction be lifted as soon as possible.

The Government has set aside $153,000 for the work, but the Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Railways and Canals, intimates that the G.T.R. is in no hurry and apparently cannot be induced to put in either a new bridge or a swing at Campbellford. Mr. Burnham has forwarded to the Council correspondence between the Premier, Mr. Cochrane and himself respecting the situation and he includes the significant observation that "there is an entire lack of Trent organization." In other words, the desires of this Trent Canal section for an early opening of the waterway have no adequate medium through which they may be directed to the attention of the Government. They are as inarticulate as they are unorganized, and the object of Thursday's meeting is to attempt to supply these deficiencies.

Local citizens who can attend are asked to do so in order that the meeting may be as large and enthusiastic as possible.

LOCAL BOY WHO WAS CAPTURED BY GERMANS A YEAR AGO SATURDAY

GUNNER FRED LEBAR, well known Peterborough boy, who is now a prisoner in Germany. Gunner Lebar went overseas with the C.F.A., and at the battle of Zillebeke, on June 2nd, 1916, a year ago Saturday, was captured by the Huns.

Peterboro Members of 74th Battery Off for Camp Petewawa

Eleven Local Boys Leave This Morning --- Three Recruits Join the 57th Regiment's Overseas Company To-day --- Recent Local Recruits --- Cobourg's Battery --- To-day's General Military News

Eleven Peterborough members of the 74th Battery left here this morning via C.P.R. for Petawawa Camp, where they will go into training. There was no formal send-off to the new artillerymen, but many of their friends were on hand to say good-bye and wish them success. The Battery will continue its recruiting campaign here and expects to get many good men in Peterborough in the next few weeks. Gunner Sturgeon enlisted with the 74th on Saturday, and a number of other good prospects are in sight. The 74th—Peterborough's own artillery unit—is gaining friends daily. Lieut. McLaren is in charge of the recruiting here.

PTE. PETTY GASSED.

Mrs. Wm. Petty, 274 John street, received an official message from Ottawa to-day that her son, Pte. Lancelot Petty, formerly of the 93rd Battalion, has been admitted to No. 30 General Hospital, at Calais, on May 25th, suffering from gas poisoning. Pte. Petty enlisted in the 93rd Battalion early in the organization of the Peterborough County unit.

IS DECORATED.

Lieut.-Col. Don. Hogarth of Fort William, and well remembered by local lacrosse fans as one of the stars of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club, in years gone by, has been mentioned in despatches and also figures in the birthday honours having been awarded the French decoration the Croix de Chevalier.

Among the Peterborough boys who are expected home from overseas shortly is Gunner Dick O'Brien, who went overseas with the 33rd Battalion.

Among the local men who have joined the Cobourg Heavy Battery during the past two weeks are the following: A. D. Hone, teacher at the Collegiate Institute; A. J. Soaft, electrician; A. J. Hargrove, core-winder, and A. E. Sproats, clerk.

CANADIANS SCORE SUCCESS NEAR LENS

Capture Electric Station on Outskirts of Coulotte and a Stretch of the Enemy Line on a Mile Front — A Maximum Depth of 800 Yards.

A BRILLIANT OPERATION

Canadian Headquarters in France (via London), June 3.— In what is officially spoken of as a minor operation, but which was really a bit of brilliant fighting, involving careful preparation and a final swift attack, the Canadians early this (Sunday) morning captured the electric station southwest of Lens, on the outskirts of the village of Coulotte, and a stretch of the enemy front exceeding a mile, with a depth at its greatest point of over eight hundred yards. The men who won this notable victory were veteran troops, who six weeks ago, carried "The Pimple" by storm. Their depleted ranks had been reinforced by drafts from England, and in this morning's engagement these troops proved their fitness to maintain Canada's reputation at the front.

My despatches in the past few days have given some idea of the army's preparation. Day by day a methodical fire from our guns of all calibres was directed upon the trenches and the wire and buildings in the area across which the attacking troops were to pass. The electric station was smashed out of all recognition by the great shells from the giant howitzers. Three days ago the trenches were obliterated, while La Coulotte, a typical mining village, with rows of miners' houses built almost back to back, was practically obliterated.

Foe Suffers From Gas.

Despite this terrific pounding, the enemy clung to his positions at the outworks of the defences of Lens. He even added to the number of men lurking among the ruins of La Coulotte. These men had a terrible experience on Friday, when the gas projectiles fell on the village. A prisoner taken in this morning's assault says his company had twenty-six deaths from the effects of gas.

Having prepared the ground and shaken the morale of the enemy by high explosives and gas, there remained the task of driving him out. Reports from the victors tell of fierce fighting in the cellars in the outskirts of La Coulotte and among the debris of the electric station. North of Souches River also a well defended gun emplacement gave us trouble. It had to be taken with bombs and bayonets. The first wave went over shortly after midnight. Almost a full moon aided their movements. The Germans were not taken by surprise, as the enemy barrage was promptly followed by our own, and something in the vicinity of three hundred guns on both sides joined in the work of destruction.

Western Men in the Fight.

It is a matter of amazement that the infantry can make headway under a barrage, but the men from Alberta and Manitoba trudged along as if carrying out practice manoeuvres till they came in touch with the enemy. Their own barrage of shell was a veritable pillar of fire travelling on before to guide. But also to restrain them from proceeding too rapidly. By 1.40 all the objectives were occupied, but it was not till 4.30 that all the Germans within the occupied area had been disposed of. Many of those cornered died fighting. Prisoners taken number eighty.

The enemy, early in the morning, made a vigorous bombing counter-attack. It was unsuccessful, and the captured ground has been incorporated in our trench system. Fighting is still going on at the time of filing this despatch, and the village of Coulotte may be added to the ground gained.

PTE. L. PETTY, former member of the 93rd Battalion, who is officially reported admitted to hospital suffering from gas poisoning.

THE HUNS STILL DEPEND ON THE U-BOATS TO WIN

Say the War Will Soon Be Over and An Indemnity Saddled on the United States Before Latter Knows She Is in the Conflict

WHAT PRUSSIANS SAY

Special to The Examiner:

(By William Phillip Simms, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

With the British Armies in the Field, June 4—The war will be over and a staggering indemnity saddled on the United States before she knows she is in, according to the Prussian attitude of to-day. The prisoners reflect this view. For instance, a typically arrogant Prussian officer jeered at me contemptuously to-day as he stood inside a barbed wire compound, fresh from the battlefield, where the Canadians had mauled his division into scraps.

"Before America wakes," he said, "we will have starved England, France and Italy into submission and have made peace with Russia, leaving you alone in the field.

"The plain truth is that Germany is prepared to fight a telling defensive war indefinitely, provided she is able to keep her hungry population in line. The Prussian officers and prisoners generally agree to this, basing their hopes principally on the U boats, a separate peace with Russia, and the "sluggish, half-hearted American public." So the only antidote is to fight. It is comparatively easy for a few men to fight defensively behind well chosen positions, in mazes of concrete trenches, protected by snarls of barbed wire, the whole bristling with machine guns. These positions must be blasted out mechanically and that means by artillery—such a wealth of artillery that the wheels interlock; and mountains of shells, swarms of aeroplanes, innumerable transports, trench mortars, grenades, narrow gauge railways, bridge material and all the other manifold machinery of war.

WHAT BOMBR. SLOAN THINKS OF THE TOBACCO FUND

The following is a copy of a letter received by Mr. H. Dearle, of the Local Branch of the Overseas Tobacco Fund:

France, May 6th, 1917.

Mr. H. Dearle, 324 Rubidge St., Peterboro, Ont.

Dear Sir,—Received your letter of May 4th O.K. and was glad to hear from someone from the Overseas Club, as they sure have been good friends of ours since we came to France. I will do my best to divide the cigarettes as equally as possible. There are not enough of the Peterborough boys left to use them all, so the last four times I got them I divided them among the whole battery. I think it is the best way. We often get things that are not from Peterborough, so it evens things up. I will remind the boys about answering the cards. I am sorry I cannot write oftener, but we don't get a chance to write as often as one would think. The boys would all like to be remembered to Mr. Cranfield and the other members of your club, who are doing such fine work for the boys out here. I can't tell you any war news, but we are having fine weather and things are going pretty well our way. I think I will close now. I remain,

REGULAR COUNCIL MEETING TO-NIGHT

A Part of the Evening Will Be Devoted to Business and the Remainder to "Twaddle"

The regular meeting of the City Council will be held this evening. A big run of business is in prospect and an all night session may be looked for unless the Aldermen change their ways and get down to their knitting. This is too much to expect and Mayor Duffus will be lucky if he gets his men together in time to start the meeting at eight o'clock without the necessity of calling some of them up on the telephone and coaxing them to come

He (at the ball)—Miss De Style is a brave girl.
She—Why do you say that?
He—She shows so much backbone.

WAR VETERANS MEET TUESDAY

The regular monthly meeting of the Peterborough Branch of the Great War Veterans' Association will be held to-morrow, Tuesday evening, in the Club's headquarters in the Barrie Building. All members of the Club and all returned soldiers who would like to join are urged to be present at this meeting, when a number of important matters will come up for discussion. It is hoped that there will be a very large attendance.

MONDAY, JUNE 4, 1917

GOD SAVE THE KING.

Yesterday, His Majesty, King George, "by the Grace of God, King of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British Dominions beyond the seas," reached his fifty-second birthday. He is, as is well known, second son of the late King Edward, the heir apparent Prince Albert Victor, having died in 1892. This is the seventh year of King George's reign, which has had little spectacular about it; it is lost what paled by the record of his illustrious father, the Peacemaker, and much more so by the more illustrious reign of his grandmother, Victoria the Good. His reign, however, has been strictly constitutional. While adding himself very largely, by not lacking any considerable prominence in government, he has been a quiet, personal influence with an interest in national affairs at this great crisis that has set a mark in the matter of deep interest and concern, which his subjects have well lived up to. More than his personality, the King's office has become the concern of the kingdom and empire. He is the visible head of the mighty empire, whose destinies involve the highest destinies of the world, in regard to the highest interest of humanity. So that, rightly regarded, the King's birthday on which we pray with especial point and fervour, takes a very large importance; and a prayer for the King becomes a prayer for the Empire and its interest; and its national relations with the world of civilisation; a prayer for civilisation, liberty, good government and all that British civilisation and British political and social institutions represent. "King by the Grace of God" is a formal official mode of expression, but if we believe what we say we believe, we must act in accord with what the inspired Scripture, which says—"Some trust in chariots, and some in horses; but we will remember the name of the Lord our God." The first part of this truth has an example in the present Scottish author of this war, who trusts to material means—force and the terrorism of brutality; the second part is illustrated by Britain and her cause. If we really have a part in the prayer of God Save the King we shall show that we remember that in a righteous cause, the only trust should be in Him who "can save by many or by few," and without Whose help our armies and munitions, our fleets and forts, will not avail to give us the victory.

Sir Robert Borden's ready acquiescence in the demand for the formation of a "win the war" government seems to be an admission that the present government has not been of that character.

CANADA'S EVIL GENUS.

We are cursed in Canada, with and by the party spirit. Even the demands of patriotism, the call of duty, and the highest national and imperial interests, are made subordinate to its impudent demands for prominence, if not preeminence, in the national life, and the management of national affairs. Party patronage, the foul brood of the party spirit, has been feasted to the bestia of the Borden government in nearly all the details of war administration—through preference given to serving party friends and in other ways even though national and imperial interests were menaced.

We have come to the point where we must if we win, relegate partyism to the background, bury it out of sight and wipe it even from memory, if we are to do our duty in helping win this war—if we shall not make shipwreck of our works.

So keen and unkillable is the party spirit, that it plays its part, intrudes itself into the consideration of the problem of eliminating party so that Canada can do its duty at this time of crisis in her history. The discussion of the formation of a coalition—non-party, a national—government of which all the members will be for the state and none for a party, is tinged with partyism. The Toronto Telegram, a straight-out, strong-talking Conservative journal, in a two-column article on conscription, adopts partyism as the slogan. It opposes coalition because—

"It will avert the trouble that threaten the absolute destrucion of the Liberal party in Canada."

To the organ's dread of coalition saving the Liberal party from destruction, is added a dread for the welfare of the Conservative party. It says—

"Coalition will create trouble that threaten the absolute destruction of the Conservative party"—Inferentially as great calamity as the destruction of the Liberal party would be a boon.

Here is exaltation of party above the most exigent considerations of the national welfare. The good work, the good name and actual salvation of Canada and the Empire and civilisation with it, are at stake, not the petty and paltry fortunes of any party, or both parties, which are after all only types of different modes of thought and forms of opinion. We want to get at the main thing which, at the moment, is Canada's highest discharge of the duties that make demand upon the country.

We have failed to find a way by the extremest application of party administration and the keenest lookout for party interests. Then, in heaven's name, let us try what can be done by statesmanship—the consideration of the nation as the first duty. Our politicians are afraid to give statesmanship a chance, for fear of what would surely happen if the country got the benefit—the injury to, or subordination of, partisan interests.

THE MOVING PICTURE AND PRACTICAL EDUCATION.

The moving picture is likely to repeat in itself the history of the motor car. In the beginning the central idea and use of the motor car were pleasure. Now it has become and is becoming more and more, a vehicular utility. In the business section of the city one now sees the motor transportation truck and delivery van as common as the pleasure motor-car; and on Saturday we saw careering through the streets in defiance of the traffic bylaw, a 120-horse power pumping engine, hose truck and chemical engine—only one of the many developments of the motor vehicle to large and useful purposes. Thus the motor has very largely passed from the purely pleasure class of transportation to the utilities class.

In like manner the moving picture, which was at first a mere vehicle of pleasure—and eye strain—and a formidable rival to the attractions and patronage of the "legitimate drama"—the theatre, is now being used for patriotic and educational purposes, and to the point, in the latter case, where it has received official government recognition. The Ontario government has established a motion picture bureau, ad thorough instruction will be given in all branches of agriculture, fruit growing, road construction etc. This is a diplomatic way of circumventing the natural childish antipathy to the dull routine of educational drill. We all always remain children in our fondness for pictures. When we open an illustrated magazine our first act is to run over the pictures; in a way similar to the "sport," who first turns to the sporting page; the woman to the fashion page; the money maker to the financial page of the journals they open.

The motion pictures in the schools will stimulate children to renewed interest in their studies. They won't be required to altogether learn darkly through the avenue of the unaided mind appealed to by prosaic routine of more or less brilliant or more or less stupid pedagogic appeal. The heavy lesson will be lightened by illustration, and the child's interest aroused and itself animated. Thus, one of the most difficult problems of school teaching, to get and retain the attention of the pupil, is solved to a very large extent.

When the question of technical education is taking new prominence in Peterborough and elsewhere, the function of the motion picture becomes increasingly important. In addition to the pictures on agriculture, dairying, and kindred subjects embraced in the government programme, illustrations of industrial operations and agencies of industrial production, would serve an important purpose in a country where even in our infancy of industrial development the total of Canadian manufactures last year reached a value of 2,000 million dollars. Referring to this subject the Monetary Times says:

Films illustrating the work of Canadian factories would make a series of intense interest to audiences at home and abroad. Our lumber industries, our neglected fisheries, could be portrayed with a view to attracting capital and labour. Agricultural work and life in various parts of Canada, shown in moving pictures, would do more to attract desirable settlers than many tons of fantastic literature. The moving picure as a commercial factor would prove the best possible advertising agent for the Dominion both at home and abroad. Here is a subject worthy of the serious consideration of our governments. Appropriation for this purpose would be money well spent. The original expense would be returned a hundred times.

In connection with technical education in our schools, the moving picture in addition to stimulating commercial and industrial interest, would be a most important adjunctive factor in technical education.

With what principle or interest of a coalition government would Hon. Robert Rogers coalesce?

Exaggeration of Quebec's Attitude Towards Canadian Soldiers Passing Through

OTTAWA, May 31.—The report of the military court of inquiry appointed by the Government last month to investigate newspaper stories circulated in Ontario to the effect that troop trains had been stoned while passing through several Quebec points, finds that the two or three minor disturbances were caused by the soldiers and not by the citizens of Quebec. The report was tabled in the Commons to-day by the Minister of Militia. The members of the court were Lieut.-Col. Wylie, Lieut.-Col. Osteli, and Major Gregor Barclay. After going carefully into all the alleged cases of stone-throwing the court declares there was no foundation whatever for the articles published; that newspapers should be prohibited from publishing articles of this nature, and that the sale of liquor to soldiers in the city of Quebec should be absolutely prohibited. In view of the present situation and feeling outside of Quebec with regard to the attitude to French-Canadians toward the war, the following excerpts from the findings of the court are illuminative and significant.

Cannot Blame the Citizens.

"It appears clear to the court that there is no hostility or ill-feeling on the part of any class of citizens in Quebec towards returned soldiers or any other soldiers, nor does there appear to have been any maltreatment of returned soldiers by any class of citizens. Some soldiers obtained liquor without any restriction some of it of very inferior quality, and being under its influence, they have caused some minor disturbances, the blame for which cannot be placed upon the citizens of Quebec. The evidence discloses that latterly there has grown up an indifference on the part of French-Canadian citizens towards soldiers in general, largely due, in the belief of the court, to the continual accusations that French-Canadians are disloyal and hostile to any participation in the war. Owing to this indifference and the belief firmly fixed in the minds of the great majority of soldiers that the Province of Quebec has not done her duty in the war, minor incidents, which would otherwise have passed unnoticed, have been grossly exaggerated, and have given rise to the accusations published."

Soldiers Provoked Retaliation.

Dealing with the specific cases investigated, the court refers first to the case of the 158nd Batalion at Riviere du Loup. According to the finding of the court some of the men of this battalion detrained at the station and began asking young men of the town why they were not in khaki. Not receiving a satisfactory reply, the soldiers used insulting language, and, without provocation, assaulted several of them. Considerable indignation was naturally aroused, and a group of youths formed apparently with the intention of throwing stones by way of retaliation. The station constable dispersed them, and although no direct evidence was given to the court, it would appear that at least some of them threw stones from a point behind the station as the train was pulling out.

Another Provocation by Soldiers.

The only other story of stone-throwing which was found to have any basis in fact whatever was in the case of the 217 Battalion, at Mont Joli on April 6. The finding of the court declares that the soldiers offered insults to the citizens of the place, and threw potatoes and other articles of food and snow and ice and cinders at them without any provocation at all. The Mayor cleared all citizens from the station, but, as the train was leaving, a number of young men, between the ages of sixteen and twenty, threw a few stones and cinders at the car. "The action and language of the soldiers," declares the report, "has had a deterrent effect on volunteer service in these localities."

AMBULANCE DRIVER AT VERDUN TELLS OF SAD SIGHTS

Philip O. Mills, a son of General Mills, late of the United States army, who is one of the Americans driving ambulances in the American Volunteer Motor Ambulance Corps in France, has written the following letter to Eliot Norton, director in America of the American Volunteer Ambulance Corps:

VERDUN, ——

My Dear Eliot: To-night I am sitting in a small underground cellar of one of the public buildings of the town, acting as a sort of timekeeper or starter for the cars going up to our most dangerous post and handling the reserve cars for the wounded to the town itself. I wish that I could describe the scene as it is before my eyes—for the whole world is passing here — French, Americans; living, wounded and dying.

A long, heavily arched corridor with stone steps leading down to it; two compartments off to one side lined with wine bins, where our reserve men and a few French brancardiers (stretcher bearers) are lying on their stained stretchers, some snoring; beyond a door that leads into a small operating room and to the left another door that leads to a little sick ward, the most pathetic little room I have ever seen, with four beds of different sizes and kinds on one side and six on the other, evidently taken from the ruined houses near by, and one tired infirmier (hospital attendant) to tend and soothe the wounded and the dying.

In the bed nearest the door a French priest, shot through the lungs and with pneumonia setting in, his black beard pointing straight up and whispering for water. Next to him a little German lad, hardly 19, and small, with about six hours to live, calling and sometimes screaming, for his mother, and then for water. Next to him a French captain of infantry with his arm off at the shoulder and his head wounded, weak, dying, but smiling, and next to him a tirailleur in delirium, calling on his colonel to charge the Germans. The Infirmier is going from one to the other, soothing and waiting on each in turn. He asks me what the German is saying, and I tell him that he is calling for his mother. "Ah, this is a sad war," he says, as he goes over to hold the poor lad's hand.

A brancardier comes in with a telephone message. "A blesse (wounded man) at Belleville, very serious." This is a reserve car call, so one slides out and is gone like a gray ghost down the ruined street, making all the speed its driver can, no easy matter, with no lights. In twenty minutes he is back. The brancardiers go out. They come in again, bearing the wounded man on a stretcher and place it on the floor beside the little stove. One of them, who is a priest, leans over him and asks his name and town. Then in answer to what his wife's name is he murmurs "Alice," while on the other side another brancardier is slitting the clothes from his body, and I shiver with pity at the sight I saw.

The surgeon came out of the little operating room. Weary with the night's tragic work, after so many, many other tragic nights, he douses his head in a bucket of water. Then he turned to the wounded man. He looked long at him, gently felt his nose and lifted up his closed eyelid. Then, at his nod, the stretcher is again lifted, and the wounded man carried into the operating room, and soon afterwards into the little room of sorrows.

A brancardier and I gathered the soldier's belongings from his clothes to be sent to his wife, but even we had to stop, for a few minutes after we saw the photograph of his wife, and their two little children.

An hour later as our night's work was slacking down and several cars had driven up and been unloaded, the infirmier came in from the little room and said something to the brancardiers. Two of them got a stretcher, and in a moment the "blesse from Belleville" came past us with a sheet over him. They laid him down in the other end of the room and another brancardier commenced rolling and tying him in burlap for burial. As you looked he changed to a shapeless log. Then out to the dead wagon with it.

Soon after I went into the little ward again to see how the others were coming through the night, and was glad to see that they were all quieted down; even the little German seemed to be less in pain, though his breathing seemed to shake the little bed he lay on.

Through a chink I saw that day was beginning to break and as I noticed it I heard the Chief's car coming in from a "Sap" and I knew that the night's work was over.

PASSION FLOWER BROUGHT TO BLOOM AT MOUNT ROYAL

A rare flower has burst into bloom in the hot houses of John Henderson, ranger of the Mount Royal Park, a blossom seldom seen in these latitudes but known in the religious lore of many lands—the far-famed passion flower.

A native of the South American tropics, the passion flower is seldom seen in colder climates. Mr. Henderson, however, has succeeded to such an extent in cultivating the beautiful flower that already his vine has borne two blossoms and other buds are preparing to open.

Perhaps it is our colder climate that has delayed the bloom, for tradition has it that the passion flower bursts into blossom on Good Friday, lives two days of glorious beauty and dies on Easter Sunday.

A CHURCH SYMBOL.

The early Church found in the plant a symbol of the crucifixion. Its feathery purple corona was to them symbolical of the crown of thorns, its blood red pistil were the wounds of Christ and its stamens the five nails.

The five sepals and five petals, all pale green and barely distinguishable from each other, were taken to symbolise the ten apostles—Peter, and Judas, being left out.

Below each blossom grow three delicate green leaves, which were thought to represent the Trinity.

After their brief time of bloom these blossoms fall away and the residue develops into succulent berries, fruits which, however, are not sought after nor prized in the way in which the flower they come from is, which Mr. Henderson has succeeded in cultivating in a climate very different from that of its native land.

COAL AND SUGAR PRICES.

They Are Fair and Reasonable, Government Commission Concludes.

OTTAWA, June 2.— That prices at which coal and sugar are being sold in Canada are fair and reasonable, and without undue profit, are conclusions in reports made by W. F. O'Connor, K.C., commissioner in regard to the cost of living. He finds that the average profit on coal per ton is about 50 cents and that business is being carried on properly and legally. A serious situation is indicated because dealers are on rations, so to speak, from the mines, getting their supplies piecemeal, while an increase in July is announced at the mines. Regarding sugar, two out of six refineries last year made no profits. The others did better, but did not make anything abnormal. Wholesalers in the east get a profit of only about 3 per cent., which counts instead as a loss as regards that commodity. Retailers likewise get a small margin of profit.

Many an ambitious public movement should be classified as lost motion.

It is the woman with the latest gown who is generally latest at the church.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Playing For a Wife

By ELINOR MARSH

Miss Winterton was an inveterate gambler. She inherited $20,000 from her mother, which was invested at 5 per cent interest, giving her a thousand a year. This was not enough. She could not possibly get on without two thousand. She gambled and lost all her money except a few thousand dollars.

Steady girls make good wives, and there is not much to be expected from unsteady ones. A gambler is not likely to make a satisfactory companion for a man. Nevertheless men are not prone to marry a woman because she is steady. They marry the woman who fascinates them, and a reckless woman is sometimes more fascinating than a careful one. At any rate, Fred Molineaux fell in love with Miss Winterton and asked her to marry him. But he was poor, and she declined him. Had he been wealthy she would have married him, because she liked him. But Molineaux did not know this.

Molineaux went away. Everybody said that he could not remain in the same place with the girl who had refused him. This was before she inherited her $20,000 or had taken to gambling. One day several years later he returned.

One evening the two met at a bridge party and were opponents in a four handed game. Miss Winterton took $200 away with her. Mr. Molineaux told her he had brought back with him several thousand dollars and would be pleased to have her win it from him. She said she would rather win some one else's money, but he insisted, and she consented.

When they sat down to cards Molineaux asked his opponent what game she preferred. She chose bridge, and they began a two handed game. Molineaux told her he couldn't lose his money to her fast enough without playing high. She was not averse to this, and they kept "doubling" and "going back" till there was much money passing. But instead of Miss Winterton winning Molineaux's money he won hers. She was reduced to a few hundred dollars, the remains of her inheritance, when the luck turned and she began to win, and it was not long before she had recovered all she had lost to him.

From this time on Molineaux played with apparent recklessness, which would have indicated to an uninterested observer that he was playing purposely to lose. A thousand dollars of his money went to Miss Winterton, then another thousand and another till $4,000 had changed hands. Then he drew five $100 bills from his pocket.

"I thought," said Miss Winterton, "that you had brought back only a few thousand dollars."

"I am not yet at the end of my pile," he replied, dealing the cards.

Molineaux continued to lose steadily. His adversary expected every time she made a big haul he would announce that he had been frozen out. But his funds seemed to hold out amazingly. The more Miss Winterton won the more excited she became. The more Mr. Molineaux lost the cooler he appeared. When Miss Winterton had won $10,000 she was so absorbed in the game that she forgot about her opponent having only a few thousand. She played high, but Molineaux played higher. Occasionally he won.

They had been playing many hours when Miss Winterton paused to count her winnings. She had won $20,000.

"How would you like to throw a hand at poker double or quits?" asked Molineaux.

Miss Winterton caught her breath. She had regained the amount of her legacy. Should she stop and live on $1,000 or risk all by trying to secure a sum that would satisfy her—$2,000? She was under the influence of the gambling demon.

"Suppose you lose," she said doubtfully, "have you the money to pay?"

Molineaux drew a certified check from his pocket for $25,000 and laid it on the table. His adversary looked surprised.

"I thought you were poor?" she said.

"Since I saw you last I have made this money. I have come back to"—

He paused, uncertain how to finish.

"Back against me. Your purpose is or was to clean me out, then offer to take care of me as your wife."

"Proceed with the game and you will know my object. Is it double or quits?"

She peered into his face, endeavoring to read what was at the bottom of all this. It was inscrutable. Then she said:

"Double or quits it is. Deal the cards."

He dealt her a pair of tens and scattering. His own cards were all scattering. She called for three cards, and he dealt himself a new hand. Throwing his cards on the table face up, he showed king high. Miss Winterton turned her cards over and showed two tens. Imperturbably as ever, Molineaux pushed the check over to her.

It was only at the latter part of the play that Miss Winterton's attention had been directed to what was going on between her and a man who had proposed to her. Somehow now she forgot what she had won in his possible object.

"Are you cleaned out?" she asked.

"Yes; I made this money on a speculation and came back to lose it to you. I am going away again to make some more, and when I have made it I am coming back to lose that to you too."

"No, you're not," she said.

And he didn't. He married her.

A Minister's Evidence

That Piles, or Hemorrhoids Can be Quickly Cured—A Justice of the Peace Cured Many Years Ago.

Toronto, Ont., June 4.—There has come to us recently these two letters from prominent men who bear unquestionable testimony in regard to Dr. Chase's Ointment as a prompt and lasting cure for piles.

These men give their evidence freely because they know what it means to suffer from the tortures of piles and then be cured. They feel it a duty and a pleasure to let others know how they too may be cured.

Rev. Frank N. Bowes, Methodist Minister, Priceville, Ont., writes: 'In the winter of 1912, I was stationed in Cobalt. I went for a snowshoe tramp one day, and sat for only a few minutes on a cold stump waiting for some comrades to catch up to me. From sitting on the damp stump I contracted piles, and suffered so severely that it caused me great pain to walk. A friend recommended Dr. Chase's Ointment, and I immediately purchased a small box which very rapidly effected a cure. I always keep a box on hand, and find it excellent for any kind of wound or sore.'

Mr. W. B. Thorne, J.P., Alderside, Alta., writes: "It was twenty-eight years ago that I became acquainted with the merits of Dr. Chase's Ointment and would not be without it on any account as it never fails to do its work. I was first induced to try it for piles. Less than one box cured me, and I have never been troubled since. That was twenty-eight years ago, so I think the cure is permanent. It is good for sore lips and hands, chafing and, in fact, all sorts of sores. You are at liberty to use this statement for the benefit of others."

You can put Dr. Chase's Ointment to the test in any case of piles with the utmost assurance that you will obtain relief from suffering and ultimately lasting cure. 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

OF INTEREST TO MILADY.

Children are wearing blue silk frocks, sometimes embroidered with lace embroidery.

Some of the new sleeves reach only to the elbow and end in quaint little underaleeves.

Paisley printed foulards are charming used as trimming on a sombre-colored robes.

Low shoes for afternoon gowns are generally fashioned with two straps across the instep and a tiny bow.

Blue taffeta combined with black taffeta and a dash of bold embroidery, makes a most attractive evening dress.

A lovely color scheme for a schoolgirl with bright coloring appears in pleated one-piece frocks of soft French gray chiffon; the low cut necks finished with white lace embroidered in gray, and the hair ornamented by a huge black butterfly bow.

IN STYLE, QUALITY AND VALUE

Our Millinery is in a class by itself. More business at a lessened profit to make up for the backward season. Exceptional reductions. Ladies are invited to inspect our new summer models. Styles not shown before.

PRESS COMMENT ON HALTING OF SOCIALISTS

"Proof Must Be Complete."

Brooklyn Eagle: — "Mr. Lansing must realize that it would be necessary to prove beyond a doubt that the conferees at Stockholm are really authorized agents of foreign governments."

"Of German Origin."

"Would Misrepresent Country."

Troy Record:—"To permit them to participate in a German conference would be to have the aims and purposes of this country misrepresented and distorted in foreign eyes."

"Scheme of Discord."

Philadelphia Press:—"Aid and comfort of the highest kind the Stockholm conference does give to Germany; its purpose is to paralyze the arm of Russia and bring discord and confusion into the camp of the other allies."

"Good Judgment."

Bridgeport (Conn.) Post: — "The State Department has acted with good judgment in refusing to grant passports."

"Not Very Friendly."

Springfield (Mass.) Republican:—"Certainly these three socialists could not be regarded as very friendly to our government in their mission to Stockholm."

MAY ASK $5,000 BECAUSE OFFICERS INCONVENIENCED HIM

WINDSOR, June 2. — Charging that he has been "inconvenienced" by Canada immigration officers on duty at the ferry dock here, who held him up because he failed to produce a passport or other proper credentials when he attempted to cross to Detroit recently, J. J. Masse, secretary of the Windsor branch of L'Association Commerciale, threatens dire vengeance upon the immigration officials in general, and upon the Canadian Government in particular.

Chief Inspector Orville Adams, who ordered Masse detained at the dock for a time, because of language he is alleged to have used towards Inspector Byrne, received a communication from a local attorney, J. D. Grandpere, to the effect that Masse has decided to institute an action against the Government for the "inconvenience" caused him. He asks $5,000 damages.

It develops that Masse was told he must apologize to the immigration officer for the statement that he is said to have made that: "A man had no business to hold a Government position without a knowledge of the French language."

Inspector Adams informed Masse that he was wrong, and after nearly two hours' detention, the latter capitulated. The immigration officers were particularly incensed at Masse's statement that "French is the official language of this country."

Save the Food and Serve the Empire!

The Average Canadian Family Wastes Enough to Feed a Soldier

"The Kitchen must help as well as the Workshop and the Trenches"
Lloyd George.

INTELLIGENT economy in the kitchen can do much to prevent the threatened world famine—can counteract the effect of high prices—and can replace growing debt with systematic saving.

Careful investigations show that before the war the average British family wasted 25% of their food—and we Canadians were even more extravagant.

This waste is not in a few big things, but in many little ones, each, we used to think, too small to bother about—such as careless peeling of vegetables and fruit—failure to make good use of dripping and "left-overs"—and such others as will occur to every thrifty housekeeper.

For the Empire's sake as well as your own, hunt up and cut out these leaks! You'll be helping to relieve the food shortage—saving your own money—and putting yourself in a position to buy Canadian War Savings Certificates and help win the war.

War Savings Certificates are issued in denominations of $25, $50 and $100, to be repaid in three years at full face value. They cost $21.50, $43 and $86 respectively, at all Money Order Post Offices and Banks, thus yielding over 5% interest. Should you need it, you can get your money back at any time.

BILLY SUNDAY IN TOMBS IS SPURNED BY VON RINTELEN

NEW YORK, June 2.—In the seven and a half weeks that the Rev. William A. Sunday has been trying to reform New York eminent financiers, officers in the army and navy, educators and stars of the theatrical world have sought an introduction to him, but Captain von Rintelen, the German agent convicted of conspiracy for his part in plots against this country's commerce, refused to shake hands with him.

Mr. Sunday had preached to 125 prisoners in the Tombs. On a front seat was David Lamar, "the Wolf of Wall Street." Mr. Lamar did not "hit the trail," but he appeared deeply interested. Later by his request he was presented to Mr. Sunday. Von Rintelen had refused to go to the chapel for the meeting.

After the service Mr. Sunday was taken on a tour of the prison by John J. Hanley, warden. They stopped at the door of Von Rintelen's cell and when Mr. Sunday offered to shake hands with him, he said: "No, I hear you are against the Emperor. I have read the things you have been saying against my country. I understand you have no use for them."

Sure, He's Against the Kaiser.

Whereupon Mr. Sunday drew himself up to his full height and answered:

"You bet your life I am against the Emperor of Germany. You have got it doped out right that I am against the Kaiser and that whole bunch. If you think you can come over here and bribe our officials you are wrong. You can't get that by, not on your tintype. I consider myself honoured that you would not touch my hand."

Lamar went to the front hall in the care of two federal officers and met most of the Sunday party. He had requested in court on Tuesday that he be allowed to stay over and attend the Sunday meeting.

Mr. Sunday received a noisy greeting from the prisoners. The Rev. John Callahan, chaplain of the Tombs, presided at the meeting. Prayer was offered by the Rev. Dr. George Williams Carter, secretary of the New York Bible Society.

"We passed up an invitation to take part in the parade to come down here," said Billy. We knew you could not go out, so we will try and bring you some sunshine. Doing right is the most profitable business in the world and doing wrong is the most unprofitable business. Even if you start wrong you can finish right."

Then he told stories of reformed prisoners he had been able to aid. After the service he shook hands with every one he could reach.

Ask Jesus to Down Germany.

"Say, Jesus damn a country like that," prayed Billy Sunday in the tabernacle, 168th street and Broadway, in the afternoon. He referred to Germany. The reason he wanted the Lord to damn it, he said, was because "it has murdered little children, outraged women, burned up human bodies and ground human bones to make fertilizer."

"Lord, don't let anything grow on that land," he continued and added: "I don't pray for that country at all. Bless our nation and lay flowers on the graves of those who had have led our flag. Lord, we have never allowed it to trail in the dust yet. On Decoration Day, we get kind of sad, Lord. It is a good thing, too. We have drawn the sword once more. We don't want their land; we don't want their gold. We want them to be free. If we can't get it, Lord, let us buy Liberty bonds. Let the men dig up a ten spot, or if possible, fifty bones and buy a bond. Gosh, we've got to use bullets, now, Lord."

After the service 330 persons "hit the trail."

"Jesus, please bless General Pershing and the crowd that will go with him to France. May they render a great service," was part of a prayer offered in the evening by Mr. Sunday before a crowd of twenty-two thousand persons.

"Bless the boys from the navy," he continued. "There is a good crowd, Lord. We look over in that corner every night for the boys in blue and we would miss them, Jesus, if they were not there.

"Bless, Jesus, the President of the United States; bless the army and bless the navy. There is a sadness about Memorial Day which almost makes us cry, Lord."

It was a patriotic service. Homer Rodeheaver sounded "taps" on his trombone. The one hundred men of the navy present were asked to rise, and they got a rousing cheer. Then they all stood and sang the "Star Spangled Banner."

There were 1,150 trail hitters, making a total of 1,480 for the day. Those in the evening line included bluejackets and several soldiers.

"Service for the World."

Baltimore American:—"The United States has done a service for the world of no less consequence than a decisive victory upon the battlefield."

INTERESTING LETTER FROM AN APSLEY SOLDIER NOW IN ENGLAND

Sergeant Jones Tells of Conditions in England and of the Means Adopted To Conserve Food Supplies

Miss Glady's Jones, Apsley, received the following letter from her brother, Sergeant I. W. Jones of the 255th Battalion who has not yet received the sad news of the death of her only brother, in France.

Otterpool Camp, England,
May 16, 1917

Dear Sister,—I intended sending you a cablegram to let you know I arrived safely in England. But I was not allowed to for four days, so I am writing instead.

Well we are in Blighty, camped where the 93rd were last summer, I wrote mother a letter and posted it yesterday; hope she got it.

I would like to tell you a lot about our trip, but must not, as the censor is busy here. I wrote Hugh to-day—a nice long letter—hope he is well. It seems such a long time since I heard from him. but I will hear oftener now.

I like England very much. It is a regular flower garden, orchards, fruit farms, and hop fields, enclosed by beautiful hedges for miles, everything in blossom, the grass is a deeper green than in Canada, probably owing to the moisture. There is a large aerodrome here, (flying school). Both day and night, we can look up at any time and see flying machines like blackbirds. It's nothing to count twelve at a time over our tents. The people are so different here than in Canada. Our rations are light here. The population are only allowed so much bread, etc., each week, pastry, etc., is a thing of the past. Each household can only buy eight ounces sugar at a time; all scraps are saved, "Not a crumb thrown away," or twenty-eight days in jail, if it is even a pork rind.

SAVE WASH WATER.

The water we wash our mess tins in must be saved, and sold to the farmers for pigs. These are facts—and everything is carried out so systematically and strict.

How is everyone in Apsley? Tell some of my friends to write, if they can find time.

You should see the women and girls out here, seeding, dressed in overalls and big boots, but for all that we take off our hat to them everytime. They seem to feel this awful war very keenly here but cheer up! It will soon be over now.

Gladys will you send me a cake? It sure would be a treat. I will be glad when the war is over and we get back to Canada, and get a D.C.M., "decent Canadian meal." Tell mother not to worry, as I am well and happy.

ROAR OF GUNS.

I am glad I enlisted, even more so after reaching here, (only forty-five miles from the firing line). The roar of the big guns never ceasing. Those in Canada have a lot to be thankful for. I would not for anything be in "Civy's" until this awful war is over.

I know that God is with us, and ours is a righteous cause. I am anxious to get to France as soon as possible to do my bit.

I am feeling immensely, the climate suits me to a nicety, and I am getting a ruddy complexion, "like a soldier you know."

Well Gladys I must call it a quit, for this time. Be sure and not let mother work too hard and do the same yourself. Hoping you are getting along all right at home. Write soon.

your loving brother,
WILL.

SECOND TO NONE

By ISAAC JACKSON

I watched some prisoners of war. There were German soldiers of all regiments and classes of society. Here they were behind the barbed wire in a northern British town, solemnly performing the goose-step! Their feet swung forward and smacked the ground hard, and truly the ground seemed to shake beneath their feet. Impressive and significant! the German war machine and the German soldier will keep on doing a thing because it is part of the system. The machine not only has absorbed Fritz, but has mechanised him too. That gravely comic goose-step symbolized the surrender of his ego to a dominant power. Tommy Atkins never surrenders his ego.

Once I saw some raw territorials making a charge against the Turks—I said "raw" because they had been only twelve days in the trenches and their training had been modelled on South African lines; they had practised the sectional rush and taking cover and similar evolutions. Here is a corporal, first out of the trench, yelling himself hoarse. He and his comrades halt momentarily at some barbed wire; then leap it and go on with throat parched and body bathed in sweat; whilst the tornado of shot and shell is raging on all sides. The corporal comes to the first trench and spots a Turk's tarbouche and a rifle pointed straight at himself. The old training asserts itself: he takes cover by lying flat on the edge of the parapet. Then the fighting spirit emerges. He picks up two or three stones of twenty pounds weight and lobs them on to the tarbouche. That was never in the training manual. They jump the trench and run forward to the next trench. Highly unconventional and irregular methods of fighting, I grant you! Possibly it would have been more showy to have dashed into the trench even with a bullet in one's body. But the point is that the "terrier" did go forward.

It was the fashion before the war to talk of "Saturday afternoon soldiers," and to ridicule them as unworthy to be considered trained troops. Nobody says that now. Why? Because Tommy's spirit was right and the patronized or ridiculed "Terriers" have faced and beaten the Germans and the Turks in positions that were "impregnable."

What has amazed all impartial spectators of the British fighting man is his imperturbability. Fear? Does he feel fear? One must suppose so since he is human. But it is not apparent in his demeanour. I know an officer who fell wounded in Mametz Wood during the attack on the Somme. He was so overcome with loss of blood that he lay entirely still unable to move a muscle, unable to utter a sound. Two stretcher-bearers approached him in the course of their business. It was raining shells and raining bullets. They seemed to be unaware of it. They approached him. "Lor, 'ere's an orficer," said one.

The other looked down. "No good touchin' 'im," said the other. "'E's gone west."

"Seems to 'ave got pretty badly 'it," said the first. "Wonder if 'e's really dead."

They stood by him discussing him for some moments in his hearing as though they might be standing at the corner of a London street, and the bullets whistled over their heads and the shells burst terrifically all about them. Then they began to move away. In that instant the shock of being abandoned for dead loosened the officer's voice and he succeeded in crying out. They turned back.

"There you are," said the first. "'E ain't dead after all, I thought 'e warn't."

"Well, 'e did look stiff," rejoined his colleague.

"You can't always tell though. I remember 'ow once at Loos——" He enlarged on reminiscences of a previous battle while they lifted their helpless burden on a stretcher. It was all as commonplace and matter-of-fact as possible, but there was never a slip in their trained efficiency, their kindliness and care. And all around them raged the storm of shells and the murderous hail of bullets.

A French doctor, M. Joseph Vassal, who was at Gallipoli, writes his impression of the British soldiers' behaviour during the fighting of May 1-2, 1915:

"Vacarme effroyable—des anglais, qui, impassibles sous le feu, se rasent et mangent."

Nero fiddled while Rome burned, but he was in no danger. Tommy Atkins shaves and eats his dinner under fire, despite the terrific din and danger of a bombardment.

The German does the goose-step. This is calculated to impress the onlooker. So is his frightfulness, but the trouble is that Tommy sees it and remains unimpressed; or, if impressed, it is with the conviction that this "swank" of the Germans conceals a weakness which it is his business to show up. The Germans' attitude is—"We're bigger'n you so our rights are bigger'n your'n."

The Tommy Atkins of to-day is not for the most part a professional soldier; but he tries his hand at it and learns his job and beats his teacher. The German prisoner of war looks with barely concealed amusement and contempt at the amateurish performances of his guards. He sings with a seriousness which is unconsciously humorous, "We must conquer!" (Wir missen siegen!) and yet Fritz does not win. Truly, "the stars in their courses fought against Sisera!"

Fritz swaggered about Europe bullying everybody because he was ready for a fight and had fallen upon and battered inoffensive little Belgium. He had the advantage of greater numbers and more guns. Captain Bobadil represents very well this attitude of the German; in love with "the immortal passade and the punto reverso," explaining how he could fight and kill several thousands in single combat. He is getting very near to the stage when he will be explaining his beating away: "Sir, I was moonstruck! I could not raise a finger!"

LINDSAY ALDERMAN OBJECTS TO OUTSIDERS

Claims That Peterboro Inspector Made a Charge Which "Seemed Out of Place"

Lindsay, June 4.—Ald. T. Wilkinson considers there is something wrong with appointing an inspector from Peterborough on electric light wiring in town. "This dignatary makes a charge of $1.60" states the Alderman. "That seems out of place."

Ald. Wilkinson thought it might be well to appoint one person as building inspector and electric wire inspector also. No member of the Town Council can accept the position unless he does it without remuneration. The Hydro Electric people will be consulted on this matter.—Lindsay Warder.

GERMAN CORPSES AS PIG FODDER

Some Gruesome Revelations—Dividends From the Dead—Eighty Ghouls at Work

It has been left to the Germans—as might have been expected—to evolve the most nauseating phase of the war, so repulsive, indeed, that it is impossible to print full details. It is now known that so desperate are the straits to which the enemy are reduced, they have established a factory for converting corpses of their soldiers, and possibly some of those of their foes, into oil, fertiliser and pig fodder. The hideous story, which investigation has fully confirmed, is revealed in the "Independence Belge." We have known, says that paper, for long that the Germans stripped their dead behind the firing line, fastened them into bundles of three or four bodies with iron wire, and then despatched these grisly bundles to the rear. Until recently the trains laden with the dead were sent to Seraing, near Liege, and a point north of Brussels, where were refuse consumers. Much surprise has been caused by the fact that of late this traffic has proceeded in the direction of Gerolstein, and it was noted that on each wagon was written "D.A.V.G."

German science is responsible for the ghoulish idea of the formation of the German Offal-Conversion Company, Ltd., ("D.A.V.G." or "Deutsche Abfall - Verwertung Gesellschaft") a dividend earning company with a capital of 250,000 pounds, the chief factory of which has been constructed 1,000 yards from the railway connecting St. Vith, near the Belgian frontier, with Gerolstein, in the lonely, little frequented Eifel district, southwest of Coblants. This factory deals specially with the dead from the west front. If the results are as good as the company hopes, another will be established to deal with corpses on the east front.

The trains arrive full of bare bodies which are unloaded by the workers who live at the works. The men wear oilskin overalls and masks with mica eyepieces. They are equipped with long hooked poles and push the bundles of bodies to an endless chain which picks them up with big hoops attached at intervals of two feet. The bodies are transported on this endless chain into a long, narrow compartment where they pass through a scalding bath which disinfects them. They then go through a drying chamber and finally are automatically carried into a digester or great cauldron in which they are dropped by an apparatus which detaches them from the chain. In the digester they remain from six to eight hours, and are treated by steam, which breaks them up, while they are slowly stirred by machinery.

The bones sink to the bottom, leaving a thick dark colored liquid. From this treatment result several products. The fats are broken up into stearine, a form of tallow, and oils, which require to be re-distilled before they can be used. The process of distillation is carried out by boiling the oil with carbonate of soda, and some part of the by-products resulting from this is used by German soap-makers.

The fumes are exhausted from the buildings by electric fans and are sucked through a great pipe to the north-eastern corner, where they are condensed and the refuse resulting is discharged into a sewer. There is no high chimney as the boiler furnaces are supplied with air by electric fans. There is a laboratory and in charge of the works is a chief chemist with two assistants and 78 men. All the employees are soldiers and are attached to the 8th Army Corps. There is a sanatorium by the works and under no pretext is any man permitted to leave them. They are guarded as prisoners at their appalling work.

A wounded sergeant of the Kent Regiment who has just returned from the front, speaking of the German prisoners, said:

One of them who spoke English told me that even when dead their work is not done. They are wired together in batches then and boiled down in factories as a business to make fat for munition making and to feed the pigs and poultry. Then other folks eat the pigs and the poultry. Something like cannibalism, isn't it? This fellow told me that Frits called his margarine "corpse fat," because they suspect that is what it comes from.

WAR SLAYS FOUR BROTHERS, WIFE AND TWO CHILDREN

FOLKESTONE AIR RAID FILLS THIS CANADIAN SOLDIER'S CUP OF SORROW—ONLY PARENTS LEFT.

LONDON, June 1.—The Daily Mail publishes the following: Four brothers killed at the front; father-in-law and cousin killed also, and now the wife and two children—the whole family—killed in the Folkestone air raid. Such is the tragic history of Corp. G. W. Moss, a young Canadian soldier as told in the following letter from a chaplain at the front:

"At the front we have read of cunning coddled conscience and soulless strikers until we have become sick at heart. Let the whole empire hear of the young Canadian who has just been in my billet and is leaving for England to-night. Corp G. W. Moss of the Canadians enlisted in Canada in August, 1914, was sent with the first batch of the Canadians to the front, has been through the whole campaign, was twice wounded, and has been three times back to the front from England.

"He is one of the five brothers. The other four have all given their lives on the field of honour. His cousin and father-in-law have fallen also. Now to crown everything the corporal's wife and two young children, the whole family has been killed in the great air raid on England. He has lost all—yet to-night he stands calm and resigned in the confidence of the righteousness of our cause and the guiding hand of God.

"The corporal's commanding officer is a brick and has done all that a father could have done for him. We shall look eagerly to see what the empire has to say to one of its truest sons whose father and mother are bereaved of all their other children and are anxiously watching day by day in Canada. Before the war Corp. Moss was a captain in the Canadian Salvation Army. His great desire is to become a chaplain."

Men on Leave Make Surprising Demand for Education, While Those at Front Fight

PETROGRAD, June 4.—Many of Russia's soldiers are so busy acquiring an education that they haven't time to fight. They are crowding the children out of the schools. In many sections they have started schools of their own.

Minister of War Kerensky has had tremendous success in instilling the fight spirit in the troops actually at the front, but there are thousands of fighters who still roam about freely over Russia or elsewhere who have laid down their rifles for the school book.

Here in Petrograd, a Jaeger regiment to-day opened a "soldiers' university," where fighters are taught mathematics and history. At Polecon the soldiers have usurped the desks of children in the schools. At Samara the munition workers have felt the same yearning for knowledge and have opened schools along side their factories.

Appeals Unheard.

"Darkest Russia" is no more—and the people as a whole now seeing the light, want knowledge to guide them in the dazzling glare of their new-found freedom!

Extraordinary efforts are being made all over the country to back up Minister Kerensky's appeals to make the soldiers fight. Notwithstanding this, all trains are crowded with uniformed men, visiting their families or just wandering around.

Yesterday I witnessed the departure from Petrograd of the weekly Vladivostock express. Scores of soldiers clung to the doors, the rails—even the roofs—of the cars so desperate were they to reach their homes. I was told the sight was by no means unusual. These are the men on whom the Government is now exerting every possible persuasion to make them see that the new liberty they enjoy must be fought for and won on the battlefield.

The Premier's Order.

To stop the practice of soldiers wandering around Russia footloose, Premier Lvoff issued an order to all Government commissioners throughout the provinces to take speedy and energetic steps to return deserters, to the front."

Food difficulties still give trouble. Official estimates to-day put the total of Russia's wheat stocks at about 200,000,000 poods— total about 120,000,000 bushels — a goodly supply. But there are tremendous problems in the transportation of this grain.

Attitude of Peasants.

One other source of difficulty is the inclination of the peasants to hold their wheat among themselves, and not sell it in the villages. The peasants claim in past years the villagers have over charged them for shoes and clothes. Many instances are reported here where the farmers have renewed high prices in the towns — and then given their produce freely, and without charge to soldiers. At Soomish, Tamboff, and Shamlinoff, where villagers were literally starving for lack of food, the peasants congress now in session here, finally succeeded in persuading the farmers to relent and sell their crops in the villages.

Minister of War and Marine Kerensky to-day ordered establishment of a Government life insurance bureau for benefit of Russia's sailors.

Rupture is Curable

Rupture is not a tear or breach in the abdominal wall, as commonly supposed, but it is a stretching or dilation of a natural opening, says J. Y. Egan, of Toronto, the noted Rupture Appliance Specialist who will visit Peterborough, Empress Hotel, Saturday, Sunday, June 9th and 10th.

The "Ourastus" as now used and approved will not only retain any case of rupture perfectly, affording immediate and complete comfort, but is intended to assist nature to close the opening in the shortest time known without an operation. This appliance has received highest awards wherever shown, producing results without harmful injections or other aids. Mr. Egan has testimonials from our own section for inspection. If interested call, he will be pleased to show you same without charge.

Canadians In A Fierce Engagement

United Press Correspondent Describes Hot Fighting Around Avion — Maple Leaf Troops Took Electric Light Station on Saturday But Were Driven Out on Sunday — Sir Douglas Haig's Dispatch To-day, However, Says Ground Has Once More Been Retaken

(By William Phillip Simms, United Press Staff Correspondent)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, June 4.—The Canadian troops were back to-day in the same trenches they occupied last Friday after a victory and reverse around Avion.

The Prussians on Sunday afternoon retook the Electric Light Station east of Avion in a mad fury of attack that totally disregarded the losses inflicted upon them. They thus undid all the work which the Canadians had accomplished on Saturday in obtaining control of that spot. Throughout Sunday the enemy kept up a terrific bombardment along the front of 1,700 yards on which the Canadians had made their advance. The fire was so intense that it was decided to withdraw the British forces to their previous position. At the moment when this was being carried out, the Prussians launched their attack, despite the British barrage, reinforced by the strong machine gun fire which the Canadians kept pouring into the advancing ranks. The enemy kept coming on in waves. A hand-to-hand struggle ensued. The British slipped backward in their withdrawal, stopping at the line of trenches they had occupied on Friday. So perfect was this British withdrawal that the Canadians took 112 prisoners with them, 90 of them being unwounded. The German regain in this localized fight was made possible largely by the flat topography of the country. South of Lens there are no covering ridges. Therefore when the German attack came the Canadians had to defend themselves in what was practically an open field.

British artillery was active at a number of points on the front today. The prolonged inactivity of infantry is broken, however, only by such local engagements as that by which the Canadians pushed forward Saturday.

Sir Douglas Haig's report to-day states that the ground taken by the Canadians and lost Sunday has been re-taken.

STOCKHOLM, June 4.—It is hinted that Hungarian Radicals are planning a "democratic revolution" was given to-day by the Hungarian Socialist delegator Hunfi, in an interview to the United Press.

"A democratic revolution in the mid-European countries," he said, "is not only an internal question, but it is one of the greatest importance in general to European politics and a vital step toward peace and international solidarity."

LONDON, June 4.—Good results were obtained from a bombing attack carried out over the German docks and works at Bruges last night, as announced by the Admiralty to-day.

NEW YORK, June 4.—The torpedoing of the British steamer Jessmore, 3,191 tons, en route from Baltimore to Manchester, with several Americans in her crew saved, was reported by arrivals from Europe in New York to-day.

J. W. FLAVELLE IS AMONG NEW KNIGHTS

Among the King's birthday honours are a number of new Canadian knights, Sir Joseph Wesley Flavelle, Sir Robert A. Falconer, Sir George Bury, Sir John Aird, Sir George Burn, Sir Eugene Fiset, Sir Augustus Meredith Nanton, Major-General Sir Richard Ernest William Turner, V.C., D.S.O., and Lieut.-Col. Sir Arthur William Currie.

The Toronto Globe says:

Sir Joseph Wesley Flavelle, Bart., of Toronto, was born of Irish parents, near Peterborough, Ont., on Feb 14, 1858. He was educated at the public and grammar schools of Peterborough. During his career in Toronto he has held many public offices. Besides being a prominent business man, he has identified himself with a large number of religious and philantrophic organizations, which extend from missionary enterprises to medical commissions.

Before the "shell investigation," he was known principally as the President of the William Davies Company, Ltd., Toronto but since Lord Rhondda—Mr. D. A. Thomas—organized the British Munitions business in Canada, he has served as the Chairman of the Imperial Munitions Board in Canada. To him is very largely attributed the credit for speeding up the manufacture of munitions in Canada, and cleaning up the difficulties inherited from the Shell Commission. Sir Joseph Flavelle, Bart., possesses great capacity as an organizer of industries, and the touch of business genius is declared to have revived many large concerns. Besides being President of the William Davies Co., he is President of the Harris Abattoir Co.; President National Trust Co.; Vice-Presidents Robert Simpson Co., Ltd.; Vice-President Toronto Penny Bank; Director, Canadian Bank of Commerce; Director, Imperial Varnish Company, Ltd.; Director, John Murphy Co., Ltd., Montreal.

Leaders in the Methodist Church of Canada claim him as a pillar of that denomination. He is one of its leading laymen and takes a prominent part in the General Conference. The missionary interests of the Methodist Church have received a great deal of support from him.

A great deal of the success which characterizes the reorganization and construction of the new General Hospital on College street is due to his painstaking interest in the institution. It is declared that he, with his colleagues on the board, threw themselves into this work with so much energy and zeal that success was assured from the outset. The institution has passed through many trying periods and but for the Board of Directors the city would probably not have possessed the magnificent pile of buildings it possesses to-day.

He is a member of many prominent clubs, and politically is listed as an "Independent Conservative."

FORESTERS AT CHURCH

Members of Canadian Order Attend Divine Service at S. A. Temple

The Canadian Order of Foresters attended divine service at the Salvation Army Temple last night the first Sunday in June being the date of he annual church parade. The Foresters, about one hundred and twenty-five strong, met at the Foresters' Hall and, preceded by the Temple Band, marched up George street to Hunter street, thence to Aylmer street, ending at the Temple.

Adjutant McElhiney, in a splendid address, dwelt upon the motto of the Foresters: Liberty, Benevolence and Concord, laying stress upon the strong factor liberty meant to-day, and the great cost of upholding it; of the necessity of benevolence to promote kindliness to our fellow beings. Concord, he said, was necessary for sociability and good will.

Adjutant McElhiney spoke of the great gift the Society had made the Empire, having sent 3,500 of their members to the front.

After the service the Foresters returned to the hall, where a hearty vote of thanks, moved by Brother Thomas Brown, seconded by Brother B. Mensies, was accorded to the Salvation Army, Adjutant McElhiney, and to the Band.

A Message For Every Canadian

A Practical "Win-the-War" Campaign—Produce More and Waste Less

OTTAWA, June 2.—Never has the power of national publicity been so convincingly demonstrated as in the great British advertising campaigns, first for recruits, then for supplementary supplies and equipment, and later for thrift and the purchase of War Savings Certificates.

Along the latter lines, and the allied one of production, the National Service Board of Canada announce the beginning of a series of advertisements which should have the earnest consideration of every loyal citizen of the Dominion. To produce more—to waste less, particularly of food—to eliminate extravagance of every kind — to save intelligently and systematically—and to lend the savings to the nation through the purchase of War Savings Certificates—these are the keynote of these calls to service. There is nothing academic about them, nothing overdrawn or melodramatic. They are plain, straightforward, intensely practical, and in deadly earnest, explaining why, and particularly how, everyone should help instead of perhaps unconsciously hindering.

The Need.

The need for such a rousing campaign is only too evident, particularly to men who have recently been overseas and had an opportunity to compare the willing service and sacrifice so general in Great Britain and France with the detached, almost apathetic attitude of so many Canadians. Though the war has been going on almost three years, and though our gallant overseas contingents have won undying fame for Canada, most of us here at home have hardly yet waked up to the real nature of the struggle in which we are engaged, and the necessity that we too "do our bit" in whatever way lies open to us.

It is just this detached attitude which has prevented Canada's whole weight being felt behind our divisions in France. From it the National Service Board hopes to arouse the nation, using straight-from-the-shoulder advertising as a potent means to the desired end.

PRESENTATION TO MISS McCABE

After Evensong last night, Miss Marion McCabe was presented by the choristers of St. John's with a copy of the "Book of Common Praise," on her approaching marriage. Mr. R. J. Devey, in making the presentation, expressed the hearty appreciation of Miss McCabe's services, both in All Saints' and St. John's choirs by all her chorister friends, and took advantage of the occasion to pay a well deserved tribute to all members of voluntary choirs, especially to St. John's, which maintains a high musical standard.

Hog Brings As Much As Average Horse

ILDERTON, June 2.— H. Stanley made a very large shipment of hogs at Ilderton yesterday.

Wednesday the price paid was $15.75, 25c. off from last shipment. One fat hog tipped the scales at 780 pounds, said by the scales manager to be the heaviest hog ever weighed at the Ilderton scales. The hog was owned by Wm. Whillans & Son, and the price for this chest, $70, bringing as much as an average cow or nearly the present price of horses for farm use.

RECRUITS FOR 57TH C. E. F.

The 57th Regiment Overseas Company opened this week's recruiting with a bang this morning, when three local men joined the Company and donned the uniform of the Canadian Expeditionary Force. It should be understood that the Canadian Defence Force is a thing of the past, and that the men who join the colours are for overseas service. The three who enlisted this morning all left good jobs to do so. They are:

James Firth, aged 31, employed at the Auburn Woollen Mills.

BARNS WERE DESTROYED

Disastrous Fire on the Farm of Mr. Frank Walsh, Otonabee Yesterday

The barns and outbuildings, belonging to Mr. Frank Walsh, situated two miles below Keene, Otonabee, were totally destroyed by fire yesterday morning at ten o'clock, whilst the owner and his family were at church. Mr. Walsh's father, who had remained at home saw the flames coming from the barns and called the central at Keene to give the alarm. Church was dismissed and the congregation came to Mr. Walsh's assistance. However, the fire had gained such headway little could be done by the voluntary fire brigade.

Besides the total destruction of the buildings the large amount of valuable farm machinery, grain, small calves and a pig were lost. The loss of the buildings was covered, to some extent, by insurance. Fortunately for the owner the wind was in the right direction to save the house. A thorough investigation will be made into the cause of the fire.

BIG SALES OF COAL OIL STOVES REPLACE WOOD

Hardware Stores are Benefitted by the Fuel Situation and Women Welcome the Oil Stoves and Ranges.

Campbell & Best's hardware store sold ten oil stoves on Saturday and nine on Friday, indicating the present demand for these summer cookers. One of the causes for the increased business is the high price and shortage of wood. Women have come to realize that the easiest, coolest and most economical method of heating for summer's cooking is with one of these stoves which are particularly appealing in the districts not served with gas. While it affords a relief from the high price of wood this summer, there remains the winter problem which must be eventually faced.

"My Daddy's Killing Germans," Was Limit of Lost Boy's Talk

Something of the venturesome spirit of "little wanton boys that swim on bladders" drew a three-year-old youngster named Clark from his home on McDonnel street on Sunday afternoon, and finally lost him in the maize of streets. His mother was taking an afternoon rest, and in the meantime, the boy was noticed on the street and taken to the police station. On two matters he was quite intelligible. He repeated to the police "My daddy's killing Germans and I buy candies at Hunter's." His daddy and his candies were naturally two of the principle ideas the little chap possessed. Sergt. Reid and the men on duty provided him with dominoes, checkers, keys and other interesting articles around the station until his grandfather called about seven o'clock.

OFFERS SALUTE TO SPAIN'S FLAG

In Note Germany Expresses Deep Regret at Sinking of the Patricio

Apologizes for the Insult

AND DECLARES THAT THE VESSEL WAS NOT TORPEDOED.

Paris, June 4.—The reply of the German Government to Spain regarding the attack by a German submarine on the Spanish steamship Patricio is understood to be extremely cordial, says a Havas despatch from Madrid.

The German note declares that the ship was not torpedoed and that the submarine had no intention of sinking her, but simply wanted to stop her. As the ship did not stop, the note adds, the submarine fired the shell which struck the Patricio. The German Government, it is said, expresses regret over the death of the engineer on the Patricio, and is prepared to pay an indemnity to his family.

The German Government in its note, the despatch adds, says that it never had any intention of causing injury to Spain nor insult to the Spanish flag. If the explanations should be deemed insufficient, the note says, Germany is disposed to do honour to the Spanish flag and on the first possible occasion German warships will file past a Spanish ship, which will hoist the Spanish flag, and each German ship will fire a salute of 21 guns.

The attack on the Spanish steamship Patricio early in May caused the Spanish Government to send a note to Germany which the Spanish Premier, Marquis Prieto, declared was more energetic than had been customary. The Spanish note declared that the transaction of all diplomatic business with Germany would be suspended until replies were received to notes concerning attacks on Spanish steamships. The note also asked for an indemnity for the Patricio.

A despatch from Amsterdam on May 21 said that the German reply to the Spanish note regarding the Patricio had been handed to the Spanish Ambassador in Berlin and was declared to be conciliatory in tone. On May 23 Premier Prieto declared that the German reply regarding the attack on the Patricio was satisfactory.

ONE PLOW HAS TURNED UP OVER 70 ACRES

And is Going Strong on Otonabee Farms Now.

The International Harvester tractor plow has recently turned up fields on the Swinton and Stothart farms in Smith Township and to-day completed the Graystock farm in Otonabee and is at once going to one of the Slattery farms. This machine has recently plowed over seventy acres, is giving good satisfaction and is capable of even a better performance.

BOARD OF AGRICULTURE MEETING ON JUNE 15

At the Mann Homestead on the 8th Line of Smith.

Farmers and citizens are asked to remember the annual meeting of the West Peterborough Board of Agriculture to be held this year at "The Hawthornes," Mr. Mann's farm, on the 8th line of Smith, near Bridge north, on Friday, June 15th. The programme will include cattle judging. There should be a large attendance, and everything will be done to provide an enjoyable afternoon for the visitors.

MUSIC IN THE HOME

THE PROUDEST MOMENT IN HAYDN'S LIFE

The Father of Instrumental Music Proudest When He Played the Bass Drum.

It is a curious thing that the greatest souls are the simplest. An interesting and amusing example of this is shown in a little anecdote told about Joseph Haydn, the famous composer. When in his years of greatest achievement he was asked what was the proudest moment of his life, he paused for a moment, then smiled. Everybody expected him to answer that it came when his oratorio "The Creation," or his cantata, "The Seasons," was played. To the surprise of all, he answered, "When I played the bass drum in the march at Hainburg."

It seems that when he was a very small boy and a very ragged one at the same time there was a grand procession being held at Hainburg, a little town near the composer's birthplace. He was staying there at the time through the kindness of an old music teacher who had seen the latent powers of the boy and had taken it upon himself to bring them out. The man was poor, and as a result of this the embryonic genius was unkempt and half-starved most of the time. It was little wonder, then, that young Haydn was not asked to take part in the parade to which his fortunate friends were invited. What that means can only be appreciated by the small boy who has looked with envious eye at the more favoured of the gods. Haydn was heartbroken. When the time came, however, for the procession to begin its triumphal march, it was discovered that the drummer was missing. Young Haydn was not. He was quickly recruited, placed behind the big bass drum, and "struck up" with a spirit that was more fiery on account of its sudden, unexpected rise. Little did anyone imagine then that the happy-eyed, ragged little drummer would in time grow up to be known as the Father of Instrumental Music.

"RUSSIAN NORDEN"

While the war gave a great stimulus to the public interest in Russian music, the fact that there was any interest to be stimulated is largely due to Mr. V. Lindsay Norden of Brooklyn, now generally known among choral directors as "Russian Norden." With his Aeolian Choir and his All Saints Church Choir he had the chance of testing some of the remarkable unaccompanied works by Tschaikowsky, Rimsky-Korsakoff, Borodin, and others; works which were written for the exacting requirements of the orthodox church. Generally he provided English words and supervised the American publication in octavo form of these compositions. Perhaps Mr. Norden was too enthusiastic over some of these choral works, but undoubtedly a pioneer is entitled to some enthusiasm. His work has certainly brought him into public notice, and he has been offered a still larger opportunity. He has been appointed conductor of the Mendelssohn Club of Philadelphia, a choral organization with a continuous activity of 42 years.

MUSIC BY WIRELESS.

Imagine sailing on a ship in mid-ocean and being able to hear your favourite pianist in a concert that he is giving on board a vessel hundreds of miles away! The possibility is not as remote as one might surmise, for Ilna Lerner, the distinguished young Russian pianist, gave a recital on board the Ventura on her homeward journey from Honolulu, and enjoyed the unique thrill of feeling that her music was being heard by wireless operators on board passenger and freight steamers as far as 500 miles away.

In the concert room where Miss Lerner was playing a transmitter was placed, and by means of a recently perfected wireless telephone apparatus the music was sent out over a large radius.

The experience of listening to this concert was far more novel than participating in the demonstrations which have recently been tried successfully when singers and speakers in San Francisco were heard at meetings and banquets in New York. At these functions the guests were provided with telephones, through which they heard every tone distinctly. Even the applause that the singers received on the Pacific coast was accurately transmitted, and all the thrills that attend the real concert were felt by this "Proxy audience" on the other side of the continent.

That, however, was over telephone wires. To play the piano while isolated in mid-ocean and have the notes float through the air and bring pleasure to those far distant does much toward the complete annihilation of space and causes us to wonder what to-morrow may bring forth.

When we are far from home—and think of the loved ones left behind, shall we be able to commune with them through music?

BAND TOURNAMENTS

All the satirical writers have had fun with the Silver Cornet Band which is found in nearly every small town. They have told us about the haughty triple-tongued, the languid alto player who objects to "after-time," and the red-faced and ponderous player of the bass tuba. They have smiled at the drummer who while on a visit to a neighboring town lost the drum, and they have grown merry at the plunging performance of the Sweet Kiss Waltz, "Number 4 in the Red Book," which adds eclat to the strawberry festival. No one has thought to commend these bands, to count up how beneficial they have been to youngsters perishing for something to do in the evenings, and willing to learn the basic principles of co-operation and discipline. It is just possible that the performances have not always been perfect. But it is better to try to do something than to refuse to do anything lest it be badly done. It is none the less important to remember that some of these bands are worthy of all respect. When a good leader is available and when the attendance at rehearsals is up to the mark the work is often surprisingly good. In the old days we used to hear of band tournaments which were an excellent thing. Perhaps a dozen bands would be assembled at some central point to play for prizes. Thus a wholesome rivalry was established, and the boys were "kept at it." There is more than one musician of passing prominence whose first understanding of the problems of orchestration was acquired in a band room. Sir Arthur Sullivan was one.

IS HAWAII'S MUSIC REALLY HAWAIIAN?

Cosmopolitan Origin of the Songs and Dances Imported from the Islands.

"Hawaiian music and hula dancers" was the bait in the advertisements of restaurants and cabarets in North American cities in the summer of 1916. To-day the "ads" still proclaim "Hula dancers and ukulele orchestras." This is an unusually long time for a craze to last. The scoffers who predicted that its fate would be death in infancy are now beginning to suspect that there may be something to it after all. Also, they are wondering what hulu means anyhow. If you ask them point blank, they will dismiss their doubts and answer patronizingly that a hula is "one of those outlandish Hawaiian instruments, you know."

THE OLD HAWAIIAN HULAS

They have made a bad guess. The hula was a religious service combining music, poetry, pantomime and dance, and was practiced all over the islands before the coming of the white man. It was held in honour of the goddess Laka in wondrously constructed bowers of vines and branches and required a long and severe training of all who took part. In other countries similar religious ceremonies have developed into the opera, the drama and literature. This might have happened in Hawaii, too, but the coming of the Europeans, Japanese and Americans in the last century caused such a radical change in the entire civilization of the Islands that no artistic development after that time can be said to be purely Hawaiian.

"UKULELE MEANS "JUMPING FLEA."

Modern Hawaiian music is mostly love songs, rendered serenade style, off the ukulele. Ukelele means jumping flea, and probably refers to the rapid, jerky movement of the fingers in playing. This guitar-like instrument, of Portuguese origin, is played by at least half the inhabitants of the islands, and provides a melodious accompaniment to the rich, deep voices of the young men courting their ladies in the tropical moonlight.

MODERN HAWAIIAN MUSIC A MIXTURE OF MANY ELEMENTS.

The ballads themselves have much in common with the old German folk songs. This is thought to be due to the influence of Captain Berger, a German musician, who for forty years conducted the Royal Hawaiian Band in Honolulu—a great factor in the musicial life of the islands, before they became a territory of the United States.

It is this pseudo-Hawaiian music which has found its way to us and won such popular favour. Nor are the gyrations of the sprightly young women who accompany the bands, those of the ancient hulas. But then, if the music and the dances were orthdox Hawaiian we might not like them so well.

A MUSIC-LOVING NATION WITHOUT COMPOSERS SAYS CRITIC FROM FRANCE

Well Known Conductor Predicts Many Musicians Will be Developed in U.S.

Count Eugene d'Harcourt, a noted composer, conductor and critic of Paris, who has been visiting in New York and touring the United States, in a recent interview said:

"You Americans are singularly music-loving as a nation. If you were not devoted to music, why should you have it everywhere and always? Americans have to have music at every hour of the day more than any other people in the world. You have all the feeling for music, and all the love of it necessary to make you a great musical nation, but you have no musicians because you have no musical education. It is like trying to work without tools—you have everything but the tools."

He contends that we should soon produce many excellent composers, and develop a popular taste for the finest music, if the principles of music were properly taught in our primary schools, and if there were a few endowed conservatories where talented men and women could receive a musical education free, as they do in Europe.

"You have your Carnegies giving millions for free libraries, and Rockefellers who give as many millions to the cause of medical research, but none of your millionaires seems to feel the great need of the American people for musical education. Yet it should be the shame of America that your musicians all go to Europe to study."

THE ADVANTAGE OF HEARING MUSIC IN A BIG ASSEMBLY.

Does a person get more good from listening to music in a large assembly than by himself? What is there about attending a musical concert that makes one go home feeling that it has done him good? What is the key to the great influence the summer band concerts have on the masses in our cities?

An answer to these questions is furnished by Mr. Arthur Farwell, who once spoke to the Canadian Club in Toronto in his capacity as Supervisor of Municipal Concerts for New York City. Mr. Farwell said: "The 'mass-spirit' is that general something in a crowd which responds in mass to a thing to which there is no chance that any individual could possibly respond alone.

The individual in a crowd responds very differently from the way the individual responds alone. I know very well individuals who could not be interested in a page of Beethoven's music, but put them there in a mass in a great crowd, and their enjoyment is something tremendous. That is if it is conducted by someone who understands it, and if the thing is magnificently done, as it must be. I call that the 'mass-spirit,' the over-soul. It is the most responsive thing in the world. It seems to contain the same elements everywhere; the consciousnesses of all who are present rolled into one."

U. S. Government Proposes No Eligible Man Shall Escape Draft — Arrests in Detroit for Distribution of Anti-Conscription Literature — Pro-Germans Only Trouble

WASHINGTON, June 4th.—Drastic measures are being considered by the Administration to nip in the bud anything in the States remotely resembling anti-draft riots.

So far there have been no indications of riots, save by Pacifists in a few Middle Western cities, and the prospect is that June 5, on which every man in the country between the ages of 21 and 31 must register for selective draft, will pass off no more noisily than as an ordinary election, which, in fact, it will somewhat resemble.

Attorney-General Gregory has instructed district attorneys all over this country to suppress with an iron hand the propaganda against conscription which has been going on among the Pacifists contingent suspected of being pro-Germans. In a statement given out for publication the Attorney General points to the law under which prosecutions for such propaganda can be instituted.

Militia of the National Guard, however, will be in readiness on June 5, should demonstrations develop at any particular point. As the Guard has not been mobilised, it is scattered throughout the forty-eight States in just about a strategic disposition.

WHERE TROUBLE LIES.

Indications are that the police of the various cities will be entirely able to cope with any disorders, especially as the belief of the Administration is that most of the difficulty will not lie in suppressing riots, but in hunting out the slackers who evade registration.

It is to that point—urging men of the designated ages not to register—that the whole propaganda so far has manifested itself, but the Government does not intend to be unprepared.

In connection with this the Secret Service and the special Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, which have been working on virtually nothing but German propaganda since the outbreak of the war in Europe, have kept suspected Germans and Pacifists so well under observation, it is asserted, that any move which might be attempted by them could be quickly nullified by their prompt arrest.

Already the pro-Germans who are regarded as dangerous have been taken in great secrecy, to detention camps. Those regarded with less suspicion have been permitted to continue their private affairs unmolested, but not unwatched.

WORSE THAN IN CANADA.

The basic difficulty of the situation is believed to be greater in the United States than in Canada, except for the fact that, profiting by the example of Great Britain, the United States went immediately to the draft instead of waiting until such a large proportion of the men needed had volunteered and for the most part sent overseas.

The United States has besides the pacifists, particularly in the Middle West, the pro-German element to complicate the situation. This element is exceedingly bold, as indicated by the advance sheets of the German-American year book, about to be printed in Chicago, which actually critizes in several signed articles, the policy of President Wilson in urging a declaration of war.

EVERY CITIZEN SLEUTH

Under the plan completed by the Provost Marshal-General's Office, every citizen of the nation is made virtually a policeman to ferret out slackers. Announcements are being sent to sheriffs of more than 3,000 counties that it is the duty of every citizen to give information of young men failing to register, or registering falsely, for selective service.

After the information is in the hands of the sheriff the local authorities will do the rest. Severe penalty is imposed for evasion of registration.

As an added argument to the civic police force, the Provost Marshal-General pointed out that every non-registering person throws the burden of service upon another man. Officials believe this alone will result in sufficient incentive to the people to turn up evaders.

TO STOP THEM ON STREETS

In some States, Governors have already ordered all police officers to stop men of military age on the streets after registration day and demand to see their registration certificate.

To nip the aspirations of would-be-slackers, different Government "war agencies" are announcing their intention to employ no men of conscript age.

Since the Selective Service Law went into effect, Washington has been overrun with men subject to service who have suddenly developed a great longing to work for the Government. Many of them would just as soon work for nothing, letting their parents foot the bills for bodily upkeep. The Government, however, will have none of them in the Red Cross organization, Food Administration Department and other newly created agencies.

Chief Justice Tells How To Avoid Suits and Starve Lawyers

How litigation may be prevented through the plaintiff and the defendant being brought together and conciliated, was explained by Chief Justice McGuire of Prince Albert, father of Saskatchewan's Conciliation Act, when in Montreal a few days ago. He who wishes to institute an action, makes a statement of his claims a plain statement without argument. This statement must be filed with the deputy registrar of the court who mails copies to the defendant and to "The Public Conciliator." On notification from the public conciliator, the parties to the proposed suit meet the conciliator. It is his duty to hear their statements and attempt to bring about conciliation. If he fails, then suit may be brought in the usual manner.

TEACHERS MAKE RED CROSS GOODS

WASHINGTON, June 4.—A request that all teachers of sewing in public schools stop instruction in garment making for personal use and adornment and instead teach the students to make garments for the Red Cross Society, has been sent to all high schools by the United States Bureau of Education. A list of articles which can be made by the students includes towels, wash cloths, hot water bag covers, operating gowns, hospital shirts, pyjamas, convalescent gowns, shoulder wraps and substitutes for handkerchiefs.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

GOWDY: A WORTHY REPRESENTATIVE OF GRAND OLD GAME

COLUMBUS, O., June 3.—"Hank" Gowdy, star catcher of the Braves, who on Saturday enlisted as a private in the Ohio National Guard, when asked to-day if it was his purpose to finish out the season with his team, said:—

"On July 15th I will discard the baseball uniform for the khaki, and I will play no more ball, except, perhaps in training camp, until my country takes my uniform. With the hordes of Kaiser Bill at large, khaki is the proper style for every red-blooded American, and especially for every man who has been privileged to keep himself in condition through the medium of baseball. What about my contract and my $6,000 salary? Oh, I have already notified Mr. Stallings that my contract expires when my country calls me, and, of course, the salary goes with it. But what of that? This war is not a matter of dollars and cents. It's a bigger and more vital thing than that.

"Do I expect others from professional baseball to join me? Yes, I know a number who will never wait for conscription, and among them I think you'll find 'Rabbit' Maranville, of our team, who will, I think, be found in a naval uniform before the end of the baseball season."

BASEBALL.

A very exciting game of baseball was played at the Exhibition Grounds on Saturday afternoon between the "Brinton Carpet Co.'s nine" and a "Picked Team" from the South-End. After nine innings of hard play on the part of both teams the "Carpet bunch" won by a score of 15-14.

The batteries were: Brintons—McWilliams, Allen and Moore. Picked Team—Foley, Smith and Downer.

FOR FRANCE!

While bugle calls are ringing clear
For legions to advance,
Let all the war hosts lift a cheer
For scarred and valiant France.

To-day she stands with lifted hands,
As erst of old we stood
Amid our torn and wasted lands
And needing brotherhood.

She saw our bitter plight and woe
And answered with a will;
Now let our loyal legions show
How love remembers still.

Oh, land beloved, let memory flood
Anew the battle line
Where alien valor tracked in blood
The field of Brandywine!

Pay what ye owe to France, oh, land!
That long uncancelled debt,
The cheer she gave, the helping hand—
Remember Lafayette!

The players eligible for draft are Ainsmith, Ayers, Dumont, Gallia, Charrity, Harper, Henry, Jamieson, Johnson, Shaw, Crane, Foster, Judge Leonard Morgan, Shanks, Menosky, Milan, Smith and Rice.

Minneapolis Minn., June 2.—Members of the local club of the American Association to-day registered for military service under the conscription law. Three players, Knight, Altizer and Owen are exempt, being over age.

DEVELOPMENT OF ARMIES BY THE CENTRAL POWERS

Colonel Reilly Describes German Readiness in Utilizing Her Reservists —Entente Allies Had More Men Under Arms But Teutonic Enemies Brought Armies Up to War Strength and Immediately Organized Reserve Units.

By Colonel Henry J. Reilly.

CHICAGO, Ill.—In the preceding article it was shown that the Entente Allies had actually under arms approximately 2,500,000 men to the 1,530,000 troops of the Central Powers just before war was declared in August, 1914. Thus, while the populations of the two sets of allies bore the relation to each other of five to two, the number of men actually under arms ready to enter the war was in the proportion of five to three, a condition of affairs more favourable to the Central Powers. However, in all European armies, with the exception of that of Great Britain, the system of reservists is well established. This means that, due to the many years during which all of these countries had universal military service, the mass of the older men in civil life when the war broke out had been trained as soldiers and were therefore ready to enter the field and to take their part with those actually serving at the time the war was declared. A certain number of these men were needed to bring the existing units of the army to war strength. However, those left over were so numerous that it was evident all would not be needed to make good casualties. Hence the question came up whether it would not be the proper thing to make all the arrangements in time of peace, so that immediately war was declared these surplus reservists could be organized into additional divisions or army corps. If this was to be done the additional equipment in the way of machine guns, field artillery, engineer and supply trains had to be provided in times of peace, as had also the additional officers and non-commissioned officers.

FRANCE ABANDONED IDEA

After the reduction of the service with the colours from three to two years, in 1905, it was the intention to do this in France. However, this idea was given up in 1913, at the time of the bitter fight which resulted in the service with the colours being again increased to three years. The main reason for this was the argument successfully advanced, that Germany would not wait to do anything more than raise the existing units of her armies to war strength before she struck, and that, as the new law gave France the same force immediately available, it was not necessary to have these reserve units. It was also shown that this would save the cost of the equipment, arms and additional officers and non-commissioned officers that would have to be maintained in time of peace. Germany kept very quiet about what she was going to do. However, she carefully arranged not only to immediately raise her existing units to war strength, but to organise approximately 975,000 reservists into new units. The necessary equipments of arms of all kinds and additional officers and non-commissioned officers were carefully provided in time of peace.

The result of this was that, while the French mobilization in August, 1914, enabled France immediately to put in the field approximately 3,500,000 men, the German mobilization brought out approximately 2,000,000. It is true that the French had about 1,000,000 reservists in their depots. However, due to the erroneous belief that Germany would not wait to mobilize additional units, it was impossible to make use of these men because the arms, equipment, officers and non-commissioned officers necessary had not been provided. This was the primary reason for the statement, so often heard in August, 1914, that France had more men than she needed.

RUSSIA'S ACTION UNKNOWN

Exactly what Russia did about numbers of mobilization is not known. Apparently, however, she merely brought her existing units to war strength, keeping the remainder of the reservists in the depots to make good losses as they might occur. The first reservists in Austria-Hungary were already organized into the Hungarian national army and what was practically an Austrian national army. These two forces with the common army, which is really the standing army of the Austro-Hungarian monarchy, were brought to war strength and the rest of the reservists held in the depots.

Great Britain called out the few regular reservists she had and also territorial army, which corresponded to our National Guard. The Belgians mobilized their army, as did also the Montenegrins and the Serbians. However, Great Britain had no more available for immediate service in France than the original expeditionary force of 170,000 already in existence; this because such territorials as were reasonably fit for service had to be started for Gibraltar, Malta, Egypt and India to relieve white regulars who were needed in Europe. The Belgian force only increased from about 50,000 to approximately 150,000, most of whom were needed to man the Liege, Namur and Antwerp forts. The Montenegrin army being practically a militia one, there was no increase in the number available above its peace strength of at most 40,000. Due to the large proportion of the male population needed to give the Serbian army its reported peace strength of 300,000, the first and second reserves called out added only about 175,000 effectives.

Thus, on analysis, it is seen that while France, Russia and Austria-Hungary by merely bringing their existing troops to war strength probably maintained the same proportionate strength with respect to each other as their armies had had, prior to mobilization; Germany exceeded this proportionate increase by nearly 1,000,000 men, Serbia fell away below and Great Britain and Montenegro did not increase their peace strength, as far as immediate results were concerned. Exactly how far this additional German million went to wipe out the proportion of five to three in favour of the Entente just prior to mobilization is not known, because of lack of exact information about the Russian mobilization. It is evident, however, that it must have materially reduced it and correspondingly increased Germany's chances.

Fourth Husband Only A Youngster

Among Earlier Partners St. Louis Woman Had Baron

For the fourth time in her thirty-six years of life and the third in the last six, Irene Sanford of St. Louis has married. Among her former husbands were a baron and a "count." This time it is a youth, J. Walker Guion, 17 years old, son of a mail carrier's wife.

Young Guion's father was a city detective. He and Miss Sanford met at the home of a mutual friend. The marriage followed. Guion was arrested a year and a half ago on the charge of temporarily appropriating a motor car for joyriding. He was paroled in the juvenile court and an uncle got him a job in the salesroom of a St. Louis firm. About two months ago he resigned his position. The bride, however, is independently rich.

Miss Sanford's first marriage was to Benjamin Leslie Bear of St. Louis. She got a divorce from him several years before her second marriage, in 1911, to Baron Gustav Friedrich Carl von Schrader. The baron, at the time Miss Sanford fell in love with him, was working in railroad offices as a clerk at $75 a month. He had come to the United States from Germany, he said at the time, to get a divorce from his first wife.

BARON QUIT WORK.

Two years later the baron was being sued for divorce. The former Miss Sanford charged the baron failed to support her and that he drank to excess. She got her decree and three months later married "Count" Judah Leon Leschinsky, whose first wife, Mrs. Sonia, Leschinsky, has just divorced him. The day Miss Sanford was married to the count it was disclosed in court that she had paid $2,700 of the $11,500 settlement which had been awarded the first Mrs. Leschinsky.

Count Leschinsky, a Russian noble, according to his own account, cut quite a swath in St. Louis and Kansas City society for a time. The first Countess Leschinsky was a Kansas City woman, Miss Sonia Feist. She was a milliner here and married the count four weeks after she had met him in St. Louis during the World's Fair. The couple went into business in New York and lived there with his wife. A daughter was born to them. The Countess Sonia in turn was sued for $1,500 attorney fees by the lawyers who got the divorce for her.

"The count was entirely too good a fellow," she said, "to make my freedom worth $1,500.

Several weeks after the divorce the separated count and countess appeared together in a justice of the peace's court as joint defendants to a suit for $250. It was over a note held by a Kansas City bank. The countess tittered, and enjoyed the proceedings so greatly, that the count was in high humor when the session ended. He left the courtroom with his former wife, joked with her, assisted her on a street car and sat beside her.

And that was were trouble started. By the next spring Countess Irene Leschinsky was suing the count for divorce, and one of her complaints was that her husband was taking his former wife out riding in a motor car belonging to the complainant. She said she discovered this in February, 1915. The session in the justice's court was held the latter part of February of that year.

COUNT FEARED WIFE.

Also, according to the Countess Irene's testimony, the court "simply wouldn't take a bath." The count charged that his wife broke a water pitcher over his head and hit him with a telephone receiver and poured alcohol over him and tried to set the bed on fire.

"I took a bottle of French perfume and poured the contents over him," Countess Irene explained to the judge. "It was only a jest, however, and I never had a match in my hand, or thought in the least about setting his bed on fire. I told him, 'Before the board of health gets hold of you, I'll give you a bath.'"

The count was "excess baggage" she said. She alleged that he had spent about $35,000 of her money, and said he became sarcastic when she asked for an accounting.

He told me he made $10,000 a year, but he didn't earn a cent," she asserted.

Count Irene got her divorce and $100 monthly alimony. In each of her Sanford, was restored to her. Otherwise it probably would break her up if she had to pay charges for having her full name engraved on her calling cards. It would read Mrs. Irene Sanford Iron Scharder Leschinsky Guion. And that at 35.

Better to be alone than in bad company.

Unwritten Law And A Soldier's Revenge

Arriving Home He Finds His Home Invaded and Shoots to Kill.

There was a dramatic ending at Manchester Assize to a case in which Vivian Coryton, thirty-five, a soldier, was charged with attempting to murder Wm. Davies by shooting in Lancaster Avenue, Manchester, on April 23.

While Coryton was away in the army his wife lived at Ashton-on-Mersey, Cheshire. Coryton arrived home on leave early on the morning of Sunday, April 22, and, going up to his bedroom, found Davies there with his wife. There was a struggle, and Davies escaped from the house partially clothed. He left behind him, however, some papers, which disclosed his identity, and the next morning Coryton called at Davies' place of business, and asked for him.

He had not then arrived, but afterwards shots were heard and Coryton was seen with a revolver in his hand chasing Davies in the neighborhood of Lancaster Avenue, Corporation street. He fired several shots, but none took effect. When arrested by the police Coryton said he had done what he had after twenty-four hours' deliberation. He added that he fired four shots with deplorably bad marksmanship.

Davies gave evidence, and, in reply to Coryton, said he made no attempt to defend himself when found in the house. He left his boots and trousers behind him.

Coryton: Mrs. Coryton's one idea was to save you?—Yes.

And your one idea was to get out of the way?—Yes.

In reply to the judge, Coryton said "I intended to kill him, but it was under the greatest possible provocation." He also remarked: "I don't know whether the law makes any difference between murder and justifiable vermin killing. If it does not, then it was attempted murder."

Later Coryton said: "I fired to hit the creature Davies."

The judge said that in some countries there was what was known as the unwritten law, but it did not exist in that case. The laws of the country had to be administered. If, however, the jury thought the accused had not shot with intent to kill, they could find accordingly.

Coryton was however, found "Not guilty," and discharged.

Canadian Airman Bags 5th Hun Plane

Capt. J. Achille Le Boyer who left Montreal for Bermuda and later went to England with the 163rd French-Canadian Battalion, has won considerable distinction for himself in the aerial service. Shortly after his arrival in England, he entered the Royal Flying Service, qualifying as a first-class observer at the Hythe School of Aerial Gunnery, having passed his examinations so highly as to establish almost a record. In the beginning of April he went to France by air, and, by the first of May he had brought down his fifth German aeroplane. He brought down his first machine a week after his arrival at the front. Two weeks later he brought down three more, within the space of an hour, and his third exploit was on May 1, when, in a battle between six British and fourteen German machines, he succeeded in bringing down his fifth victim.

Gang Broke Into The T. A. S. Pavilion

Saturday afternoon a gang of five or six young men who had paddled down the river to the T. A. S. park broke into the pavilion. Mr. Chambers, the caretaker, approached them and received a warm wordy greeting. His request that they leave the grounds was unheeded. It is not known whether any damage was done or not, but it is understood that proceedings will be taken against the men.

Mr. Davis had not been in the best of health for some time, but had attended his duties about the farm, practically up to the time of his death and on Friday drove into the city. He was born in Ennismore. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Davis, and three small children survive.

The funeral will be held on Tuesday at 2 p.m. proceeding from the family residence to Rae's cemetery, Lakefield.

MILITARY NEWS

Capt. (Dr.) Lionel King, medical officer of the 243rd (Saskatchewan) Battalion, is spending a short leave at his home here. Dr. King will be remembered by the old-time lacrosse baseball, rugby and hockey fans.

Among the Canadian officers mentioned in despatches by Field Marshall Sir Douglas Haig, for good work at the front, is a former Peterborough boy, Capt. (Dr.) T. H. Bell, who enlisted in Winnipeg. His many friends will be glad to learn of the honour he has won.

COST OF RECRUITING ADS.

OTTAWA, June 2.—Details of the expenditure of the Department of Militia on advertising for recruits are given in a return tabled in the Commons to-day. The amount so expended from the beginning of the war up to March 31st last totalled $26,571, disbursed in the several provinces as follows: Ontario, $18,655; Quebec, $3,996.98; Alberta, $322.56; British Columbia, $244.81; Manitoba $21.44; New Brunswick, $1,295; Nova Scotia, $1,178; Prince Edward Island, $909, and Saskatchewan, $6.72.

RAISALI HAS DECLINED TO ENTER A WALLED TOWN

TANGIER, Morocco, June 5.—Raisuli, the brigand, has announced his intention of refusing the high official post of Teutan, which the Spanish Government proposes to offer him since his reconciliation with the Spaniards he has never entered any walled town, and is not likely to do so Raisuli, nowadays, is absolutely dictator in the Spanish zone. He collects and keeps all revenues and administers the whole country with entire disregard to the Spanish authorities, whose position has lately become unbearably humiliating. His extortions are not only jeodarising Spain's future in Morocco, but are causing a recrudescence of anarchy. The Beni Said and Gomera tribes are in revolt, and fighting has already occurred.

Fierce Fighting on The Carso Front

GERMAN ATTACKS REGAIN TRENCHES IN LENS DISTRICT

LONDON, June 4.—Stewart Lyons' cable regarding the Canadians operations at Lens, says:

After eighteen hours of endurance of heavy shell fire in an effort to hold the ground which proved untenable, the men were withdrawn as a course preferable to ending in more men to the confined area in which the battle was proceeding. Throughout Sunday, with very little shelter from the German positions occupied in the early morning, the Westerners tenaciously held the ground under a gruelling fire. When in the evening a strong German counter attack was directed upon the electric station, it was evacuated under pressure, the Alberta men returning to their former outposts in a group of ruined miners' houses seventy-five yards to the west.

ENEMY LOST HEAVILY.

The enemy undoubtedly lost heavily in his attack, but he has the distinct advantage in the shelter in the numerous fortified points on the slopes leading up to Avion and Lens, in which his men gathered for the advance. During the day the Germans added materially to their strength and there was much activity this (Monday) morning all along the front, particularly on the part of the snipers and the machine guns. The enemy displayed enterprise in airplanes bombing in the back area, this doubtless being by way of retaliating for the recent raids of our airplanes in the region of Lens. Two fires were observed in Lens during the night. The renewal of the activity extends to the region north of the Souchez, where the cannonading is increasing.

St. John's Church Notes

Rev. Professor Wright of Huron College, London, took the first services of his five weeks' pro tem incumbency of St. John's parish yesterday. His evening sermon was timely, being an exposition of the twentieth psalm, regarded as the foundation of our national anthem, God Save the King. The duty of trust in the divine arm was deeply impressed.

Rev. Professor Wright will give a series of five lectures on "The Church Catechism" on Wednesdays in St. John's church at 8 p.m., beginning Wednesday evening, June 6th. This being a systematic study of the Christian religion is of interest to Christians of every name and to all who may wish to consider the foundation principles of the Christian life.

The Peterboro Career of Sir Joseph Flavelle

It is gratifying to Peterborough that another of her sons has risen to the top in the person of Mr. J. W. Flavelle, who was created a baronet in the birthday honours.

Mr. Flavelle was born in a cottage on Union street, which still stands. In 1888 he married Clara Elsworth, a Peterborough girl, daughter of Rev. Mr. Elsworth, pastor of the Methodist church at that time, and who resided where Mr. Conroy's residence now stands, Hunter street, East City. Whilst in Peterborough he conducted a pork and commission business. He was always a faithful member of the George street Methodist church and for many years a Sunday school pupil of Mr. T. W. Robinson, of this city. His rapid assent in the business world started from when he became manager for Davis & Co., is attributed to his splendid business principles.

Coalition Fades on Parliament Hill

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, June 4.—Hope of the formation of a coalition government seems to be fading in political circles here to-day. Sir Wilfrid Laurier had a short conference with the Prime Minister this morning, and it is believed he conveyed the information that the bulk of his party was opposed to coalition. This presumes a general election in the near future, but it is expected that in any event the conscription bill will be introduced by the Government before it goes to the country.

Ontario May Be Bone Dry Before Many More Moons

Ontario will be "bone" dry within a very short time, according to information received at Ottawa.

On the order paper, to be considered shortly, is notice of an Act to prevent the importation of liquor into any prohibition province or territory.

That this will be passed is considered, as the members of the House are practically unanimous on the subject.

In speaking with a score of Commoners, the opinion was expressed that there would not be the slightest opposition to the measure.

There was a difference of sentiment as to when it would go into effect, but it was generally thought that August 1st would see the last of the importations from Quebec.

Quebec is going dry fast, in the natural way. Hull, Aylmer, and several other towns and cities have voted liquor out of their midst, and others will do the same. Other than Quebec, Montreal, and a few other large centres of population liquor is as scarce, if not more so, than in Ontario at the present time.

The anti-importation law will be passed, and it will soon be as hard to get a drink here as in the middle of the well-known Sahara.

Valuable Stallion Died During Night

Mr. Owen Johnson of Omemee, the well-known horseman and owner of the registered Clydesdale stallion, "Gay Prince," was much surprised yesterday morning upon finding the animal dead in the stall. Mr. Johnston had only purchased him about six weeks ago and had been making the season with the animal through Ops. and Emily. The loss to the owner will be over $700, as he had gone to much expense working up a route and preparing for a big season.

The conditions under which the animal died arouse suspicion, and it is supposed that someone entered the stable during the night and administered a dose of poison to the horse, which did its work quickly. The halter was pulled off the stallion's head and lay in the manger. A quart or more of oats was in the feed box which contained the fatal dose that did the work of destruction. The stable door was locked so the party must have entered through a small opening over the oat bin, which led into the stable. A near-by neighbour heard the animal kicking in the stall at short intervals for about half an hour, but apart from this nothing else was heard.

Three Men Arrested Here As Government Traces Steps Of Kaiser's Intelligence Agents

"A Gigantic Case," Says Official, but Details Are Withheld. Prisoners Are Accused of Sending Information Abroad by Illegal Methods.

A SECRET POSTAL SYSTEM

NEW YORK, June 5.—By the arrest of three men, all information concerning whom was withheld, the police Sunday made the first move in the unearthing of a conspiracy which may reveal the inner workings of the Prussian spy system in this country.

So important were the arrests considered that Guy V. Scull, Deputy Police Commissioner; John C. Knox, Acting United States Attorney, and Captain William M. Offley, head of the local investigating bureau of the Department of Justice, would give practically no details.

Enough was disclosed to show that the three men were accused of conveying valuable information to some foreign country, probably Mexico, where it would be easy for Prussian agents, with wireless stations there and in South America at their disposal, to forward it to Germany.

ILLEGAL POSTAL SYSTEM REVEALED.

The three men under arrest were said to have maintained an illegal and unauthorized postal system presumably for the benefit of Prussian agents here and in Central and South American countries.

That allegation was made the basis of the technical charge against them of conspiracy to violate the laws of the United States by sending on board vessels carr ing United States mail letters and packets outside the mails. Two of the men under arrest described themselves as native born Americans. The third said he was born in Sweden but was a naturalised American citizen. Mr. Knox said it would be possible to change the charge against them to treason if it could be shown that their actions had aided and abetted the enemy.

The three arrests were made soon after midnight by Police Captain Frank Tunney or some of his squad who have been assigned to the work of running down Prussian spies since the beginning of the European war. What specific offence had caused their arrest or how the information which led to it was obtained was something the officials would not discuss.

A GIGANTIC CASE.

Mr. Scull refused to talk about the arrests in any way. He did say, however, that if his information proved correct it would be "a gigantic case."

No one outside the Police Department was permitted even to catch sight of the three prisoners, but it was learned that they were questioned at length at intervals during the day. A quantity of letters and other papers were found by members of Captain Tunney's squad which were believed to have a bearing on the case. It could not be learned definitely whether it was some of the contraband mail matter, but it was said that many of the papers were written in German script.

Mr. Knox appeared at Police Headquarters early in the afternoon in response to a telephone message and remained in conference with Mr. Scull and Captain Tunney until nearly six o'clock. Sergeant George Barnits, Captain Tunney's chief aid in spy and anarchist investigations, several times despatched small groups of detectives on errands the nature of which they refused to divulge. Soon after his arrival Mr. Knox got in touch with Captain Offley over the telephone and with Mr. Scull was in conversation with him for half an hour.

WILL BE ARRAIGNED.

The three prisoners who were not publicly booked as is the custom were held at Police Headquarters. Mr. Knox said they would be arraigned before United States Commissioner Hitchcock on a charge of conspiracy but that no examination would be permitted to take place at that time. It was admitted that other arrests were expected, but it was the hope, of the police that more important persons would be taken.

Mr. Knox quoted the law upon the violation of which the technical charge of conspiracy is based, as follows:—

"Whoever shall carry any letter or packet on any vessel which carries the mail, otherwise than if such mail, except as otherwise provided by law, shall be fined not more than $50 or imprisoned not more than one month, or both."

"It seems ridiculous to quote such a statute for this case, said Mr. Knox, "but conviction for conspiracy to violate the statute would permit a maximum penalty of two years' imprisonment."

Asked if conveying information secretly out of the country could not be considered treason at this time, Mr. Knox replied that it could if it could be shown that such action aided an enemy of the United States.

Wireless stations in Mexico long have been under suspicion of sending communications to Germany. The wireless station on a parish church on the hills back of Tampico came from the interned Hamburg-American steamship Antonina and was turned over to the Mexican government by the German Consul in that city.

The new and powerful wireless station in Mexico City has been believed to be under German control. Neither of the stations is believed to be able to reach Germany directly, but either can send a message to points north of the Argentine Republic in South America. That Germany has more than one powerful wireless station in South America capable of sending messages direct to Germany, and erected there for that purpose before the beginning of the war, has been regarded as certain by the British naval authorities, although there never has been public information that such stations had been definitely located.

DESTROYER'S MOVEMENTS LEARNED.

News of the arrival of the flotilla of American torpedo destroyers in British waters reached Berlin before it was generally known in this country. The line of investigation opened by the police was said to suggest that the leak might have come from this side of the Atlantic and have been forwarded by wireless from countries to the south of the United States.

Mr. Scull left Police Headquarters early in the evening, still refusing to give out any information about the men under arrest. Captain Tunney left about two hours later. Sergeant Barnits, who remained on duty, merely smiled when asked about the case.

It was learned in the evening that three arrests had been booked on the blotter of the Detective Bureau, but no other information could be obtained. The prisoners were believed to be still held at Police Headquarters at midnight. The door of Captain Tunney's office was locked and no outsider was allowed admittance. Even the window shades of the office were drawn.

Kronstadt Sailers Want Czar Nicholas

Dissatisfied With the Provisional Government and the Abolition of Death Penalty — Big Fire in Gutuyeff

Large Quantities of Sulphur Burn, and Violent Explosions Occur.

PETROGRAD, June 5.—The Kronstadt sailors who came to Petrograd, said the demonstrations would be for the purpose of bringing about new elections of members of the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates, whose present members were denounced as "bourgeois." The sailors also demanded that former Emperor Nicholas be handed over to them. At street meetings they expressed dissatisfaction with War Minister Kerensky and the whole Provisional Government, particularly for abolition of the death penalty which they characterized as premature.

On visiting the Gutuyeff quarter the correspondent found that a vast fire had been burning for some time, having been partially extinguished. A large quantity of sulphur was afire. There were evidences of a violent explosion. Windows at a considerable distance were broken.

It appears that at 9 o'clock yesterday morning the ice-breaker Ozanienbaum, instead of the Kronstadt warships, arrived off Gutuyeff. It was flying the red flag. On it were sailors and workmen who were singing the hymn of the Bolsheviki extremists. The ice-breaker steamed up and down opposite the wharf, took on board a party of Petrograd workmen and departed. Simultaneously seven large cases of phosphorus on the wharf ignited.

Inquiries show that it is altogether improbable that anyone landed from the ice-breaker. The conflagration apparently was caused either by incendiaries from quarters other than Kronstadt, or by spontaneous combustion.

Three Thousand Revolvers Intended For The Germans Are Seized In Brazil

Arms Were Found on Board Vessel Arriving at Southern Port — Enemy Craft Taken by the Government —Great Patriotic Demonstration When the Hohenstaufen and Other Vessels Are Manned by Brazilians.

GERMAN CREWS INTERNED

RIO JANEIRO, via Colon, June 5.—Three thousand revolvers on board the steamship Infanta Isabel, of the Spanish Transatlantic line, have been seized by Brazilian authorities at a southern port of this country, according to reports received here to-day. The revolvers, the report said, were intended for German subjects living in the South Brazilian States.

The fact that the arms were on board the Infanta Isabel were made known to officials of the government by Pedro Nolasco Cunha. Senhor Cunha was a passenger aboard the steamship and when he reached Montevideo he went to the Brazilian Legation and informed the Minister to Uruguay of the plot to smuggle arms into the hands of Germans in this country. The report said that the commander of the Infanta Isabel has declared that the revolvers were the property of the engineer aboard his vessel, who had been murdered during the voyage.

A patriotic demonstration occurred on the water front here when German vessels in this port were seized by the government. When the Brazilian flag was hoisted aboard the steamship Hohenstaufen, of the Hamburg-American line, the first vessel seized, there was prolonged cheering by the people. The German crews have been placed on Fleurs Island and the ships manned by Brazilians.

Her First Hero Shy of Uniform

Rejected Recruit Sent for Girl but Rival, In Melrose, Wins Her.

Several weeks ago Annie Carmichael, nineteen years old, a stenographer at the Hotel Ten Eyck, Albany, stopped beating the keyboard long enough to inform Edward Roy of Albany and Malcolm Smith of Stamford, Conn., two young men who were willing to take her dictation for life, that the man she married would first have to prove his loyalty to Uncle Sam. Roy and Smith thereupon announced their intention of going to New York City and getting into uniform as quickly as possible.

Yesterday, so the story goes, Annie got a letter from Roy telling her he had joined the army, and that it was up to her to come to New York, and help him carry around his name. So lighly humming "My Hero," Annie put the blanket on her machine, packed her satchel and boarded the Berkshire of the Hudson Navigation Company line.

Roy was waiting for her at the pier resplendent in his brightest smile, but minus the soldier stuff. Annie stopped humming and asked about his uniform. Roy told her he had left it at the tailor's to have the trousers creased or something like that.

Annie was skeptical. She demanded proof that he was a soldier and finally it is alleged, Roy told her he had been rejected because of colour blindness. She was asked proof that he was telling the truth when a sturdy chap in the uniform of a United States Marine stepped from behind a pile of boxes.

"How about me, Annie?" asked the newcomer.

"Malcolm!" gurgled Annie with red, white and blue delight. For it was Malcolm Smith. "My hero!" she cried.

Roy withdrew from the picture. Smith tucked Annie under his arm and departed for Stamford where they said they would be married immediately. All of which proves that the marines are always first to land.

Press Comment on Censorship Project

"Aims at Press Dictatorship."

New York Times: "What the new censorship provision aims at is a press dictatorship pure and simple—and in the political rather than the military field."

"Equipment Feature Questionable."

Albany Argus: "The only approach to argument against the provision fastens itself on the word 'equipment' with the claim that it would penalize exposure of faulty or insufficient provision for some branch of the navy and military service."

"Comparatively Harmless."

Rochester Union and Advertiser: "It ill becomes them (the newspapers) to make loud protests against such a comparatively harmless measure as this."

"Harsh and Vicious Proposal."

Philadelphia Press: "It is a harsh and vicious proposal and Congress should not consent to it even on the urgent recommendation of the President."

"Tyranny will Recoil."

Springfield (Mass.) Republican: "The real liberty of the press will not be endangered by such a law. But if a press tyranny be set up by vindictive or muddle headed bureaucrats, the administration will pay the penalty at no distant day."

"Will be no Friction"

Baltimore American: "The newspapers are loyal and this furnishes the government the basis for the establishment of a censorship that will be thoroughly understood and without friction."

"Censor Public Officials."

Florida Times-Union: "It might be a good idea to put in force a more rigid censorship of public officials."

Wheat Markets Closed Strong

Ontario Wheat is Quoted 5c Higher The Cattle Market

Cash wheat market is very strong and prices are again reacting higher. No. 1 northern at lake ports is quoted, unofficial, at about 1c higher than last week-end prices. Ontario cash wheat is quoted 5c higher. Flour also, in sympathy with the stronger wheat market is regaining its breath after the late heavy fall. Ontario flour leading yesterday with a 25c advance. Corn and oats continue in a strong and active market.

Manitoba flour—First patents, in jute bags $13; second patents $12.50; strong bakers $12.10.

Ontario flour—Winter, according to sample, $11 to $11.10, track, Toronto, prompt shipment.

Millfeed—Car lots, delivered Montreal, shorts $41; bran $35; feed flour per bag, $2.70 to $2.80; middlings $15.

Hay—Baled, track, Toronto, car lots, No. 2 $13 to $14; mixed, $9 to $11.50; straw $9.

Manitoba wheat, not quoted officially: unofficial $2.72; No. 1 northern, lake ports.

Manitoba oats—No quotations; unofficial 73c; No. 2 C.W.

American corn—$1.78, nominal.

Ontario oats—No. 2 white, not quoted.

CATTLE MARKET.

Union Stock Yards—Receipts 133 cars, with 2625 cattle, 221 calves, 843 hogs and 178 sheep and lambs.

Trade was very slow yesterday and for the first two or three hours scarcely any of the butcher cattle were put over the scales. It was soon evident that prices would not hold, and by noon the market was off from 30c to 25c. The decline affected steers and heifers, while fat cows and butcher bulls held firm at last week's prices.

Calves were steady.

Hogs steady with last week's closing prices, but quoted 50c lower for to-day's market.

SOUSA ENLISTS IN THE NAVY.

Hopes to Organize a Band of 200 Pieces at the Great Lakes Station.

GREAT LAKES, Ill., June 2.—John Philip Sousa, who had the rank of Lieutenant when he was Director of the United States Marine Band at Washington, to-day enlisted in the United States Navy.

He began the organization of the Great Lakes Naval Training Station Band, which he hopes to develop into one of 200 pieces.

British Sailors Will Not Carry Pacifists

Unless They Insist on Restitution for Men Murders

LONDON, June 5.—The Executive body of the National Seamen's and Firemen's Union has unanimously passed a resolution refusing to permit members of the union to man any vessel conveying pacifists to Stockholm or Petrograd unless they signed a guarantee that they would insist upon restitution being made to allied merchant seamen for the murder and destruction committed by German submarines.

Tom Mann and Councillor Wright have been instructed to proceed to Stockholm and Petrograd on behalf of the union and present these instructions to all international representatives and socialists whom they should meet.

German Papers Suspicious.

The Hague, June 5, via London — The German newspapers are beginning to express suspicion of the Stockholm Socialist conference. Some of their comments are:

Rheinische Westfalische Zeitung: "The Austrian Socialists are certainly only serving entente interests."

Deutsche Tages Zeitung: "Under the cloak of democratic principles England's interests are being served."

Kreuz Zeitung: "We cannot see how the Stockholm conference can bring the desired peace any nearer."

Koelnische Zeitung: "The long programme of the conference which we have long since settled, is full of traps."

GUNS ACTIVE ON WEST FRONT

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, June 4.—There has been heavy artillery fighting on all parts of the western front. French and British raids brought in many prisoners.

Eskimo Candy.

Tallow is the Eskimo's candy. It is put up in bright red packages made out of the feet of a waterfowl. The women cut off the red feet of this bird, which is called the dovekie, draw out the bones and blow up the skin so as to make pouches, which they fill with reindeer tallow for their little folk. None of the food that the Eskimos eat seems very inviting to us, but they are extremely fond of it and are very apt to overeat. It is said by explorers who have gone into Greenland that it is no uncommon sight to see an Eskimo man who has eaten an enormous meal of the raw frozen flesh of the reindeer, seal or walrus lying on his back and eating blubber until he cannot move.

When Wild Winds Blow.

Most of us are apt to look on a storm as simply a strong wind blowing straight from one place to another. It is not so at all, for a storm wind always blows in a curve, and a storm is not really a wind, but a whole wheel of winds with curving spokes. These curving spokes represent the various winds, all blowing toward the hub. This hub is called the "eye" of the storm. It is the spot at which the barometer is lowest. On the rim of the wheel the barometer is high, and the nearer the hub the lower is the barometer. This wheel of winds is usually several hundred miles across.

The First Comedy.

The first recorded comedy was played at Athens B. C. 578, when Susarion and Dolon, the earliest traveling actors, performed a comedy of Susarion's composition on a movable stage mounted upon four wheels. The new form of play was so successful that the actors were rewarded by the grateful populace with a cask of wine and a basket of figs. Susarion belonged to Megaris a state of ancient Greece, whose inhabitants were celebrated for their coarse humor and who in their villages during the evenings were wont to hold what they called a comus, really a revel, in which impromptu acting, coupled with buffoonery, played a considerable part. From this word we have our comedy.

Why Sash Windows?

Our mode of life is based upon our theories. Our sash windows are probably the most irrational things in creation. They appear to have been first invented in Holland and brought over to England toward the close of the seventeenth century in place of the rational French windows. It must have been a curious person who invented the former, which are often dangerous owing to the breaking of the cords, while a draft is always pouring in between the two sashes. What their advantage is no one can understand. On the other hand, French windows, as will be easily seen anywhere on the continent or in Egypt or elsewhere, may be closed to exclude either draft or noise. Moreover, seldom if ever do we have double windows such as are used throughout northern Europe.—London Science Progress.

Rapid Education.

In "John Barleycorn" Jack London tells how quickly he achieved his reputation as a writer. "Critics have complained about the swift education one of my characters, Martin Eden, achieved," says London. "In three years, from a sailor with a common school education, I made a successful writer of him. The critics say this is impossible. Yet I was Martin Eden. At the end of three working years, two of which were spent in high school and the university and one spent at writing, and all three in studying immensely and intensely, I was publishing stories in magazines, was correcting proofs of my first book, was selling sociological articles to magazines, had declined an associate editorship proffered me by telegraph from New York city and was getting ready to marry."

A Debt of Honor.

The inconsiderate creditor pressed for immediate payment of his promissory note.

"But I have no money," said the debtor wearily.

"I saw you pay that man who just went out," retorted the creditor indignantly.

"That was a debt of honor," replied the other, with hauteur.

The creditor immediately tore up the promissory note which he held in his hand and threw it in the fire.

"So is mine a debt of honor," he remarked simply.

So far so good, and the matter is proceeding along the proper lines for such cases made and provided.

The debtor assured himself that the promise to pay had been really consumed.

"Pardon me," he then politely said, "but you tore up that note voluntarily and from mercenary motives. I cannot therefore recognize it as a debt of honor."

Which proves that a nice sense of honor is a good thing to have lying about handy.

The creditor smiled indulgently. "Oh, that was only a copy I tore up," he replied. He took another note from his pocket. "This is the original, you see," he remarked, with pardonable pride.

Which proves again that a careful man before burning his bridges assures himself that the ferry is still doing business at the same old stand.

An Armed Truce.

Mrs. Knagg—Mr. Knagg and I have been married seven years, and the quarrel we had on our honeymoon is the only one we've ever had. Mrs. Ragg—I congratulate you. I suppose you kissed and made up? Mrs. Knagg—Not yet. Mr. Knagg hasn't yet admitted that he was wrong.—New York Globe.

Strict on the Proprieties.

"Now that I have given you something to eat," said the benevolent old lady, "will you not saw some wood for me?"

"I regret to say, madam," replied the weary wayfarer, "that I cannot saw wood without removing my coat, and I trust I am too much of a gentleman to appear before a lady in my shirt sleeves."—Philadelphia Record.

Endurance.

The pilgrim fathers were undoubtedly heroic men, facing, as they did, with dauntless courage, fire, frost, famine and the red menace of Indian ruthlessness. But the pilgrim mothers were more heroic still, for they endured also all these things and had in addition to stand the pilgrim fathers as well.—Life.

Heard on the Highway.

We ought to be mighty glad when heaven comes down to see us, but that's the time some folks run away.

Folks miss happiness by sittin' still an' waitin' for it to come an' pay the rent an' cancel the mortgage. But happiness is no free gift, an' it ain't on the bargain counter.—Atlanta Constitution.

His Ordeal.

The sympathetic neighbor asked: "Is your little brother ill this morning, Johnnie? I heard him crying in the most heartrending way."

"No, not exactly," Johnnie explained, "but Willie pulled down a jar of molasses on himself in the pantry, and mother has been trying to comb his hair."—New York Globe.

Too Sore to Shake.

"Did you take the mixture I gave you?"

"To tell you the truth, I did not, doctor."

"Why not?"

"Well, I fancy you made a little mistake. You gave me ague mixture. It says, 'Shake before taking,' and my complaint is rheumatism."—Pall Mall Gazette.

Things of the Past.

Betty had been punished. Her aunt did not know that, and when she came into the room and found Betty sitting disconsolately before the window she said: "Why, look at our little Betty. She looks ready to cry. What is going to happen, I wonder?"

Betty looked up and then said solemnly, "It has happened."—Exchange.

KEEP URIC ACID OUT OF JOINTS

Tells Rheumatism Sufferers to Eat Less Meat and Take Salts

Rheumatism is easier to avoid than to cure, states a well known authority. We are advised to dress warmly; keep the feet dry; avoid exposure; eat less meat, but drink plenty of good water.

Rheumatism is a direct result of eating too much meat, and other rich foods that produce urio acid which is absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine; the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate the urio acid, which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles causing stiffness, soreness and pain, called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate the urio acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which helps overcome urie acid, and is beneficial to your kidneys as well.

Dropping the Aspirate.

Dropping the aspirate in the combination "wh" has the support of three authorities on English pronunciation—the late Dr. Sweet, Professor Eippmann and D. Jones. This "h," by the way, does not follow an initial "w," except in the spelling. What those folks do pronounce it really say is "hwich," "hwen," etc. In omitting the aspirate we are merely carrying on a process long established in English. Take, for instance, the words "lady," "loaf," "loan," "laugh," "neck" and "ridge." All were originally pronounced with an initial "h," which has now entirely disappeared. Even more violent consonantal changes have taken place. In "knife," "know," "gnaw" and "write" the initial "k," "g" or "w" was at one time pronounced. "Knife," for example, developed something in this way. "Knife," "knife," "hnife," "nife," the first consonant being sounded. Not so very long ago "knee" was pronounced "hnee" in Cumberland.—London Chronicle.

Language of Footprints.

Among the Indians the study of human footprints was carried to a fine point. Many of us would be able to say at a glance, "Here goes So-and-so," with perfect accuracy. Even the children would recognize instantly the footprint of a stranger from another tribe. It was claimed by some that character may be read from the footprint, just as some white people undertake to read it from the handwriting, on the ground that certain characteristic attitudes and motions of the body, reflecting mental peculiarities, affect the gait and consequently the pedal autograph. At any rate, our people were close readers of character, and I do not hesitate to say that faithful study of the language of footprints in all its details will be certain to develop your insight as well as your powers of observation. — Charles A. Eastman (Ohiyesa) in St. Nicholas.

Tranquillity of Liszt.

Liszt was a sweet souled character. One day two of his friends, musicians, resolved to put the maestro into a passion. "Which one of his habits," they inquired, "would most seriously trouble him were he deprived of it?"

"Perhaps," was the answer, "he would suffer most if deprived of a well made bed."

The two confederates, with a louis, bought over a servant to their designs. She was not, it was agreed, to make his bed for that night.

Liszt slept badly and the next morning simply said, "You have forgotten to make my bed."

For two days following she neglected making the bed, and on the third day the maestro simply said:

"I see that you have decided not to make my bed. Well, for it alone. I have come to accustom myself to it."

Shoes That Do Not Wear Out.

Esparto shoes, or shoes made of the toughest and strongest of the coarse esparto fibers, are still worn in Iberia and parts of Portugal. These is no shoe made which will outlast them, not excepting leather shoes. Indeed, one pair of esparto shoes has been known to outwear a dozen tanned hide soles. This is due to their faculty of picking up and retaining in their interstices stony particles. As fast as the pebbles are worn out they are replaced automatically by others. Thus a self soling process is constantly going on. It is not uncommon in some parts of Spain or Portugal to hear the natives boast of wearing a pair of esparto shoes for twenty-five years or more.

Rhetorical Paws.

A would be politician was once speaking before a small assembly in a village. In the course of his speech he introduced some expression which disgusted his hearers, who thereupon started moving away. The orator, seeing this, put up his hands and said:

"Pause, friends!" But the answer he got was from a local wag, who cried amid laughter:

"Aye, an' real dirty ones they are too!"—Chicago News.

Making Sure of It.

District Visitor—Well, one must do something for the suffering poor, Friend—Quite so, but are you really quite sure that they do suffer? District Visitor—Oh, yes. I visit them and talk to them for hours at a time.—London Stray Stories.

Quite a Resemblance.

"Didn't you have a brother in this course last year?"

"No, sir; it was I. I'm taking it over again."

"Extraordinary resemblance, though. Positively extraordinary!"—Harvard Lampoon.

Similar Trait.

"Did you ever notice that a bird and a glutton are very much alike?"

"How do you mean?"

"They both like a peck at every mouthful."—Baltimore American.

After the Secrets.

"Ma's just crazy to serve on a jury."

"That so."

"Yes; she says she wants to be one of the first to tell the secrets of the jury room."—Detroit Free Press.

Still Willing.

"You said you'd go through fire and water for me."

"Show me a combination of the two and I will."—Puck.

BIRTH DAY ISN'T A BIRTHDAY

Letters which have been received in this office reveal that a considerable number of people not yet incarcerated in hospitals for the insane are still in uncertainty as to the meaning of the simple statement, "who shall have attained their twenty-first birthday and who shall not have attained their thirty-first birthday on or before the day set for registration." The trouble arises, apparently from a strangely prevalent inclination to call the day of a man's birth his first birthday. To do that, of course, makes what is really his first birthday his second, with the result both of bringing him under, and exempting him from, the registration and conscription law one year too soon.

Yet everybody must know that, by invariable usage, a "birthday" is an anniversary, and that if "birth day" and "birthday" were the same thing none of us could have more than one of either. That might have certain advantages, but it is not true.

There was a similar muddle in many minds when we passed from the nineteenth to the twentieth century, and labourious arguments were presented—by certain learned German professors, among others—in support of the foolish contention, that the year 1900 was the beginning of the new century, not the ending of the old one. The victims of this pathetic delusion never admitted that they were wrong, but after a while they quieted down, and, as all historians calmly ignored them, no harm was done.

A man's—or woman's—twenty-first birthday comes when twenty-one years of life have been completed, just as the first birthday comes when one full year has elapsed since the day of birth.—New York Times.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Stopping a Runaway

By EPES W. SARGENT

"Alice Armstrong is running away. Alice Armstrong is running away."

To the slender figure in rusty brown the whir of the car wheels seemed to repeat it unceasingly, and every jar of the Pullman trucks gave the words cruel emphasis. Surely every one must know her secret. She looked about her guiltily, but the car was almost empty and the few passengers were absorbed in themselves or asleep.

Above the back of a seat farther up the aisle she saw the nodding head of a sleeping woman and the restless curls of a golden haired child.

With a start she turned to the window again to hide the tears that sprang to her eyes. Edith had hair like that, the little five-year-old sister whom she was leaving perhaps forever. No, not forever, she corrected herself; only till she could earn a home for both. But another glance at those shining curls might steal away her courage. Resolutely she closed her eyes and tried to review her past and plan for the future.

It had all begun the year before, when Mrs. Armstrong second had decided to take in summer boarders.

One of the earliest applicants was a suave and oily person whose card

"MAMMA NEVER HAS TIME TO DO THINGS FOR ME."

read "Algernon Staunton—Leads and Heavies," and who needed no such advertisement to proclaim him as an actor of the cheapest sort.

But to Alice all actors were on a plane far above the humdrum of everyday existence. When he assured her that she was destined to become an ornament to the dramatic profession, she listened reverently. At the end of his four weeks' vacation he had hurried off to join a summer stock company. There he regaled his associates with tales of the shrewdness by which he had "jollied" a girl into giving him the position of star boarder.

He neither knew nor cared that he had left the girl with her head full of dreams and her heart sore and chafing against existing conditions. The old wound on account of the hasty remarriage of her father so soon after her mother's death broke out afresh. She was eighteen. Surely she was competent to manage the house without the supervision of this cold blooded woman who had usurped her mother's place.

Her jealousy had found reflection in her stepmother's resentment of all questioning of authority. And now she was speeding away to the city. In the shabby purse clasped tightly in her hot fingers were $30 of the money she had so carefully saved and Staunton's card, which bore the pencilled line "Per address care of Clipper."

He would help her, she knew, for had he not told her that she was destined to succeed? And there was Joe, who had gone away to the city the year before, but who of late had written at longer and longer intervals. No; she would not tell Joe until firmly established in her new work.

A sudden tug at her dress awakened her from her day dream. It was the golden haired child. A thrill of pity swept over her, for the little girl was a cripple.

"Please," she asked plaintively, "may I come and talk to you and show you my doll? Nanna has been asleep for ever so long, and I am dreadfully lonesome."

Alice made room for her with a smile of welcome. "Of course you may," she declared heartily. "And where is this wonderful doll of yours?"

The child held up a rag doll much the worse for wear, dressed in faded green silk.

Alice paled. She had once had a doll like that. Her mother had made it. Would the second Mrs. Armstrong make dolls for Edith? Her voice trembled as she asked gently, "Who made it for you—your mother?" And she glanced at the sweeping woman.

The child caught her glance and answered quickly: "That's not my mamma; only Nanna, my nurse. My mamma is a pretty lady. Her hair is all goldy—beautifuller than mine—and her cheeks are pink—so pink! Only she won't let me kiss her for fear of hurting them.

"Perhaps you know her," eagerly. "Her name is Clarice Morton, and she is a great actress and sings and dances beautifully; only I can never dance because my back is crooked, you see. It was all the fault of a wicked nurse. She dropped me, and I hurt my spine, the doctors say. No; it was not Nanna. Nanna is ever so good and kind. She came just after that, when I had to lie in bed for a long time. She made me the doll then. Mamma never has time to do things for me," with a little sigh. "In the morning she sleeps, and in the afternoon she goes driving, and lots of fine gentlemen come to see her, and in the evening she is at the theater. But this is made from one of her prettiest dresses." And she smoothed the green silk proudly.

Alice had listened in horrified silence. The unconscious pathos of the child's story cut her to the heart. This, then, was the fate of the child of a great actress, unloved and neglected or left to the doubtful care of servants. How blind she had been to tell herself that she was taking this step for Edith's sake! It had all been for self, self. This little crutch was caused by the roughness of a nurse. Once she had seen Mrs. Armstrong strike Edith. Suppose she should do so again and the careless blow bring her to the pass of this poor little one! The thought was torture. Abruptly she leaned over and rang the bell for the porter.

"What is the next stop?" she asked breathlessly.

"Next stop Ballston," he said; "due there in ten minutes."

"When can I get a train back?"

"There's one due in a half hour."

"Please come and get my things," she said more quietly. "I will leave the train there."

Then she turned and took the little stranger in her arms. "I want to thank you," she whispered as she kissed her tenderly. "You have shown me my duty."

Twenty minutes later Joe Watson gave a whistle of surprise as he came face to face with her on the Ballston platform. "Well," he cried jovially, "here I was going up to Keesport to see you, and here you are part way to meet me."

But questions died on his lips at closer view of her face. She had drawn away from him with almost a look of fear. Then she lifted her head bravely and gazed straight into his eyes. "I had started to run away, but I've changed my mind. Edith needs me; so I'm going back to make the old place seem like home to her."

As Joe saw the unselfish purpose that shone in her eyes and the womanly sweetness of her firm, set lips he realized that his childhood's friend had grown into something very fine and precious. Deep in his heart he registered the vow to some day make a home for both her and Edith. And his dream came true.

Why Carlyle Was Not a Bore.

Carlyle took a friend, a much younger man, out walking with him and in his usual way indulged in a monologue in which, nevertheless, his companion was much interested. Once or twice, however, the friend ventured to put in a word or two of objection in regard to something said by Carlyle. This annoyed Carlyle intensely, and when they reached home he turned upon his companion and addressed to him the following warning: "Young man, I'd have ye to know that ye've the capacity for being the greatest bore in Europe." The poor man had hardly spoken a dozen words; but, since these had been critical, they had made him seem to Carlyle a potential bore of colossal proportions.

Many men in this way get unjustly called bores. They venture to doubt some statement made in conversation and are at once branded with the most terrifying of names. These unfortunate persons are in truth not bores at all, but merely the innocent detectors of the latent capacity of boring in others. Carlyle showed by his speech what was indeed the fact, that he, not his friend, possessed the potentiality of boring. It is true that his great imagination generally saved him, but he often went perilously near the line. Had he not been the man of genius he was he would assuredly have been the greatest bore in Europe.—London Spectator.

"TIZ" GLADDENS SORE, TIRED FEET

No puffed-up, burning, tender, aching feet—no corns or callouses

"Tiz" makes sore, burning, tired feet fairly dance with delight. Away go the aches and pains, the corns, callouses, blisters bunions and chilblains.

"Tiz" draws out the acids and poisons that puff up your feet. No matter how hard you work how long you dance how far you walk or how long you remain on your feet "Tiz" brings restful foot comfort. "Tiz" is magical, grand, wonderful, for tired, aching, swollen, smarting feet. Ah! how comfortable how happy you feel. Your feet just tingle for joy; shoes never hurt or seem tight.

Get a 25-cent box of "Tiz" now from any druggist or department store. End foot torture forever — wear smaller shoes keep your feet fresh, sweet and happy. Just think! a whole year's foot comfort for only 25 cents.

Oft Quoted Phrases.

Many of our most usually quoted phrases are from the Bible, among them being, "No rest for the sole of the foot," "Darkness which may be felt," "Bring down my gray hairs with sorrow to the grave," "The wife of his bosom," "I am going the way of all the earth," "A still, small voice," "All that a man hath will he give for his life," "There the wicked cease from troubling and the weary be at rest," "Man is born to trouble as the sparks fly upward," "Oh, that my adversary had written a book," "The lines are fallen to me in pleasant places," "His enemies shall lick the dust," "Happy is the man that hath his quiver full," "The heart knoweth its own bitterness," "Heap coals of fire on his head," "Open rebuke is better than secret love," "There is no new thing under the sun," "A living dog is better than a dead lion," "The race is not to the swift, nor the battle to the strong," "Wise in his own conceit," "Grind the faces of the poor," "Weighed in the balance and found wanting," "Who touches pitch will be defiled," "Laughing to scorn," "He that runs may read," "Do not cast pearls before swine," and a great many other expressions that have served the turn of thousands of years and help us to realize how little human nature changes in the generations that go by, since what suited the men of so long ago expresses our minds still so well.

Suffered With Heart For Ten Years

Would Nearly Smother

There is nothing that brings with it such fear of impending death as to wake up in the night with that awful sense of smothering. The uncertain and irregular heart action causes the greatest distress of both mind and body.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are the only remedy that can give prompt relief and effect a complete cure in cases of such severity.

They strengthen and invigorate the heart, so that it beats strong and regular, and tone up the nervous system so that the cause of so much anxiety becomes a thing of the past.

Mrs. M. O. McCready, Wapella, Sask., writes: "I am not much of a believer in medicines, but I feel that it is only right for me to let you know what your wonderful remedy has done for me, and in a very short time, too. I had suffered terribly with my heart for nearly ten years, could scarcely do any work, and would nearly smother at times. I had many remedies, some only relieving me for a time. I got a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and felt so much better that I kept on using them, and can truthfully say I feel like a new woman.

"I would advise anyone with heart trouble to use them."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c, or three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

LIGHT ON SALONIKI

A MINGLING OF MANY RACES.

The Town Has a Slight Italian Flavor, and the Striking Costumes of Its Varied Peoples Form a Complete Exhibition of Balkan Fashions.

A striking picture of street life in Saloniki, Greece, is given in a bulletin of the National Geographic society compiled from a communication to the society from H. G. Dwight.

"Somebody had told me that Saloniki was rather like Genoa," writes Mr. Dwight. "My first impression, therefore, was of a disappointing flatness not in the least comparable to the lofty air—the piled, bastioned, heaven scaling air—of the Italian city. Yet Saloniki scales heaven, too, in her more discreet manner.

"And there is even something faintly Italian about her. This is most palpable on the broad quay of the water front, especially when a veritable row of fishermen from the Adriatic are drying nets or sails under the sea wall, just as they do in Venice. The crescent of white buildings facing the blue bay would not look foreign in any Rimini or Spezzia.

"The White tower, which is the most conspicuous of them, might perfectly have been the work of an Italian prince. Indeed, a doge of Venice is said to have built the first edition of it, and Suleiman the Magnificent employed Venetians for his own.

"Look a little closer, however, and this Italian appearing town has unfamiliar details. The white, campanili that everywhere prick up above the roofs of weathered red are too slender and too pointed for true bell towers. Then, as you land at the quay you perceive that the electric cars are labeled in strange alphabets. The cafes do not look quite as they should either.

"As for the people in them, a good many would pass without question. Just such slight and trim young men in Italy would sit at little tables on the sidewalk. Just such young women, rather pale and powdered as to complexion, rather dusky as to eyes and hair, would sit beside them. And you hear a good deal of Italian. But you hear more of other and less familiar languages. And these red fezzes are another note.

"A more striking note is afforded by numerous dignified old gentlemen taking their ease in their bathrobes, as it were, slit a little up the side and tied about the waist with a gay silk girdle. Over the bathrobe they usually wear a long, open coat lined with yellow fur, which guards them from the cold in winter and in the summer from heat. And none of them is without a string of beads, preferably of amber, dangling from his hand and giving him something to play with.

"Such an old gentleman should be accompanied by an old lady, who contributes what is most characteristic to the local color of Saloniki. The foundation of her costume is a petticoat of some dark silk and a white bodice crossed below her throat—a very thin bodice, cut very low at the neck and unstiffened by any such mail as western women arm themselves with.

"Over this superstructure the old lady wears a dark satin bolero lined with fur and two striped silk aprons, one before and one behind. The latter is caught up on one side, some corner of it being apparently tucked into a mysterious pocket. But the crown and glory of the old lady is her headdress, a sort of flat frame tightly wound about with a stamped or embroidered handkerchief and crowned with an oval gilt plaque set off by seed pearls. Whatever its color, this creation invariably ends in a fringed tail of dark green silk, also ornamented by a gilt or gold plaque of seed pearls hanking halfway down the old lady's back. In this wonderful tail she keeps her hair, of which you see not a scrap unless at the temples. And about her throat she wears strings and strings of more seed pearls.

"She is, this decorative, this often extremely handsome old lady, a mother in Israel. The old gentleman in the gaberdine is her legitimate consort, while many of the modernized young people at the cafe tables are their descendants—very many. A dozen different estimates of the population are given, varying according to the race of the informant, but they all agree on the point that Saloniki contains not far from 150,000 people and that more than half of them are Jews.

"To loiter among the booths of Saloniki's bazaar, to explore the busy squares and markets beyond it, to stroll in the crowded street of the Vardar or to idle among the coffee houses of its western end is to take in something of the Macedonian question.

"Tall Albanians, variously braided according to their tribes and wearing white skullcaps on one ear, stalk through the crowd with that lordly swing of theirs. Bulgarians, less lordly, but no less indifferent to the opinion of the world at large, mind their own business in brown homespun. Kilted Greek peasants in tight white trousers tasseled under the knee, booted Montenegrins with hanging sleeves, lend the scene an operatic air.

"Women in hats, women in kerchiefs, women in embroideries that you want to buy off their backs—and sometimes do—women in the Turkish domino, offer a complete exhibition of Balkan fashions."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

DIET IN SKIN DISEASES.

IN REFERENCE to skin affections, one might divide them in relation to food as follows:—

(1) Those directly dependent on diet.

(2) Those in which diet may not be the cause but in which it is of capital importance.

(3) Those in which diet may be an indirect factor.

Pellagra, beri-beri, urticaria (hives), and toxic erythema are examples of diseases which are perhaps largely due to diet.

Pellagra is not very common in this country. It is believed to be due to a diet largely of Indian corn. It is associated with dementia or a form of insanity, and is very fatal. It is common in the Southern United States and in Italy.

Urticaria is a common disease. Some people cannot eat shell fish or certain forms of food without having an attack of hives. Beri-beri is a Japanese disease due to the use of polished rice.

The toxic inflammations of the skin (Erythema) are of the same nature.

In the second class the diet while not necessarily the cause of the skin affection, is still of practical importance. Illustrations of this class are seen in eczema, psoriasis, and rosacea.

In these affections the best diet is a liberal use of well-boiled rice, milk, fruit, and vegetables. Meat, fish, and eggs should be prohibited for a time. Tea, coffee, and alcohol are, of course, not to be used.

Children often have eczema. In the treatment the diet will need careful selection. In psoriasis, meat, cheese, milk, and eggs must be replaced largely by a vegetable diet. The same with rosacea, (the red chin and nose so abhorred by delicate skinned women.) In this affection both the starches and the proteins require reduction.

Acne, and seborrheal dermatitis are diseases, probably indirectly, the result of the too extensive use of starches and sugars.

Worms.

These are rare in infancy. Most of the symptoms applied to worms are due to faulty digestion. The only sure way to diagnose worms, is to see them in the movements. They (threadworms) look like small white threads seen in a recent movement. These are the only ones which occur in infancy. If worms are discovered, wash out the lower bowel thoroughly with a solution of borax—one tablespoonful to a pint of water and inject one-half pint of infusion of quassia daily for several days. An injection of limewater is useful. Wash the parts including the labial folds carefully to prevent re-infection.

Swallowing Foreign Bodies, Such as Coins, Etc., or Poisons.

If the former, they are usually passed without any trouble. Watch the movements.

If poison is swallowed give a teaspoonful of Wine of Ipecac and plenty of warm water. This will cause vomiting and wash out the stomach. In the meantime get the doctor as quickly as possible.

Bow-Legs.

These need not cause any anxiety. Most children grow out of them, and if they do not the doctor will advise the best treatment.

Circumcision.

Some boy babies need to be circumcised, most of them do not.

Vaccination.

All babies should be vaccinated in the first year. Vaccination does not cause any injury unless dirt is allowed to get into the wound. Vaccinate all babies, including girls, on the left arm. It is a splendid badge of your civilization and good sense.

Medical Officers of Health and Local Boards of Health are notified that the Ontario Health Officers' Association will meet in the Medical Building in Toronto, on Tuesday and Wednesday, the 29th and 30th of May next.

One of the features of the conference will be an address by C. E. A. Winslow, Professor of Preventive Medicine, Yale University, on "Safeguarding the Health of Infants and Young Children."

THE CROSS OF CHRIST.

Christ in coming into a world full of hypocrisy and avarice and pride and malice had his life embittered, and finally was brought to death as the inevitable consequence of being a good man in an evil world. He loved the world and in trying to do it good, won its hate. In seeking to save it he laid down his life.

Christ stands as the revealer and the interpreter of God in terms of the highest and holiest of human experience we know—that of suffering love bearing the consequences of sin, and appealing to the sinner who has caused the sorrow, to be a better man.

The law of vicarious sacrifice is written into the constitution of the moral universe. If one does wrong others must suffer.

The problem of religion is to present Christ as the representative of all humanity; so to hold up the cross of Christ as to make every man who is doing wrong feel that he is rolling up the mighty mass of misery which Christ and humanity must bear.

In Christ's name the great spiritual forces of the modern world are marshalled against evil. In His spirit the fight against these evils is carried on. Henceforth to be an indifferent individual is impossible. Each man whether he wills it or not must be on one side or the others of these vast historic social forces greater than himself. Each one of us must be bearing either an unrepented and therefore unforgiven share of responsibility for the avoidable evils under which the world is groaning and travailing in pain, or else a generous share in the effort to conquer them and save the world from them, of which Christ is the historical leader, and His cross the accepted social symbol. Each one of us must be either a betrayer or a servant of humanity, a crucifier of the Lord, or else a bearer of His cross. Only as we bear the cross of Christ in forgiving, serving, saving love to the sinning, suffering world, can we escape the condemnation of being guilty partners in the sins and sorrows under which it suffers.

—Wm. DeWitt Hyde.

REDUCE CAR SHORTAGE BY FILLING CARS

The object in issuing these bulletins is not to start a controversy with the public and not to shift responsibility to the public, but to secure the co-operation of the public.

Bulletin No. 1 contained the following information, from 1907 to 1915:

The Freight carried on Canadian Railways increased..	51%
The number of Freight Cars increased.....	91%
The total car capacity increased 131%
The average capacity of cars increased	5.8 Tons
The average weight of contents increased	3.0 Tons

The present heavy volume of traffic will no doubt continue so long as the war lasts.

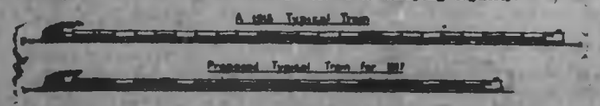
Additional cars and locomotives are needed but they cannot be secured in large numbers for many months.

There is also a serious shortage of labor and in some places of yard trackage.

The only way to improve the conditions therefore is to secure greater efficiency in the present equipment, terminal trackage, and man power.

The railways alone cannot develop the maximum efficiency; the railways and the public co-operating can.

Consignees can help by ordering full car loads instead of minima authorized in the tariffs and classifications, and consignees can help by loading cars to their full authorized cubical or carrying capacity.



Comparison	Cars	Average load	Weight of train	Weight of contents	Result
Typical train, 1915 ...	62	18.4 tons	800 tons	420 tons	45 more tons carried in 5 less cars
" " proposed.	50	23.4 tons	843 tons	468 tons

A COMPARISON .

	The Average Train 1915	Proposed for 1917
Average weight of contents of cars	18.4 tons	23.4 tons
Total weight of cars 562	tons	448 tons
Total weight of contents 344	tons	399 tons
Total weight of train 847	tons	847 tons

Had the average load per car in 1915 been 23.4 tons instead of 18.4 the same traffic would have been handled with:

6,947,588 less trains hauled one mile.
1,568,765 less car trips.
29,906,535 less tons of dead car tare hauled one mile.

By increasing now the average load by 5 tons per car the public would improve the efficiency of the equipment, facilities, and man power of the railways to an extent equal to:

54,000 additional freight cars
483 additional freight and yard engines
415 additional miles of yard trackage and 13.5 per cent increase in man power employed in train and yard service

A CAR SAVED IS A CAR GAINED.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S BUNGALOW APRIL.

By Anabel Worthington.

There is a strong natural instinct implanted in the healthy minded woman to make the most of herself and on every occasion to dress herself most becomingly. Even though she be engaged in preparing the meals, or in putting the house in order, she wants to look well and to be dressed in a way suitable to her labors.

Let the work be ever so light, to avoid unrest and friction an apron on neat and becoming lines, with some show of response to Fashion's whims, is an absolute necessity to the woman who looks after the household affairs. In the illustration you see just such a garment, made in the bungalow style.

The fulness of the garment is held in place by a belt at normal waistline. The body part may be in surplice style by rolling the fronts back to form revers and facing them with contrasting color goods, or the right front may be lapped well over to the left side and the collar dispensed with. The sleeve just turns the elbow and when the apron is made to supply as a house dress the cuff finish of contrasting goods will be appropriate to match revers and collar. The pocket, of course, is a detail that belongs to an apron.

Linen, chambray, gingham, percale, drill, galatea and similar materials are suitable for developing. Making the garment is really a pleasure.

The apron, pattern No. 8,149, cuts in sizes 36 and 40 bust.

To make in size 36 requires 5 yards of 36 inch material; 1¾ yards of contrasting material.

To obtain the pattern send ... to the office of this publication

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.
Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

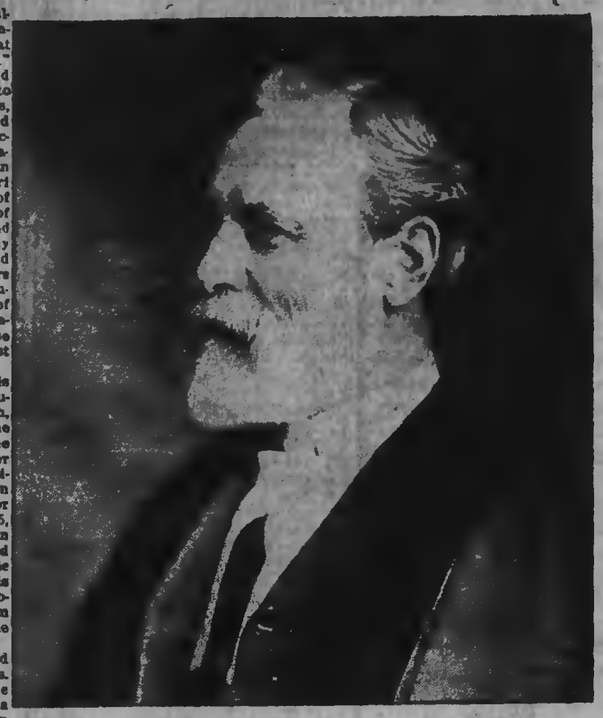
An Eminent French Canadian



SENATOR THE HON F. L. BEIQUE.
NEW DIRECTOR OF THE CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY.

THE French-Canadians have always taken a close personal interest in the fortunes of what they call for short "Le Pacifique," just as the English have abbreviated the Canadian Pacific Railway into the more familiar C. P. R. It is, therefore, only right that they should be represented on the board of directors, and no more fitting representative of the race could be found than Senator, the Hon. Frederic Ligori Béique, whose career has been one of such distinction in so many paths of life. Lawyer, business man, and philanthropist, interested in many charities, his days have been, and continue to be, full of useful labors in the upbuilding of his native country and in promoting the welfare of her people. His is one of those versatile natures, which, paradoxical as the expression may appear, is only at rest when in the midst of labor.

F. L. Béique, the son of Louis Béique, was born in St. Mathias, Rouville County, Quebec, on May 20th, 1845. Acquiring his education at the College de Ste. Marie de Monnoir, he chose law for his profession, and later on became an L.L.D. of Laval University. He was called to the bar in 1868, and made a King's Counsellor for the Province of Quebec in 1885, and for the Dominion of Canada in 1889. Accurate knowledge, sound judgment and clear speaking made him one of the leading lawyers of his period. His brothers in the legal profession have recognized this. From 1891 to 1893 he was Batonnier of the Bar in the district of Montreal.

Senator Béique has been engaged as counsel in many celebrated cases. He repeatedly pleaded before the Privy Council in England; he was a member of the Royal Commission in the famous Whelan case of 1890; as counsel for the late Hon. H. Mercier and his colleagues who were accused in connection with the Baie des Chaleurs Railway by the Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec, in 1891, he won a wide reputation; in 1896 and 1897 he was counsel for the Dominion before the Behring Sea Claims Commission. For years he had worked in partnership with Sir Louis Jetté, and he still energetically pursues his legal practice. Referring to Senator Béique the "Montreal Star" says: "As a commercial lawyer he has few if any peers."

Not less successful as a businessman, Senator Béique has been associated with numerous commercial enterprises. With the late David Morrice, and the late A. F. Gault he took a prominent part in guiding the destinies of the V. Hudon Cotton Company, the Hochelaga Cotton Company, the St. Ann's Cotton Company, the Canadian Colored Cotton Company (now the Canadian Cottons), the Dominion Cotton Mills Company; and as lawyer for all these concerns and a director of some of them, his influence has been strong in pointing out the channels through which business should be conducted. As a member of the board of directors of the Royal Electric Company he was one of those mainly responsible for its development. He promoted the Chambly Manufacturing Company, and with Sir Herbert Holt, was amongst the first to discover the possibilities of its hydraulic power. Again, with Sir Herbert Holt, he was one of those mainly responsible for the building up of the Montreal Park and Island Railway Company; many real estate concerns owe their existence to this financier. He is vice-president of the Bank of Hochelaga and of La Sauvegarde Insurance Company. He has occupied and is presently occupying the position of director in several other companies.

It would be difficult to enumerate the different public welfare societies which have benefited by his zeal. During his presidency of St. Jean Baptiste Society the Monument National was erected in connection therewith, and the society became a powerful, useful and leading social and educational institution. It was also under his presidency that La Caisse Nationale D'Economie was established and became an important and overgrowing society.

As a director of Montreal Technical School from its inception the work of Senator Béique has achieved valuable results. In the care of the sick he takes a deep interest and is a governor of the Montreal General Hospital and of the Notre Dame Hospital. He has been a Catholic School Commissioner, a director of the Parks and Playgrounds Association, vice-president of the Charity Organization Society, and vice-president of the League for the Prevention of Tuberculosis. He was formerly a director of the Montreal Citizens' Association. In 1903 he was called to the Senate by Lord Minto, where he has occupied the position of chairman of the Railway Committee. He continues to take a leading part on all the important committees and in everything that relates to legislation.

Senator Béique has always been a believer in the Canadian Pacific Railway, and for many years has been a large shareholder of the company. On the directing body he succeeds the late Honourable Robert MacKay. If death has taken away one gifted mind from the C. P. R. another ripe in experience and wisdom has succeeded.

In 1875 the then Mr. Béique married Miss Caroline Angelinas Demaulles, Lady of Grace of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem in England, who takes a prominent part in many social spheres. They have been blessed with a family of seven sons, who are living, and two daughters. Captain Victor Béique, one of the young est of the boys, largely helped in the recruiting of the 69th French-Canadian Battalion, now overseas, and Captain Béique is now fighting in the country from which his forefathers originally came.

"A maker of Canadian history." That is how the "Montreal Herald" has described Senator Béique. The footsteps of the seventy-one years of his life have passed so lightly over his countenance that one would not think they had all trodden there. He is a man of active frame, medium height, and a physique that is more remarkable for its energy than for its strength. He moves with a quiet step, and the attitude in which you invariably find him is one of gentleness and kindness. The geniality of his manner makes the most timid of his interviewers feel at ease. He is an attentive listener, and is always capable of putting himself in the other fellow's place. One might say that he is one of those who would inspire men to do things because they are happy to follow his guidance rather than because they may feel it incumbent on themselves to obey his commands. Were it possible to build material monuments to generous doings on the sympathetic side of existence, the spiritual course of Senator Béique might be marked with memorials great as those which stand to his temporal achievements. French is his mother tongue, but he speaks English with a fluent, harmonious voice.

WOMEN IN KRUPP WORKS

How rapidly German women are taking men's places in industry and adapting themselves to the hardest kinw of work as a result of the world war is brought out by data found in an article on the Krupp works at Essen by Adolf Koster, printed in a recent issue of the Frankfurter Zeitung. The number of workers in the great arms plant is put at a minimum of 80,000, and of these one-fourth are women. In an article based on statements in the German press it was pointed out that the total number of employees in the Krupp works at Essen on April 1, 1916, was 68,922, of whom 18,033 were women. Consequently, while the number of male workers there has increased about 4,000 during the last year the number of their women comrades has risen some 7,000. When the war began there were only 1,314 women employed at Essen, compared with 36,880 men.

After having described the Krupp concern as "a kingdom of work" in time of peace which had become in time of war "the greatest private undertaking of the country which renders the most important service to Germany," Herr Koster, as translated by The London Times, continued:

"This private undertaking represents to-day a labour army of at least two corps—picked troops from Germany's home army, admittedly superior in quality to many armies of our enemies, and well proved in many victories on water and on land. Krupps to-day is half-nationalized, like every large private undertaking. Under the standardizing pressure which weighs upon our economic life much that is individual has been lost, but much that is universal has been gained, and this tendency will not cease after the war.

"The number of Krupp workmen and officials has grown mightily since the Autumn of 1914. In quality the workers and officials are necessarily different from what they once were. The field army with its claims has made a big inroad on personnel, especially at the beginning of the war. To-day women constitute one-fourth of the whole personnel; a strong women's division helps to maintain the largest German private undertaking. The women work in the offices and in the workshops, many of them not far from the furnaces. The managers express high appreciation of their achievements—especially in the workshops."

RUPTURE APPLIANCE SPECIALIST HERE

New Invention Retains Rupture Without Knife, Danger or Pain.

Old-fashioned galling, slipping trusses and foreign mail order methods are done away with by the wonderful invention of a Canadian specialist who has devoted years to this one study. The marvelous new Egan "CURATRUS" gives instant retention, rest and security where others have failed. It prevents all irritation, restores every part to its natural position as soon as it is used, and old style trusses are thrown away. Egan's "Curatrus" is intended to assist nature to close the opening in the shortest time known without an operation and at small cost. Testimonials from men, women and parents. Nothing complicated. No lies on vest-ance or loss of time, but just a natural retentive method. It costs you nothing to investigate. Delays may be dangerous. Now is the time to make yourself physically fit for your daily work. Tear off coupon now. "Made in Canada."

THE PATH.

"Dream not to grow to thy full stature, O Soul!
By ease and dull contentment!
Not thus is manhood won!
The task to right the wrongs, uphold the right,
Whate'er there be of weak that suffers tyranny,
The privilege to succor and support,
Through good report and ill pursue thy way
Unflinching. Thine the loneliness
Of differing opinion—knowing well
The cost to thee has been too great to barter
The anguish bought result for sake of peace.

GAVE HIS COAT.

A pleasing story was related at West Ham (London) police court of the late Mr. R. A. Gillespie, who had been stipendiary since 1911, and for some years previously deputy magistrate. In recording the court's regret at his death, Colonel Palmer recalled that on one occasion Mr. Gillespie was seen to take off his own overcoat and put it on the back of a poor man, and the clerk said he had often known the late magistrate to dip deeply into his own pocket to help deserving cases.

Safety of a Ship.

The safety of a ship depends upon its stability, strength, water tightness and reserve stability and floatability if injured. The strength is due to the framing and plating or planking. Water tightness is effected by calking the seams between plates and planks. The seams of iron plates are calked by hammering the edge of the uppermost plates against the one underneath it. The seams between planks are partly filled with oakum, which is forced in and the remainder of the seam filled with pitch, marine glue or putty. The reserve stability and floatability when injured depend upon the position and volume of the interior space which is flooded. To reduce this volume to a safe point vessels are divided into compartments by water tight bulkheads, which extend across the ship at intervals.

Redwood and Fire.

Probably no other wood burns with more resistance than California redwood. It seems to have been made fire resistant by nature. In logging camps this is peculiarly noticeable, for no other wood could be so treated. Because of the enormous size of redwood trees the logs are very heavy—a sixteen foot butt log weighs from thirty to fifty tons—and it is very difficult to handle them when the ground is littered with bark, undergrowth and tops. To get rid of this waste, or "slash," as the lumberman calls it, he simply sets it on fire. The slash burns off, but the logs do not burn. They come through this test by fire, which lasts from eight to ten hours, with merely a slight char on the sapwood on their exterior.

Wrinkled Prunes.

Personally we'd rather remain fat than to fall off suddenly and look wrinkly like a stewed prune.—Kansas City Star.

It is the unstewed prune that is wrinkly. Stewed prunes are plump. Where do you board?—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Darn it, the landlady assured us twice, very positively, that they had been stewed.—Kansas City Star.

Stewed twice, perhaps.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Not at All Plain.

"What is your husband's name, madam?" asked the polite directory canvasser.

"John Smith," responded the lady.

"Plain John Smith, eh?"

"No, indeed! John is the handsomest man in this town."—London Answers.

FORTY-FIVE YEARS OLD

Just when a man or woman is nearing the half century mark the discovery is made that nature does not make repairs to health unaided as in younger days.

The kidneys for instance once out of order do not right themselves. As a consequence the usual sequel to derangement of the Kidneys is acute inflammation, which indicates its presence by pains in the small of the back; Rheumatism in one of its many forms; Lumbago or perhaps inflammation of the Bladder; Brick-dust deposits or other Kidney and Bladder troubles develop.

The man or woman becomes a slave to aches and pains, although relief can be obtained by those willing to take advice or profit by example.

Hundreds have found the remedy for Kidney and Bladder trouble in Gin Pills. Some have heard about Gin Pills from friends who have been cured, others read our newspaper announcements. Some wrote for free sample; others bought from their dealer on our guarantee of money back if not benefited. Gin Pills, too, relieve Constipation and its attendant ills. 66

You, man or woman of 45 and beyond, you need the help of Gin Pills to promptly restore your kidneys and remove pain. Surely it is worth a trial. Sold by all druggists and dealers everywhere at 50c. per box, or 6 boxes for $2.50. If you wish to try a free sample, write to the National Drug and Chemical Company of Canada, Limited, Toronto.

Old Time Cutlers.

The earliest instance of admission to the freedom of the Cutlers' company of London by apprenticeship is that of John, son of Saman the Knifesmith, who was apprenticed to Stephen atte Holt, cutler, in 1287. The Cutlers were divided into four main branches—the bladesmith or knifesmith made the blades, the hafter produced the handle or haft, the sheather the sheath, while the cutler put together the various parts and sold the tool or weapon complete. Closely allied to the craft were the burbours or furbishers, who were common to the crafts of cutlers and armourers and were engaged in furbishing and refitting old armor, weapons and garments. Another subsidiary occupation was that of the grinder. The bladesmiths were divided into two branches, the knifesmiths and swordsmiths.—London Graphic.

Man With a Miscellaneous Past.

"We have been gradually growing accustomed, and especially of more recent years, to regard ourselves as a composite people—an amalgamation of several races and many nationalities," says the New Republic.

"To illustrate that, the writer is fond of quoting Herbert Croly's characterization of Mark Hanna's ancestry. After describing how 'in his father's blood there was a Scotch-Irish, a Welsh and an English or Dutch strain and on his mother's side a French Huguenot, an Irish and an English infusion,' Mr. Croly concludes, 'He became by virtue thereof a tolerably typical American, which means a man whose past is so miscellaneous that he is obliged to seek for himself some form of effective personal definition.'"

Quite Musical.

It may be so, and it may not, but a Los Angeles student affirms it in an examination paper, and here it is: "Beethoven discovered the sonata in four moves. Before this it was a sweet. He wrote many piano sonatas for the violin, and they were called string quartets. When a piano sonata was for an orchestra it was called a symphony. The ninth piano sonata he wrote for voices to sing."

Ambiguous.

When Bilkins was away from home on a long business trip he got a letter from his wife that still puzzles him. It ended thus:

"Baby is well and lots brighter than she used to be. Hoping that you are the same, I remain, your loving wife."

PEEL OFF CALLUSES WITH THE FINGERS

To painlessly and quickly remove any callus spots from the bottom of the feet apply a few drops of freezone directly upon the hardened skin and shortly it will peel right off without pain, soreness or bleeding.

This drug is an ether compound. It simply loosens the dead callused skin. It doesn't eat it away, but loosens it so it peels right off with the fingers.

A quarter ounce of this freezone costs little at any pharmacy, but is sufficient to remove every corn or callus from one's feet. This is the only way to free the feet from corns and calluses without soreness, danger or infection.

After the corn or callus is lifted away the skin beneath and surrounding, is found pink and healthy, and not inflamed, or even irritated. This is a good thing to know.

ONE GERMAN DESTROYER SUNK AND ANOTHER DAMAGED IN THE CHANNEL

Enemy Naval Base and Workshops at Ostend Bombarded With Good Results the Admiralty Announces. Six Enemy Destroyers Are Fought at Long Range, the British Vessels Escaping Without Losses. Many Raids Reported by General Haig.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

LONDON, June 5.—A British light cruiser and destroyer flotilla sunk one German destroyer, the S-20, and damaged another in an engagement with six enemy destroyers at long range, the Admiralty reported to-day.

Ostend was bombarded with "good results," the Admiralty declared. Shore batteries returned the British fire, but there were no casualties on the British ships, and no damage done to the attacking vessels.

The engagement took place early this morning. Vice-Admiral Dover reports that the enemy naval base and workshops at Ostend were heavily bombarded early in the morning, the Admiralty statement said. "Commander Tyrwhitt reported that a British light cruiser and destroyers engaged six destroyers at long range. One of the latter was sunk and another damaged. Ostend was bombarded with good results. The shore batteries returned the fire, but we were without damage. We had no casualties."

The German destroyer S-20 was built in 1912, and was of 838 tons displacement. She was capable of 32.5 knots speed, carried 73 men and was classified as an example of the latest type in such craft. Commodore Reginald T. Tyrwhitt, mentioned as commanding the British flotilla which was victorious in Brush, has already had a distinguished career in the navy. He is commander of the destroyer flotilla of the First Fleet. He participated in the Heligoland battle of August 27, 1914, and in the North Sea fight on January 24, 1915, when the German cruiser Blucher was sunk.

LONDON, June 5.—The Austrian War Office statement to-day admits the loss of Kuk Mountain and the town of Jamaino to the Italians, but claims the recapture of several trenches near Corizia, with several hundred prisoners and numerous guns.

PARIS, June 5.—In reprisal for the recent German air raid over Bar de Luc, French aircraft carried out a successful air bombardment expedition over Treves and the German aviation camps at Morhange, Hatzsheim, Frescatti and Sanderumse, an official announcement to-day asserted.

"Important results were achieved," the statement said. These points are in Rhenish Prussia and in Alsace.

PARIS, June 5.—Only ten French ships were sunk by German submarines during May, the Government announced to-day. Twenty-eight French vessels were attacked by U boats, 16 escaping. Patrol vessels fought twelve engagements with enemy submersibles and 14 hydroplanes.

TOKIO, June 5.—A Chinese revolutionary movement to-day is tending toward the restoration of a monarchy and the enthronement of the old Chiang dynasty. Latest reports received here from Peking deny that President Liyuan Hung has resigned under pressure of militarists, who have established a provisional government at Tientsin. Hsu-Shi-Chang, head of the revolutionists' provisional government, is known to have monarchistic leanings.

PARIS, June 5.—Radicals and Radical Socialists who, together, constitute the majority in the Senate and Chamber of Deputies, formally met and resolved to-day that it was "necessary that France recover Alsace Lorraine." A formal vote of confidence in the Government, which will make this basis principle of France on peace terms, will probably be recorded in the Chamber within the next day or so.

LONDON, June 5.—Field Marshal Haig kept up his incessant raid fighting policy on the Western front last night, he reported to-day. "At night, east and south of Ypres, we made successful raids," he said. "Southeast of Lens and south of Armentieres hostile raiders were driven off."

This is the third successive day on which the British have reported raids in the northern section of the Western front.

Canadians Again Hold Power Station

LONDON, June 5.—The ruins of the famous Electric Station of Lens is again within the Canadian lines, according to Stewart Lyon's cable from the Canadian front this afternoon. Lyon says apparently the Germans found it untenable after recapturing it on Sunday, and apparently found it necessary to evacuate. On Monday afternoon the German guns were turned on the ruins, but this morning the Canadians appear to have advanced to the east of the place, thus placing it within the Canadian lines.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—More than 100,000 tons of German and Austrian shipping seized by the United States will be repaired and available for the service of America and its Allies by the end of July.

PARIS, June 5.—What an official statement described as a "lively attack" carried the French forces last night over into the trenches which they had lost to the Germans on Monday north-west of Froidmont Farm. The gains were held, despite counter attacks.

North of Bray-En-Laonnais, the report said, a violent bombardment was in progress. In the Champagne there was intermittent artillery fire, most active around Casque and Mont Cornillet. Between Tahure and Auberive an enemy raid failed.

LONDON, June 5.—Another successful air raid on the German depots at St Denis Westrem, Zeebrugge and Bruges was announced by the Admiralty to-day.

On Sunday night naval aeroplanes carried out an attack on the enemy aerodrome at St. Denis Westrem, the statement said. Many bombs were dropped with good results. The enemy seaplane base at Zeebrugge was also attacked by seaplanes, and shipping at Bruges likewise bombed.

More than 1,000 bombs have been dropped on the German bases at Zeebrugge within the past week, Chancellor of the Exchequer Bonar Law announced in the House of Commons to-day.

PETROGRAD, June 5.—Restoration of Alsace Lorraine to France is not an "annexation" by France, but "justice," according to a resolution adopted by the congress of delegates from the front to-day. Such a return, the resolution explained, did not run contrary to the Russian peace platform of "no annexations and no indemnities."

REGISTRATION IS HEAVY THROUGHOUT THE UNITED STATES

Youth of the Country Was at the Polls Early To-day Pledging Itself for War Service. Ten Million Names Expected.

FIRST DRAFT 625,000

Special to the Examiner:

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Young America was at the polls to-day, casting its vote for world democracy — registering for service.

Reports to the United Press early to-day showed the registration day fair throughout practically all the nation. The youth of the country was pledging itself bright and early, heavy listing being reported everywhere.

By night the Provost Marshal General expects that more than ten million Americans, between 21 and 30, will have listed themselves in the potential arm of the draft. Some time between now and early fall 625,000 of this ten million will be chosen by lot, called formally to colours, and started in the Government soldier-producing factory.

To-day was America's first experience with a compulsory draft from which there could be no evasion by the purchase of a substitute. It was the nation's first compulsory demand on her youth since the days of "61."

Many States made a holiday of the event.

PETERBORO MEN LEFT KINGSTON THIS AFTERNOON

Private Baxter and Corpl. McIntosh Will Arrive Home To-day

His Worship Mayor J. J. Duffus has received the following telegram from Major Birdsall, of Kingston:

"Pte. T. Baxter and Lance-Corp. D. J. McIntosh, invalided soldiers, are leaving Kingston to-day at 1.40 p.m. for Peterborough."—Major Birdsall.

The men will arrive in Peterborough on the 5.30 train from the East. Mayor Duffus may not be able to meet the men personally, but will delegate other members of the Council to officially welcome the men home.

Well-Known Former Peterboro Boy Has Won Military Cross

Capt. Hugh M. Wallis, Graduate at the Peterboro Collegiate and Former Member of the 57th Regiment, Is Decorated. Went Overseas Private With First Division. Local Recruiting. To-day's General Military News

In the list of Canadian officers who have been recently decorated for gallantry at the front appears the name of a well-known former Peterborough boy, Capt. Hugh M. Wallis, who has won the Military Cross. Capt. Wallis, with his brother Harold, enlisted in the first Canadian division at the beginning of the war as a private. He served in the ranks for some time in France, and was then promoted lieutenant, and later was again promoted to captain's rank. Now his splendid work has been recognized by the award of the Military Cross. Capt. Wallis is a graduate of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute, and is the fourth ex-pupil to whom a decoration has been awarded in the past few weeks. He was for several years a member of the 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers, and while at the Collegiate was prominent as a Rugby player.

His mother is at present living in Toronto.

LONDON, June 4.—Hundreds of school children of Folkstone, Hythe and Sandgate, will assemble on June 15 at the Military Burial Ground at Shorncliffe Camp and will place flowers on the graves of about one hundred Canadian soldiers. Many public bodies are sending wreaths besides private individuals. The thoughts uppermost in the minds of promoters are that, relatives of those who are buried are far away, and those at home shall feel that their sons are not forgotten, and that although they themselves cannot perform this act of devotion, others are doing it in their name. Each grave has a white wooden cross on which the name, rank, and unit of the soldier are inscribed.

LONDON, June 4.—The Canadian Associated Press is authoratively informed that reinforcements to the Canadians in France for the last five months have been sent at the rate of 10,000 monthly.

Mr. Robert Beavis, 639 Rogers street, has received the following letter from the information bureau of the Canadian Red Cross Society:

Dear Sir,—I beg to inform you that Pte. Bruce Beavis, No. 195564, 18th Canadians, is still at the Royal Infirmary, Sheffield, York, Eng. Since writing you last our visitor has seen him a few times and reports that although still seriously ill he seemed slightly better the last day she saw him (yesterday) and more cheerful. We sincerely trust he may now continue to improve, even though slowly, and it is hoped that his leg may be saved. With best wishes for his ultimate and complete recovery.

Yours truly,
CONSTANCE SCOTT.

WINDSOR, June 4.—Information has been received here by local members of Internal Revenue and other branches of the civil service to the effect that within a short time—a few weeks at most—the Government will announce a plan for compulsory retirement of all civil servants who have been in service more than thirty-five years, their places to be filled with returned soldiers who are unfit by reason of wounds and illness from filling their ordinary vocations.

At present the superannuation system provides that all Government employees with thirty-five years or more to their credit are retired automatically, but as the retiring allowance is considerably less than salary ratings, many employees prefer to hold on as long as posible rather than ask for superannuation.

Already nine Windsor and Walkerville men who will be affected by the new arrangement have been notified to prepare for retirement. The plan, it is stated will effect the entire Dominion equally.

TORONTO, June 5.—Flight.-Lieut. Arthur C. Dissette, R.N.A.S., has given his life for his country. A cable was received by his brother, Mr. Frank Dissette, of the Hotel St. Charles, yesterday, briefly stating that he had been killed while on escort duty. A clean, clever athlete, a gentleman always, he will be mourned by all who knew him. The son of Mr. Richard Dissette of the Empress Hotel. Arthur will be remembered as outside wing of the champion Parkdale Canoe Club O.R.F.U. team. He was thirty years of age, and was educated at Loyola University, Montreal; Technical School, Toronto, and the University of Toronto. After finishing his education he located in Vancouver, where he was engaged in the automobile business. He enlisted shortly after the outbreak of the war, and after a course of training in England was sent to France. He was probably one of the first Canadians entrusted with the British "Bullet" an airplane capable of a speed of over one hundred miles an hour.

During his stay in France he was sent, with other aviators on night raids on munition plants, and was also engaged in the aerial fighting in the Somme section. He took part in some of the most thrilling aerial conflicts recorded since the outbreak of war, and distinguished himself signally. Not long ago he was with 'Pete' Flett, former Argonaut halfback, recently decorated and 'Sport' Murter who has been reported missing. On that occasion all three had a narrow escape from death at the hands of Hun aviators. No word has been received of Murter since that flight.

While no details as to the manner

Big Guns Drove Canadians Away

Western Battalions Had Hot Battle in Capture of Avion Electric Light Station Which Had To Be Given Up After Being Held for Eighteen Hours.

CASUALTIES ARE HEAVY

(By Philip Gibbs)

War Correspondents' Headquarters, June 4.—In my message yesterday I made only passing reference to the attack by the Canadians on the electric power station at Lens. At the time of writing heavy fighting was happening there and for a while the result was not definite on either side. I can now narrate the facts more fully after a visit to the Canadians and to the neighbourhood of the fighting, where this morning, from the lip of an old mine crater in a wild upheaval of earth, I looked across to the area of our attack. South of the Souchez River and west to Avion, where there was still heavy fire at intervals, the Canadians attacked the electric power station of Lens, which is plainly visible above the fringe of trees and red cottages, at midnight of the day before yesterday, when the moon, almost full, shone down upon the long, narrow streets of all these mining cities, as they are called, which struggle away from Lens by slag heaps and pit heads and water towers, in one great mass of workmen's colonies and factories. The object of the Canadians seems to have been to push the enemy farther north from Bois de Blaumont, across the Souchez River, to a line linking up with our troops in Lieven, and so gain La Coulette and the big brewery in this neighbourhood.

Attack on Narrow Front.

On the western side of Avion the attack was on a narrow front. The Germans have been very strong in this neighbourhood since they rushed up support after our capture of Vimy Ridge and massed in those underground chambers, all concreted more than a year ago, so that there is a subterranean fortress under Lens and its suburbs which all our shell fire can hardly damage. Here they have stored great supplies of ammunition and in concealed placements large numbers of machine guns which stutter and stammer through the night as I have heard them sweeping all approaches. That was the ugly sound which met the Canadians when at midnight they rose out of their trenches near Bois de Biaumont and went forward to La Coulette, the brewery and the power station. It was a surprise attack and some if the enemy were caught by the quickness of it. The Bavarians of the 56th Division, who formed the garrison of these positions, were trapped in their dugouts and tunnels by Canadian Grenadiers and riflemen, who swarmed round them in this grim country of red brick ruin, where they moved like shadows in the moonlight. Over 100 prisoners were sent back, but in the Municipal Elections Held in Future on New Year's Day

Municipal elections in Peterborough will be held on New Year's Day in future, instead of on the first Monday in January. Mayor Duffus introduced the subject, stating that many citizens had expressed a desire that the change be made. The Council unanimously passed the motion that embodied it, although Ald. Duncan pointed out that men who go out of town for the holiday will have to sacrifice their vote.

CITY'S APPLICATION TO SELL COAL WILL BE HEARD TO-MORROW

The Ontario Railway and Municipal Board Will Open Sittings at Court House — Evidence Is Required.

AN IMPORTANT MEETING

The sitting of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board in the County Council Chamber at the Court House to-morrow morning at ten o'clock is to hear the city's case in support of its application to buy coal for resale to the citizens. Mayor Duffus and Ald. Dobbin last night urged the importance of this meeting and requested as many citizens as possible to attend, especially if they could put forward evidence in support of the city's application. The Council has surely lost no time in its endeavour to meet the wishes of the people, but they in turn must recognize that they are not relieved of the responsibility which offers itself to-morrow.

PRICE OF CANADIAN CHEESE ANNOUNCED

21¾ Cents a Pound Is Offered by British Board of Trade

OTTAWA, June 4.— Hon. Martin Burrell announced in the Commons to-day that the Cheese Commission had been authorized by the British Board of Trade to pay 21 3-4c. f.o.b. steamer, Montreal, for 80. 1 finest grade cheese, and that buying on this basis would begin as soon as arrangements could be made. The price to factories would, of course, be less than inland freight and usual handling charges. Existing methods of buying and selling at country points would be continued. The Cheese Commission would meet the trade at Montreal as soon as possible in order to complete arrangements to give effect to the Board of Trade proposals.

FIRE DEPARTMENT UNDER STRENGTH

Men Decline To Become Firemen at Present Salary Schedule

At a meeting of the Fire, Water and Light Committee of the City Council, called for his evening, the question of increasing the salary schedule of the members of the fire department will come up for serious consideration. With the present schedule eight hundred dollars for first year men and nine hundred dollars for second year men, it is impossible to keep the Fire Department up to strength. At present the department is being manned by nine men, which is about half of the number of men that should be employed. A salary schedule of nine and ten hundred dollars a year is proposed.

A CREDITABLE NUMBER.

The receipt of the Silver Jubilee edition of the Windsor Record compels the passing comment that it is a Record number in a double sense. This special number of the Record is issued to mark the silver jubilee of the city of Windsor, which came into official being in 1892. The jubilee issue of the Record is a mammoth number of 96 pages, splendidly compiled, printed and illustrated, the sole work of the Record printing establishment; and if the result achieved, the enterprise and journalistic energies shown, are a reflection of the character and enterprise of its journalistic constituency, Windsor is a city to be proud of. A newspaper universally reflects the character of the city in which it is published, and in the case of the Record and of Windsor, honours seem to be even. The Record to judge by the magnificent character of its jubilee number, must have had a prominent share in contributing to the great growth and development illustrated in the standing of Windsor at its twenty-fifth civic birthday. It can boast the mildest climate of any place in Canada. Its transportation facilities are represented by six lines of railway, and a water highway, the most important inland navigation on the continent. It has, not only splendid manufacturing facilities, but large industrial possessions. It has all the [illegible] and to apparently has the spirit, if the enterprise and resource of the Windsor Record as reflected in its splendid jubilee number, are shared by the city, to make it a place of metropolitan proportions. Good luck to the Record, and to Windsor!

If the crop of Knights increases much more rapidly, daylight saving will become a necessity.

THE MISCHIEF MAKERS.

It did not need the report of a military court of enquiry to demonstrate that recruiting interests have been injured by the actions of not only soldiers under arms but by enlisted soldiers themselves. Newspapers and newspaper correspondents who seem to be moved by the policy of unlimited stirring up of ill-feeling and racial antipathy, have been doing a good deal of drawing of the long bow—all the way from suppression of truth and exaggerations to straight lying.

We have had lurid stories of the hostility of the Quebec population to soldiers quartered in Quebec cities, or troops passing through the province. Judging by these stories one would think that the natives of Quebec had degenerated into Germans. So circumstantial did these "yarns" become that a military court of inquiry investigated and proved that they were gross exaggerations and that in the specific cases exploited, the blame for disturbance was placed upon the soldiers! In Quebec city the report of the military commission states that soldiers got access to drink without restriction, abused Quebec citizens, and reprisals and ructions followed. As to the charge of stoning troop trains, the report finds that the members of a regiment that detrained at Riviere du Loup, used insulting language to civilians, and in some cases assaulted citizens who did not satisfactorily answer impudently put questions as to why they were not in khaki. In Montreal the soldiers of a troop train "threw potatoes and other articles of food, and snow and ice" at civilians, and when the train drew out, "a few young men between the ages of sixteen and twenty threw a few stones and cinders at the car." The report declares that the actions and language of the soldiers "had a deterrent effect upon volunteer service in these localities."

As to the soldiers getting access to drink in Quebec and creating disturbance, the government itself is to blame. The government should have prohibited the sale of drink, especially to soldiers, as a wise and justifiable war measure—and insults to civilians by drunken soldiers could not expect to be unresented.

In fact the government's official attitude to recruiting, in which it has taken little or no interest, and in addition has not kept a proper oversight over enlisted soldiers, has had a good deal to do with retarding recruiting, not only in Quebec, but elsewhere.

"Not another man, not another dollar," is the cry of Mr. Bourassa, and the slogan of the "Nationalists," of whom Sir Robert has three members in his Cabinet.

RESPONSIBILITY.

The country, and the capital of the country, are in an uproar over conscription and the political tangle that has resulted from tardy, laissez-faire, inefficient dealing with recruiting. We all knew that the government has taken no worthy and effective official interest in recruiting, since the war began. It did not need to do so at the beginning, for there were a great number of big-spirited young Canadians, whom the voluntary spirit thrust into the ranks. At first recruiting was automatic — ran itself.

Later, with the exhaustion of the material of the voluntary spirit and in spite of the efforts of patriotic private citizens, recruiting fell off. Then we had the government post-card National Service campaign, but it failed. Then we had the government try its 'prentice hand with the formation of a Canadian Defence Force—which was a companion dismal failure to the National Service experiment.

In neither of these expedients was there any business "punch" or ginger put, and the result was what might have been expected, and was predicted by some "unpatriotic" persons, who could see that neither promised to lead anywhere. The Canadian Defence Force enterprise—if a word misfitting the management and operation of it may be employed—might have done more if the government had used the power existing in the Militia Act. This contains a provision empowering the government to mobilize the militia of Canada, "and send it overseas if the defence of Canada required such measure."

But that was too obviously the right and business way of proceeding. Things must, as they in fact were left to do, drift, till Sir Robert Borden found himself face to face with the last resort, conscription. It took him a long time to make up his mind to this point, and since he has announced conscription it seems to require a long time to make up his mind to do anything.

Of course the situation is difficult. There is opposition to the idea of conscription, whose chief merit is, after so much failure, to apply prompt, resolute and systematic action to the business of raising additional military forces. It must come, if anything worthy of Canada is to be done. Sir Robert made the proud promise that Canada would contribute 500,000 soldiers to the cause of the allies. A business man that makes a promise to pay takes some business steps for meeting his promise. Sir Robert seems to have neglected to take any decisive steps; the day of payment came, and it was found that funds labelled conscription don't seem to be acceptable currency.

We know Sir Robert is faced with a difficult situation, but he is encountering the difficulties he has largely created for himself. He paltered with the situation, he neglected to take efficient official interest in recruiting, then he tried half measures in a half-hearted way and he need not be surprised that when he leaps upon the most drastic possible means of doing something to implement his promise of 500,000 Canadian soldiers, he meets difficulties.

It is probable that calling attention to Sir Robert's leisurely dealing with the military problem will be denounced as unpatriotic, but we have Sir Robert himself confessing failure as a leader, and voting want of confidence in his own government by discussing the proposal of replacing it with a coalition—a do-something—government. If he felt that his government had all the virtues the adulatory element of his supporters claim for it, the unpatriotism consists in even thinking of replacing a perfect and perfectly efficient government with a government of live men.

The actual number of teaching days in the Public, Separate and High schools of Ontario for 1917, are officially announced as 199.

Two U-Boats Make Concerted Attack on the Kroonland

Torpedoes Said to Have Hit the American Line Vessel Glancing Blows, Not Exploding.

NEW YORK, June 5. —Two German submarines made a concerted torpedo attack on the Kroopland of the American line, on her last outward voyage from this port, firing four torpedoes, two of which hit the liner glancing blows, but did not explode, according to a report brought to the United States by an American recently in England, who said he was told of the attack by an officer of the ship.

The Kroonland was nearing the British coast, the American was informed, when two torpedoes, fired from opposite sides of the vessel from submerged U-boats, were seen. Both torpedoes missed the bow of the ship by less than twenty feet. The Kroonland was already going at high speed and the navigating officer on the bridge gave orders to zig-zag. Quickly two more torpedoes were launched. This time the aim of the Germans was better, for the missles actually touched the sides of the liner, but the blows were not sufficiently directed to explode the contact detonators in the torpedoes.

The naval gunners on board the Kroonland opened fire at the unseen targets sending explosive shells into the water at the point where it was judged the submersibles were when the torpedoes were launched, but so far as is known no hits were recorded.

BIG GUNS DROWN [illegible] AWAY

streets of La Coulette and round the electric power station the enemy's machine gun fire was like a death rattle. La Coulette especially was a hornet's nes stuffed with machine guns, as a Canadian officer describes it.

Considerable Casualties.

There were a good many casualties before our men forced their way in and silenced some of the machine guns and built a block or barricade as a defensive post in this suburb of Lens. By half-past three all three points of attack were in Canadian hands, but not securely, as the events of yesterday showed. As soon as dawn came, the enemy launched a counter-attack of La Coulette from the direction of Avion, and S. O. S. signals had aroused the German gunners to pour high explosives into the electric power station and brewery for many hours. They bombarded the power station with intense violence by 5.9 howitzers so that the place was hellish for any living men who tried to hold out there. Successive counter-attacks forced back the Canadians from two points of the ground they had captured in the moonlight. By midday they had abandoned the brewery after a stubborn resistance, and before the sun sank last evening they withdrew from La Coulette and the power station in order to save a needless sacrifice of men. It is difficult to estimate the enemy's losses in this small battle. Their assaulting forces did not get off scot-free and they must have many dead and wounded among the miners' cottages of Lens. They had already suffered the horror of death before the battle, because on the night of May 31 gas went over to them on a soft wind and crept down into their tunnels and killed men sleeping or working. On the balance, however, and according to the fortune of war, they were more successful in yesterday's struggle, and regained ground taken by the great valor of the Canadian troops.

It was the height of their gunfire which was the chief cause in driving the Canadians back, and proved once again that when heavy artillery concentrates its fire on a narrow front, that ground becomes untenable. This morning there were many shells whistling through the deep blue sky, our shells from full-throated howitzers passing in greater flights than the enemy's high velocities, but it was not an intense bombardment, judged by the full fury of modern gunfire, and the actual line of yesterday's fighting was marked by only occasional crashes from which reddish smoke wafted away into the blue. The hot sun poured down over Lens so that its rows of miners' cottages were flame coloured and its great water towers were glinting like a mosque of Adrianople as I used to see it from a hilltop in another war. The enemy's trenches round by Avion and on the outskirts of Lens were white as snow. We know where their chalk parapets were flung up above the weed grown ground, and little woods and gardens round about are rich in leaf in spite of all the shell fire that is flung between them into near and narrow streets where many houses are in ruins.

A visitor to St. Louis was whiling his time away by lounging about the steamboat wharves. He was leaning against a convenient post, when a box of matches in his pocket caught fire. He chose the quickest and surest extinguisher by rushing the twenty-five yards to the edge of the wharf and jumping into the river. A negro hand eyed this performance dispassionately, says the New York Evening Post. He fished the stranger out of the water with a boat hook, and remarked the fact that the wet one was a newcomer. "Boss," he said, earnestly, "ef you wanse ter jump dis yer river, you's suttinly got to git er longer runnin' start, an' at! Yas, suh!"

Correspondence under this heading, containing or involving attacks on individuals or violent or extreme statements, must to secure insertion, be signed with writer's real name, the author of which will not, however, be published.

Peterborough, June 4, 1917.

Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I received the enclosed from a friend in England (Rev. H. S. Preece), with the request that I would hand them over to the Peterborough paper for insertion in the hope that they might prove a message of comfort to some of the bereaved and mourning ones of our city, who may also have lost loved ones in France or Belgium. I trust you may be led to insert the lines for this purpose.

Thanking you in anticipation of this, I remain,

Yours truly
C. V. Harrison.

Enclosed with Mr. Harrison's letter was the following:

In loving and glad remembrance of our son, S.I.P., who, being wounded in France, on the 4th March, 1917, 'Kept his rendezvous with Christ' the next morning.

I Have a Rendezvous With Christ.
(Suggested by Alan Seeger's "I Have a Rendezvous With Death.")

I have a rendezvous with Christ—
With Christ—the Life and Light of men!
What barricade can Death erect?
What power prevent what I expect?
For Spring, Life's Spring, shall bloom, and then
I shall keep rendezvous with Christ,
Where Christ makes Paradise again.
I know that He will take my hand

And lead me into that bright Land,
For He it was who made the tryst;
I shall not fear when dawns the day,—
I seek that rendezvous with Christ:
Life's winter past, then comes Life's May!
When every bud of hope unfolds
And I know all His promise holds!

No other prospect could bring half
The joy this brings! at ease and wealth,
At all that Earth might give, I laugh,
A quiet laugh; it's all out-priced!
Earth's joys out-weighed—Earth's best out-done!
For I've a rendezvous with Christ
Where I shall know the thrill of health
When Death has failed, and Life's begun!
And Christ to His pledged word is true;
I know He'll keep that rendezvous.

Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—On Saturday last the children drew my attention to a dead cat which was lying in the gutter. Nobody seemed to know who it belonged to, therefore we thought it would be the garbage collector's place to remove it, but when that gentleman was asked this morning to take it, he replied, "I will if you will pay me for it, but I won't if you don't." The cat is still lying there at the time of writing, and as I do not feel inclined to pay for the cremation of the poor abused animal, would you kindly inform me if it would be alright to leave it there this warm weather, or to whom should I apply to have it removed. Thanking you I remain.

Mrs. Clancy, 459 Rogers street has received the following leter from her son, Signaller V. Clancy.

Granthan, England.

My Dear Mother,—I have received your letter this morning and I was certainly sorry to hear that you had not heard from me, for I have made it a special point to make sure of sending a card or so a week. I had a slight operation on a couple of fingers on my right hand, leaving the use of my arm in a weak condition so that I have to write left hand when sending a letter. Hoping to hear from you soon. I am,

Your loving son,
VERNOL.

The following letter from one of the old 93rd bandsmen now with the 235th Battalion has been received by a member of the Examiner staff:

Just a few lines to let you know we arrived safe in England, after a rough voyage. We left Ottawa on April 25th for Halifax. We passed through the provinces of Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, so you can see we had some train ride. We got to Halifax on Saturday night. We had to stay on the train till Tuesday morning, and then we had orders to march on the troopship. That was May 1, and then we stood out in the harbour for a couple of days. I tell you the Canadians saw a sight. Talk about cruisers, torpedo destroyers, etc., lying around the harbour. It was a treat to see them. We started on our voyage on the Thursday night, May 3, and, as I said, we reached England May 14th, quite a long, tiresome journey. I am pleased to say all the band boys are looking fine, also very cheerful. There are about 16 of us playing in the 235th Band. The other five are drilling in the ranks, but I guess we will all come to it later on, as this band will never hold together. The funny part of it is, we landed at the same camp, Otter Pool Camp, Kent, the same camp that the good old 93rd had their training before going to France. I like the country all right. How is the home defence coming along? Very slow, I guess. We are only staying in this camp about ten days, and then we are going to move to West Sandling once more. This is a fine camp; get lots to eat and little drill, and then I might get fat. I was very pleased to hear of Bandmaster Hughes' promotion. Good luck to him; he deserves it.

OTTAWA, June 5.—The effect of Sir Robert Borden's conscription announcement is strikingly illustrated in the recruiting figures for the last two weeks of May. In that period a total of 4,054 men were enrolled as against 2,486 for the preceding fifteen days. The three Ontario military divisions topped the list as follows: Toronto 818, London 659, Kingston 540. Montreal was next with 530, and Quebec last of all, with 19. The total enlisted to date number 416,215.

OTTAWA, June 5.—A delegation of twelve members of the Great War Veterans' Association received a sympathetic hearing and were promised full consideration of their requests for improvements in the provision for returned soldiers presented to the government to-day. The doubling of total disability pensions, increases for children of deceased men, grants of land and enfor[illegible]ment of conscription were demanded among other things.

Girls To Do Berry Picking Will Wear New Service Badge

Miss Ethel MacRobert Tells Workers What Will Be Expected.

LONDON, June 2.— The girls who have enlisted under the wing of the Ontario Government Labour Bureau here under Superintendent Miss Ethel MacRobert to pick fruit this summer gathered at the office of Miss MacRobert and heard their work explained.

In the course of her talk to the girls, the superintendent told them that this was their opportunity to prove their patriotism, and by helping the fruit growers and farmers they were but following in the steps of the women of England, who were now a power in the agricultural world of the old country. The pickers were warned that they must be conscientious in their work, as careless handling meant not only a loss to the farmer, but a loss to the country, and also in the canned goods sent over to the trenches.

Miss MacRobert further stated that from the 1st of July till the 10th, twelve pickers would be needed; from then till the 15th about forty, and for the next month 70 pickers at least would be required, with the number tapering off towards September.

Most of the girls would be required every day, with the scale of wages averaging 2 cents a box for fruit picked. As one picker had told her that she could pick 12 boxes of raspberries an hour, the girls should be able to make fair wages. They would have to take their lunch with them, and as almost every farm was in the neighbourhood of Springbank and Byron, not 10 minutes walk from the car, and as a camp could not be run without great expense, the girls would have to leave every morning on the 7.30 Springbank car. Miss Macobert explained that the camps being run in the Niagara district were under the direction of the Dominion Y.W.C.A. and run at a loss. No provision had been made here, and that was the reason for no camps in this district.

The girls will all receive National Service badges as soon as the berry season commences a month from now. Following is a list of fruit that the girls will be required to pick: Strawberries, cherries, red and black currants, gooseberries, raspberries, thimbleberries, plums, pears, peaches, grapes, with tomatoes in September.

PLOT TO TIE UP LAKE COMMERCE IS FRUSTRATED

U. S. Federal Officers Arrest I. W. W. Officers in Detroit.

DETROIT, June 2.—Federal officials announced that an alleged plot to tie up the Great Lake commerce through strikes was probably broken up by a raid last night on the local headquarters of the Industrial Workers of the World. Two officers of the organization were arrested, and considerable literature was confiscated.

J. Herbert Cole, special agent of the department of justice, said that an investigation of an attempt to disorganize service on the Great Lakes brought the Government agents to the I.W.W. headquarters.

It was said that some of the material seized by the Government was "damaging evidence."

"Do animals show that they love us?" asked a teacher of her primary class.

"Yes, ma'am," chorused the class.

"Good," said the teacher; "and now tell me what animal has the greater natural fondness for man?"

A small boy promptly spoke up:

"Woman!"—Harper's Magazine.

Eight Men Drank Shark's Blood To Keep Them Alive

SURVIVORS OF THE AMERICAN SCHOONER M. E. ELDRIDGE LANDED AT HAVANA.

HAVANA, June 2. — The loss of the American schooner M. E. Eldridge, of Dennis, Mass., and the death of her captain, George Delbat, and one man in her crew, who perished from exposure and starvation, became known to-day when eight survivors were landed here by a British schooner. The M. E. Eldridge left Tampa, Fla., on May 5, for Cienfuegos, but sprang a leak and sank in a hurricane encountered three days out from Tampa.

The rescued men were picked up yesterday after drifting for 18 days in small boat without water and with only a few canned peaches. The men declared that they caught a shark with ropes and drank its blood to sustain life.

The M. E. Eldridge was a three-masted schooner of 252 tons, built at Portsmouth, N. H., in 1878, and was owned by Rollaid B. Kelly of Dennis, Mass.

Bourassa Says Toronto People Are Thanking Him

MONTREAL, June 4.—"It is useless to conceal the truth. Two millions French Canadians are solidly opposed to conscription." This statement, printed in italics is the most specific item in Bourassa's editorial in Devoir to-day. He goes on to say: "By the force of circumstances, conscription would cut a far deeper swath in the ranks of French-Canadians than any others.

He goes on to state that the hundreds of thousands of foreigners in Canada will not be enlisted, either of their own free will, or by force. "Could I reveal the secrets of some conversations I have had one would be surprised. A crested cook of a professional gentleman in Toronto told me in a low voice after seeing that the doors and windows were closed: "I have stopped advocating enlistment and conscription. We should put our own house in working order. It is that type of young Torontonian who shouts loudly against the 'slackers of Quebec,' but says in a low voice in a pullman smoker: 'After all, that fellow Bourassa is saving us from conscription.'"

Uses Two Girls as Shield When His Revolver Jams

William Moynihan, Long Sought by Police, Wounded When He Tries to Escape.

NEW YORK, June 5.—Placing two terrified little girls in front of him, a young gunman who had resumed the leadership of his band of city outlaws following his escape from prison, held two detectives at bay in a Harlem playground for five minutes Sunday afternoon. His revolver had failed to work, but the detectives feared to shoot lest they harm the children.

That tense situation was relieved when the detectives, Henry Sommers and Michael Caputo, of the Third Branch, realized the man's weapon was useless and advanced upon him. When they were within twenty feet he dashed the children aside and started over a twelve-foot iron paling fence.

He was on top of the fence when Sommers fired one shot at him. The bullet entered his side and inflicted a probably fatal wound. He dropped back into the playground, while children ran screaming to the gates. He later was sent to Bellevue, where one pierced kidney was removed, and the physicians said he probably would die.

He was William Moynihan, only nineteen years old, but whose record at police Headquarters fills several pages. Beginning with terms in the Truant school at twelve years of age, the record advances in seriousness until last summer, when Moynihan was sent to the House of Refuge on Randall's Island after being convicted of burglary. He escaped from Randall's Island January 3, swimming the channel in the East River.

Since then police have been trying to find him, but failed until yesterday afternoon, when Sommers and Caputo pursued him into the playground in 101st street near Second avenue. Before the playground was reached the detectives had fired several shots and Moynihan had fired at them several times. When his revolver was found the detectives discovered that the bullet the detectives discovered that the bullet.

Following his escape from the House of Refuge Moynihan assumed the leadership of his band and a few days later this band had a pistol fight with a rival band. None of them was hurt, but Theresa Mahoney, of No. 192 East 102nd street, was wounded in the right ankle by a stray shot.

Jews Of Palestine Fear Greater Turkish Cruelties

LONDON.—The Jewish Chroncle has received further details of the desperate state of affairs in which the Jews of Palestine are placed. The evacuation of the civil population of Jaffa was carried out early in April, ostensibly as a measure of military precaution, but really as a measure chiefly aimed at the Jewish population. While, on the one hand, all Jews—even German, Austro-Hungarian and Bulgarian—were ordered to leave the town. Mohammedans and Christians were permitted to stay with individual permits, which were consistently refused to Jews.

No means of transport were provided or obtainable for the purposes of those who were ordered to leave the town. Nor were the Jews of Jaffa the only ones who were thus treated. Three hundred Jews from Jerusalem were also deported amid circumstances of the utmost cruelty. The effect of the evacuations in Jaffa is that eight thousand Jews were evicted from their homes and were not allowed to take away any of their belongings or provisions. Their houses were looted and pillaged, even before the owners had left them. Bedouin women, Arabs with donkeys, camels, etc., came to carry off all valuables and furniture, while the Jewish suburb of Tel Aviv was sacked under the eyes of the authorities. As an example of many of the ruthless acts visited upon the Jews, it may be mentioned that two Jews from the Yemen were hanged at the entrance to Tel Aviv, the object being—it was explained — to indicate the fate in store for any Jews who might be so foolish as to resist the order for evacuation.

The roads to the Jewish colonies north of Jaffa are lined with thousands of starving Jewish refugees, and many cases are reported of wealthy Jews who were found dead in the sand hills around Tel Aviv, most probably the victims of robbery and murder. In order to drive off the bands of robbers preying on the refugees on the roads the young men of the Jewish colonies organized a body of guards, who agreed to take turns in order to watch the roads. These guards, however, were promptly arrested and imprisoned by the authorities, after suffering considerable maltreatment.

The fate that appears to await all the Jews in Palestine is of the very worst. Djemel Pasha, who has openly declared that the joy of the Jews upon the approach of the British forces would be shortlived, as he would make them share the fate of the Armenians, is thought to be too politic to order definitely a cold-blooded massacre. This is the most optimistic hope of the poor people driven out onto the waysides. They seem to think that Djemel has made up his mind to exterminate the Jewish population by more subtle means—by condemning them to starvation and death, by hunger and disease, which he would point to as merely calamities over which he had no control, but which would exterminate the population just as effectively as a massacre. It is possible that he may even order the punishment of those who have looted and pillaged under his orders, or at least with his connivance. For he is said to be an adept at exciting one part of the population against the other, and thus providing himself with the best opportunity of exterminating those of whom he wishes to be rid.

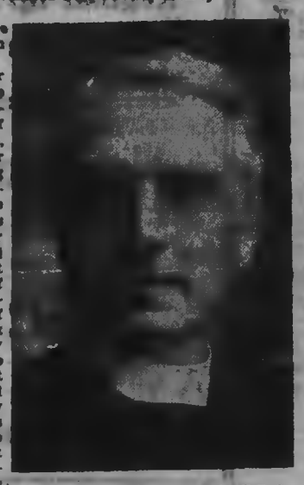
An Unfailing Way To Banish Hairs

(Beauty Notes)

Ugly hairy growths can be removed in the privacy of your own home if you get a small original package of delatone and mix into a paste enough of the powder and water to cover the hairy surface. This should be left on the skin about 2 minutes, then removed, and the skin washed and every trace of hair will have vanished. No harm or inconvenience can result from this treatment, but be sure you buy real delatone.

The Recovery of Our Lost Fraternity

(By Rev. GEORGE HANSON, M.A., D.D.)



REV. GEORGE HANSON, M.A., D.D.

"THE things which divide us are temporal; the things which make us one are eternal."

These great words of Professor Rendel Harris, of England, put the question of Church Union on its proper basis, forbid all rigid theories of ecclesiastical authority or privilege, and justify every attempt at closer fellowship between churches holding the essential truths of the everlasting Gospel. What shall our attitude be? Shall we magnify our differences and minimize our agreements? Or shall we magnify our agreements and minimize our differences? The root of all sectarianism, and the foe of Christian brotherhood, is the exaltation of non-essentials to the rank of essentials. Every man should ask himself solemnly the question "Why am I opposing organic union, why do I favor ecclesiastical divisions? Is it in the interests of the fundamental verities of the Gospel or is it chiefly denominational pride that animates me?" It seems to me that, in the controversy, all that is best and most progressive in evangelical Christendom is on the side of those who are desirous of seeing the Churches re-organize their exclusiveness and manage with one another in the closest practicable relationship. The best scholarship of the day in the Protestant Churches favors their desire, for it denies any church any indefeasible right or even any superior title to authority over every other church. Of course there are certain special pleaders in some churches who hold out against this conclusion, but their opinions do not weigh with educated men, and are bound, soon or anne, to be discarded. It was the evidence of historical research that compelled Dean Hensley Henson, as he tells us in his volume of cathedral sermons, entitled "Godly Union and Concord," to renounce his once cherished High Church notions and admit the validity of the titles of non-episcopal ministries. He frankly asserts that prelacy has no right to be regarded as the only, or even as the chief, channel of God's grace to mankind. What is true of diocesan Episcopacy is equally true of Presbyterianism and of Congregationalism, or of any modification of these three distinctive types of polity. None of them is of "divine rights." Further, no reasonable man will claim for his church, as it exists, all the excellences of suitable or of organization, or would like to see perpetuated, in its present form, to the end of time. I certainly hope and expect to see a vast change in all the churches. Only a singularly fanatical prelatist can believe that all Christendom will acknowledge one day the authority of the See of Canterbury; none but a hopelessly prejudiced Presbyterian would think that the Westminster Confession of Faith will be installed quite there permanently as the final and unalterable expression of the faith of the universal church; no Congregationalist would, in his wildest imaginings, dream that all the Christian world will adopt at last his separatist views of church organization; no Baptist, however fervent, can really suppose that the day will come when all believers shall be devotedly and uncompromisingly immersionist. Every church under heaven must be changed, and greatly changed, if it is to live. The only question is, what shall the change be, and when is it to take place. The church that sits down under fixed and rigid conditions is doomed. The facts of experience, too, rebuke our sectarian prejudices.

The loudest call is us to consider organic union as an urgent duty comes to us from the intervening prayer of our Lord, recorded in St. John xvii. 4. Twice over in almost identical language he prays on behalf of "all who should believe in Him" that they all may be one, even as Thou, Father, art in Me, and I in Thee, that they may be in Us; that the world may believe that Thou didst send Me." Plainly the union of believers was a condition of Him Church's successful appeal to mankind on His behalf; and equally plainly all avoidable divisions are a hindrance to the progress of the Gospel. A divided church cannot rule the world. Those who oppose organic union assure us that our Lord's words do not require more than unity of spirit, oneness of faith and hope and love, and that this inner unity of heart is quite compatible with the greatest variety of organization. But surely our Saviour's language demands the closest possible union, a union as intimate and organic as that which bound the Persons of the Trinity together as one. At any rate, if it does not demand it, it certainly does not forbid it. Those who oppose organic union ought to be very sure that, in advocating spiritual unity as against visible co-operate union, co-operation as against the unification of now separated bodies, they are doing justice to the desire of our Lord's heart and are not guilty of toning down His strong words to suit their own preposessions. If it is through the exigencies of controversy that they are whittling down the Lord's prayer, they are incurring a responsibility that I should not care to share.

The opponents of organic union are not consistent with themselves. They pronounce themselves in favor of federation and co-operation with other evangelical bodies. But if these bodies, with whom they would allow such federation and co-operation, are worthy of so much confidence and regard, why should they not be counted deserving of still greater trust and affection? Why do the advocates of unity and co-operation balk at organic union? Whatever justifies unity and co-operation justifies organic union. If co-operation is desirable, it can only be because those with whom we are willing to co-operate hold the essential truths that we hold. If they were radically unsound or even seriously defective in their faith, co-operation with them would be wrong. Co-operation with them is right only if we regard them as fundamentally right, essentially one with ourselves. Willingness to co-operate with them is a proof of our confidence in their evangelical soundness.

Can, we trust and esteem them enough to walk, talk, work, deal fraternities with them, and not be ready and glad to go further? Whatever justifies the fellowship of co-operation justifies the closer relationship of organic union.

RUSS SOLDIERS CROWD OUT PUPILS FROM SCHOOLS

SO BUSY ACQUIRING INFORMATION THEY HAVEN'T TIME TO FIGHT—START A UNIVERSITY.

PETROGRAD, June 1.—Many of Russia's soldiers are so busy acquiring an education that they haven't time to fight. They are crowding the children out of the schools. In many sections they have started schools of their own.

Minister of War Kerensky has had tremendous success in instilling the fighting spirit in the troops actually at the front, but there are thousands of fighters who still roam about freely over Russia, or else have laid down the rifle for the school book.

Here in Petrograd a Jaeger regiment to-day opened a "soldier's university," where fighters are taught mathematics and history. At Poleon the soldiers have usurped the desks of children in the schools. At Samara the munitions workers have felt the same yearning for knowledge, and have opened schools alongside their factories.

"DARKEST RUSSIA" NO MORE.

"Darkest Russia" is no more, and the people as a whole, now seeing the light, want knowledge to guide them in the dazzling glare of their new-found freedom.

Extraordinary efforts are being made all over the country to back up Minister Kerensky's appeal to make the soldiers fight. Notwithstanding this, all trains are crowded with uniformed men visiting their families or just wandering around.

Yesterday I witnessed the departure from Petrograd of the weekly Vladivostok express. Scores of soldiers clung to the doors, the rails, and even the roofs of the cars, so desperate were they to reach their homes. I was told the sight was by no means unusual. These are the men on whom the Government is now exerting every possible persuasion to make them see that the new liberty they enjoy must be fought for and won on the battlefield.

Couldn't Keep Back Tears

WHEN THE NERVOUS SYSTEM BROKE DOWN—QUEER FEELINGS IN BACK OF HEAD CAUSED MUCH ALARM.

MIDLAND, Ont., June 5. — Collapse or break down of the nervous system leaves one in a most pitiable condition. Strong, healthy-looking women and men, too, will weep from helplessness and despair.

The case reported here was a most severe one as is indicated by the hysterical condition, the pains in the back of the head and the futility of the many treatments used.

This is further evidence that the regular and persistent use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for a reasonable length of time will positively restore the most exhausted nervous system.

Mrs. S. Sharp, of Midland, Ont., writes:

"About eleven years ago I had a serious nervous breakdown and was so bad at times that I could not keep back the tears. I also had a queer feeling in the back of my head. Sometimes I seemed to be going backwards. I could not do any sewing, and finally could do no work at all. I tried other remedies and doctors' medicines but they only gave me temporary relief. Last fall I commenced using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and had not taken very many until I found that I was getting better. I kept on taking them and am at present greatly improved. I am now able to do my work and they have strengthened me splendidly. I can highly recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for nervous trouble of any kind."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50c a box, a full treatment of six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Do not be talked into accepting a substitute. Imitations only disappoint.

Takes Bride-to-Be From Father's Home Through a Window

KINGSTON, May 31.—A mild sensation has been caused in the village of Newboro over the elopment of Reilly Houghton, aged 18, and Freda Dier, aged 16. As Freda's father did not look upon the match altogether with favour, the couple, on Tuesday night, in the dark and rain, made their get-away.

Reilly came to his sweetheart's home in the wee sma' hours of the morning, and placed a ladder up to her bedroom window, whistled softly, and in a few minutes, with bag and baggage, out came the fair lady. Her lover climbed up the ladder and assisted her to the ground, while he had a carriage in waiting, and in a few seconds the couple were whisked off to Gananoque, where the knot was tied.

The father was given quite a shock in the morning when he found his daughter missing. After keeping the telephone and telegraph wires hot for a time he eventually located the couple in Gananoque and the message he got was "We're married and happy." Mr. and Mrs. Houghton came home Thursday, the father's heart softened, and the blushing bride and the gallant groom were forgiven. Both are popular young residents of the village, and they are being congratulated on all sides.

At least one British censor has a sense of humor. When a soldier wrote home to his people that he had been buried alive for two hours in a demolished dug-out he added: "I had the satisfaction of sending five of the Germans to hell." The censor drew a line through the sentence, but wrote underneath: "It is not permitted to refer to the whereabouts of the enemy."

DO YOU REALISE
that Zam-Buk is not an ordinary ointment? It is a herbal skin healer with unusual power in overcoming chronic skin troubles.

Mr. John L. Frenette, of Nigadoo, Gloucester Co., N.B., writes: "Boils developed on my head and spread rapidly, until my head was entirely covered with sores. I was attended by a doctor, but his treatment did not do me much good. By this time my head was in such a shocking condition that I determined to try something on my own account. Having heard of some wonderful cures effected by Zam-Buk, I commenced applying it, and the results were most encouraging. This marvellous balm soon ended the irritation and drew out all the inflammation. Then the sores began to heal and perseverance with Zam-Buk resulted in a complete cure."

This skin healer is equally good for ringworm, salt rheum, ulcers, abscesses, running sores, bad legs, blood-poisoning, boils, piles, burns, scalds, cuts and all skin injuries. All druggists, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. 50c box, 3 for $1.25.

Presentation and Address to Rev. R. G. Peever of George Street Church

Members of the Epworth League Presented Retiring Pastor With a Gold Headed Cane Suitably Engraved. The Address.

At the regular meeting of the Epworth League of George street Methodist church last evening, a very pleasant surprise was accorded the popular pastor, Rev. R. G. Peever. The members took the opportunity of presenting him with a gold headed, ebony cane, suitably engraved and an illuminated address, as a mark of their sincere appreciation of his interest in the young people of the church and their deep regret that he is so soon leaving for his new charge at First Methodist church, London, Ontario.

Mr. Peever is to be commended on the splendid work he has done in George street church during his four years of ministry. Especially has he endeared himself to the young people by his active interest and hearty co-operation in their work at all times.

Epworth League.

The Epworth League has had one of the best years in its history, owing greatly to Mr. Peever's oversight and inspirational leading. Over 100 members are on the roll and work is being carried on in six departments, Christian Endeavour, Missionary, Literary and Social, Christian Citizenship, Junior and Lookout. Each department is under a Vice-President who has in charge in some of the departments as many as three committees. The Junior League, which is the 50th department of the Senior League, meets at 10 o'clock on Sunday morning. It has a membership of 180 and an average attendance this past year of over 100. $250.00 has been given to the Forward Movement for Missions, $55.60 of which was raised by the Junior Society. Mr. Peever may well be proud of this record.

The presentation was made on behalf of the Society, by Miss Alice Elson, President, and Mr. C. S. Thompson, Past President. Mr. Peever, although taken completely by surprise, made a very appropriate reply in his usual felicitous manner. He referred to the fact that throughout his ministry he has always taken a deep interest in young peoples' work, realizing that the young people are the keystone to the church's future.

The Address.

The following is the address:

Dear Mr. Peever,— Character is contagious for it involves the dissemination of ideals. hTe influence of a strong consecrated personality radiates idealistic influences into the lives of those with whom it comes in contact. This in turn leads to better living and more active Christian leadership and service. This we believe, has been charateristic of you during the four years of your pastorate. You not only set high standards from year to year, but reached them and in doing so endeared yourself to your congregation.

We, as members of the Epworth League, decided to take this opportunity of expressing to you our very sincere regret that you are leaving us so soon, and also our deep appreciation of the interest you have always taken in us. In fact, the most interesting feature of your work to us, has been your recognition of the importance of the Epworth League as a vital factor in the development of Christian character in the lives of our young people. You have given untiring devotion and effort to raising our spiritual and social standards, and much of our success has been in no small measure due to your overnight and constant attendance at our meetings.

Your hearty and systematic co-operation with us in all our plans, and your cheery presence with us, have always been a blessing and inspiration. More than that, your consistent Christian influence has meant much in the lives of many of us.

The field to which you go, will offer fresh opportunities for similar work and we feel sure you will, under God's guidance prove the means of bringing blessing into the lives of many there.

In wishing you every success, we pray that God's blessing and guidance may continue to be upon you and yours. We on our part will long treasure happy recollections of the many pleasant associations connected with your sojourn in Peterborough.

"The Lord bless thee and keep thee; the Lord make his face to shine upon thee and be gracious unto thee; the Lord lift up His countenance upon thee and give thee peace."

Alice Elson,
President.
Ethel Clysdale,
Secretary.

TUBERCULOSIS CURE IN YOUNG EASY, DOCTOR SAYS.

ST. LOUIS. — Just how children get tuberculosis, was strongly brought out in a health talk by Dr. S. T. Lipsits, in his lecture on "Tuberculosis in Children."

He said in part: "The prevention of tuberculosis in the child is more hopeful than in adult life because it can be easily prevented, and an early diagnosis can be more readily made.

"Children get tuberculosis in many ways but the two most important ones are by breathing in the germs from the air and drinking them in infected milk.

"Tuberculosis germs cannot live long in sunshine nor find much field for development in a healthy body, so that if the child is kept in a healthy condition by having the proper pure nourishment and breathing in enough sun-pure air, the biggest preventive step has been taken."

A Galway magistrate, who was a major in the county militia, sentenced an old woman to six weeks' imprisonment for shoplifting.

"Well, thanks be to the Lord," exclaimed the prisoner fervently, "low as I am, there's wan thing I'm thankful for; not wan of me kith or kin ever had anything to do with the ruffichy."—London Opinion.

DETAILS OF THE COUNCIL'S WORK AT REGULAR MEETING LAST NIGHT

WELLER STREET GETS FIRST OILING.

Ald. Smith—When is the street oiling work going to begin?

Mayor Duffus—We began on Weller street to-day.

CONGRATULATIONS SENT TO SIR JOSEPH FLAVELLE

Ald. Smith—Wouldn't it be a nice idea to send a letter of congratulation to Sir Joseph Flavelle. He is an old Peterborough boy.

Mayor Duffus— That has aready been done.

HOLES CUT IN PAVEMENT ARE TO BE REPAIRED

City Engineer Parsons was instructed to bring in a report on the panels that have been cut in the street pavement. Most of them are credited to the Utilities Commission, and the aldermen feel that they should also be debited to the Commission.

SUBSTATION DEBENTURES HAVE NOT BEEN ISSUED YET

Mr. E. H. D. Hall, solicitor for the Utilities Commission, wrote applying for an order extending the time for the issue of the debentures for the sub-station. This application should be made by the Council, and Mr. Hall requested that the necessary steps be taken. The debentures are required to be issued within two years after the by-law was passed but on account of the abnormal conditions the erection of the sub-station has been held up. Ald. Stration moved, seconded by Ald. Duncan, that the city make the application as requested.

SEEK PERMISSION TO BUILD STEP TO OFFICE

Peck, Kerr and McElderry asked permission to construct into their offices at 416 Water street, a step which they admit would encroach on Water street. The grade was considerably changed they allege, when the cement walk was laid.—Referred to City Engineer for a report.

OLIVE AVE. LESS THAN REGULATION WIDTH, 66 FT.

Olive avenue, City Solicitor Gordon reported, is less than 66 feet in width, hence before the city could take it over an application would have to be presented to the Railway Board. —Referred to Board of Works.

GETS PERMISSION TO BUILD BOATHOUSE AT DALHOUSIE ST.

A. Brotherstone applied for permission to erect a boathouse north of Dalhousie street.—Granted on motion of Ald. Saunders, seconded by Ald. Weir.

APPROACH TO THE NEW GARAGE ON HUNTER STREET

R. J. Munro applied for an approach to his stable off Hunter street, near the Queen street corner.—Granted on motion of Ald. Smith, seconded by Ald. Stratton, the work to be done under the supervision of the City Engineer and at the owner's expense.

SEWERS APPROVED BY PROV. BOARD OF HEALTH

Dr. J. W. S. McCullough of the Provincial Board of Health has approved of the following sewers:

Wolfe street—Aylmer to Bethune.
Donegal street — McDonnel southwards.
Rubidge street—Smith southwards.
Stewart street—Smith.
Brown street—Auburn Mills southwards.
Auburn street—For Auburn Mills Monaghan road—South to Romaine to Henry Hope & Sons.

This includes 94 galvanized iron services and 6 cast iron services, at a total cost of $5,305.37.

Also on the following streets:
Romaine—Aylmer to Park.
Princess—Park to George
Prince—Park to George
George—Princess to Prince.
At a cost of $14,756.25.

NO BRANCH OF THE BANK OF TORONTO IN NEW YORK

A by-law was passed amending the by-law under which the city's accounts were transferred from the Bank of Montreal to the Bank of Toronto. It was found that the latter bank had no branch office of its own in New York, and Ald. Stratton explained that the alteration provided for the inclusion of the words Bank of Commerce in New York, since it handles the Bank of Toronto business there.

Ald. Dobbin—And that's the bank you recommended the citizens' money to be put in.

Ald. Worth— None of these small banks have New York branches.

CONSTRUCT SIDEWALKS ON STREETS WHERE NEEDED

H. J. McCannon wrote, asking for a sidewalk from the north corner of Walkerfield avenue and Monaghan road extending west 300 feet to the westerly limit of lot 54, plan 144. Mr. McCannon said he intended to erect a home on that lot. This petition was approved, particularly for the purpose of encouraging building, and it was also decided to give notice of the intention to lay sidewalks on the following streets:

On north side of Chamberlen, from Park street to the C.P.R.
South side of Murray, from Reid to Rubidge.
West side Mark from Sophia street north.
South side of Murray, from Reid to east to railway.
Dublin, north side Aylmer street to Turner's new house.

FLAGS OF THE ALLIES TO BE HUNG IN THE CHAMBER

Mayor Duffus suggested that it would be a fitting action at this time to place a United States flag alongside Canada's in the Council Chamber.

Ald. Stration remarked that one could be purchased for a quarter at the Turner factory.

Ald. Worth supported the Mayor's proposal saying—"They are a very valuable ally. I don't know what we would have done without their help."

It was decided to get a large Stars and Stripes, equal in size to the Canadian emblem and between them to group all the flags of the allied countries.

Shades of September 1911 and the Montreal Star's famous Racey cartoon with the caption, "Under Which Flag?"

GARAGE IN FIRE LIMITS.

Mr. J. Hopwood stated that he had built a garage next to the Barrie building behind the billboard on George Street. It was 75 per cent. fire proof, but he had been notified that it must comply with the fire by-law or removed. Mr. Hopwood said he was certain it was sufficiently fire proof. The Council decided to let the building remain as it is until they had examined it.

CANADIAN CONSCRIPTION.

Chicago Tribune: War soon taught Americans to admire Canadians and Canadians to despise Americans. While we were saying: "How gallantly the Canadians have gone in!" they were saying: "How cowardly of the Americans to stay out!" We are in it now—in up to the hilt—and it is America, not Canada, that has dared to adopt selective conscription from the outset. It has taken our example, plus attendance at the Imperial conference in London, to make Premier Sir Robert Borden propose selective conscription for Canada. It would have come of course without Sir Robert's assistance, for Canada has reached the end of her volunteer resources. After sending 326,000 men abroad, with 100,000 more in training at home, she finds recruiting at a standstill, although anywhere from 50,000 to 100,000 recruits are needed to repair the wastage. No doubt Canadians still feel proud of the warlike fervor that rapidly built up that magnificent army. It was superb. But it was destined not to last. No such fervor does or can. Moreover, we doubt if it is as fine a moral product as the measured, calm, deliberative determination that appraises the situation coolly and shoulders the the burden in a thoroughly businesslike style. There is nothing showy about our American adventure. There is nothing romantic. It is practical, however, and the only system bound to work and keep on working. Canada's experience proves that

Charlotte Street Railway Line Will Be Extended When The Monaghan Road Is Graded

The Hydro Electric Power Commission presented a plain statement to the Council last night that they are prepared to proceed with the extension of the Charlotte street line of the Street Railway system as soon as the Boundary Road to Patterson street is properly graded. The proposed line to Ashburnham must wait until the new Hunter street bridge is built, and other extensions are indefinitely held up by the absolute inability to obtain rails and other supplies.

The Council delegated Ald. Weir and City Engineer Parsons to meet the Monaghan Council in an effort to reach an agreement for the grading of Monaghan Road, and instructed them to report back to the Board of Works.

MR. GABY'S LETTER.

The letter received from Mr. F. A. Gaby, the commission's engineer, was as follows:—

Further with reference to yours of the 7th of March, regarding certain proposed extensions to the Peterborough Radial Railway.

We beg to advise that we have looked into these proposals carefully, and, while we agree with you that certain extensions are highly desirable, we regret to have to advise you that it is absolutely impossible for us to purchase the necessary material to carry out the work. By this we do not mean that it is entirely a matter of price, although this, of course, carries weight; but the fact is that it is not possible to purchase track materials at any price and manufacturers will not quote on any specified delivery whatever. Under these circumstances, it is necessary for us to postpone action in connection with new construction until conditions again are normal.

In connection with the East Ward extension, the construction of this depends upon the completion of the ne Hunter street bridge, and if market conditions permit, should be proceeded with as soon as the bridge is ready for operation.

There is one piece of construction which we are prepared to complete immediately, in fact we have been ready to complete it for over a year, viz., on the Monaghan Road from Charlotte street to Patterson street. As we pointed out to you last year, this track cannot be laid until the street is graded by the city, and we were ready to lay the track 12 months ago, if this had been done. We would again draw your attention to the fact that the grading has not been completed and that it is not possible for us to proceed with track-laying until it is.

If you will have this work carried out this portion of track will be completed at once.

A STATEMEMT FROM THE LABOUR CONFERENCE

OTTAWA, June 4.—The following statement was issued to the press to-day by the committee, Fred Bancroft, J. C. Waters, and J. T. Foster, of the labour conference now in session here:

Labour organizations throughout Canada are advised by the convention of labour representatives to immediately utilized all the power at their command to increase their wages and better their conditions to meet the ever-increasing cost of living. It was the opinion of the delegates that organizations should take every advantage of their economic power to increase wages, as no effort had been made in Canada to keep down the price of commodities.

The convention met in session on Sunday afternoon and adjourned at 6.30 to meet again this morning at 9 o'clock. The feature of the afternoon session was the statements made by the delegates representing the miners of Northern Ontario, of the "arrogant attitude" of the mine owners in the north toward the miners' organization in its attempts to get better conditions. Startling revelations were made by delegates of the operation of Secret Service men, and it is likely that Sir Robert Borden and the Minister of Justice will be given the information given to the convention.

It was stated that the mine owners are staging an effort to stamp out the organization of the miners in the north, and an "effort is being made to have interned aliens put to work in the mines under military guard."

The situation, declared the convention, is fraught with danger and the delegates were unanimously opposed to the tactics of the mine owners in Northern Ontario, "and that we urge all labour bodies in Canada to assist the mine workers in every way possible, to secure justice, and that no interned aliens who are not entitled to full freedom of lawful action in the Dominion of Canada be employed to the disadvantage of free labour."

Labour organizations throughout Canada are to be asked to rally to the aid of the miners in case of trouble.

MIXED VEGETABLE SOUP

To make this soup requires three quarts water, one quart shredded cabbage, one-half pint each of minced carrot, turnip and onion, one leek, one sliced potato, two tomatoes, two tablespoons minced celery, two tablespoons butter or drippings, two tablespoons green pepper, three teaspoons salt, one-half teaspoon pepper.

Have the water boiling in a stewpan and add all the vegetables except the potatoes and tomatoes. Boil rapidly for ten minutes, then draw back where it will boil gently for one hour. At the end of this time add the other ingredients and cook one hour longer. Have the cover partially off the stewpan during the entire cooking. This soup may be varied by using different kinds of vegetables.

Winnipeg Member Left by Back Door

WAS SPEAKER AT ANTI-CONSCRIPTIONIST MEETING IN THAT CITY.

WINNIPEG. — F. J. Dixon, M.P. P., for Winnipeg Centre, was severely bruised about the face on Sunday, by returned soldiers, who broke up an anti-conscription meeting in the Grand Theatre, Ald. Queen presiding. The attack on Dixon was the prelude to a general melee and the police had to quell the disturbance. The meeting was a failure. After anti-conscription speakers had endeavoured for fully an hour to get a hearing it was decided to dissolve the meeting. Mr. Dixon, who previously had declared that, if he was going to fight at all it would be in Canada, was met by a soldier while he was trying to get out of the hall by a back door. The soldier told him he would be made to keep to his promise. Blows followed. Mr. Dixon got past the soldier but was met at the front of the building by several others, who grasped his hat, tore it into shreds, and announced their intention of keeping them as souvenirs. Mr. Dixon was being threatened when the police arrived and the soldiers dispersed. Dixon was escorted into an automobile by the police.

A TONIC FOR THE NERVES

Nervous people who have not yet developed a disease that can be recognized and treated by the medical profession have the greatest trouble in finding relief. Irritation, headache, sleeplessness, nervous dyspepsia, all these discomforts make life miserable but are endured rather than run a doctor's bill without definite hope of an improved condition.

Every sufferer should know the danger of such a condition to the nervous system. Nervous debility and even paralysis may result if the tone of the nerves is not restored.

The one big fact that brings hope and relief is that the nerves can be restored by building up the blood. It cannot be too often repeated that only through the blood can nourishment or medicine reach the nerves. Dr Williams' Pink Pills make the blood rich and red and quickly restore vitality and energy to a weak, nervous system. A nervous person who gives these pills a trial is almost certain to see good results and what is more, the benefit will be lasting because the trouble is attacked at the root. This blood makes weak nerves; building up the blood restores the nerve force. That is why people who occasionally take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills always feel bright, active and strong.

If you are weak, nervous, or feeling "out of sorts" give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial, and you will be surprised to see how quickly the nervousness will pass away and your former energy return. You can get these pills through your medicine dealer, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A soldier footballer in the trenches was complaining that he had not had a change of underclothing for many weeks, and consequently his hands were kept busy. He asked his pal if it was true that the Kaiser had withered arm. "Quite right, old sport!" "Well, I wish to goodness that he'd both arms withered," was the reply, "and had my shirt on."—Chicago Herald.

Accounts Passed By the Council

Only One Committee Report at Last Night's Meeting

The only committee report presented at last night's Council meeting was that of the Finance Committee, read by Ald. Stratton, as follows:

We recommend that accounts unpaid for charges for boys in the Industrial School be placed in the City Solicitor's hands for collection.

We received tenders for $90,000.00 Hydro Electric debentures and for $9,742.62 sewer debentures, the debentures being for 30 years and bearing five per cent. interest. The tender of the Bank of Nova Scotia of $90,556.00 was the highest, and we decided to accept the tender, subject to the approval of the Peterborough Utilities Commission.

We recommend that an account from the Dominion Dustless Sweepers, Limited, for $287.50 for cleaning the streets be left with the City Engineer to look up the number of days their machine worked on the streets and to pay them at the rate of $25.00 a day, and that the account be paid on this basis on the certificate of the City Engineer.

CIVIL WAR IN PREFERENCE TO CONSCRIPTION ACT

Wild Statement From Tancrede Marsil of Montreal

Canadian Press Despatch.

MONTREAL, June 4.—A despatch to The Montreal Gazette from Waterloo, Que., says:

"We, in Quebec," said Tancrede Marsil, of Montreal, speaking here yesterday, "prefer to have two thousand or three thousand men killed in our streets and some buildings destroyed than to send to Europe three hundred thousand more men to be slaughtered, without the will of the people being expressed."

"As I said before in Montreal, I say now, before we will have conscription we will have revolution. Since last fall, Sir Robert Borden has had no right to claim to be the representative of the people, for he himself took the right to rule the people as also did the members of the Opposition.

"Neither Sir Robert Borden nor the Opposition had the right to take the powers that they took and now we find the Premier, fresh from England, desirous of putting into force conscription.

"If Laurier goes into a Coalition Cabinet, he is politically a dead man, because he has not the right nor the mandate to join himself with Borden, who in turn holds no mandate from the people. Both the Conservative and Liberal leaders are under an obligation to go before the people, who are the masters of the situation, and the only masters."

Mr. Marsil claimed that Sir Wilfrid Laurier had thrust Canada into the "maw of Imperialism" by sending troops to South Africa.

Talking of taxes to pay for the cost of the war Mr. Marsil said: "Your farms will be taxed for years and years, and the profits that you have been making will soon melt. The time has come for people to cease working for one party or the other, but for all to work for their country."

About one thousand people attended the meeting.

A burden which one chooses is not felt.

A clear conscience fears no accusation.

AGAIN PROPOSES TO FILL IN GOOSE POND

Ald. McIntyre Claims That it Might Be Done with Ashes.

The perennial problem of filling in the goose pond was again placed before the Council last night by Ald. McIntyre. He proposed that it should be gradually filled in with ashes. Mr. Parsons stated that the Hydraulic Power Co. had previously consented to the fill-in up to Harvey street, and the Mayor suggested that this permission should be obained in writing from Mr. Denham.

Ald. Weir: "I wouldn't spend fifty cents improving other people's property."

Asks Premier To Step Out

Montreal Herald Suggests That He Make Way for Lord Shaughnessy

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, June 5.—The Montreal Herald, which is edited by Hon. Geo. P. Graham, who is Sir Wilfrid's Chief Lieutenant, makes a new suggestion editorially to-day, to the effect that Sir Robert Borden step out of the Premier's office for the present and take a seat at the side of Sir Wilfrid Laurier at the Council table, with Lord Shaughnessy for instance, or some one else of commanding ability, outside of party politics, as Premier for a period of national government. There is talk here to-day of Sir Robert resigning rather than withdraw his selective draft measure, to which he feels he is committed by the Imperial conference. In the case of a continuance of the Conservative government, Sir Thomas Foster, Sir Thomas White and Hon. Arthur Meighen are mentioned as possible successors. It is said to be likely, too, that Hon. will resign his place, to be filled by C. H. Doherty, Minister of Justice, the appointment of Hon. T. W. McGarry, now Provincial Secretary in Ontario.

A Riot in U. S. Prison

Twenty-five Convicts Are Killed or Wounded at Joliette

Special to The Examiner:

JOLIETTE, Ill., June 5. — Three companies of the Illinois militia and combined fire and police departments of the City of Joliette are engaged in a desperate fight with 800 convicts in the Joliette state penitentiary.

Five buildings in the interior of the prison are in flames, having been ignited by the infuriated inmates. At noon the fighting appeared to be increasing in fury and the flames not under control. Twenty-five convicts were killed or wounded.

Furniture Sale at the Oriental

The big sale of furniture at the Oriental Hotel opened this afternoon with auctioneer, Mr. John Thornton in charge. There was a large crowd of prospective buyers on hand and the bidding was brisk. All the second hand men in the city were on hand, but the quality of the goods offered was too much for the most of them and the goods invariably went to higher bidders. The crowd would have been better suited had the sale been conducted from a raised platform so as to enable the buyers to see what was being offered. As it was, the auctioneer was hidden from view all the time. A number of prominent citizens viewed the proceedings from the top of one of the counters. The furniture in the rotunda was disposed of first. To-night the contents of the bedrooms will be offered for sale including the beds.

QUICKSAND CREATES TROUBLE IN SEWER WORK

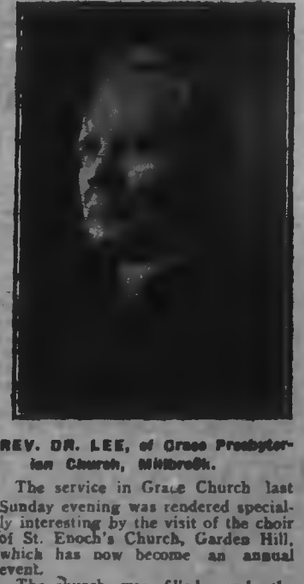
City Engineer Cautioned to Use Every Safeguard in Prince Street Trench

Quicksand in the Prince street sewer now under construction has required special precautions to prevent a repetition of the costly experience on Romaine street, a few years ago. Apparently, all that south end district has a layer of this sand, for it is frequently met with in excavation work.

Mr. Parsons, city engineer, assured the Council that the method he was following would keep the sewer intact and in the line in which it is being laid. Planks are being laid lengthwise under the pipes, and where the planks join, stout cross pieces are being nailed to them. These are the full width of the trench. A shortage of steel piling is limiting the speed at which the work is being done, and the Council instructed Mr. Parsons to buy or borrow light steel piling from Toronto contractors if he could not get it from manufacturers.

Ald. Duncan — Take every precaution in this work. It is going to cost almost as much as the trunk sewer, and there is no use putting it in if we have to take it up again.

Special Service at Garden Hill



REV. DR. LEE, of Grace Presbyterian Church, Middrodk.

The service in Grace Church last Sunday evening was rendered specially interesting by the visit of the choir of St. Enoch's Church, Garden Hill, which has now become an annual event.

The church was filled, and the choir, 17 strong, in their caps and gowns, looked exceedingly well. Their singing showed careful preparation, and the parts blended clearly and harmoniously. Mrs. Dunbar's solo was much appreciated. At the close of the service Dr. Lee expressed the pleasure of all present to the choir for their kindness in coming — and the service appropriately ended with the singing of "Blest be the tie that binds," and the benediction.

Dr. Lee preached from the following subject, "The Message for the Weary," his text being taken from Matt. xi., 28: "Come unto me all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and will give you rest."

If you would succeed in life, learn to know what you can't do.

RUSSIAN MOVEMENTS OF INTEREST

LONDON, June 5.—The authoritative announcement was made late to-day that British Socialists, representing established organizations, would be permitted to attend the Stockholm general conference called by the Russian Socialists for July 8.

(By William C. Shepherd, United Press Staff Correspondent).

PETROGRAD, June 5.—The Workmen's and Soldiers' Council to-day named July 8th as the date for the Russian so-called Stockholm Peace Conference. The formal call for the international meeting summarizes its purpose—"To organize a world union to consider means to end the war and eliminate imperialism."

News that the American Government had refused passports to Socialist delegates to a Stockholm conference caused great disappointment here. President Tscheidze, of the Soldiers' and Workmen's Council, declared he was "disillusioned" by the refusal. Labour troubles are increasing here to-day. A general strike was ordered in all Petrograd factories because of the employers' refusal to accord a six-hour day and equal wages to men and women.

The demands of the miners for a 200 per cent. increase in wages were also made public to-day. The miners received a 90 per cent. increase, granted by the Department of Commerce in March.

Run Down by An Automobile

Meyer Chernikoff, son of A. Cherakoff, the second-hand dealer, George street was slightly injured yesterday afternoon. The little lad who was in his father's car on the west side of George street north of Brock, attempted to cross to his mother, when a south bound automobile, the driver of which it is claimed neglected to blow the horn, ran him down. Dr. Moir was called and found the little boy badly bruised about the head.

Jabots attached to starched collar-bands are high novelties.

Wool jersey is still the favoured material for practical wear.

ROUND STEAK ROAST WITH STUFFING.

Have one and a half pounds of round steak cut about three-eighths of an inch thick. Prepare two cups of bread crumbs or rolled crackers. Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter and stir it in with the bread crumbs, adding pepper, salt, sage, one chopped onion and one whole egg. Pour over enough water to moisten the whole. Work until smooth and then spread over the steak. Begin at one end and roll the steak, fasten the end with skewers or tie around with cord. Place in the roasting pan, cover the meat with stripes of thinly cut suet and put it in the oven. Roast from 20 to 30 minutes. When done, place the roast on a hot dish and garnish with watercress. Prepare a brown sauce with the gravy in the baking pan and serve this in a sauce boat.

Citizens Want Food Control and Sufficient Coal Supply

Big Deputation Filled the Council Chamber Last Night—Mayor Explained Progress of Coal Negotiations and Likelihood of Obtaining the Desired Results.

HITS AT H. C. OF L.

An unexpected deputation of citizens who had held a preliminary meeting on the market square to discuss, generally, the high cost of living and the coal situation filed into the Council Chamber last night until they packed all the benches and overflowed into the hallway. Its object was succinctly announced by Mr. A. Murray of the Co-operative Society who stated that the citizens sought definite information regarding the progress the Council had made in its undertaking to secure a supply of coal. But it was gradually developed that the deputation was deeply concerned with the question of food control and similar perplexities that harass the workingman and his daily wage in these trying times. Finally a motion was passed by the Council and endorsed by the deputation, supporting the resolution of the Chatham Council calling for a large deputation to wait on the Dominion Government to urge (1) the control of foodstuffs, (2) preferential carriage of foodstuffs, and (3) prohibition of the use of foodstuffs in the manufacture of intoxicating beverages.

SURPRISED BUT NOT UNPREPARED.

To say that the Council was surprised by the large body of citizens including a number of women is but mildly describing their feelings. Deputations usually pave the way for their reception by acquainting some of the members with the purposes of their missions. But last night, when the order of business termed "hearing of deputations" was reached, there were only two ratepayers present in a joint petition, but before their case was heard, the citizens' deputation began to file into the hall, and aparently only its limited accommodation halted the procession.

But the Council was neither unready nor unprepared, although in the words of Mr. Jim Runnett, the people want the Council, not only to take up matters, especially investigations of food conditions, but to shake things up. Apparently they desire both new wine and new bottles, too.

WHAT THE COUNCIL HAS DONE

In regard to food supply investigations, Mayor Duffus stated that the Council had taken advantage of its authority to hold an investigation, but for concrete results he believed that this was a matter for the Government to control.

Peterborough has been credited with first place on the list of cities in Ontario that intend to buy coal for distribution among the people. Local dealers had offered no objection, and one of the most reliable men in Toronto had advised the Council to withold its efforts for a short time, expecting the market to come up before the city attempted its purchases.

"We are following that proceeding," said the Mayor, "and we are ready to do all we can. If the people will support us and co-operate with us as they did in the Bridge by-law, I am sure we can accomplish the desired results."

IMPORTANT MEETING TO-MORROW

The Mayor reminded the deputation of to-morrow's meeting of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board here to receive reasons why the city should, as it were, enter the coal business. A copy of the protest from the Coal Section of the Retail Merchants' Association to be submitted to the Board was in the hands of the Council, and the Mayor urged every citizen who could attend the meeting to do so.

GANANOQUE'S PLAN.

Mr. Runnet detailed a plan of co-operative coal buying followed by citizens in Gananoque. Men deposited in one of the banks the price of the coal they required, and when a sum sufficient to buy 300 to 350 tons was collected, the order was given to a Buffalo broker, and "money talks louder than deputations," Mr. Runnet observed. This was a practical method employed in a live town. Moreover the citizens obtain long tons of 2,240 pounds not the short ton of 2,000 pounds.

Mr. Murray reported that the co-operative societies of Ontario towns had advised the local branch to stay out of the coal market until after the war.

PATRIOTIC FUND COAL

The Mayor also reported that steps were under way to secure at least 3,000 tons of coal for the beneficiaries of the Patriotic Fund.

Ald. Langford suggested that some of the Trades and Labour Council might be appointed to act with the Council in planning to handle the coal and other problems.

Several citizens told of the arrival of twenty barges of coal for Montreal recently and twenty-five for Quebec. It was pointed out that the completion of the Trent Canala would greatly assist the people in bringing in supplies, and lowering the prices.

Ald. Weir described the coal conditions as he knew them, and said that he had advised buyers to get their supply wherever they could. He was trying to supply his regular customers.

Mr. Runnet—The people feel that other merchants are holding their coal for the July and August prices.

Ald. Smith expressed the belief that the United States requiring great quantities of coal for her ships would exert an influence on the market that would not be helpful. He showed that it cost $7.00 to lay coal down in Peterborough; $1.75 added for delivery and overhead expenses advanced it to $8.75. He believed it would be easier in price during July and August.

ATTEND THE MEETING.

Ald. Dobbin emphasised the importance of providing evidence at to-morrow morning's meeting of the Railway Board. It should not be hearsay or what appeared in the papers, or what some brothers in Montreal experienced.

Mr. Runnet argued that the reports of coal arrivals in the papers should be reliable; in any case. Ald. Dobbin as an old newspaperman should know. This sally amused the crowd and the Council.

Some of the men stated that they would be glad to attend, but they did not wish to lose their bonus at the C.G.E. Mayor Duffus took a list of names with the intention of asking Mr. Patterson to suspend the rule in this special case.

One man said he did not understand why the local dealers had to be considered, or why they should be asked if they had any objections to the city selling coal.

In answer to this question City Clerk Armstrong read the demur referred to above in which it was claimed that the section under which the city claimed authority to buy and sell was null and void, that it was not shown that the local dealers were unable to secure sufficient coal for local needs, or that they were charging unreasonable prices.

ACTION DEMANDED

Mr. C. E. Adams stated that the citizens desired a petition to be sent to the Premier, requesting an investigation of food conditions for the purpose of securing adequate control and protection against speculators.

The Chatham resolution was then endorsed, but it calls for a big deputation to be sent to Ottawa, a difficulty that may retard, even nullify, last night's work of the citizens who above all things demand action and results, not resolutions and empty words.

Takes Life When Told Girl Would Die from Wound

NEW YORK, June 5.—Parental interference that spoiled the romance of Angelina Mangermiller, fifteen years old, and Antonio Duca, two years her senior, led the girl to shoot and fatally wound herself a month ago. Sunday Antonio killed himself in his home, No. 48 Van Brunt street, Brooklyn, after visiting the girl and learning from physicians at Cumberland Street Hospital that she undoubtedly would die.

Angelina met young Duca six months ago at a church entertainment. He escorted her home and thereafter was a frequent visitor at the house. On April 30 the girl's father ordered him from the house and told him not to return.

Hardly had Antonio reached the door when two pistols shots aroused the neighborhood. From a policeman and the driver of the Cumberland Street Hospital ambulance Antonio learned that the girl had shot herself and probably was fatally wounded.

Every day since then he inquired for news of her condition. Several times, accompanied by Angelina's sister, he was permitted to see her. Yesterday afternoon he made his last visit. A physician, it was said, told him that Angelina was going to die.

He hurried home, obtained a revolver and after locking himself in a room fired two shots into his chest. He was dead when Dr. Reilly arrived from the Long Island College Hospital.

HENRY HOPE CO. ASKS FOR SEWER CONNECTION

Also Sidewalk from Romaine Street to the Factory.

Two notes from Mr. A. L. Young of the Henry Hope Co. were read at the Council meeting last night. One asked for a sidewalk across the C. P. R. as far as the factory; the other for sewerage connection. This was promised back in 1912, and the cess pool now in use is inadequate. Ald. Saunders said that the Romaine street citizens would probably endorse a petition for a sewer, and he undertook to sound them. In the meantime the City Engineer was asked to bring in a report as soon as possible on the best route for connecting with the factory. The sidewalk will also be provided for the Company.

Flesh-colour and white continue to be most liked among the waist colours.

PRESBYTERIAL MEETINGS ARE BEING HELD

Convention Opened in St. Andrew's Church This Morning

The Peterborough Presbyterial Women's Mission Society opened this morning its annual session, which is this year held in St. Andrew's Sunday school.

After the regular religious exercises reports were read from the auxiliaries of the Presbyterial, all of which showed one of the most successful years in the history of the Presbyterial. Reports were also read by members of the Presbyterial who attended the annual Provincial meeting held last month in Kingston.

Miss Dickson was in the chair.

AUTOMOBILES BRUISED EACH OTHER IN SMASH

Collided at the Corner of Hunter and Water Streets.

Two automobiles took the count last night in a collision at the corner of Hunter and Water streets. R. Wilson of Otonabee, a rural route mail carrier, was driving south when he was hit amidships by the car driven by Mr. J. A. Sollitt of 543 Downie street, who was driving west on Hunter street. Mr. Wilson claimed that Sollitt was driving too fast, while the latter alleges that Wilson had not sounded his horn, and he was on the wrong side of he road. The Sollitt car brakes were on tight and it had skidded at least ten yards before bumping into the other. The damage done was apparently evenly balanced, and both cars were taken to the Duffus Garage, groggy and needing repairs.

DOZEN DOG OWNERS TO BE HALED TO COURT

Chief Thompson has issued summons for twelve dog owners who neglected to purchase the necessary licenses.

An Ashburnham woman was fined $2 in Police Court this morning for allowing her dog to run at large, contrary to othe by-law.

Russians Seize Peace Emissary

LONDON, June 5.—A Reuter despatch from Riga says the Russians have detained Lieutenant Rabenek, of the 182nd regiment, who came to the Russian lines with separate peace proposals. German aeroplanes dropped demands for his return before June 5, threatening that otherwise he would be terribly avenged. The Russians replied that Rabenek was regarded as a deserter and had been sent to the interior of Russia.

SAYS WAR BRIDES ARE UNFAITHFUL

HAMILTON, June 4.—Capt. T. F. Best, who returned from the front recently, occupied the pulpit in James Street Baptist Church the other day, and spoke of his experiences at the front. He made the statement that many young women who pledged their love to men who went overseas were unfaithful, and often because engaged to young men at home who earned $5 to $8 a day, compared with Tommy's $1.10 a day.

The men at the front were faithful to their sweethearts as they were to their duty, and were often discouraged by this treatment, he said.

WEDDING BELLS

KELLY—HOGAN.
The wedding was solemnized at the church of the Immaculate Conception this morning of Mr. Hugh Kelly, of Norwood to Miss Annie Hogan, daughter of Mr. Patrick Hogan, Ashburnham. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dean McColl. Mr. Timothy Kelly was best man, while the bride was assisted by Miss Lottie Hogan.

KENNEDY—RHODEHOUSE.
A very quiet wedding took place this morning at 6.45 at George street Methodist parsonage by Rev. Mr. Peever, when Miss Ida May Rhodehouse became the bride of Mr. Charles Kennedy, Campbellford. The bride was assisted by her sister, Miss Eva May Rhodehouse, while Mr. Albert Lumley supported the groom. The bride received many beautiful presents.
The happy couple left on the 7.33 train for points west. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kennedy wil lreside at 535 Downie street on their return.

STEWART—WHITE.
A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ephriam White, "Cedar Grove Farm" Ida, in the Township of Cavan, Durham Co., on May 24th, 1917, when their daughter, Pearl Blanch, was united in marriage to Mr. Percy W. J. Stewart, of Ida, Township of Cavan, Durham County.
At the hour appointed the bride, carrying a sheaf of white roses, and leaning on the arm of her father, entered the artistically decorated drawing room to the strains of a pretty wedding march played by Mrs. J. Richardson of Pontypool. She was neatly attired in a dress of White Crepe de Chine beautifully trimmed and wearing a bridal veil caught up with Orange blossoms.
The bride was presented for marriage by her father. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. T. Wickett, of Fraserville in the presence of about ninety guests.
The Flower Girl was Miss Helen Kennedy of Cavan, cousin of the bride and the ring-bearer was Master Marshall Tinny, a nephew. The Register was signed by Wm. White and Miss Ella A. Stewart.
The presents were valuable and useful attesting to the popularity of the bride. The groom's gift being a substantial cheque, to the flower girl a necklace, to the ring-bearer a pearl handled knife and to the pianist a pair of white kid gloves.
After all had done justice to a substantial repast the bridal party left amid showers of good wishes for Toronto, London and Buffalo. The bride being attired in a suit of Woodland green with hat to match.
On their return they will reside on the Stewart homestead "The Maples" Cavan.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM T. MORROW.
The death took place recently in Aberdeen, Washington of William T. Morrow, a former resident of this district.
The deceased was born in Norwood in 1870 and lived there most of the time, and in Peterborough until he left for Washington about ten years ago. His mother and two brothers live in Darmody, Sask., one sister, Miss Ella Morrow in Moosejaw, Mrs. McFarlane in Regina, and Mrs. Fred Milliken, 307 Burnham street, Ashburnham. Pte. Jack Morrow of the 93rd who was recently wounded in France is a brother.

SIDEWALK HAS SLOPED TO A DANGEROUS ANGLE
The sidewalk at the northwest corner of Aylmer and Edinburg streets was reported to the Council by ex-Ald. W. J. Johnston as exceedingly dangerous. His wife recently fell and broke her arm there. The sidewalk has settled creating a sloping surface. The Board of Works was instructed to remedy it.

IN MEMORIAM.
In loving memory of Harry Sandiford, whom God called away on June 6, 1914. "His memory lingers with us still."
—His Loving Sister, Annie.

Press Comment on Enemies at Home

Pittsburg Post: "Perversity could not be more strikingly illustrated than in the case of some of the aliens who have lent themselves to the treacherous propaganda. They are without the semblance of a reason for their acts. Fleeing here from oppression as half-starved peasants, now, fattened on American prosperity and rioting in liberty, they turn to bite the hand that helped them to rise. They turn against the democracy that has afforded them a haven from oppression to playing the game of autocracy under which they suffered. They are not qualified for liberty—they abuse it. One could hear of the roughest handling of them without feeling much pity. Show them all that the United States means business in this war."

"None the Less Odious."

Norfolk Virginian-Pilot: "Obstruction by speech or act of measures to supply the country with ample means of defence and offence in a conflict already begun is nothing sort of giving aid and comfort to the enemy and as such constitutes treason, none the less odious because marked by a pretence of hastening the dawn of peace."

"Playing wih Fire."

Chicago Herald: "Malignant agitators, hairbrained cranks and all the tribe that hates to let slip a chance of getting into the limelight ad tasting the joys of cheap publicity and easy martyrdom had better restrain their tendencies on June 5. They will be playing with fire. It is a serious business that the nation is called on to perform on that day, and anybody who directly or indirectly tries to interfere is going to regret it."

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "The only attitude for an American to take today is one that upholds the hands of the government in its prosecution of the war against Germany, strengthens every agent that can be used to that end, which accepts the will of the majority as supreme, and lets no pre-conceived notions as to the supreme requirement of the hour."

BRITAIN TO MAKE FORMAL DECLARATION OF WAR AIMS

ENEMY RUSHES UNTRAINED MEN TO WESTERN FRONT

Youths Intended To Form Hindenburg's Next Army Are Already in the Trenches — Bombing of Trains and Rest Billets Is Having Demoralizing Effect on Enemy.

RATIONS ARE INSUFFICIENT

CANADIAN HEADQUARTERS, June 6.—From information that has come through it has been established beyond doubt that the new enemy formations now in training in Germany, and which were intended to supply Von Hindenburg with his next army, are being brought up to supply the sorely-needed reinforcements. A single division has recently been strengthened by the addition of a considerable number of these young lads of nineteen years. Their training is insufficient, although their morale appears good and they are physically fit. Among the older troops who have been at the front for a considerable time the war weariness is spreading, aided greatly by the incessant pounding of the British guns and the deadly nature of the gas, to which they are now so frequently subjected.

FAITH IN U-BOAT DYING.

Faith in the U-boats as a means to victory is dying out, and as it dies the morale of the men is lowering. They fight because they must; but many, perhaps the majority, would welcome peace at any price. Discipline holds this discontent within bounds, but it is significant that many prisoners express pleasure that they have been captured.

As the man power fails Germany is turning more and more to war's machinery to make good the loss in fighting strength. There has been an increase in the supply of the machine guns.

It would appear that it is the intention hereafter to equip each company with more light machine guns in addition to the heavier machine guns of the machine gun companies. Reliance on the individual rifle fire of the soldier is very slight. If the war is much prolonged the Germans will reply in the final defensive on machine guns. These will be carefully placed wherever a protective spray of lead from well handled machine guns would be more dangerous for troops to move through than even intense artillery barrages, although not so terrifying.

RATIONS ARE POOR.

The rations of the German troops in the field are barely sufficient to keep them in good condition. Letters found recently indicate that from these scanty rations soldiers here and there have been sending some food home to their families.

One of the most demoralizing experiences to which the German in the field is now subjected is the bombing of the trains in which he travels and the places in which his rest billets are located.

As our aerial supremacy becomes more secure, the zone in which this nerve-racking form of warfare is carried on is extended. The bombs cause widespread destruction. In the operations two nights ago two trains were wrecked during the raid, one of which is believed to have been crowded with troops. To these raids the enemy makes reply in the same kind, but his facilities for this form of warfare the manifestly less than those of the allied armies, and the men behind the lines still sleep soundly and without apprehension of any fearful awakening.

War Dog Home After Doing His "Bit" in France

NEW YORK.—With his left eye gone and a nervousness born of shell shock, Jupiter, a Scotch collie who went across the seas and "did his bit" with a Yorkshire regiment on the French front, has come back home to spend the rest of his days in honourable retirement at Port Washington, L. I.

Jupiter belongs to Hubert Ralston, an English leather manufacturer, who divides his time between New York and London. Mr. Ralston bought him in a dog shop here five years ago because he was such a handsome puppy, with his clean, tawny hide and white marked muzzle. When the war broke out, Mr. Ralston was in London and with him was Jupiter.

The dog became the pet of a regiment in training at Salisbury, and when they were ordered to France, Mr. Ralston heeded the appeals of the "Tommies" and let them take Jupiter along as a mascot. In the early days of the last spring drive Jupiter was in an advanced position with his friends, and when they charged the front line German trench he went with them, raising his belligerent voice against tht rain of shells and musketry fire that fell about him. A bit of shrapnel gouged out his eye, and another bit buried itself in his chest. A "Tommie," coming back wounded helped Jupiter to safety.

The dog's front legs were paralysed, but under the ministrations of admirers at the home of an officer in Manchester Jupiter recovered and now he's a well dog, save for the lack of an eye, and a nervousness that his owner hopes will wear off in the quiet of Port Washington.

Some men go to the front and engage in battle and others get married and do their fighting at home.

When a man goes fishing he may not catch a long string but he is sure to come home with a long yarn.

TRADING LIGHT IN THE GRAIN MARKET

Cash Wheat Is Strong — Activity In Oats — The Cattle Market

With Chicago eliminated on account of yesterday being Registration Day in the States, there was very little trading going on in the wheat options, only one or two quotations appearing in the Winnipeg board, so far as wheat was concerned, though there appeared to be some activity in oats. Cash wheat, however, is strong on the Manitobas, dealers quoting $2.80 for No. 1 northern at lake ports, or 5c above Monday's quotation. Flours steady.

Ontario oats—No. 2 white, not quoted.

Ontario wheat — No. 2 winter, per car lots, $2.50 to $2.55; No. 3 winter, $2.48 to $2.53, according to freight outside.

Peas—No. 2, nominal.

Barley—Good malting, nominal.

Buckwheat—Nominal.

Rye—No. 2, $1.95.

Manitoba flour — First patents, in jute bags, $13; second patents, $12.50; strong bakers, $12.10.

Ontario Flour—Winter, according to sample, $11 to $11.10, track, Toronto, prompt shipments.

Mill feed — Car lots, delivered, Montreal, shorts, $41; bran, $35; feed flour, per bag, $2.70 to $2.60; middlings, $15.

Hay—Baled, track, Toronto, car lots, No. 2, $13 to $14; mixed, $9 to $11.50; straw, $9.

Cattle Market.

Union Stock Yards — Receipts 49 cars, with 523 cattle, 230 calves, 1,336 hogs and 68 sheep and lambs.

Market is weak and trade slow. Heavy cattle are off 50c to 60c from last week's average. Choice handy butcher cattle held about steady yesterday at Monday's decline of about 30 cents.

Calves, steady to strong.

Sheep trade had and prices lower.

Hogs lower at $16, fed and watered.

Black As Dirt About the Eyes

Toronto, Ont., June 6.—So many people suffer from derangements of the liver that we feel sure these two reports, just recently received, will prove interesting reading and valuable information to many readers of this paper.

Mrs. F. L. Harris, Keatley P.O., Sask., writes: "I was suffering from liver trouble—had a heavy pain under one shoulder blade all the time, and was nearly as black as dirt around the eyes, so I concluded to try some of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I did so, and before I had taken one 25c box the pain had left me and I commenced to gain in flesh, and by the time I had taken two boxes I was completely cured and felt like a new person. My trouble was caused by heavy work out-of-doors, and, of course, heavy eating and constipation. I would advise anyone suffering from kidney or liver trouble to give Dr. Chase's Pills a trial."

Mrs. Charles Terry, Tweed, Ont., writes: "Before I was married I was troubled with enlargement of the liver. My liver became so enlarged that you could detect the swellings on either side, and it was only with difficulty that I could get my clothes on. A friend advised me to get Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and take them. I commenced this treatment and used nine boxes, which cured me at that time. Then, about two or three years afterward I was troubled again with the swelling, but only on my right side. I secured some more Kidney-Liver Pills, and took them, which finally cured me. I have not been troubled in this way since. I can cheerfully recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to anyone having kidney or liver trouble.

"We have also found Dr. Chase's Linseed and Turpentine excellent for coughs and colds. In fact, any of Dr. Chase's medicines which we have used have been good."

LLOYD-GEORGE TO OUTLINE NATIONS' WAR AIMS

Will Make a Formal Statement of Britain's Interpretation of Phrase "Restitution, Reparation and Guarantees"

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, June 6.—Premier Lloyd George will shortly make a formal statement of England's interpretation of the phrase, "Restitution, reparation and guarantees," so that the world in general, and Russia in particular, may know exactly what the nation's aims are. The Liberal press was strongly urging such an outline to-day, and authoritative information was that it had been decided upon by the government.

A WEAK HEART.

When the heart is weak or irregular in action, when the blood is thin and watery remember the blood forming qualities of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and by so doing flood the system with rich, red vitalizing blood. This is nature's way of curing weakness and disease. It is the only way to ensure lasting benefits.

Many Tongues in Mesopotamia Hamper British

MIXED LANGUAGES MAKE INTERPRETERS NECESSARY TO ENGLISH ARMY.

BASRAH, Mesopotamia. — The difficulties which the ancient builders of the Tower of Babel experienced with the language question may be easily understood by any one who has spent a little time in Basrah. Not the least of the many problems presented for solution to the British authorities in their operations against the Turks has been this same problem which the contractors for the old tower wrestled with many centuries ago.

The dialects in common use at Basrah are said to be over forty in number. The most popular is Arabic, but it is not the Arabic of Egypt or Morocco; it is a distinct tongue, with which the Egyptians or Moroccan experiences the greatest difficulty.

Then there is Persian, with variations known as Bagdad Persian, Nejd Persian and Basrah Persian. Turkish is frequently heard, while Armenian and Chaldean are the languages of the native Christian population.

Kurdish is used by another section of the inhabitants, while Hindustani is the language of the Indian troops forming part of the British forces.

It is obvious that in such a situation hundreds of interpreters are required. A small force of them is attached to every force and almost every officer. Some of them were obtained in Egypt, some from India, others from Aden, and the remainder were recruited locally.

Those from India have in most cases acquired their knowledge of Arabic and Persian from classical works, with the result that their high flown, archaic conversations sound amusing when applied to everyday affairs.

ITALY'S PUSH ALREADY COST AUSTRIA 300,000

Four Divisions Were Wiped Out in Vain Counter Attacks One Day.

BRITISH GUNS HELP.

Vast Losses are Telling on Army's Morale, Say Exhausted Prisoners.

ROME, June 1. —Italy's great offensive has already cost the Austrians 300,000 in killed, wounded and missing, according to conservative estimates to-day.

The Italians are now consolidating, reinforcing their lines with new troops and refortifying positions, but continue to inflict frightful losses on the enemy by repelling counter-attacks. From official sources the following instances were obtained to-day, illustrating the tremendous losses of the enemy's forces.

Four Divisions Wiped Out.

On May 19, four divisions (approximately 60,000 troops), which vainly defended positions at Auzza and Frigido, were practically wiped out. On the next day two desperate attempts to recapture Allingortmont positions in the Vodice sector and around Massil cost the Austrians at least three full regiments (nearly 15,000 men).

Front despatches to-day declared these vast losses and the incessant pounding of Italian and British guns has achieved a telling effect on the enemy. Prisoners told of exhausted regiments and loss of morale.

Bohemia is Depressed.

Gen. Cadorna called a halt in his advance to-day to permit bringing up of new supplies and preparation for further attacks. It was stated that the Italians now hope to take Trieste with the smallest amount of destruction possible to that historic city. The guns of allied warships in the gulf will not be directed on the city if it is possible to avoid it. Trieste's occupation is now considered only a question of weeks.

Reports received to-day declared that the continued Italian success had created vast depression in Bohemia, where there have been numerous food riots and demonstrations against the dual monarchy's grip.

WHEN YOU CAN'T SLEEP

YOU SHOULD USE MILBURN'S HEART and NERVE PILLS

Sleeplessness is caused by the nervous system becoming deranged.

Perhaps too much worry has gotten on your nerves, perhaps you have overworked yourself, or have been excessive in your use of tobacco, but whatever the cause, the nervous system must be built up again before restful sleep can be assured.

Those whose rest is broken into by frightful dreams, nightmares, sinking and smothering sensations, who wake up in the morning as tired as they went to bed can have their old, peaceful, undisturbed, refreshing sleep back again by using Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. John Sloan, Haley Station, Ont., writes: "Over a year ago I was very nervous. I could not sleep at night, and I would faint at the slightest fright. I tried several doctors, but they did me practically no good. I noticed your advertisement, and immediately tried Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and I am proud to say they cured me."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c a box or three for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

ATTRACTIVE DINING CAR SERVICE.

YOU SHOULD USE MILBURN'S HEART and NERVE PILLS

Perhaps too much worry has gotten on your nerves, perhaps you have overworked yourself, or have been excessive in your use of tobacco, but whatever the cause, the nervous system must be built up again before restful sleep can be assured.

Those whose rest is broken into by frightful dreams, nightmares, sinking and smothering sensations, who wake up in the morning as tired as they went to bed can have their old, peaceful, undisturbed, refreshing sleep back again by using Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. John Sloan, Haley Station, Ont., writes: "Over a year ago I was very nervous. I could not sleep at night, and I would faint at the slightest fright. I tried several doctors, but they did me practically no good. I noticed your advertisement, and immediately tried Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and I am proud to say they cured me."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c a box or three for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

BATTLE STORIES FROM WEST FRONT

Behind the fighting line, Hindenburg's patent movable front that only moves one way, there are scenes of antlike activity, in what was, a few days ago, No Man's Land. As each portion of the "flexible" line is driven back and held until the rebound is knocked out of it, the guns, the pioneers, the transport and all the auxiliary services pour over the redeemed land in swarms, settling a gun here, repairing a road there, creating a dump at that place, tidying up and solidifying the ground, but always prepared for the next drive forward.

"I saw a tank that had been laid out" said a Private in a Home County Regiment. "We were crossing over the old German ground, going up after a bit of a rest. It was funny to see the men swarming round the big thing, getting it into repair. It reminded me of a picture we used to have in our reading book at school, about Gulliver lying asleep and the Lilliputians tying him up with threads. There was no thread about the tank, but the look of the thing was the same. It looked more like a great big, friendly toad than a machine. It gave you a queer sensation to see the men crowding round it—after seeing the way the Germans squeal and yell when one turns up near them."

"What with the noise and the tanks, and the aeroplanes buzzing along quite low down, spraying out hand grenades and machine gun strings, we had plenty to watch. All we had to do was to work to a schedule and reach our objective in a given time. But one day we were out beyond the cover of our artillery and the machine guns held us up until a tank came along," said a Sergeant.

"Some of the tanks were done in. It was awful going for them, and some were hit by shell-fire, but there are plenty to spare and more coming. Even if they do get put out after a bit of fighting they are worth a couple of divisions while they are there because of the lives they save. Fritz throws all his stuff at the tanks; he can't forget them; they give his gunners bad dreams at night. My advice is never to get near the tanks for they are fair magnets for shell and every kind of fire, but left to their own sweet way they are prime. The one we had with us was like a performing seal; it lumbered and wallowed and rolled about, and it went through a nasty bit of stuff for us like a dog nosing after a scent it had lost. Fair flattened out the place it did, and left a track like a cyclone."

"I saw one queer thing there" said a man of the Middlesex regiment. "We were part of a clearing-up crowd and were the third wave of an attack. It's a grand job that, you get good little scraps of trouble and more souvenirs than you can carry. I was going along with my Sergeant and you could hardly see the line for shell-holes, when I saw a bayonet sticking through the earth and waggling about. "Someone's buried here," said the Sergeant, and gave the rifle a pull. We opened out the hole a bit and found it was the [illegible] of a dugout, but the man who had been waggling the bayonet had gone back down the hole when he heard us talking English. It was like ratting, but he wouldn't come out. The Sergeant sent back for one of Hindenburg's Fourpenny Smokes—that's a kind of smoke bomb we use for cleaning out dug-outs, and we dropped it in and stood ready. The first man out came straight for me with his bayonet, but I put paid to him with my spade. We got eight out of that hole, one with a helmet, too. Souvenirs are all very well if you can get away with them; as it was I stopped a bit of bomb before I'd collected much.

A Canadian gave an interesting account of flying and expressed the conviction that our airmen have got the Boches "stone cold."

"I've hardly seen a Fritz bird for weeks. If you do see one it's only for a minute, and it's off before it has been able to see or do anything. With our airmen it's quite a different thing. They fly low over the German lines and let off their machine guns and drop bombs on the Fritz trenches. It doesn't matter what the weather is like; if it's blowing half a gale, they're out just the same; if it's misty, they fly all the lower."

"I see that some guy or other has been talking about our air losses. If he could get up into the front line for a day or two he would be put wise in no time. Suppose you and I went out shooting each other's tame ducks and you had twenty running around and I had a couple, who would collar the most? I don't think we lose more than the Fritzs, but with the everlasting flock of machines we have in the air, over there, the wonder is we don't lose a lot more. But our airmen can get the drop on the Fritzes every time; if they go behind the Boche lines twenty times for every time the Heineys come over ours, they're bound to have a loss sometime.

An Australian machine-gunner who had taken part in an attack on three heavily fortified and strongly held villages, expressed his admiration of the work of the patrols of native Indian troops.

"They are fine fellows," he said. "Nothing daunts them and they are as proud as hell to be in the hottest part of the fighting. We mostly know something about horses ourselves, and they are first rate in the saddle. They keep their mounts and equipment turned out as if on parade. Just wait until they get at the Willies and have half a chance to use those long spears of theirs. I reckon you will hear squeals of 'Merci, Kamerad'! from Lille to Arras."

King Bestows Bravery Medal on War Writer

ITALIAN CAUGHT IN A BATTLE LEADS TROOPS ON TO VICTORY.

ROME. — To Achilles Benedetti, war correspondent of the Roman Giornale d'Italia, belongs the honour of having won a war medal though not under arms.

The king in conferring upon him the Silver Medal for Valour, wrote that it was for "having voluntarily taken part in two severe engagements in the first line trenches with a regiment of infantry during the actions of Nova Vas and Hudi Lug"; that "while the enemy's artillery fire was raging, he incited by his example and cheering words the soldiers left leaderless, to advance, giving a splendid example of courage, coolness and devotion."

The battles in which Benedetti so distinguished himself were on Oct. 10 and Nov. 1, 1916.

He was in the first line trenches getting a "story" when the fierce artillery attacks of the Austrians were directed against the soldiers with whom he was chatting.

They were infantry, and before the Italian artillery could cover them their officers were killed. Benedetti at once assumed command and led them on, thus saving the positions.

Though many journalists have been decorated for conduct in the field, Benedetti is the first to have won a war medal while on his professional duties.

Benedetti received his decoration at the press bureau at General Cadorna's headquarters. Present at the simple ceremony were the press bureau officials, Colonel Del Bono who commands the regiment with which Benedetti fought, and Martini, the futurist painter, now almost recovered from severe wounds.

FARMING WITH VENGEANCE

There is a considerable movement in Palmerston to increase food production. One citizen has started an intensive plan. He knocks the ends out of barrels, sets them upright, plants three cuts of potatoes at the bottom, covers them with eight or ten inches of good earth, then three sets of spuds again, covering them likewise until he has three or four layers in the barrel. He claims the shoots will penetrate to the top, the bugs are easier subdued, and expects to harvest a big supply in each barrel of good sized potatoes, with, of course, a little earth left.

Natural colored shantungs and pongees are very important.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

DECLINED WITH THANKS

By C. J. BURKE

"Miss Cecil Travers—Mr. Philip Saunders."

Some benevolent individual introduced them at the Pen and Pencil club. Saunders afterward spoke of him as "the hand of fate." But then he was under the sway of the blind god and so unresponsible for either his remarks or his eyesight.

It was certainly a case of love at first sight—on the part of Saunders. When he looked down into the dark eyes raised so frankly to his own, he gave up his heart unconditionally. In all his thirty-five years nothing had sent the blood rushing so riotously through his veins as the firm, warm clasp of her hand.

But he was a quiet, self controlled fellow, with a composure born of years of struggle up the uncertain literary ladder. So he did not hold the little hand a second longer than politeness demanded. There was no trace of eagerness in his manner as he sat down on the divan beside her and began to talk as few men and fewer women had heard him talk—brilliantly, with flashes of wit and sarcasm relieving the underlying earnestness of thought.

Cecil Travers was quite unconscious of the metamorphosis she was producing. She only thought that this big, blond man was not nearly as unapproachable as he looked. He was really charming. And, what was the more remarkable, he did not talk about himself.

The girl found this an unusual experience. As reader for one of the magazines and writer of short stories, she had met many men of many minds. "Yet," as she said pathetically to herself, "the minds always seem to turn inward. How can they write about the world around them when they are so absorbed in self?"

Her wonder grew when she discovered that he, too, was an author. She remembered now seeing his name signed to several clever sketches. He had never tried any with the Symposium. As he talked the desire to read some of his stories became overmastering.

"Why don't you send something to me at the Symposium?" she asked at length frankly.

He flushed up to the roots of his hair as he said hesitatingly, "I have been busy about something else, but I will—some time."

It was his first trace of awkwardness. Cecil could not know that the "something else" was the novel which was the work of many months and which was even then seeking a publisher. Not even to her dared he trust himself to speak of this child of his hopes. If the world gave it a welcome, ah, then! His thoughts were busy weaving a beautiful day dream, and its central figure was this dark eyed girl who was almost a stranger to him.

He awoke to realities with a start. Miss Travers, puzzled at his silence, had risen and was holding out her hand in goodby.

"You will come to see me some time, will you not, Mr. Saunders?" she asked with the frank smile that was her especial charm. "I have enjoyed my talk with you so very much that I would like to repeat it. I am always at home on Tuesdays and Thursdays."

Her tone was so cordial that he blushed and stammered over his thanks. He called himself a fool a minute afterward when he found himself standing stupidly staring at the doorway through which she had disappeared. But that did not prevent his going home in a strangely excited and exhilarated mood. The glamour of his day dream seemed still around him. And she, the lady of his dream—he loved her.

He whispered it to himself as he strode across the park, half fearful that the flickering lamps and the swaying branches might guess his secret, but in the silence of his room he said it boldly and the confident ring of the words seemed to echo the mad beating of his heart.

It was inevitable that the next Thursday night should find him in the parlor of Miss Travers' flat. It was equally inevitable that he should bend all his energies to hide his love from the smiling eyes of this girl, who treated him with an air of bon camaraderie fatal to sentiment.

It is doubtful whether even encouragement would have wrung the secret from his lips. The first joy of loving was past and in its place had come a dopd of self distrust, of self depreciation. To his tortured mind an unbridgeable gulf of training and traditions seemed to sweep between them. She had been the petted child of rich parents, on whom had been lavished the gifts of a college education and years of foreign travel. This attempt at independence and self support had been treated as her latest whim and humored accordingly. He had scrambled from a common school education into the pitfalls that beset the path of a newspaper reporter. Every upward step had been bought at the price of hard work. It was but a short time since the problem of meeting his board bill had been an all important one.

That was the first of many calls, but the succeeding visits, while they strengthened his love, gave no courage for its declaration.

At last in his desperation a plan dawned upon him by which he might learn his fate and yet spare her the pain of a refusal. She had asked him to submit a story to the Symposium. He would send her one embodying his love and its hopelessness and offering two sequels for the choice of the reader. In the one the lover should boldly set aside the barriers of position and woo and win his ladylove. In the other he should patiently bow to the inevitable and devote his life to the uncertain happiness of literary success.

He beat himself feverishly to the task. For several weeks he had not dared to trust himself to call upon her. She would understand the reason why when she read the story he addressed with a trembling hand.

A day went by, another, a week. Saunders could not work; he could not sleep. He haunted the park and the streets where he had sometimes met her, hopeful yet fearful of meeting her again and reading in her face his answer.

At length, when ten days had passed and suspense had become almost unendurable, the postman left a bulky envelope in his letter box.

It was his story, and as he unfolded it a typewritten slip fluttered to the floor. He picked it up mechanically. It was the usual rejection slip, curt and businesslike, without an added line to soften the blow.

It might have been minutes, it might have been hours, that he sat there staring at the scrap of paper. Then, with a groan, he buried his face in his arms, as if to shut out the words. His castle in Spain had fallen down about his ears, and he sat among the ruins.

The sun was setting when he rose brusquely and went out into the air to walk and walk in the hope that physical weariness might stifle his suffering. The coolness of night brought a dogged courage to blot out the past, with its day dreams, and turn to the future.

But it was weary work. The end of the week found him so worn and haggard his friends declared he was overworked and advised rest and change. Your novel is making such a success you can afford to do it," they urged.

He only smiled bitterly and shook his head. It seemed such cruel mockery to think that the success of his cherished novel should bring him no happiness.

He was listlessly sorting his mail one morning when his eye fell upon a tiny blue envelope which had been hidden by the others. His heart seemed to leap into his throat, for he recognized the hand. He read:

Dear Mr. Saunders—It is so long since I have seen you that I am pining for one of our chats. To be sure, I have just come back from my three weeks' vacation, but then you had not been to see me for ever so long before that. Is there anything the matter? Come up tonight and perhaps I can explain. Yours sincerely,
CECIL TRAVERS.

Again Mr. Saunders sat staring at a piece of paper, but this time it was the shock of sudden joy. She had never seen his story. It had been turned down by her deputy reader.

He made most of the explanations that evening, but Miss Travers did not seem to mind.

The Woman's Medicine, Good for All Ages. Mrs. Harold Smith's Experience.

Clarksburg, W. Va.—"I am writing to tell you the good your medicine has always done me and I hope my letter may be the means of helping some other suffering women. When I was 16 years old I caught cold and had suppression for two months. I got so weak I could scarcely drag myself up the stairs. I went to two doctors, then my mother got a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I took it. I never had any more trouble and got strong fast. Then I took it again before my little girl was born and it helped me a good deal and I give the Compound the credit for it. Then this spring I felt very badly again, but I took the Compound and have been well all summer. I cannot be grateful enough for your medicine." — Mrs. HAROLD M. SMITH, 470 Water Street, Clarksburg, W. Va.

For forty years it has been making women strong and well, and curing backache, nervousness, uterine and ovarian inflammation, weakness, displacements, irregularity and periodic pains.

How "Oliver Twist" Was Created.

Even the highest genius must sometimes borrow, or at least appropriate, the hints of others. Few, however, could make so fine use of a hint as Dickens could.

The true story of the origin of "Oliver Twist" is not generally known. It is this: After the amazing success of the "Pickwick Papers" Dickens was thinking of following it up by a story of London life, with which he was more familiar than with English country life.

Just about that time he happened to visit the studio of George Cruikshank and was shown some drawings the latter had made illustrating the career of a London thief.

There was a sketch of Fagin's den, with the Artful Dodger and Master Charley Bates, pictures of Bill Sikes and his dog and Nancy Sikes and lastly Fagin in the condemned cell. Dickens was much struck by the power of these character sketches, and the result was that he changed the whole plot of "Oliver Twist." Instead of taking him through spiritless adventures in the country he introduced him into the thieves' den in London, showed up their life of sin, but brought his hero through pure and undefiled.

Thus it will be seen that George Cruikshank, not Charles Dickens, was the originator of the leading character that appear in "Oliver Twist."

A YEAR INDOORS.

"For thirteen months I was so bad with chronic indigestion that I could not go out of doors. Nerves were unstrung, the heart had and smothering feelings came on till I thought that I would choke. Doctors' treatment failed me so I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which I thank for my present good health. I am now doing my housework and have a family of ten."

How to Tell an Oyster's Age.

The oyster at the commencement of its career is so small that 2,000,000 would only occupy a square inch. In six months each individual oyster is large enough to cover a silver half dollar. The oyster is its own architect, and the shell grows as the fish inside grows, being never too small.

It also bears its age upon its back, and it is as easy to tell the age of an oyster by looking at its shell as it is that of horses by looking at their teeth.

Every one who has handled an oyster shell must have noticed the successive layers overlapping each other. These are technically named shots, and each one marks a year's growth, so that by counting them the age of the oyster can be determined. Up to the time of its maturity—that is, when four years of age—the shots are regular and successive, but after that time they become irregular and are piled one upon another, so that the shell becomes bulky and thickened.

Fossil oysters have been seen of which each shell was nine inches thick, whence they may be guessed to be more than 900 years old.

Knew of One.

"Another fellow and I have agreed to leave a certain matter to you. Is there such a thing as a stream without any banks?"

"Oh, yes; there's the gulf stream."

"Er—so there is! Thanks!"

But as he slumped heavily out, with his jaw hanging down, he left the impression in the mind of the answers to correspondents man that he had lost a bet.—Chicago News.

DYSPEPSIA

MOST DIFFICULT TO CURE BUT B. B. B. DOES IT

Dyspepsia is one of the most difficult diseases of the stomach there is to cure.

You eat too much; drink too much; make the stomach work overtime. You make it perform more than it should be called on to do. The natural result is that it is going to rebel against the amount of work put on it. It is only a matter of time before dyspepsia follows.

That forty-year-old remedy, Burdock Blood Bitters, will cure the dyspepsia, and will cure it to stay cured as we can prove by the thousands of testimonials we receive from time to time.

Mr. Neil A. Cameron, Kiltarlity, N. S., writes: "I am writing you a few lines to tell you what your great medicine Burdock Blood Bitters has done for me. I was troubled very much with dyspepsia for the past two years. I was recommended all kinds of medicines, but they did not help me any. At last a friend advised me to try a bottle of B.B.B. I took four bottles and was totally cured. I will gladly recommend it to all sufferers."

ORIENTAL COURTESY.

An Ameer's Nice Choice of Words in Speaking of a Fall.

A good horseman may be thrown from his horse, under some circumstances, with little or no reflection upon his skill. The accident may have been excusable, even inevitable, when all the details are known; but as casually related the excuses frequently disappear, and the fall, with its ignominious suggestion of incompetency, alone remains. Lady St. Helier, in telling of the deep admiration and regard entertained by the Ameer of Afghanistan for Lord Kitchener, gives a little anecdote of the potentate's instant perception and avoidance of the possibility of any humiliating implication for his friend.

Lord Kitchener had suffered a severe accident that resulted in a leg so badly broken as to necessitate several weeks' complete rest at the time, and later, two months' furlough in England, and a resetting of the bone. One of Kitchener's staff gave the news of his misfortune to the ameer during a great tiger hunt at Gwalior.

"I told him," the officer wrote Lady St. Helier, "that the chief had a nasty fall at Peona, his horse tumbling down [illegible]. He [illegible] and sent for a piece of paper and wrote a telegram of sympathy in Persian. He handed it to Sir Henry McMahon and asked him to send it off immediately. Sir Henry wrote it down in English, but when he came to the words 'to hear of your fall from your horse,' the ameer instantly corrected him, saying: 'No, no! Not from your horse—from your horse; in Afghanistan—big elephant!'"

Flight of the Spirit.

A case recorded by Plutarch would seem to support the theory that during periods of protracted insensibility the spirit of the sleeper, freed from the body, wanders away to realms and scenes not conceivable by the ordinary senses. A man named Thespius, he tells us, fell from a great height and was picked up to all appearances dead. There were no external wounds about him, but the physicians were satisfied of the fact of the decease.

Arrangements were made for his burial, but on the third day after his fall he revived, much to the consternation of his friends. In a short time it became quite evident that the whole tenor of the man's life had changed. Previously his character was that of a reprobate and a vicious man, but after his insensibility he ever followed after virtue. On being asked the reason of the change, Thespius replied that during his long sleep his spirit had been liberated from his body and had soared away to a strange land, where it had joined a whole company of other spirits.

His past life was disclosed to him in all its hideousness, and the glorious capabilities which were before him were revealed in such a manner as to make him ambitious of attaining them.

Throne Jewels.

In the "gold pantry" at Windsor castle, one of England's chief royal palaces, is the gold tiger's head taken from Tippo Sahib's throne in 1799. It is life size, and the teeth and eyes are of rock crystal. Another relic captured at the same time is the jeweled bird called the nana, shaped like a pigeon, with a peacock tail. The feathers bloom with rainbow stones, and a great emerald hangs from its breast. According to an old Indian legend, whoever owns this bird will rule India.

Some Odd Spellings.

Americans, says the London News, employ the word "Britisher," which they invented, in a contemptuous sense. It was a certain Philadelphia wit who is said to have asked his friends what a "Britisher" would mean to convey by the written word "ghoughphthleightteau." He had to explain to them that, according to the genius of the English language, it meant "potato." Thus: Gh—p, as in "hiccough;" ough—o, as in "dough;" phth—t, as in "phthisis;" eigh—a, as in "neighbor;" tte—t, as in "gazette," and eau—o, as in "beau." This was at least as puzzling as the livery stable keeper's bill which contained the two items:

Aoaafqda
Atacinonimoongtu.

Nobody who does not "know the answer" has ever yet arrived at the solution, which is, in the vernacular of the creditor himself, "A 'oss 'alf a day" and "A-takin' on 'im 'ome ag'in."

Tattler.

"You didn't tell me, Bobbie, you were in a fight."

"No, sir. I knew you'd hear about it from that boy's father. That's the kind of a boy he is."—Life.

A part of your friends condemn you, others praise you; approach the condemning and keep aloof from the slanderers.—Talmud.

Exercise Promoter.

"You say my husband needs exercise, but he won't take any, and I don't know how to make him," said a woman plaintively. "Is there any way in which we can force him to exercise?"

"Did you ever try on windy days making him wear a hat that will be sure to blow off?" asked the doctor.—Buffalo Express.

Oh, That's Different.

"Who was that chap who just said 'Hello!' to you?"

"That's the man who does most of my bill collecting."

"He wasn't very respectful, considering that you are his boss."

"Who said I was his boss? That fellow is employed by my creditors."—Exchange.

Two Ways To Acquire An Estate

1—By saving, stinting, sacrificing; fighting the world at every turn, battling the blows of business competition; running the risk of fire, theft, embezzlement and misfortune; skimping your family and yourself may be and standing only one chance in twenty of reaching Old Age without being dependent upon others for support.

2—By securing a Life Insurance Policy—A Policy which guarantees to pay your Beneficiary at your death, either a definite lump sum or an income every month as long as she lives—an income that is fixed, certain, regular, inalienable, unassailable, untaxable, and which cannot be lost, sold, dissipated, squandered, or mortgaged.

Which is the EASIER and MORE SENSIBLE Way to Acquire an Estate?

Two Ways To Bequeath An Estate

1—By Testamentary Document: Requires an Executor. Must go through legal red tape of Court. Requires Court costs. May require months or years to settle. This kind of Will can be broken or set aside. Property is subject to attachment for debts of the Deceased.

2—By Life Insurance (when the Beneficiary is named): Requires no executor or administrator — you are your own executor, your own administrator. No need of Court proceedings—no expense of Court costs. Does not require time to settle. This is a Will direct which no lawyer can break nor Court set aside. Policy is not subject to attachment for debts of the Deceased.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S DRESS.
By Anabel Worthington.

Among other late arrivals, this model was offered to convince fashion followers that the frock with a basque waist is making its way in the world.

To make it truly "basque" three plaits are introduced at the underarm edge of each front, with decided effect. A three-gore gathered skirt is joined at normal waistline and a narrow ribbon girdle goes a long way to prove that it is a style feature of importance. The side tabs, heavily embroidered, are details that may be omitted, although they show novelty.

To give the waist its charm the V neck is collared with contrasting goods and the deep cuffs are outlined with braid so as to be in harmonising tone.

This frock will bring gratifying comment if developed in serge, satin, broadcloth, duvetyn, wool poplin or similar fabric. At the present cost of materials, the wise woman will make such a dress, since the pattern covers every step of the development in pictures.

The dress pattern No. 8,115 cuts in sizes 34 to 42. To make in size 36 requires 4¼ yards 36 inch material, 2¼ yards ribbon, ½ yard 36 inch contrasting goods and 10 yards soutache braid.

To obtain the pattern send 20 cents to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.
Price 15 cents, or 6 for 25 cents.
Address—The Examiner Pattern Service, The Examiner, Peterborough.

PUBLIC OPINION

THE BOOMERANG.

(Boston Herald.)

Those U-boats that were to bring Great Britain to her knees have brought Uncle Sam to his feet.

HOW THE JAPS DO IT.

The highest salaried man in Japan does not receive enough money in that form to pay for gasoline used by his automobile, for salaries of the managers of business corporations are insignificantly small, says the Japan Times. Salaries, however, are not the total income of business men. Under the Japanese custom there is a liberal bonus system, and the bonus amounts to 300 or 400 times the monthly salary in some cases. The Mitsui company is regarded as the biggest corporation in Japan, and its directors are noted for their large incomes. Each director is said to receive in the form of a bonus about $100,000 a year, although his salary may be only $250 a month.

THE ENGLAND OF TO-DAY.

(Washington Post.)

The England of to-day is not the England which, under a German King and a weak ministry, blundered into the fatal error of attempting to tyrannize over the American colonies. England now exhibits the same spirit as that which sustained Washington and Lafayette. It is battling heroically for human rights. In spite of mistakes and difficulties in the administration of its immense Empire, Great Britain stands for the essentials of self-Government, home rule and individual liberty. Its subjects are free men, wherever they stand upon the earth. No war lord mortgages their lives from the cradle to the grave, or drives them like cattle in the prosecution of monstrous ambitions. The British people are their own war lords. Their Empire, great as it is in extent, is greater because of the spirit of liberty that guides and defends it.

A RACE OF HONOURS.

(Tit-Bits).

During the war there has been an interesting contest between two noted regiments— the South Wales Borderers and the Rifle Brigade—in regard to the Victoria Cross. Before the war the Borderers had for some years held the record for winning the highest number of crosses—sixteen; the Riflemen following with fifteen. Then the latter won two more and held the lead for a time. But the Borderers again asserted themselves through the agency of Captain Buchanan and Private Flynn, and now hold pride of place with eighteen crosses.

The earliest V.C. was Assistant-Surgeon Douglas, who won the honour in the 'sixties for saving a ship's crew near the Andaman Islands. Two noted winners were Lieuts. Melville and Coghill, whose distinctions were awarded posthumously. They swam the Tugela, after the disaster at Isandhlwana, and saved the regimental colours at the cost of their lives. Lieut. Bromhead won his Cross for gallantry at Rorke's Drift at the same period

Rupture Is Curable

Rupture is not a tear or breach in the abdominal wall, as commonly supposed, but it is a stretching or dilation of a natural opening, says J. Y. Egan, of Toronto, the noted Rupture Appliance Specialist who will visit Peterborough, Empress Hotel, Saturday, Sunday, June 9th and 10th.

The "Curatrus" as now used and approved will not only retain any case of rupture perfectly, affording immediate and complete comfort, but is intended to assist nature to close the opening in the shortest time known without an operation. This appliance has received highest awards wherever shown, producing results without harmful injections or other aids. Mr. Egan has testimonials from our own section for inspection. If interested call, he will be pleased to show you same without charge.

Flying Man Has To Think Very Quickly

The hardest part about flying in war is the thinking that a flying man has to do. Here's the idea in an English flying man's own words:

"There's isn't enough to keep a man's mind busy in the air since the war has developed the aeroplane. In the old days of the aeroplane there were so many things a flying man had to watch that he didn't have time to worry about what might happen to him. But in these days sitting in your machine is about like sitting on a log and waiting for something to happen.

"We don't have to use our hands as we used to. There is only one lever and you don't have to watch that very closely. You can fly for hours without having your hand on it. You can write, or read or smoke and unless you touch the level to change its position you will fly along at the same level indefinitely owing to the self stabilization of the machine.

"So, with your attention only mildly occupied, you keep looking down over the edge to see what's happening. You get to watching the wires and wondering what would happen if a bullet cut one of them. You look at the frail all irons and consider how frail they really are. Shrapnel is breaking below you and around you perhaps. That's a daily occurrence. There is no use of trying to dodge it for by so doing you may only run into it.

"So there you sit imagining all sorts of horrible possibilities. You have been told to go to a certain place and then return. Your route is all laid out for you and your duties are so simple and easy that while you are performing them you have a thousand times too much spare time for thought and worry. As for myself I would much rather have the aeroplane a less simple affair just to have my attention occupied. An imagination is a curse to a flier."

And then there is the problem of the whirling compass.

An airman flies in a cloud: suddenly the finger of his compass begins to whirl around like a clock gone mad. Scientists say it does whirl but so many English airmen have had the experience that even the scientific men are wondering whether the phenomenon is not worth studying.

"My compass finger has whirled like a top when I have gone into a cloud. It's enough to turn you demented. It's bad enough, goodness knows to be lost in a cloud, but to have your compass go back on you at the same time is too much. Our scientific instructors tell us that the compass does not change but that we lose our heads when we get into the mist and change our courses without realising, so that the compass indicator changes naturally.

"But in some clouds your compass doesn't change. It remains as steady as it was in the sunshine. Why should a lier jiggle his course unknowingly in one cloud and not in another? My opinion is that there are certain kinds of clouds that are charged with electricity. In such clouds your compass gets crazy. In other words, where electricity is not present your compass behaves itself."

How far are the clouds above the earth?

As high above as we wish to climb. But the chief question with a flying man is how low the clouds are. A crack English flier told the correspondent something about low clouds.

"You may be walking along the street on a heavy day and looking up may think that the clouds are miles high. As a matter of fact they may be only 200 or 300 feet above you. That's the kind of day that the airman dreads. I've been lost in a cloud in France and come down out of it only to find myself flying around among the church steeples of a French town with good chances of killing myself.

"In a cloud you never can tell whether you are over the enemy's lines. You may come right down on to his trenches before you know it. Clouds, the low kinds, are the most deadly things that we have to fear."

Lady Nicotine Has Bewitched English Girls

LONDON, Eng. — English girls are so hopelessly addicted to cigarettes that physiologists fear that the nation will have to pay the price in a new generation of rickety, weedy children. The long bearded sages may be right in what they say but nobody seems to care. Falling birth-rate and the fearful national consequences of infant mortality impress the public mind far less than a two-cent rise on a popular brand of cigarettes.

An athletic young woman, who tames American horses for army remounts, claims that she can quit smoking whenever she wants to. So far it seems that she hasn't wanted to quit for she outsmokes her own brother who spends his time in the trenches. When this girl began war work she was knitting socks for soldiers and it was not until she began taming horses that she fell for the kind that the Grand Duke smokes.

No man who knows enough to take the spoon out of his cup will think of passing up the ladies when he offers cigarettes with after-dinner coffee. He is bound to give them a chance to turn down the proffered pill if any of them are non-smokers. Women smoke as much as men in the restaurants and in the lounge rooms of hotels.

Maybe that would appear to be a mere foible of the girls. But it is not. Though there is still some natural timidity about smoking on the streets it is nothing unusual to observe a number of girls seated in the sub-way smoking-cars with cigarettes at their lips.

Several Government offices and business firms employing girl clerks have set aside smoking rooms for their benefit and in the tea-rooms scattered everywhere about London women patronise the smoking room almost as regularly as do the men.

Before the war it was the polite thing to ask whether the ladies objected if the men smoked. To-day a physician in a munition making area reports that fourteen girls have come to him for treatment for tobacco heart. His investigation proves to him that women and girls of every class are addicted to the cigarette habit. Munition girls even smoke pipes and the prevalence of the tobacco craving is indicated by the fact that in three weeks women munition workers paid total fines of $750 for carrying matches on their clothing while at work in dangerous factories.

The physician lectured his patients on the evil physical effects of smoking and reminded them that the nation looks to their kind to become mothers of the new race. But cigarettes are handy and the craving is strong while posterity seems to be a long way off. So the English girl smokes almost whenever, wherever, and as much as she wants.

Press Comment on Socialist Congress

"To Catch the Unwary."

Utica Press: "The whole programme is a sham and deception framed by the Berlin government to catch the unwary, and Scheidemann and his fellow delegates are as much now the subservient agents of the military autocracy as they have been throughout the war."

"Pro-German, Un-American."

Boston Post: "Socialists in this country who talk 'no indemnities' reveal themselves as pro-German, anti Belgian and anti-American.

"From Bethmann-Hollweg, Himself"

Philadelphia Press: "The programme formulated by the German and Austrian delegates to the Socialist Conference to be held at Stockholm, might well have come from Bethmann-Hollweg himself, so favourable is it to the Teutnic side."

"Dangling Bait Before Russians"

New York Tribune: "The German government is not sincere in promoting a no annexations, no indemnities peace movement. But it has much to gain by dangling this bait before the Russian socialists, whose chief concern just now seems to be to end the war promptly in order to gather more easily at home the fruits of the revolution."

"Just Retribution for Barbarism."

Bridgeport Post: "Berlin is now in deadly fear that the ports of every nation of consequence will be closed to her commerce when the war ends. This would be just retribution for the barbarism practised in all directions during the war."

"Could Hardly be More One-sided"

Albany Argus: "Suspicion that the Socialist peace conference at Stockholm is intended to be a catspaw Hohenzollern scheme is decidedly strengthened by the terms laid down by the German group conference Wednesday. It could hardly be more one-sided."

"Ask Allies for Terms of Peace"

Philadelphia Record: "Germany was not attacked, and there will be no peace until that brazen lie is abandoned and neither the German Socialists or the other German socialists nor the other Germans will name the peace terms. When they are sufficiently tired of the war they can ask the Allies for the terms of peace."

Astrologer Predicts End of The War Early in 1918

Stuart Armour, who in February of this year predicted the entry of the United States into the European war, has since then made very careful mathematical calculations, and gives it as his opinion that the war will come to a close in March or April, 1918.

Mr. Armour is not a professional astrologer, but a sincere student of it for twenty years. He is the manager of Mount Stephen House, in Field, British Columbia, and in his leisure hours devotes his attention to figuring out events from the stars, and his predictions have come to pass to such an extent that he has made quite a name for himself as a prophet in Western Canada. His prediction now is:—

"From the viewpoint of astrology, the entry of the United States into the great war has given us another factor to be taken into consideration in arriving at a conclusion of the time the war will endure. With this addition to the forces of right, the war can by no means last past July, 1918, and those men who are talking of two or three more years of war are mistaken.

"As I stated in a previous article of October 22, 1916, there is much evidence that the war will close in 1917, though from the stellar influence of the United States, now to be taken into consideration, it may possibly last until June or July, 1918. However, when the evil aspects that are brewing against the Kaiser are considered, in my opinion, the utmost length the war can go is to March or April, 1918.

"Gemini has been a fateful sign to the United States, and the disturbing, liberty loving planet Uranus was in that sign during the wars of the Revolution and the Rebellion, and was in opposition to that sign during the Spanish-American war. On the other hand, Jupiter in that sign brings peace and prosperity to the United States, and Jupiter enters Gemini June 15 of this year and leaves it in July, 1918.

"In November of this year the planets in the Kaiser's horoscope will produce a chaotic condition of affairs—plots, counter plots and revolutions. The German people will begin to see the abyss toward which they have been led since 1914.

"The question that occurs to an astrologer is, Will this finish the Kaiser and lead to a peace or will events wait until March or April, 1918, while Saturn is stationary in opposition to the Kaiser's sun? It calls for a close decision, but one thing the reader may be sure of, that on the arrival of the last named period the Kaiser will either be dethroned or dead. If the war is not ended in 1917 the end of it will be so clearly in sight that the world will begin to figure on what shall be done when peace arrives."

Yes, Builds You Up in 5 to 10 Days

Iron For the Blood and Phosphorus For the Nerves

Weak, anaemic, run-down, nervous persons will be glad to know that they can be restored back to their youth vigor by the discovery of this new drug called Sanised Phosphorus with Iron.

It is spring time now and every person needs something to build them up. Now you know as well as any doctor will tell you, the curse of spring time is impure blood. It takes many people to their grave, ruins health, makes you weak, runs you down and finally you are a physical wreck.

This new drug is a combination of iron and phosphorus. The iron acts directly on the blood while the phosphorus soothes and strengthens the nerves. You start today and take two or three tablets of Sanised Phosphorus with Iron after meals and in 5 to 10 days you will be 100 per cent. stronger.

This drug does not act like other iron tonics you have taken, but instead, it does not blacken the teeth, upset the stomach or make you constipated. This new drug is dispensed by one druggist in each city. F. O. Weber dispenses it for Peterborough.

When the car is travelling rapidly do not apply the brakes so that the wheels will skid. The rubber will be either scuffed from the tread or the cover will slip around and cause the tube to pull at the valve stem.

The French Inflict Heavy Losses On Enemy

Peterborough War Veterans Endorse Conscription

German Air Craft Suffer Heavily During Last Raid

At Least Four and Possibly Eight Were Destroyed and Their Crews Lost According to Admiralty Statements To-day. French Inflict Great Losses on Enemy in the Champagne District. General Haig Reports New Gains by British.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

LONDON, June 6.—British seaplanes took a heavy toll of the German aeroplane squadron which yesterday raided English coast counties, according to an Admiralty statement to-day. "Yesterday afternoon eighteen enemy aircraft were sighted off Ostend," the statement says, "proceeding in a northwest direction. The enemy planes were chased to England, and on their return journey two enemy planes were driven down by one pilot. Later two or three were completely destroyed. Four others were driven down out of control, two being considered as destroyed."

Lord French, Commander-in-Chief of Home Defence Forces, reported yesterday that two German planes had been downed "before the enemy departed seaward." Presumably the Admiralty's count is in addition to these. This means that at least four, and possibly eight German aeroplanes and their crews were lost. The German official statement this morning reporting this raid says: "Our aeroplane squadron dropped 5,000 kilograms (about 10,000 pounds) of bombs on Sheerness. Good hits were observed."

Lord French to-day announced casualties in raid as twelve killed and thirty-six injured. The material damage, he said, was not great.

PARIS (French Official), June 6.—Extremely heavy losses were inflicted on two German assailing waves which vainly sought to reach the French lines near Hurtebise, to-day's official statement declared. There was action during the night in the Chemin Des Dames sector, and also west between the Ailette and the Laon Road, the War Office states. The artillery struggle reached its most violent stage especially east of Vauxaillon, north of the Leffaux region and around Braye on Laonnois. Near Hurtebise two German assailing waves attempting to reach our lines northeast of Monument were thrown back to their starting point losing very heavily.

LONDON, June 6.—Field Marshal Haig swung his British columns forward in a renewal of the offensive on the west front to-day. North of the Scarpe we further progressed on the western slopes of the Greenland Hill, he reported. West of Loos we gained ground slightly.

Greenland Hill lies about five miles south of Lens and close to Gavrelle. Dousi, toward which the British have been thrusting in the whole offensive movement is a scant five miles to the west. Loos is just north of Lens, and the slight gain to the west reported by the British Commander-in-Chief indicated progress of the enveloping movement around the Coal City.

North of Armentieres, Haig's report continued, we carried out successful raids at night. The enemy's trenches were entered at a number of points and many casualties inflicted.

(By Henry Wood, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, June 6.—Germany has only sixty divisions of troops on the western front; approximately 315,000 men—which she has not yet flung into the fighting line. The 107 divisions (1,605,000 men), with which the British and French offensives have been engaged in recent weeks, have suffered losses averaging between two and three thousand per division—or from 214,000 to 321,000 men. The figures are those of the French Headquarters. They give not only a clear idea of the tremendous efforts which Germany is making to stop the French and British advance, but also the terrible toll which the Allies have taken in the fighting. The French estimates are that Germany has a total of 156 divisions of all kinds of troops now on the western front. (This would be about 2,340,000 men). Of these 156, only 128 are divisions of real fighting men the others being auxiliary corps. One hundred and seven of these 128 fighting corps have been identified as opposed to the French and British forces at some time during the offensive. Ever since Field Marshal Von Hindenburg's visit to the Aisne and Champagne fronts early in May the Germans have given indications of no other plan of campaign than to resist and counter-attack desperately, while feverishly constructing at the rear successive series of retreat lines similar to the boasted "Hindenburg Line."

TOKIO, June 6.—Autocracy's forces in China apparently have triumphed, and to-day it appears that the Republic is practically destroyed. A division of China into two nations seems probable. A long struggle of militarism against constitutionalism may be expected to follow the present revolution.

PETROGRAD, June 6.—The Workmen's and Soldiers' Council to-day appealed to the local council of that organization at Kronstadt to reconsider its action in seizing the fortress there. "The seizure of the city was an adoption of power contrary to the policy of the Russian revolutionary democracy," the Council asserted. The Petrograd General Council's action followed a formal report on the conditions at Kronstadt submitted by one of its committeemen, M. Amsioff, delegated to make an investigation.

AMSTERDAM, June 6.—"The German navy does not wish anything more than a new encounter with the enemy, and if the latter can be induced to show themselves again, we will do the rest," declares the Berlin Lokal Anzeiger to-day, in commenting of a speech delivered at London by Admiral Simms, U.S.N., Sunday.

Sergt. Edwards To Speak Here

Member of the Original Princess Pats Who Was a Prisoner in Germany for Eighteen Months to Give Address in Collegiate Hall

Sergeant Edwards, one of the few remaining original members of the famous Princess Pat's Battalion, which did such splendid work and endured so much for the cause of the Allies in the early days of the war, will speak here in the Collegiate Hall on Friday evening, June 8th, at 8:15.

Sergeant Edwards was taken prisoner by the Germans, and managed on his third attempt to escape. He was recaptured twice and was treated with great severity in consequence of his attempts to get away. Sergeant Edwards was a prisoner of war for eighteen months, and will relate his experiences as such, and speak of conditions prevailing in the camps, food, treatment of the prisoners.

Members of the audience will be at liberty to ask Sergeant Edwards questions relating to Red Cross parcels or any matter of general interest.

As this is the first time we have had this aspect of the war presented to us in Peterborough by a man who has actually had the experience of being a prisoner in Germany, it should be most interesting to every one, but especially so to those whose sons and husbands are still prisoners in that unfriendly land. We hope the Collegiate Hall will be packed to hear Sergeant Edwards.

There will be a musical programme preceding the address. A collection will be taken up on behalf of the Peterborough Red Cross Society's Prisoners of War Department.

Collegiate Pupils Absent in May Are With the Farmers

The Collegiate Institute enrollment for May was 281 students, with an average attendance of 253. Mr. H. R. H. Kenner reported that the decreased attendance was accounted for by the number of pupils released for farm work during the month.

BOARD OF EDUCATION MAY DISCONTINUE SOLDIER SALARIES

Mr. Arthur D. Hone Has Enlisted With Heavy Battery and Receives Differences Between Salary and Military Pay

THREE TEACHERS ENLIST

Mr. Arthur D. Hone, for the past three years Science Master on the Collegiate Institute staff, has enlisted with the Cobourg Heavy Battery. He was given leave of absence last night by the Board of Education who decided to make up the difference between his military pay and allowances and his salary as Science Master. The motion to this effect was moved by Mr. Gordon and seconded by Col. Miller added to it was a recommendation that any other teachers intending to enlist, first notify the Board before taking action.

Early in the war, Mr. Hone, offered his services to the Government, but was informed that as an expert chemist he was more valuable in Canada. He is married and has one child.

Mr. Hone is the third local teacher to enlist and, following the resolution passed in February 1916, the Board is paying the difference between their military pay and their salary when they enlisted. It was stated last night that the estimates did not provide for the extra salary thus entailed, and the rider to last night's resolution indicates the changing attitude of the Board. Mr. W. H. Hill observed that in the first days of the war most financial establishments continued to pay in full the salaries of their employees who enlisted.

"It's getting to be a serious matter now," remarked Mr. Eastwood.

Mr. Gordon stated that the Board was in honour bound to carry out their promise to these three men.

Mr. Hill said that school nurses who have gone overseas were not satisfied that they had not received the treatment accorded the men.

It was remarked that Captains Park and Munroe were unmarried.

A TRIBUTE TO LOCAL TEACHER

The following item from the Lindsay Post refers to the school, of which Miss G. M. Hunter, of this city, is in charge:

The Empire Day concert given by the scholars was a great success. The program included speeches by the pupils, dealing with the nations engaged in the present conflict, and reflected great credit on the teacher, Miss Gladys Hunter, to whom their remarkable ability as orators is due. Her careful training aims at fitting each child in future life as an efficient public speaker and able orator. The large number who attended the concert were enthusiastic in their praise of the splendid work accomplished by Miss Hunter.

Will Carry A Cafe Car

Commencing June 4th train 601, running from Havelock to Toronto, on the C.P.R., will carry a cafe and parlour car. Train 602, running from Toronto to Havelock, will have a similar service.

THEY WANT CONSCRIPTION

Peterborough Branch of Great War Veterans' Association Places itself on Record as Being Heartily in Favour of Selective Draft Measure.

VOTE WAS UNANIMOUS

The Peterborough branch of the Great War Veterans' Association have no "conscientious objectors" to conscription. Judging by the resolution passed at the regular monthly general meeting in the Barrie Building, last night. There was a large attendance and the opinion of the men who have fought overseas is indicated by the following resolution, which was carried unanimously:

"The Great War Veterans' Association, Peterborough branch, places itself on record as most heartily in favour of conscription, and resolves to petition Mr. J. H. Burnham, member of parliament for West Peterborough, to give the Conscription Bill, which is to come before the Dominion Parliament, his whole and hearty support."

There was no divergence of opinion among the veterans as to the necessity of introducing compulsory service to supply reinforcements for the Canadian soldiers at the front.

Five new members were admitted at last night's meeting. Among them were Pte. Fred Haggart, late of the 3rd Pioneers; Pte. George Cowan, formerly of the 39th Battalion, and Pte. Dave Bradley, a former member of the 93rd, who has just returned from overseas. All three were badly wounded in France, Pte. Haggart suffering the loss of an arm, and Pte. Cowan of a leg.

Guard Is Arrested

Sentry Who Shot Trenton Man Is Charged With Manslaughter

BELLEVILLE, June 5.—Following the finding of the jury at the inquest as to the death of Louis Lapointe, who succumbed to a bullet wound in the head, caused by a bullet from a rifle in the hands of a guard at the British Chemical Company's plant at Trenton, Pte. Horace Creasey, aged eighteen years, was taken into custody on a charge of manslaughter. He will be given preliminary hearing to-night at Trenton before Magistrate O'Rourke.

The jury brought in a verdict that Lapointe died on Wednesday of a wound received on Tuesday, and added that "we consider from the evidence produced that the conduct of said Louis Lapointe did not warrant the guard in taking the extreme measure which caused his death."

Evidence went to show that Lapointe refused to show his pass when challenged, and that he approached the guard closely, when the rifle, the butt of which was at the soldier's right side was discharged.

Good Numbers for Band Concert

The 57th Regiment Band held a very successful practice last night with nearly every member out, and the programme for Friday night's concert in Victoria Park was rehearsed. A big number that will be a feature is a selection from the successful musical comedy "Princess Pat," including the following song hits: "I Wish I Was an Island in an Ocean of Girls," "Neapolitan Love Song," "Allies," "I'd Like To Be a Quitter But I Find It Hard to Quit," "All For You," "A Little World For Two," "For Better or For Worse," "Two Laughing Irish Eyes," "Irish Reel," "I Need Affection," "Love Is Best of All," and "Make His Guess." The selection from Pinafore which was to have been played last week will also be included in Friday's programme. Among the numbers are the following: "Let's Give Three Cheers," "A Maiden Fair To See," "Little Buttercup," "Carefully on Tip-toe Stepping," "When I Was a Lad," and "He's An Englishman."

APPLICATION TO ESTABLISH CITY FUEL YARD APPROVED BY MUNICIPAL BOARD

MR. BURNHAM'S APPEAL

The importance of the opening of the Trent Canal is so great that I hope that there will be a large attendance at the Mayor's meeting on Thursday evening. It is not understood here why the G.T.R. bridge at Campbellford should have been allowed to stand in the way of the opening of the Canal at its present six-foot depth, from Lake Ontario to Lake Simcoe. We all understand that the war has held up the completion of the whole Canal from Georgian Bay to Lake Ontario at the full eight-foot four-inch depth, but that is another matter. There is no excuse for allowing the present postponement and we shall have the support of the Government against the Minister in his present course if we "go to it" and insist upon what most assuredly should be done without delay. The Minister pledged himself to have this bridge matter attended to, but as his letter to the Prime Minister shows, he has failed to grasp the situation, and I have taken the matter up, so as to lose no time.

J. H. BURNHAM.

Ottawa, June 5th.

But Must Amend Local By-law To Provide for Financing the Enterprise As Required by the Municipal Act — Either Issue Debentures or Strike Rate for the Debt the City Incurs.

COAL DEALERS APPROVE

The Ontario Railway and Municipal Board, in session at the Court House this morning, approved and sanctioned Peterborough's application to establish a municipal fuel yard. The sole stipulation announced by the chairman, Mr. D. M. McIntyre, calls for an amendment to the city's by-law requiring the financial obligation assumed by the municipality in its venture to be provided for by a debenture issue or taxation as prescribed by the Municipal Act.

In making the application, the Council proposed to borrow money up to $35,000, but Mr. McIntyre emphasized the legal necessity of a definite plan to raise whatever sum may be required according to the alternative methods permitted by the Act. Hence it now remains for the Council to alter its by-law in that regard and submit it to the Board for their approval. When that is secured, the way is open to the establishment of a municipal fuel yard if the city decided to proceed with the enterprise.

Entire Board Present.

Assisting Mr. McIntyre, were Mr. A. B. Ingram, vice-chairman, Mr. H. N. Kittson, commissioner, and Mr. A. C. Small, secretary. The city was represented by Mr. G. N. Gordon, solicitor, City Clerk Armstrong, Mayor Duffus and Ald. Dobbin. Mr. H. A. Harrington, of Toronto, general secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association, presented the objections of the Ontario Coal Dealers' Association, and Mr. C. H. Cox, a Toronto wholesale coal dealer, was also present. Practically all the local coal merchants were present, and of their number, Mr. Robert Hicks and Mr. J. E. A. Fitzgerald were called in the hearing of the petition.

Mr. Harrington in his demur, remarked quite appositely that the eyes of Ontario were focused on Peterborough's application. If granted it would establish the right of the municipality to enter into business competition with its citizens. Mr. McIntyre called his attention to the fact that the Legislature had already conceded that right under certain circumstances which, he and his colleagues concluded, obtained in this case. He added that, as the coal merchants had testified, the times were abnormal, and required extraordinary measures to meet them. Mr. Hicks had approved of the application as a war measure, and the sentiment of the dealers had endorsed it in that aspect.

A New Problem.

"This is is a new matter for the Board and we have no settled procedure that would apply to matters of this kind," Mr. McIntyre observed at the outset.

"Was there any opposition in the Council to the by-law?"

Mr. Gordon—No, sir. It passed unanimously.

City Clerk Armstrong was called to testify to the formalities preliminary to the hearing of the application. He stated that ten of the eleven members of the Council were present at the meeting when the by-law was passed. Since then the hearing of the application had been fully advertised in the local papers.

Mr. McIntyre remarked that the city's fuel yard by-law made no provision for the borrowing of the $35,000; the estimated requirement.

Mr. Gordon replied that the Council intended to borrow money temporarily from the bank. There was no intention of making the fuel yard permanent.

Mr. McIntyre pointed out that there must be a definite legal method of

More Peterborough Soldiers Are Back From Overseas Service

Party of Four, Three of Which Had Been Badly Wounded in France Reached Home Last Evening. Three Were Former Members of the 93rd Battalion. To-day's General Military News

There were some touching scenes at the Grand Trunk station on the arrival of the 5.35 train last evening when a party of wounded soldiers, the second to reach Peterborough in the last few days, arrived home. The squad of heroes consisted of Lance-Corp. D. J. McIntosh of the 42nd Highlanders, and formerly of the 93rd; Pte. Wm. Woodrow of the 5th Canadian Mounted Rifles, and also a former member of the 93rd; Pte. Chas. Taylor of the 18th Canadians, who went overseas with the 93rd, and Pte. Tom Baxter, a former employee of the Examiner, who left here with the 20th Battery in the spring of 1915.

Friends of the returning soldiers were at the station to greet them, and the greetings were of mingled joy and sorrow—joy at the return of loved ones and sorrow at the nature of their wounds. Ald. Worth was on hand to represent the city and motor cars were waiting to take the men to their homes.

The most seriously wounded soldier in the party was undoubtedly Pte. Chas. Taylor of Chemong Indian Village, a former member of the 93rd Battalion, who has not only lost a leg but has also sacrificed an eye for the Empire. Pte. Taylor who is an uncle of the five Taylor brothers, all of whom were also members of the 93rd, enlisted in the Peterborough County unit and after going overseas with that battalion was transferred in a draft to the 18th Western Ontario Battalion at the front. He received his injuries from a German shell at Vimy Ridge soon after the Canadians were transferred from the Somme to the Arras section. None of his friends knew that he was coming home yesterday, so that there was no one at the station to meet him.

However, a motor car was secured and he was soon on his way home to Chemong, where he will be supplied with an artificial limb. Pte. Taylor was in the best of spirits, glad to be home, and, in spite of his injuries, was in good health.

Pte. Wm. Woodrow was met at the station by his wife and children and Rev. Jas. Price, Rector of St. George's, of which church he was choirmaster before enlisting in the 93rd Battalion, and is wearing an empty right sleeve as the result of injuries sustained in December last, when a German shell exploded near him. Pte. Woodrow went overseas with the 93rd and was transferred to the 5th C.M.R. in one of the first drafts from the Peterborough County Battalion. Except for his amputated arm he is apparently in splendid health.

He is to be tendered a reception at St. George's Church on Friday night.

Lance-Corp. D. J. McIntosh, who went overseas with the 93rd Battalion, served at the front first with the 42nd Battalion and afterwards with the 42nd Highlanders. He was very badly wounded when a shell hit the dugout he was in, sustaining the loss of an eye and receiving other wounds. He was a member of the recruiting staff of the 93rd Battalion before going overseas.

Pte. Tom Baxter, who was employed in the bindery of The Examiner before enlisting, left here with the 20 Battery in the spring of 1915, and was afterwards transferred to the Canadian Remounts. He has been ill for some time in England.

LONDON, Ont., June 5.—According to a report prepared by Military Headquarters, four hundred and seventy-seven Londoners were canvassed as a result of the National Service census. Of this number only four agreed to enlist, twenty-five had enlisted previously, forty-six were unfit, forty under age, and the remainder refused to enlist.

Mrs. H. White, 496 Cambridge St., whose son, Pte. Harry C. White, formerly of the 93rd Battalion, was wounded early last month, has received the following letters:

22 Casualty Clearing Station,
B. E. F.,
May 9, 1917.

Dear Mrs. White,—Your boy (H. C. White, 195291, 1st Canadian Battalion) has asked me to write and tell you that he is now in hospital, wounded in the right hand and both legs. I am sorry to say that his wounds are rather serious, and one can only hope and pray that it may please God to restore him to health and strength. May our Heavenly Father protect him and comfort you in your anxiety.—Yours sincerely,

William Dick,
Church of England Chaplain.

Pte. White's Letter.

War Hospital, Epsom,
May 15th, 1917.

My dear Mother,—A few lines to let you know that I arrived in England quite safe, and I am going on splendid. My wounds are more severe than I thought at first, but I am thankful to say that I am not suffering very much pain. I only wish that my right hand was all right, so that I could write to you myself.

The hospital here is very homely, and the nurses are real bricks, considering the sights of different patients' wounds they have to dress of a morning.

There are some lovely grounds around here, which can be seen from our ward windows.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 6, 1917

NOW AND THEN.

On Monday night our amiable aldermen decided to procure an United States flag to hand alongside the real flag in the Council Chamber. This is a good and graceful and right thing to do in recognition of the new alliance. But it illustrates how things have changed. If the aldermen six years ago had dared to do such a thing, as degrade our flag by equalising even in position the United States flag with it, they would have been led out upon the market square, stood with their backs to the weigh scales, and shot.

But as a matter of fact the British flag was no better then than now, and not so good; at least it was not so well treated—it was trailed through the mud and mire of party politics, prostituted to party politics—in the interests of democracy? No; in the interests of the big interests, the money makers, the food exploiters, the peaking interests, whose representatives have been knighted for standing by the flag and—themselves.
